CEDARHURST PARK

LONG ISLAND.
The most desirable natural residence site anywhere near New York. A country home with all city advantages.
Commanding a magnificent view of Ocean and Bay, with fine fishing and boating within five minutes' walk. SCHOOLS equal to those anywhere. Pure air. Purest water in the world.
Big plots, from 100x100 to 175x175; highly restricted; completely developed; with all city improvements; at phenomenally low prices.
Water, Gas and Electric Mains are now being run to the property. Streets are rolled hard—some exquisitely parked—cement sidewalks throughout—shade trees, etc., etc.
A costly and pretentious Clubhouse for residents is to be erected; a plaza with a magnificent fountain likewise, and flower beds have been placed at many points on the property.
Sale on premises every day and Sundays.

THE COZIEST OF HOMES.
It does not follow that a cozy home must be a small cramped affair. The fact that it may be plenty large, amid attractive surroundings and yet cozy, is proven by a visit to any one of the many homes ready for IMMEDIATE OCCUPATION

MORSEMERE.

They have all been designed for maximum comfort and elegance, with reasonableness in prices.
One of the most perfectly appointed, charmingly located, artistically arranged and withal comparatively inexpensive homes is but partly described as follows:
Nine rooms and bath, steam heated, double hardwood floors on first floor. Hardwood trim throughout—Oak, first floor; Red Hazel on second and third floors. Cemented cellars. Decorations, fixtures, mantels, etc., complete and selected to please the most critical.
All improvements in the street—Water, gas, sewer, cement sidewalks, curb and gutters; shade trees. One block to trolley, whence seven minutes to 130th Street Ferry. Price, $9,500, on terms to suit purchaser.
DELIGHTFUL COMMUNITY, GOOD SCHOOLS AND MODERATE TAXES are but few of the attractive features of this most easily accessible suburb. Office on the property.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of B. & SHAINE & CO., Bankrupt.—No. 9,083.—Notice of filing and settlement of Trustee's final account.

To the creditors of the above-named bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that the Trustee in Bankruptcy in this proceeding has filed his final account in the office of the undersigned Referee herein, where it can be inspected by creditors, and that a final meeting of creditors of said bankrupt will be held at my office, No. 71 Broadway, in the City, County, and State of New York, on April 22d, 1907, at 10:30 o'clock A. M., at which meeting the said Trustee's account will be examined, and if found correct, the same will be allowed, and the said Trustee discharged of his trust, and the amount, if any, remaining for dividends, will be determined by the Referee, a final dividend will be declared, if there are funds applicable thereto, and any other business proper to be performed at said meeting may be transacted.

And further notice is hereby given that all creditors of the bankrupt and all claimants against the estate and the Receiver and the Trustee thereof, and all other persons who may have claims against the assets of this estate, are notified and directed to produce proof at or before the time of such final meeting of any such claims in reclamation, assignment or otherwise, against the funds or property of this estate, and in the event of their failure so to do they will be forever barred from making or prosecuting any claim against said property or against said Receiver or said Trustee in connection therewith.

Dated New York, April 2d, 1907.

STANLEY W. DEXTER,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

LEGAL SALES.

SPECIAL MASTER'S SALE.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division.—UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK and JOHN A. STEWART, as Trustees, complainants, against CHICAGO TERMINAL TRANSFER RAILROAD COMPANY and others, defendants.—In Equity, No. 26,130.

Notice is hereby given that under and in pursuance of a certain decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, duly entered in the above-entitled cause on the 20th day of February, 1907, and in pursuance of a certain decree ancillary thereto duly entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Indiana on the 23d day of February, 1907, I, Henry W. Wales, the Special Master in Chancery named in said decrees, will sell to the highest bidder or bidders by public auction at the east main entrance on Fifth Avenue of the Grand Central Passenger Station, situated at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Harrison Street, in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, State of Illinois, on the premises so to be sold, at 12 o'clock noon on Friday, the third day of May, 1907, all and singular the railroads, franchises, and property of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, said railroads, franchises, and property being described in said decrees as follows, namely:

All those certain railroads extending from a point at or near Harrison Street, in the City of Chicago, and between Fifth Avenue and the south branch of the Chicago River; thence southerly across said south branch of the Chicago River, between Fourteenth and Twelfth Street, in the City of Chicago; thence southerly and westerly across Stewart Avenue, near Meagher Street, in the City of Chicago; thence westerly to and across Western Avenue, in the City of Chicago, near Fourteenth Street; thence westerly and northerly across Washtenaw Avenue, in the City of Chicago, near West Taylor Street; thence westerly and northerly to Madison Street, in Section 13, Township 39 north, Range 12, east of the Third Principal Meridian, in the Village of Harlem, County of Cook, Illinois, with a branch railroad therefrom, leaving said last described railroad at a point near the intersection of Western Avenue and Fourteenth Street; thence south and southerly to the City of Blue Island, in said Cook County, and from a point known as Harvey Junction, on the Chicago and Calumet Terminal Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad, south and southerly to and through the City of Chicago Heights and to the east and west center line of Section 28, Township 35 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, Cook County, Illinois, including the Thornton spur so called, which last described railroad, or branch railroad, is known as the Chicago Central Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad; also the Chicago and Southwestern Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad, being a branch line of railroad leaving said first-mentioned railroad at a point near South Forty-sixth Avenue, in the City of Chicago; thence westerly and southerly to West Sixteenth Street, and thence westerly to Harlem Avenue, and thence northerly to a connection with said first-mentioned railroad, near Harlem Avenue, including the Beach Track, so called, together with all the interest of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company in the Beach Street track, so called, being a railroad track owned jointly by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, the Pennsylvania Company, and the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, and extending along Beach Street, in the City of Chicago, from a point near Twelfth Street to a point near Polk Street; together with all the right, title and interest of the said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company in the Chicago, Harlem and Batavia Railroad, so called, being a railroad which, at the time of the execution of said mortgage, extended from a point on said first described railroad near South Fortieth (or Crawford) Avenue; thence northerly to a point near the intersection of Randolph Street and South Fortieth Avenue, thence westerly to a point near Des Plaines Avenue, and thence southerly to the Concordia Cemetery, near Desplaines Avenue; also the Chicago and Calumet Terminal Division of said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad, being a railroad extending from Fine Junction, on the line of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, in Lake County, in the State of Indiana; thence west through the Cities of East Chicago and Hammond, in said Lake County, and thence westerly through the City of Blue Island; and thence westerly and northerly to a point near the tunnel or canal of the Sanitary District of Chicago, near McCook, in said Cook County, in the State of Illinois, with a leasehold interest in all trackage rights from the Chicago Junction Railway Company, from said point near McCook to Franklin Park, in said Cook County, with a branch therefrom from the City of East Chicago, in said Lake County, in the State of Indiana, north and northerly to Whiting, in said Lake County, together with trackage rights or leasehold interest in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, from said Whiting to South Chicago, and certain other trackage rights from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, in said South Chicago, and a leasehold interest in the Lyons and Chicago Railroad, so called being a railroad running easterly from the Chicago and Calumet Terminal Division at a point near McCook to and into the Chicago Crushed Stone Company's property; together with the Mayfair Extension, so called, being a railroad extending from said Franklin Park northerly and easterly to Mayfair, in the City of Chicago, in said Cook County, at a point near the intersection of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway and the Chicago and Northwestern Railway; together with all branches, spurs, sidings, tracks, switches, turntables, team tracks and other appurtenant tracks along and upon each and every of said described railroads; together with all depot grounds, yards, ways, rights of way, interlocking plants, switches, crossings, bridges, culverts, fences and other structures, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, elevators, warehouses, power plants, machinery and repair shops and their equipment, water tanks, turntables, superstructures, erections, buildings and appurtenances belonging to or connected with said lines of railway or the business thereof; together with all franchises, ordinances, licenses, permits, easements, leases, contracts and agreements belonging to or relating to or connected with said lines of railway or the business thereof; together with all locomotives, tenders, cars and other rolling stock, equipment, supplies, machinery, tools and implements owned or acquired by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, or by Joseph N. Tilford, late receiver hereinafter appointed herein, and belonging, pertaining to or connected with said lines of railway or the business thereof; together with all properties, real, personal, or mixed, held in leasehold or in fee, by said, in law or in equity, by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, or said receiver, including all choses in action, bills receivable and moneys owned, possessed or held by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, or said receiver, and including the following described real estate, to wit:

Lots 1 and 2 in Barr's Subdivision of Lot 10, Block 53, Canal Trustees' New Subdivision of Blocks in the northwest quarter of Section 21, Township 39 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian; also Lot 3 in Gunzenhausen's Subdivision of Lot 9, Block 53, Canal Trustees' New Subdivision of Blocks in the northwest quarter of Section 21, Township 39 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian; also that part of Lot 11, Block 53, Canal Trustees' Subdivision of the northwest quarter of Section 21, Township 39 north, Range 14, east, described as beginning at a point 25 feet east of the northwest corner of said Lot 11, thence south 73 feet, thence east 25 feet, thence north 73 feet, thence west 25 feet to the place of beginning; also Lots 36 and 38 and Lots 40 to 50, both inclusive, Block 15, and Lots 18, 19, 20, 21, and 22, in Block 16 of Simpson and Green's Addition to Chicago; also Lots 33 and 47, Baldwin's Subdivision of Block 36, in Subdivision of Section 19, Township 39 north, Range 14 east; also Lots 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 15, 16 and 17, in Cook's Subdivision in Block 10, (excepting railroad), in Ogden's Subdivision of the east half of the northeast quarter of Section 24, Township 39 north, Range 13, east; also a strip of land 66 feet wide in the west half of the west half of the northwest quarter of Section 3, Township 38 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, said strip lying partly in the north half and partly in the south half of the west half of the northwest quarter of said Section 3, described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the northerly right of way line of the Chicago Junction Railway Company and the north and south center line of said Section 3, and extending north along the said center line of Section 3, 66 feet; thence east 66 feet; thence easterly and parallel with the said right of way line of the Chicago Junction Railway Company 355 feet more or less to a point in the southerly right of way line of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, thence southeasterly along said right of way line a distance of 273 feet more or less to an intersection of said right of way line with the aforesaid right of way line of the Chicago Junction Railway Company, thence westerly along the last-mentioned line 618 feet to the point of beginning.

Also a strip of land 66 feet wide and 660 feet long more or less, running in a nearly east and west direction across the east half of the east half of the northwest quarter of Section 3, Township 38 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, said strip being partly in the north half and partly in the south half of the said east half of the east half of the northwest quarter of said Section 3, and being north and southerly of the right of way of the Chicago Junction Railway Company; also a piece of land in the west half of the east half of the northwest quarter of Section 3, Township 38 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, said piece of land lying partly in the north half and partly in the south half of the said west half of the east half of the northwest quarter of Section 3, and described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the north and south center line of the east half of the west half of Section 3 with the northerly right of way line of the Chicago Junction Railway Company, thence westerly along said right of way line 405 feet more or less to the intersection of the said right of way line with the right of way line of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, thence northeasterly along said last mentioned line a distance of 325 feet more or less to a point 71.8 feet north of the said right of way line of the Chicago Junction Railway Company, thence easterly parallel with the said right of way line of the Chicago Junction Railway Company 86 feet to the said north and south center line of the east half of the west half of Section 3, thence south along said north and south center line 71.8 feet to the point of beginning, in Cook County, Illinois.

Also a strip of land 120 feet wide in the northwest fractional quarter of fractional Section 5, Township 36 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, north of the Indian Boundary Line, described as follows:

Beginning at a point where the south right of way line of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company intersects the west line of the said northwest fractional quarter of fractional Section 5, and extending thence east along said right of way line 1,104.98 feet more or less to a corner of land of the Illinois Brick Company, thence south 120 feet to a point, thence west parallel with the said right of way line 1,104.98 feet more or less to the said west line of the northwest fractional quarter of fractional Section 5, thence north along said line 120 feet to the place of beginning, in Cook County, Illinois.

Also an irregular piece of land in the northwest fractional quarter of fractional Section 5, Township 36 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, north of the Indian Boundary Line, said strip being described as follows:

Beginning at a point where the south right of way line of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company intersects the division line between the land of Henry Homeier and the land of the grantors, and extending thence east along said right of way line 1,568.81 feet more or less to a point which is 411.19 feet west of the intersection of the said right of way line with the said Indian Boundary Line, thence southwestward 844.3 feet to a point which is 120 feet south of said right of way line of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, thence west, parallel with the right of way line, 1,033.11 feet more or less to the said division line between the lands of Henry Homeier and the lands of the grantors, thence north 120 feet to the place of beginning, situated in Cook County, Illinois.

Also a strip or tract of land 15 feet in uniform width, being all that part of the south three-fourths of the east half of the northeast quarter and of the north 40 acres of the southeast quarter, Section 12, Township 37 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian, lying east of a line 385 feet east of and parallel with the east line of the present right of way of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, as the same runs through the said three-fourths of the east half of the northeast quarter and the north 40 acres of the southeast quarter of said Section 12, in Cook County, Illinois.

Also the east 653 feet of the north 20 acres of the west 30 acres of the north 60 acres of the southeast quarter of Section 12, Township 37 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian, (said 20 acres being the north half of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of Section 12 aforesaid); also that part of the south five-eighths of the west half of the northeast quarter of Section 12, Township 37 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian, lying between the west line of right of way of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company as the same extends through said south five-eighths of the west half of the northeast quarter of said Section 12, and a line drawn parallel to and 600 feet west of said west line of said right of way, Cook County, Illinois.

Also the property, railroad, and right of way between Fourteenth Street and Thirty-ninth Street in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, and State of Illinois, acquired by the defendant Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company from the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company in exchange for the railroad between the above mentioned points constructed under the charter of the Chicago Central Railway Company, the title to which said last mentioned railroad has been transferred to and vested in the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company or the Chicago Junction Railway Company.

Also the north half of Lot 10 in School Trustees' Subdivision of Section 16, Township 40 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian.

Also 19.41 acres, more or less, described as follows, to wit: The north 20 acres of the west 30 acres of the north 60 acres, excepting the east 633 feet thereof, formerly sold to the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, and the southeast quarter of Section 12, Township 37 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian, Cook County, Illinois.

Also all that part of the northeast quarter of Section 12, Township 37 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian, Cook County, Illinois, lying west of a line 600 feet distant west of and parallel with the west right of way line of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company and south of the south line of Harry H. Honore, Jr.'s, subdivision of part of said northeast quarter of said Section 12.

Also the following described real estate, to wit: Commencing at the northeast corner of the west half of the southwest quarter of Section 21, Township 35 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, thence running west to a stake 280 feet and 6 inches, thence running south 924 feet 8½ inches; thence running east 280 feet 6 inches, thence running north 924 feet 8½ inches to the place of beginning, containing 6 acres of land, situated in Cook County, Illinois.

Also Lot 10 in Block 56, and Lot 23 in Block 136, all in Chicago Heights, a subdivision in Township 35 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian, Cook County, Illinois.

Also all the railway lines, premises, and real and personal property formerly belonging to the Bridgeport and South Chicago Railroad Company, and latterly to the Chicago and Northern Pacific Railroad Company, which property includes lands, docks, water rights, railways and terminal facilities, and which was by said Bridgeport and South Chicago Railroad Company conveyed to the Chicago and Northern Pacific Railroad Company by deed dated the 11th day of March, 1890, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Cook County, Illinois, on the 14th day of March, 1890, in Book 6968 of Records, on Page 273, wherein the Chicago Title and Trust Company was and is the grantor and the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company was and is the grantee; and excepting also all those certain lots, pieces and parcels of land described in and conveyed by those two certain deeds from the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company to the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, one dated June 1, 1898, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Cook County, Illinois, April 25, 1901, in Book 7385 of Records, at Page 265, as document No. 3002077, and the other dated June 1, 1898, and recorded in said Recorder's office April 23, 1901, in Book 7354 of Records, at Page 298, as document No. 3000612, excepting also all property heretofore conveyed by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company to the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, or the Chicago Junction Railway Company.

Said railroads, franchises and property will be sold as an entirety and upon the following terms and conditions:

Four hundred thousand dollars ($400,000.00) shall be paid in cash to the said Special Master by an approved bidder at the time of the sale, and the remainder of the purchase price thereof upon the confirmation of such sale, either in cash or in a certified check upon or a certificate of deposit of a bank or trust company satisfactory to the Special Master or in the first mortgage bonds of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company issued under the mortgage dated June 11, 1897, to the United States Trust Company of New York and John A. Stewart as trustees, and the coupons appertaining thereto, including interest upon the unpaid coupons from the respective dates of maturity thereof; the said bonds and coupons if such sale be for less than the amount due on said bonds to be taken as equivalent to so much in cash of the said purchase money as would be distributable and payable thereon. No bid for such railroads, franchises and property shall be accepted for a sum less than $15,140,000.00, nor will any bid be considered unless accompanied by the deposit of said sum of $400,000.00 in cash or in a certified check upon a bank or trust company satisfactory to the Special Master. Such sale shall be subject to the several contracts, agreements, leases, mortgages and charges described in said decree entered in the above-entitled cause February 20, 1907, and the purchaser or purchasers of the property sold shall take the property and accept a deed therefor subject to all such contracts, agreements, leases, mortgages and charges and to all agreements and contracts made under authority of said courts by the receiver now in possession of said premises.

For a more particular description of the property and premises to be sold as aforesaid and the terms and conditions of sale, reference is hereby made to the said decrees now on file in said causes respectively.

THAW COUNSEL TO EXAMINE HAMILTON

Would Prove by Him That Thaw Was Insane at the Time of the Murder.

MAY QUESTION HIS WIFE

Summing Up Likely, However, After Hamilton's Testimony—Family Denies Thaw Has a Bad Temper.

It was decided yesterday by Mr. Delmas that he would not rest the defense of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White without the further examination to-day of Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton. Mr. Delmas was still undecided whether he would also recall Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. From this it appears likely that the morning session at least will be taken up in the rounding off of the evidence on both sides, and that it will be lunch time before Mr. Delmas begins what is understood to be the effort of his life—his appeal to the jury to acquit the defendant.

Mr. Jerome may start the proceedings if he wishes to. He notified Justice Fitzgerald last Thursday that he intended to make one more attempt to induce him not to confirm the finding of the Lunacy Commission. He can have, however, little hope of succeeding, and his motion will be a mere matter of putting his objection upon the record.

The defense's object in calling Dr. Hamilton will be to prove from the mouth of Mr. Jerome's own witness that on the night of June 25 Harry K. Thaw was of unsound mind. Dr. Hamilton is on record already as believing this, and it was to gain the advantage of making him state it that Mr. Delmas ran the risk a fortnight ago of putting him on the stand. He paid the penalty in submitting his client to a Lunacy Commission, and now that that danger is past he will certainly make what capital he can from the expert's evidence.

Probably Mr. Jerome will try to break the force of this by cross-examining Dr. Hamilton upon the present condition of Thaw. He cannot hope to have these questions allowed, but if he persists he may win the sympathy of the jury and remind them of the other side of the witness's opinion. A sharp conflict between the counsels is almost sure to follow.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw can contradict some of the testimony of Mr. Hummel, but in the present stage of the case this is of small importance. The gain the defense might make by recalling her would be in working upon the feelings of the jury. However, as everybody wants to get the trial over, it may not be worth while for Mr. Delmas to worry about such a small point.

It is not expected that the District Attorney will try to make any rejoinder to the defense's sur-rebuttal. One man whose name has been frequently mentioned in the case is now in the city, and his return is taken as meaning that neither side wishes to make him testify. Jack Barrymore was subpoenaed by the People early in the trial, and it was alleged that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and he visited Dr. Carleton Flint together in 1902. Dr. Flint himself was called, but technical objections prevented him answering the questions asked him, although he would almost certainly have pleaded professional privilege. It was understood that he did not recognise Mrs. Thaw as a former patient. Jack Barrymore is now playing with Miss Ethel Barrymore at the Empire in "His Excellency the Governor."

Probably Mr. Delmas will begin his summing up to-day after lunch. He will take the whole afternoon and most of to-morrow. Mr. Jerome will have Wednesday at his disposal, and the Judge will charge the jury either Wednesday evening, or more probably, Thursday. A verdict or a disagreement should be reached before the end of the week.

Those who believe that it will never be possible to find twelve men to agree on this most complicated case are already wondering whether the defendant will be admitted to bail. Justice Fitzgerald would be entirely within his right if he allowed Thaw out pending a new trial, and strong arguments must be brought to bear upon him on the score of health. The defendant has already been in the Tombs for nearly ten months, and for a man of his habits the confinement through the hot Summer would be serious.

Certainly, if there is any possibility of obtaining his conditional release, Thaw himself will press for it, and however high the bail is fixed, his family is perfectly able to put it up. Considerable anxiety is felt by those who are responsible for him lest he should do anything in the flush of liberty to injure his chances when he faces a jury again. A member of his family took occasion yesterday to deny certain rumors that have been spread about the defendant ever since the homicide.

"It is untrue," he said, "that Harry has an ungovernable temper or that he has ever been guilty of cruelty to his inferiors or animals. It has been said that he could not even retain a valet in his employ. All I can say is that he has all his life had only two valets, one of whom was Bedford. He was an excellent servant, and was with him for ten years. He was much attached to Harry, and it was most unfortunate that he died just after the White tragedy.

"When Harry is released we have no intention of putting him under restraint. According to his present plans, he will go to France with his wife, attended by his valet and her maid, but with no companions."

Thaw yesterday passed a quiet day in the Tombs and had no visitors. He was confident as ever, and attended a special service conducted by the Rev. John Wade. The music was by Miss Abbie Clarkson Trotter, soprano, and W. Carl Engel, basso. Thaw recently gave one of his fellow-prisoners, who was also accused of homicide, $50. The man is a hopeless consumptive, and although his indictment has been quashed he cannot live long.

MAJOR FREMONT'S DEBTS.

Borrowed $4,000 from Banks—Court-Martial This Week.

Major Francis P. Frémont, U. S. A., son of Gen. John C. Frémont, who is to be courtmartialed at the Army Building, in Whitehall Street, this week, got into trouble, it is said, by borrowing money from banks in Plattsburg, N. Y., while he was stationed at the army barracks near that city. Major Frémont, according to the statements made about his debts, always borrowed the same amount on each note, the sums being $291.67, the amount of his monthly pay as a Major of the United States Army.

The banks that accommodated him, and the officers of which are said to be the cause of his present predicament, are the First National and the Plattsburg National Banks of Plattsburg. The amount of the Major's indebtedness to these institutions is said to be about $4,000, which he got by giving thirty and sixty day notes for the amount of his monthly salary.

The War Department, learning of his actions, looked into the matter, and finding that the notes were made payable as a rule on the day that Major Frémont's check was due, construed his actions as a violation of army regulations, which forbid an officer to assign pay that is yet to be earned.

In obtaining his loans from the Plattsburg National Bank, Major Frémont, according to the officials of that institution, said that he was the possessor of valuable lands and water-front properties in the City of San Francisco. The land, the cavalry officer is said to have informed the bank officials, adjoined property owned by the late Hermann Oelrichs, and was at the time being negotiated for by the United States Government, which he said was to build an extensive naval plant on it. Major Frémont said he needed the money to pay the taxes on the property, and the bank officials, taking him at his word, let him have the money.

It is also said that in his dealings with the First National Bank of Plattsburg Major Frémont said that he was the owner of considerable valuable property in Cuba, consisting of plantations and two ranches. Some time ago, when the Major decided to go into bankruptcy, he is said to have sworn that he did not own any property in California and in Cuba.

County Employes to Entertain.

The New York County Civil Employes' Benevolent Assoviation, made up of the employes in the Supreme Court, the Sheriff's, and County Clerk's officers, is to have a reception and vaudeville entertainment in Terrace Garden on next Thursday night. Invitations have been accepted by the Mayor, Controller Metz, and the heads of city departments. Gov. Hughes will attend if possible.

TRUST CONFERENCE IN MAY.

National Civic Federation Calls It to Meet in Chicago.

The Executive Council of the National Civic Federation has decided on Chicago as the place and May 28, 29, 30, and 31 as the time for holding the National Conference on Combinations and Trusts. Representative men throughout the country have signed the invitations, which will be mailed to-morrow, asking the appointment of delegates by Governors and Presidents of the important commercial, manufacturing, agricultural, labor, economic, financial, and law associations. The purpose of the conference is to consider the trust problem, especially from the standpoint of State and Federal regulation.

GHOST LADY TROUBLES BROOKLYN NEGROES

She's a Sort of Female Jim Jeffries and Is Seeking Her Chee-lld.

VIOLENT WHEN CROSSED

Seen, Except in Imagination, Only by Mr. Veil, Who Met Her First in Paterson.

Superstitious negroes in Brooklyn are dreadfully stirred up just now over the nightly walking of a "female ghost" in a house in Clermont Avenue, near Atlantic, tenanted by people of the race. The sensation has penetrated to Hudson Avenu and Crow Hill, and is exciting even more interest in the "binck belt" than the newest policy gig or the latest "killing" at craps. Every few nights a dozen or mors negroes assemble to watch for the "spook," singing hymns lustily while awaiting the "manifestation."

The house haunted by the spook is occupied by several families, but the visitor from the veiled side of the Styx appears to be a particular sort of wraith and patronizes but one family, Veil by name. This family has now become the most important in the neighborhood. There are any number of persons there who have grinning skeletons in their closets, but only the Veils can boast of a real spook of their own.

Mr. Veil saw the lady first. He had seen her many times since, and is getting so used to her he becomes lonely when she does not come around. He first beheld her when residing in Paterson, N. J. Thinking it over now, he is inclined to blame it all on that place of residence.

It was a conventional dark and stormy night, the wind howling without, and Veil's latest born howling quite as lustily within. Veil had put out the light, and the family dog and, and was on his way to bed upstairs, when the "female ghost" confronted him in the lower hall. She beckoned to him, but Veil held back. Mrs. Veil was upstairs, and he was taking no chances.

Anyhow, as Veil wouldn't go to the lady, she went to him. She was all in filmy white net, with lace appliqued, or something like that, and her golden hair was hanging down her back, the lady not being of Veil's complexion. As she neared him she threw out her right arms, as if leading for the jaw, and, pointing an accusing finger, demanded, as Veil came up after the duck:

"Me chee-lld, where is me chee-lld?"

Veil assured the lady that she could search him, or something to that effect, and she failed away. After that she waylaid the innocent and annoyed Veil every night, asking for her lost child. He referred her to the Children's Society and finally to the police, but it was no go. After a time Veil got tired of it and, to escape the persistent spook, moved to Brooklyn, hoping in the excitement of that borough to forget her, but she was not to be so easily forgotten.

He and his family had hardly got settled in their new home when the lady appeared there, seeming to be glad to see hi magain. He became resigned to her attentions. Mrs. Veil began telling the neighbors all about the spook, and they suspected she was trying to cultivate business as a trance medium and fought shy.

"Well," said she, indignantly, "if yo' don't believe they ain't no ghost, jes' yo' come aroun' to-morrer night and see foh yohself."

On the following night half a dozen skeptical neighbors did gather in the Veils' rooms to watch for the "female ghost."

At midnight Mr. Veil announced tremblingly that he was beginning to feel the lady approaching, and was led by his own request into an adjoining room, the door of which was then closed. A few minutes elapsed, and then the proper dull thud was heard.

"He's seen her, and she knocked him down, 'cause he can't tell her where her child is," explained Mrs. Veil. "She gits mighty furious."

The assembled neighbors turned pale, a shade paler, and looked fearfully about them. For a moment there was a deep and oppressive silence.

The two gentlemen in the party managed to reach the street first by climbing over the ladies' heads going down the stairs. The next day every one of the half dozen was able to describe in minute detail the appearance of hte spook and to relate all that she or he had heard the lady say. The news traveled like fire in a powder train through the neighborhood and caused great agitation.

Quite every negro who has visited the house has "seed" the ghost, although the spirit lady who handles Mr. Veil like a Jim Jeffries when he can't produce her long lost child, is supposed to be visible to him alone in the adjoining room.

BRONX ANIMALS ARE DISAPPOINTED

Cold Weather Deprived Zoo Inmates of Their Promised Outing.

FEW DEATHS IN WINTER

Animals in the Main in Good Health—Cubs Born to the Russian Brown Bear.

There was disappointment yesterday in the Kingdom of Fur and Feathers in Bronx Park. It was to have been the annual Spring opening for many of the animals and some of the fowl, but the eventful day had to be postponed, to the apparent chagrin of many of the inhabitants of the Zoo who have been prisoners all Winter. There was nothing springlike in the air. Dark clouds hovered over the park and the gloom of the day was reflected in the looks of the prisoners.

The warm days of last week were responsible for the plan to let some of the animals have a breath of outdoor air yesterday, but the keepers had not reckoned with the vagaries of April weather. The sleepy, semi-torpid condition of many members of the cat family, which was noticeable all Winter, had undergone a change in the week, and the pumas, tigers, and leopards had begun to yawn and shake off the lethargy of the Winter months. But the cold and gloom of yesterday sent them back to their dreams. The bears, too, which had been waking up only at meal time since last Fall, had begun to look, rub the sleep out of their eyes, and to look chipper. They, too, retired yesterday to their caves.

But the crowd was there, the largest of the year. Thousands of men, women, and children were on hand to renew acquaintance with their old animal friends. They saw some of them. Others were too sound asleep to come out to look the crowd over. There have been few deaths in the Zoo in the Winter. One of the polar bears died, leaving his twin brother all alone in the pit. This bear cub, which, with his brother, was captured in Nova Zembla, was the most doleful-looking prisoner in all the park yesterday. The approach of Spring does not seem to make him cheerful at all. The ice has gone from his pool, and the warm days of the last week were not at all to his liking.

The keepers discovered yesterday that the stork has visited the pit of the Russian brown bear, Katchi. Katchi had not been seen in the open courtyard of the pit for several days, and one of the men went in to investigate. Katchi heard him coming and was out in a moment, growling and showing her teeth. As the keeper scrambled back to safety he heard tiny whines coming from the darkness of the cave in which Katchi has spent most of the Winter. There are supposed to be two cubs there, but the keepers do not dare to make sure.

One of the inmates of the monkey house who was out yesterday taking the air was a red-faced monkey from Japan. He is among the most hardy of all the monkeys in Bronx Park, and doesn't mind the cold.

The officials of the Zoo are preparing for the coming of the temperate weather by putting the inclosures in order. Ground is being prepared for what will be the largest building in the Zoo. It will be the new elephant house. The proposed building will be 170 feet long by 84 feet wide and will have an imposing dome. It will contain eight compartments, 22 by 24 feet, and it is proposed to house four elephants, two rhinoceroses, and two hippopotami there. The hippo tank will be 24 by 21 feet and 8 feet deep. The antelope house is being used as temporary quarters for the elephants, hippopotami, and rhinoceroses until the new elephant house is completed, which will be some time in the Summer. Two more elephants will soon be added to the Bronx Park Zoo. Gunda and Congo, the present inhabitants of the elephant department, have taken on flesh this Winter. Gunda weighed 3,700 pounds when he came to the Zoo. He tipped the scales at 6,200 last Summer, and his keeper says he now weighs at least 200 pounds more.

WON'T DINE WITH BRYAN.

Hearst to Have His Own Dinner—Starts Gossip Buzzing.

It became known last night that William Randolph Hearst, Democratic candidate for Governor of New York last Fall, had declined the invitation extended to him by the committee in charge to attend the Jefferson dinner of the Brooklyn Democratic Club, to be held in the Assembly Hall, Brooklyn, on April 16, when William Jennings Bryan is to be the guest of honor. Great interest has been manifested in this dinner, and for that reason Mr. Hearst's declination was widely discussed and commented on by the politicians.

Mr. Hearst is himself to have a dinner at the Hotel Savoy next Saturday night, and on that same night the National Democratic Club is to celebrate Jefferson's birthday with a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria. It will be manifestly impossible to be in both places at once, so Mr. Hearst is not expected at the National Democratic dinner either.

The suspicion has been growing in the Democratic organization men that Mr. Hearst intends to organize a third National party, and among those who talked of the three dinners last night it was declared that Mr. Hearst's attitude toward the dinner at which Mr. Bryan is to talk supported this suspicion.

PINK TEA FOR UNIONISTS.

Labor Men Suspicious at First, but Finally Accept.

Miss Annie Patterson of the Women's Trades Union League yesterday invited the Central Federated Union delegates to a pink tea to be given by the league on Wednesday evening at 220 East Fifth Street.

The mention of a pink tea seemed to have a disturbing effect on the delegates. Miss Patterson remarked that the tea would be a very informal one and that the delegates need not worry about it.

"On that occasion," she said, "Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch will speak on women in unions and auxiliaries." She said the women in the auxiliaries very often induced the men to hold out in strikes until they won. The central body accepted Miss Patterson's invitation.

HIS PATIENT DEAD, LUND IS ARRESTED

Accused in Greenwich of Manslaughter and Practising Medicine Without a License.

MAN OF MANY TRADES

Has Been Optician, Osteopath, Night Watchman, Special Policeman, and Elevated Road Employe.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 7.—Sheriff William E. Ritch early this morning arrested Carl O. Lund, according to his own story an optician, osteopath, night watchman, special policeman, and former employe of the New York elevated railway, on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Frederick Slocum of this town by pretending that he was a regular doctor of medicine, though he had no license, and of administering improper treatment.

Slocum died last night at 8 o'clock in great agony from what is supposed to have been pneumonia. At least this is what Lund said he had been treating him for. As soon as it was apparent to Lund that the man was dying he called Dr. L. O. Thompson, a regular practicing physician, and, failing to get him, summoned Dr. J. A. Clarke, another local physician. Before the latter arrived Slocum had expired. Dr. Clarke notified Medical Examiner Sherrill of Stamford and Chief of Police Ritch. Dr. Sherrill made a preliminary examination, and an autopsy will be held to-morrow.

Lund first came to Greenwich two years ago as a night watchman of the Holmes Agency, and was employed by the Belle Haven Association to guard the homes of various New Yorkers. Later he opened an optician's and jewelr's office in a small part of a small store, the other half of which was a news stand.

Upon the walls of his little office hung many elaborate diplomas from various optical, osteopathic, and medical institutes, among them the Golden Cross Eye, Ear, Nose, and Throat College and Clinic of Chicago, the Columbia College of Osteopathy of Chicago, and the Virtus Physio-Medical Academy of Philadelphia. As the diplomas were couched in Latin and his customers could not read them, the impression they produced was generally deep.

As far as is known he never advertised himself publicly as a doctor of medicine, but he had cards bearing the legend "C. O. Lund, M. D.," and these were distributed among some of his acquaintances. When asked concerning this by the Chief of Police after his arrest he said that the "M. D." had been a mistake made by the printer. Before he had been in business long he began treating people, generally among the ignorant classes, for various diseases from rheumatism to pimples on the face. He used electricity, vibrators, and sometimes washes. His fame as a healer spread by word of mouth until he had quite a practice in town.

C. O. Lund practiced as an optician for a time in this city at 314 West 153th Street. Before the strike two years ago he was a ticket agent for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. He lost his place in the strike, and then became a patrolman for the Holmes Electric Protective Company. Last Summer he was sent to Greenwich, Conn., and for several months was night watchman in the suburb of Belle Haven. On account of ill-health he withdrew from the Holmes Company last October and resumed his practice as optician. He was in New York last week winding up his business affairs.

WILL APPORTION STATE THIS YEAR

Republicans Decide to Act—Jackson May Force Election of Senators.

GIVE WEAPONS TO HUGHES

Senators Would Fear to Face the People on a Record of Opposition to Him.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 8.—Senator Raines, the Republican leader in the upper house, and Speaker Wadsworth of the Assembly admitted to-night that the Legislature at the present session would be called upon to reapportion the State. Republican legislators have heard from their districts and have learned that it would be dangerous to attempt to dodge the issue raised by the decision of the Court of Appeals, which upset the old legislative apportionment.

Furthermore the report was persistently circulated to-day that Attorney General Jackson and Secretary of State Whalen would insist that the entire Senate must be elected next November, instead of holding over until 1908.

In consequence of these two developments friends of Gov. Hughes are asserting to-night that his entire programme will be put through with a rush. They declare that Senators will be fearful of his power over the apportionment, and will be equally fearful to go back to their constituents next November with a record of opposition to his policies.

Legislators arrived at the Capitol to-night fresh from conferences with their leaders in various parts of the State. They were a unit in declaring that the present Legislature must take up the question of the new reapportionment. They did not feel jubilant about it, for it was evident that the Legislature would have on its hands a problem more knotty than any that has come up for consideration this session.

No end of legal complications enter into the question, but from the point of view of the leaders and the men that represent them in both houses of the Legislature these were by far overshadowed by the grave political possibilities with which the situation is fraught. They knew it would place in the hands of Gov. Hughes a sharp political weapon at a time when everything is shaping for a crucial fight over his programme of reform.

Senator Raines and other leaders plan to leave the Senate as at present constituted for the full Senatorial term, which has until 1908 to run. Such a plan would make it unnecessary for any of the present Senators to go before their constituents again this year, and they might calculate on forgetfulness of their opposition to Gov. Hughes by another year.

The Republicans were worried, however, when the report went abroad to-day that Attorney General Jackson was prepared to render an opinion to Secretary of State Whalen which virtually would compel a Senatorial election all over the State next November. Mr. Jackson declined to discuss the matter, saying it would not be within his province to render such an opinion until it was called for and that no such demand had been made.

That the Attorney General took the initiative which led to the reopening of the reapportionment proceedings before the Court of Appeals a few hours after he had taken office is known. It is further known that Deputy Attorney General Decker has been studying closely the decision handed down by the Court of Appeals.

The contention of the Attorney General, as voiced to-day, was to the effect that an obiter dictume contained in Judge Cullen's opinion, which seemed to confirm the present Senators in their offices for the full term on the ground of public policy, did not apply as before. Next year an opportunity of placing the matter again before the voters would be presented.

The Republican leaders declare that they will make the reapportionment and that the Court of Appeals decision would safeguard the present Senators. They maintain that the only reason for making any Senatorial reapportionment at this session at all existed in the fact that the Assembly district reapportionment must be made with the Senatorial district as the basis.

It was learned that Gov. Hughes believes it would be the plain duty of the present Legislature to correct the anomalous situation which has arisen as a result of the Court of Appeals decision, but he is not likely to take active part in any plan to promote a Senatorial election this year. The net result of the situation has been to put legislators in the air. They do not know where they are at. All realize that should the Governor choose to take advantage of it, he would be a mighty factor. The wholesome fear that has resulted may be reflected in the final vote on the Kelsey case, the Public Utilities bill, and others of the Governor's reform measures.

MORE SHIPS FOR MORSE.

He Gets Two of the Joy Liners—Mellen Watching.

Charles W .Morse denied with positiveness yesterday two stories of further acquisitions of coastwise shipping lines. The latest of these was a tale from Boston that he was about to take over the Joy Line of steamers, which are competitors of his Metropolitan Line for traffic between New York and Boston. It had previously been reported that Mr. Morse had taken over the Enterprise Line, owned in Worcester, Mass., and operating between Rhode Island and Connecticut ports and New York.

Mr. Morse said yesterday that there was nothing in either story. An official of the Joy Line said last night that Mr. Morse had not obtained the Joy Line, but had purchased the Joy liners Old Dominion and the Santiago, both of which ply between New York and Boston.

President Mellen of the New Haven Road, on the supposition that his road's maritime rival had acquired the Joy Line, was asked yesterday how he proposed to meet the increased competition. He replied:

"The New Haven is not disposed to attack anybody. Its position is defensive. It has made no attack upon Mr. Morse and does not propose to. It is building steamers for a Boston line to be used only in case of necessity. That necessity will arise only when Mr. Morse's Boston line of passenger steamers starts."

BATH, Me., April 8.—The New York and Porto Rico Steamship Company was reorganized here to-day under the laws of Maine. The line was purchased several weeks ago by Charles W. Morse. The name of the company remains unchanged. It is capitalized for $10,000,000, and the officers and Directors are: President—Charience B. Height, Brookline, Mass.; Treasurer—H. F. Sweetzer, Portland; Directors—L. L. Height and H. L. Cram, Portland; P. E. Coyle, Brookline, and E. C. Remsdell, Boston.

Pennsylvania House Denounces Rich Men's Conspiracy.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, April 8.—Without a dissenting vote, the House to-day adopted a resolution denouncing the "plotters" against the Roosevelt Administration, and declaring that Pennsylvania "stands for Roosevelt and all that his Administration stands for."

Representative Hitchcock of Tioga brought the latest White House sensation to notice by introducing the resolution. In addition to its sweeping indorsement, it exculpates Penrose from complicity in the "plot" by referring only to his reported declaration that the "State has been and is for Theodore Roosevelt and his policies."

This is the resolution:

"Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania extends to Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, its hearty approval and commendation of his efforts to prevent the great railroads and other corporations of the country from using their wealth and power to oppress and injure the citizens in their rights and property, and to enforce justice and a 'square deal' for all. We commend him for his endeavors to enforce existing laws against such corporations, and to bring them under just and legal regulation and control, and we condemn and denounce any combinations of corporate wealth with politicians of any party or parties intended to reverse and defeat the policies of justice which the President has so wisely and fearlessly inaugurated."

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 8.—The Iowa House of Representatives refused to-day, by a vote of 56 to 8, to adopt the Holmes concurrent resolution pledging the State to the support of President Roosevelt for a renomination, and referred the matter to the Committee on Federal Relations. The resolution will not be heard from again, as the Legislature adjourns to-morrow.

ROCKEFELLER GOES TO WORK.

Takes Charge of Father's Estate—Drives Road Stakes, Wife Helping Him

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., April 8.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., started in this morning on his new duties as Superintendent of his father's estate. It was only preliminary work, as he has not assumed full charge.

The residents of Pocantico Hills were treated to the unusual sight of seeing the young multimillionaire walking through their streets carrying a bundle of stakes under his arm. He was accompanied by his wife. Young Rockefeller and his father are very friendly to Father Lennon of the Church of the Magdalen, and they have agreed to lay out the church grounds with a lawn, flower beds, and roads.

Mr. Rockefeller took the stakes to lay out the roads, and his wife carried a chair on which she sat to hold the stakes while the young millionaire drove them into the ground. Young Rockefeller and his wife faced a strong rainstorm to do the work, but they were attired in storm coats and heavy shoes, and seemed to enjoy it.

Father Lennon often plays golf with Mr. Rockefeller. Young Mr. Rockefeller is very popular with the men and the people at the Hills, and they expect many improvements in their behalf.

CONCESSIONS FOR FIREMEN.

Western Roads Agree to a 11 Per Cent. Wage Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 8.—By settling with their firemen to-day on the basis of an 11 per cent. advance in wages, the Western railroads added to their annual payrolls about $4,000,000, bringing the total increase guaranteed to all employes for the ensuing year up to more than $16,000,000.

The prosperity in which nearly 100,000 men will share never has been equaled, it is said, in the history of railroad service in this country. The figures given represent only organized employes, comprising about one-fifth of the total number. The advances and the number of men affected are as follows:

Class.	Number.	Am't of Increase
Trainmen	35,000	$3,500,000
Engineers	16,000	4,375,000
Firemen	15,000	4,000,000
Conductors	15,000	2,000,000
Switchmen	12,000	2,500,000
Total	93,000	$16,375,000

The firemen were the last to come to terms with the railroads. They accepted the offer of a committee of General Managers representing thirty-one railroad systems late in the afternoon. The formality of signing the agreement will be completed to-morrow. The nine-hour day demands, to which the men held until the last, finally were waived.

Chief John J. Hanahan of the Firemen's Brotherhood said that the settlement was satisfactory to the men.

LEFT HOME TO WED BARON.

Newark Girl Marries Titled Artist Despite Parents.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Miss Louisa Frances Stradling has become the Baroness von Palm, despite parental objections. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Mark Stradling of Newark, N. J. They objected to the match because the Baron, who is an artist, is 24 years the senior of his wife. He came to this country from Vienna.

Miss Stradling left her home last Saturday and came to this city. Baron von Palm stopped here on his return from Jacksonville. The Rev. Jacob Sallade of the Temple Baptist Church married the couple in an attorney's office, and two hours later they boarded a train for Newark.

The Baron is a widower. His wife died in April, 1906. Two or three months later he met Miss Stradling. A month later he proposed marriage to her.

Rockefeller Buys Negro's Land.

NORTH TARRYTOWN, N. Y., April 8.—After negotiating for several years John D. Rockefeller has at last succeeded in buying the property of William Everson and his wife Susan, colored, which consists of a two-story frame house and six acres of land, adjoining the Rookefeller property at Mount Pleasant. The house is not to be disturbed until the death of Everson's sister, who has occupied it many years.

MURDERS HIS WIFE FOR SLAPPING HIM

Dr. Samuel S. Guy of Queens Commits Crime While on a Drunken Spree.

DIES INSTANTLY IN HOME

Mrs. Guy Had Dragged Him Away from the Servant, Whom He Was Annoying.

Dr. Samuel S. Guy, a prominent dentist of Far Rockaway, Queens, of which borough he was Coroner for four years, shot and instantly killed his wife, Lillian M. Guy, in the dining room of their home at Mott Avenue and Sheridan Boulevard, Far Rockaway, about 6 o'clock last evening. He fired two bullets into her left breast, just over the heart, and she was dead when a policeman reached the house, a minute after the shooting.

Dr. Guy had been on a debauch. Only a short time before the shooting he left a saloon almost opposite the street from his home. He was in high spirits and excitable. He had his office and home in the old B. B. Mott mansion, which belonged to his wife, she being the heir of the Mott estate.

There was no eye witness of the shooting, but Annie Hansen, the Norwegian servant girl, was in the kitchen adjoining. The girl's story to the police was that Dr. Guy took off his coat in the hall or in his office, at the front of the house, and within a few minutes entered the dining room, where his wife was. He passed out into the kitchen and began to annoy the servant. Mrs. Guy followed him and took him back into the dining room. As soon as he was released Dr. Guy turned about and went back into the kitchen and resumed teasing the servant. Mrs. Guy again followed him into the kitchen, and, telling the servant not to mind him, again led him back into the dining room.

As the couple passed into the dining room, and just before Mrs. Guy shut the door, she slapped her husband a resounding blow with the flat of her hand across his face. The shooting followed within a minute. The girl says that Dr. Guy had about time to walk into the office, where his revolver was, obtain it, and return to the dining room. The two shots were fired in quick succession.

Miss Hansen says she hesitated a moment or two and then opened the door a little. She saw Mrs. Guy lying on the floor, and she closed the door and ran out of the side door and around the house, where she came upon Dr. Guy just in the act of passing two policemen at the gate.

Policemen Alfred Berry and Louis Nausbaum were standing a short distance from the house. They heard the shots, but they were so muffled they were not certain whence they proceeded. They walked to the front gate, and just then the doctor emerged. He was drawing on his topcoat, but did not appear excited. Berry asked him if there was anything the matter, and the doctor replied he was going for a cigar. While he was drunk, his manner was so cool that the policemen were about to let him pass, when they were alarmed by the cries of the girl. Dr. Guy was arrested and locked up.

He wanted to know what he was being arrested for, but the detectives told him nothing. He was taken direct to the kitchen where his wife's body lay on the floor.

He sank beside his wife's body. "What has happened?" he asked in a dazed sort of way

To the servant girl he said: "Who has stabbed my wife?"

Dr. Guy was taken before Coroner Samuel D. Nutt. He declared he had been out with friends and knew nothing of what had happened at his house.

Dr. Guy has one son, a boy of 14. The doctor also has two children by his first wife. Mrs. Guy was a descendant of the Mott family, which owned practically all of the Rockaways. Her father, B. B. Mott, died two years ago, leaving her very wealthy, but the money was so tied up, for the most part, that Guy could not get it. Dr. Guy had within a few years spent or lost a considerable fortune. While he was Coroner, it is said, he became addicted to betting on horses and to drink, and he spent money freely.

Dr. Guy is 59 years old. His wife was 52 years old.

FACTORY BUILDING BURNED.

$100,000 Loss in Structure at 39 East Street.

Three alarms were turned in soon after 1 o'clock this morning for a fire which burned out the interior of the seven-story factory building at 39 East Street, almost under the Williamsburg Bridge, occupied by Samuel Weisglass & Co., makers of spring beds. The fire left little more than the walls of the building before it was put out. No one was in the building when the fire occurred.

The blaze was a spectacular one, volumes of smoke and flame rising from the building. The third alarm brought the two fireboats, the David Boody and Abram S. Hewitt. Their heavy streams were of much assistance in checking the flames, and, largely through their work, the fire was controlled within less than an hour. The loss will probably be $100,000.

FOLK SAVES MRS. MYERS.

Commutes Her Sentence and That of Hottman—Killed Husband.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 8.—The sentences of death imposed upon Mrs. Aggie Myers of Kansas City and Frank Hottman of Higginsville, Mo., who were convicted of killing the woman's husband, Clarence Myers, in 1904, were commuted to-day to life imprisonment by Gov. Folk. The appeal in the case of Mrs. Myers to the Supreme Court of the United States will be dismissed.

Butte Mines Close; 5,000 Idle.

BUTTE, Mon., April 8.—Because fifty-two electrical workers, machinists, and blacksmiths, employed in the Great Falls Smelters of the Boston & Montana Company were denied an increase in pay and walked out to-day, 5,000 men were thrown out of work in Butte to-night when the mines belonging to the company were shut down.

MILITARY ATTACHE ROBBED.

A Haitian Detained, Charged with Taking U. S. Government Papers.

Charles Stephens, a native of Haiti, is detained on Ellis Island at the request of H. W. Furniss, American Minister to Haiti. The young man was at one time a clerk in the office of Capt. Young, Military Attaché to the Legation, and it is charged that he rifled a trunk belonging to the Attaché and obtained some documents which contained Government secrets.

Stephens arrived in this country on the Dutch steamship Prins der Nederlenden from Port au Prince on Saturday. On the same vessel Mr. Furniss returned home on leave, and it was he who had the former clerk detained.

When the vessel was coming into port the American Minister saw Stephens among the passengers being examined by the immigration officials. He at once charged the Haitian with wrongdoing. After the man had been detained, it was discovered that he had confided to the care of a steward a bundle of papers, asking the latter to keep the affair quiet, as the papers were of great value, and he feared to lose them. The steward admitted that he had the papers, but declared that he knew nothing regarding them. The papers were turned over to the Immigration Department.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—United States Minister Furniss visited the State Department to-day and discussed with officials there the arrest of Stephens at Ellis Island. The officials are at a loss to know what to do with him.

The papers alleged to have been stolen were really the property of foreign governments, and although in the possession of an officer of the United States army when stolen, there is some doubt as to whether Stephens can be prosecuted under the laws of this country. The papers embraced in the packet taken from the office of Capt. Young were extensive.

GREEK CONSUL HELD.

Charged with Conspiracy In Importing Greek Boys.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 8.—The Federal authorities were elated last night when Deputy Inspector Ruhl went to Lowell and returned with Michael Iathos, Greek Consul and United States interpreter, under arrest, charged with conspiracy against the United States Government. The charge is based on allegations that Iathos has for three years been a party to the importation of boys aged from 12 to 14 years, declaring that some Greek living in Lowell was their father.

The Government contends that the children's parents live in Greece, and that the children really were imported for child labor purposes, many having been employed in the big cotton mills at Lowell and other cities.

Iathos was arraigned before the United States Commissioner and held in $2,000 for a hearing to-morrow morning. The Federal authorities profess to believe that they are on the verge of disclosing a gigantic plot to bring children here.

Iathos has been connected with various Greek publications, and is one of the leaders of his race in this country.

CHICAGO TRACTION MATTERS.

It Is Planned to be Ready for Consolidation in Thirty Days.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 8.—It was announced authoritatively to-day that the consolidation of the Chicago City Railway and Union Traction interests was assured, and that plans were under way for this important feature of the rehabilitation of both systems.

The first step in the settlement of the Union Traction affairs has been taken in a declaration of trust signed by the New York holders of a majority of the outstanding stock, appointing five custodians of the franchises, which are deposited with the Central Trust Company of this city. This centralizing of interests will facilitate greatly future progress, and it is said that the formal acceptances of the ordinances will come through these men.

It is thought that within thirty days the affairs of the company will be in such shape that contracts for rehabilitation and reconstruction can be made.

JEWELERS CHARGE FRAUD.

Say Man Arrested in Chicago Was a Busy Swindler.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Stanley Tousimsky, who is alleged to have defrauded by the use of the mails several jewelry firms in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Cleveland, was arrested to-day. He is held for the postal authorities at Cleveland, where he was indicted recently.

Tousimsky's plan, it is asserted, was to write to jewelry dealers, saying he had certain customers, but was not supplied with what they wanted. He would order jewelry, it is alleged, saying he would pay for the goods, if sold, in thirty days; if not sold he would return them. The defrauded dealers declare that was the last they ever heard from the man.

SUING HER THIRD HUSBAND.

Mrs. Camp Wants a Separation—They Quarreled About a Bedspread.

Suit for a separation was begun yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Leventritt by Alice M. Camp against J. Edward Camp, to whom she was married in 1905. Mrs. Camp has been married three times. She was divorced from her first husband and the second was accidentally killed in Chicago.

Mrs. Camp kept a boarding house, and Camp was one of the hoarders when they were married. They had many quarrels. The final one, the testimony showed, was about the bedspread. He wanted a light-blue spread and she a yellow one.

Testimony was offered to show that the defendant had threatened his wife with bodily harm. The trial will be continued to-day.

Johns Hopkins to Admit Women.

BALTIMORE, April 8.—A radical departure in the policy of Johns Hopkins University was made to-day when a resolution was adopted authorizing the admission of women who have taken the baccalaureate degree to graduate courses, provided that no objection is offered on the part of the instructors. It was said also that on no condition would women be admitted to the undergraduate classes.

MORTON TEARS UP CENTRAL'S TRACK

Ex-Vice President Says the Siding at Rhinecliff Is on His Land.

500 FEET OF RAILS REMOVED

Laborers from the Morton Estate Rip Them Up in a Hurry on Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, April 8.—A small army of laborers from Ellerslie, ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton's estate at Rhinecliff, went to the tracks of the New York Central lines last night, and removed 500 feet of siding on land which is in dispute between Mr. Morton and the railroad company.

The movement was timed so that no legal interference could be made, as Sunday is a legal holiday, and it was also fortunate for the purposes of Mr. Morton that there were no cars on the track. The tracks were ripped up with such speed that it was evident that the work had been planned carefully, and by men drilled in what they were to do.

The invasion created considerable excitement among railroad employes until it was understood that Mr. Morton was responsible. After that interference was not thought of. Besides being wealthy, Mr. Morton is personally popular, so that no one in Rhinecliff would think of questioning his acts or wishes.

The strip of land was included in the Kelly estate, which was purchased by Mr. Morton fifteen years ago. The section containing the siding was blasted out by the railroad company and tracks laid. Mr. Morton found that the strip belonged to him and took proceedings to oust the railroad. A compromise was reached under conditions acceptable to both the railroad and Mr. Morton, and the tracks were allowed to remain. As a part of the consideration, it is said, passes over the New York Central lines were issued to members of Mr. Morton's family. These were discontinued on Jan. 1 last.

Since then the railroad has been using the siding without, as Mr. Morton alleges, having any right or title to it. He demanded a yearly rental of $250, which was refused, and a counter offer was made to buy. Mr. Morton agreed to sell for $5,000. When a reasonable time had elapsed without an agreement being reached, Mr. Morton decided to take possession of his property, and ordered the tracks to be torn up.

The residents of Rhinebeck and Rhinecliff are much interested to see whether the New York Central will oppose force to force and endeavor to regain the Morton siding. The yard room is much needed on account of the congestion of freight traffic at that point, due to extensive improvements now under way.

MOTORMAN SAVES CHILD.

Shuts Off Power and Jumps to Fender, Rescuing Boy from Wheels.

Scores of persons in the neighborhood of Flushing and Throop Avenues, Williamsburg, witnessed the escape from death of five-year-old Samuel Newman of 163 Hopkins Street yesterday afternoon. The child, while crossing Flushing Avenue, ran directly in front of a street car.

Motorman Michael Ronan threw off the electric power, applied the brakes, and as he reversed the power he jumped over the front dashboard and landed on the fender just in time to seize the boy and prevent his rolling under the wheels.

Sergt. Mooney of Brooklyn Police Headquarters was on the car and hurried to the aid of the child and the motorman. An ambulance took the youngster to the Eastern District Hospital. The only hurts the boy sustained were slight contusions on his head. Ronan was bruised about both hands.

BOYS DISCOVER BURGLARS.

See That Door Has Been Forced and Notify Police—One Captured.

The alertness of two boys led to the arrest of James Boland, who was locked up at the East Eighty-eighth Street Station last night, charged with burglary. According to the police Boland admitted that he had been imprisoned three years ago for a like offense. He said he was 23 years old and lived at the Empire Hotel, 123d Street and Third Avenue.

The boys were going down the stairs of the apartment house at 302 East Eighty-seventh Street, when they saw the door leading to Mrs. Flora de Tour's apartment scarred. The boys looked closely and saw that the door had been forced open. They pushed it open a short distance and saw two men in the dining room.

The boys notified Policeman O'Brien, who found Boland and another man in the place. While O'Brien was handcuffing Boland the second man escaped. The men had packed all the silverware in the house and even taken down the lace curtains.

WANTED ROMANCE, ELOPED.

Young Couple's Marriage Not Opposed, but They Came Here to Wed.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 8.—Although there was no opposition to their marriage, Miss Luella Shearman, 19 years old, and Andrew B. Griggs, 21 years old, decided to run away to wed. They had been engaged for three months, and their friends understood that they were to be married in June.

Miss Shearman left here Monday, ostensibly to visit an aunt in Brooklyn. Mr. Griggs obtained a leave of absence to visit his parents in Jersey City. Both took the same train. Arriving on their romantic mission in New York, they went at once to the Little Church Around the Corner, where they were married by the Rev. Dr. Houghton.

They returned to Lakewood last Wednesday and confided the news to their intimate friends. The bride proudly displayed her ring and marriage certificate to her parents, who, when they recovered from their surprise, gave the parental blessing.

"We didn't like the idea of a church wedding, with all the fuss and display," was the bride's explanation. "And, besides, this was more of a romance."

COLONIAL HOME FOR RYAN.

Financier Will Build a Mansion in Virginia.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., April 8.—Thomas F. Ryan will build in Nelson County a mansion which, it is said, will eclipse any of the splendid old colonial homes now in the State. He has just added to his large domain in that county by the purchase of Bellevue, the old Snead plantation, noted for its picturesque beauty. He proposes to rebuild the old house thereon, and now has an architect drawing plans.

Congressman Overstreet Not the Author of the Wireless to Sherman.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 8.—When asked to-day if he had sent a wireless message to Congressman Sherman, telling him not to talk about the Harriman controversy with President Roosevelt, Congressman Jesse Overstreet said that he did not even know that Mr. Sherman had returned.

"I certsinly sent him no such message, nor was such a thought ever suggested to me," said Mr. Overstreet.

ONE WORD COST HIM $10.

Prisoner Said in Foreign Tongue He Hoped the Court Would Drop Dead.

Magistrate Finelite, in the Harlem Court yesterday, fined John Berries of 216 East 119th Street $10 for being found in an opium den on 119th Street. The fine was paid.

As Berries was going through the gate of the prison rails he muttered a word in a foreign tongue, which, translated is said to mean "I hope you will drop dead." There was a stillness in the courtroom, and the word was plainly heard by Magistrate Finelite. He ordered Berries brought back and fined him an additional $10, which was paid.

INVESTIGATORS COMING HERE.

Harrisburg Capitol Commission Wants New Yorkers to Testify.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 8.—Failing in efforts to induce a number of New York subcontractors on the State Capitol to come to Pennsylvania to testify, the commission to-night decided to invade that city. To-morrow night the entire commission will leave Harrisburg for New York, and on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock will convene in the Directors' room of the Audit Company of New York in the Mutual Life Building.

One day at least, possibly two, will be spent in this effort to complete chains of evidence broken by refusal of New Yorkers who got slices of John Sanderson's big job to come within the jurisdiction of the commission.

'BROWN OF HARVARD' PELTED

Real Harvard Students Bombard the Actors with Lemons.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 8.—Harry Woodruff, in "Brown of Harvard," opened at the Majestic to-night, and was greeted by a house packed with Harvard students, who did their utmost to break up the show. They yelled at every actor and hurled lemons from all sides of the house.

Five of the disturbers were taken to the Lagrane Street Station, charged with disturbing a public meeting. They gave their names as Robert G. Lee, Henry R. Watson, Edward P. Holmes, John Robinson, and Herbert Rogers.

Manager Edward Smith of the Majestic had expected trouble and called the opener Harvard night. The house was sold out early, the students standing eight deep in the orchestra, while the galleries were crowded to overflowing.

HEAVY SNOW UP THE STATE.

More Than a Foot at Ballston—Storm in New England Also.

BALLSTON, April 8.—This vicinity to-to-day to discuss the insurance election day had a snowstorm which almost assumed the proportions of a blizzard. More than eight inches of snow have fallen.

GLOVERSVILLE, April 8.—One of the heaviest storms of the season occurred here to-day. More than a foot of snow has fallen.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 8.—A heavy snowstorm prevailed throughout this section of the State to-day.

WINSTED, Conn., April 8.—This section of the State had a heavy snowfall to-day. In Sandisfield, Mass., just across the Connecticut line, a fall of three and a half inches was reported. It is extremely cold for this time of the year.

THE REV. MR. HUNT RESIGNS.

Pastor Who Was Co-respondent in Divorce Case Leaves Ministry.

The Rev. E. Lawrence Hunt, former pastor of the Noble Street Presbyterian Church and co-respondent in the case of Charles G. Bassett against his wife, was dropped from the Brooklyn Presbytery at his own request last night.

A committee, which was appointed to prepare a case against Mr. Hunt, submitted to the Presbytery at a meeting in the Parkside Presbyterian Church in Flatbush a letter from him received by it yesterday, embodying the request that he be allowed to quit the ministry. The committee recommended that his request be granted.

Mr. Hunt attended the meeting, but made no comment. He listened to the reading of the committee report and of his letter, and then left. He refused to make a statement concerning the case. His action was entirely satisfactory to the Presbytery, which by it is now relieved of the necessity of putting Mr. Hunt on trial because of his connection with the Bassett case.

Mrs. Sage Gives $150,000.

NORTHFIELD, Mass., April 8.—The gift to the Northfield Seminary for Young Ladies of a new chapel and a music hall by Mrs. Russell Sage of New York was announced here to-day. The cost of the chapel will not exceed $100,000, and the music hall $50,000. The seminary was founded by the late D. L. Moody.

DELMAS OPENS PLEA FOR THAW

Dramatically Denounces White and the Mother of Evelyn Nesbit.

CALLS WIFE'S STORY TRUE

Devotes First Day of Summing Up to Explanation of Thaw's "Brain Storm."

HE WILL CONTINUE TO-DAY

Jerome Will Make His Address Tomorrow—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw Centre of Interest in Court.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw sat beside the gray and pathetically worn mother of Harry K. Thaw, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday, and heard her virtues extolled by a master court orator, Delphin M. Delmas. She was the centre of interest in this final stage of the trial of her husband for the murder of Stanford White. Mr. Delmas spent the afternoon in his summing up address to the jury and will continue until noon to-day. Yesterday he devoted practically all of his attention to the prisoner's wife and the story she says she told Thaw, which, the defense pleads, caused the "brain storm," during which he killed White.

The schoolgirlish appearing wife had suffered herself to be depicted under cross-examination as a typical member of the Tenderloin colony of New York. The story of her alleged experiences, told by her on the stand for the sake of her husband, was such that it sent a shock of revulsion through the country.

Yesterday it was all different. She saw herself depicted in a halo of virtue, as one who had been martyred but had yet arisen courageously and more beautiful than ever. As Mr. Delmas proceeded with his address the reports of Evelyn Nesbit's days in the Tenderloin were whisked away like evil spirits before the wand of a good fairy. She was depicted as a child, sweet and trusting, a slip of a lass with great beauty, and yet a brave child that could meet the demands of life early and scrub the floors of her home in Allegheny, Penn., pose as a model in Philadelphia and New York, and dance in the chorus of a Broadway show—to take the money home to a mother whom Delmas severely arraigned

Once a juror brushed a tear away from his eye. Evelyn Thaw's eyes never moistened. Mr. Delmas, with a swing of his right arm, occasionally directed the gaze of jurors and spectators to her. Evelyn's brows remained furrowed in a pretty fashion and her chin ever rested in the yellow glove of her right hand. She seemed to enjoy every word of the address. Her pose was that of a woman at the play.

Delmas, the Orator.

The Californian, brought clear across the continent and selected by Mr. Hartridge from many great criminal court practitioners to sum up the case for the defense, carries no light burden of years. He is Napoleonic in cast of countenance, affects the little brow wisp of hair that is familiar in the Napoleon portraits. He is short of stature, but his three score and more years have given his back a slight bend. Moreover, the Napoleonic wisp at the top of his well arched brow uses a great part of his supply of hair. Behind the wisp there is a bald expanse.

In Mr. Delmas there is much evidence of Latin extraction. His voice is soft, his every movement graceful and his facial lines, despite the wear of the years, are plastic and responsive to the quick demands of his intellect when in use to affect the jury. He reaches, almost, the ideal in tenderness and gentleness, and then, when he abandons this particular line and resorts to invective, he shows power.

Even the skeptically inclined who had wearied of the constant reference to Mr. Delmas as the great orator that had come out of the West to win the fight for Thaw's life and show the Easterners a thing or two about court oratory, still had an idea that in his summing up the Californian would reach heights and sound depths that would be worth while hearing and beholding. On his effort in this case depends his fame in the East. Yesterday was a momentous one to him, and to-day, when he reaches his greater series of climaxes, will be even more momentous.

Jerome's Final Protest.

A swarm of people poured into the Criminal Court Building half an hour before the time for convening court. They filled the corridors and gave the police much trouble.

In the air there was the feeling of anxiety. The beginning of the end was at hand. The last effort that could be made to save Thaw from a verdict of murder in the first degree was to be made. Even the idly curious of the crowd displayed some nervousness.

Everybody seemed to be on edge save Thaw. He walked into the courtroom fairly on the heels of the last juror—Bernard Gerstman.

When Justice Fitzgerald took his seat the District Attorney arose and said:

"As I am not permitted to know enough of the evidence upon which to act judicially as counsel for one of the parties litigant, whom I represent, I must throw the responsibility upon the court unaided by the argument of counsel. I can only say from what I am permitted to know of the evidence that I think the court should not approve the report of the insanity commission."

Justice Fitzgerald's reply was brief. "I confirm the report of the commission," he said. "Let the trial proceed."

"Dr. Hamilton, take the stand," said Mr. Delmas, and the tall figure of the alienist brushed by the lawyers and court attendants to the witness chair.

Mr. Delmas, with a copy of the record in his hand, asked the alienist if he had not testified to having examined the prisoner in the Tombs.

"I object," snapped Mr. Jerome. "It is reopening the case."

Mr. Delmas pleaded hard for a chance to get in this evidence, but the ruling of the court was against him.

Both Sides Rest.

"On this ruling," said Mr. Delmas, "the defense closes its case."

"We rest," said Mr. Jerome.

"There is no evidence to come, then, from either side?" asked Justice Fitzgerald.

"None," said Mr. Jerome and Mr. Delmas together.

Mr. Delmas left the inside of the railing and went to Thaw. The Californian and the prisoner put their heads together in an earnest whispered conference. Thaw talked rapidly, Mr. Delmas nodding his head.

"We will proceed with the summing up then," said Justice Fitzgerald.

Mr. Delmas smiled in his fatherly way, fumbled with his watch chain and said that he had not expected to start his speech until 2 o'clock. Justice Fitzgerald was unwilling to grant a delay, calling the attention of the lawyer to the fact that the trial was a very expensive one and a burden to the taxpayers of the city.

For a moment it looked as if the Californian would be compelled to proceed. He was, evidently, not ready to begin his speech. Thaw's eyes were those of an anxious man. His wife, too, showed fear that the defense would be compelled to start handicapped. Mrs. William Thaw, the Countess of Yarmouth, Mrs. Carnegie, the brothers Josiah and Edward Thaw, and Mr. Carnegie leaned forward in their chairs.

Mr. Jerome came to the rescue of the Californian. He said that as the jury would be locked up from now on until a verdict was reached, many of them would require a few hours in which to make necessary business arrangements. He consented to the delay asked for by Mr. Delmas.

"I would like, however," he said, "to make the request that I be allowed to start my speech in the morning. If Mr. Delmas has not finished at the end of court to-day and his speech is carried over into the next day, I would then like to start mine on Wednesday morning."

Mr. Delmas said that he would have no objection to such an arrangement, but added that it would be impossible for him to tell how long it would take him to review the evidence.

Court adjourned at 11 o'clock until 2, the jurors hastening to their various places of business, to get ready for at least three days of confinement. Mr. Jerome and Mr. Delmas spent a part of the time in preparing their suggestions for Justice Fitzgerald in his work of drawing up the charge to the jury.

Crowd Clamors for Admittance.

The crowd that poured out of the Criminal Court Building, disappointed at the failure of Mr. Delmas to start his speech in the morning, came back at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and with it came many auxiliaries. Women begged the police and the court attendants to admit them. They were driven away in droves. Lawyers, Judges, and attendants from other courts came beseeching admittance. Ex-United States Senator Spooner was in the multitude along with a negro preacher and a United States cavalryman, whose uniform gave a splash of color to the scene.

At 1:30 o'clock the courtroom was packed. Mrs. William Thaw, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, Lady Yarmouth, Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, her husband, and Josiah and Edward Thaw were clumped together in seats to the right of the table of the lawyers for the defense, at the head of which sat Harry K. Thaw.

Mr. Delmas was the first of the lawyers for this defense to enter the courtroom. He and his partner, Henry Clay McPike, took seats at the table of District Attorney Jerome, who had seen fit to absent himself from the court during the speech of Mr. Delmas. Mr. Garvan, his assistant, was present. He took a chair away from the District Attorney's corner and made himself comfortable with note pad and pencil. His chief was down in 3 Rutgers Street, preparing his speech in behalf of the People.

Mr. Delmas left his chair and went to the Thaw family, on the other side of the railing. He chatted with the women until there was a rap for order, and Justice Fitzgerald entered

PARIS NOT LIKELY TO WANT FOR BREAD

Apparently Little Ground for Alarm Over Threatened Food Supply Trades Strike.

CATERERS PROMISE PLENTY

Precautions Taken by the Government to Suppress Any Rioting or Attacks on Bakeries.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 8.—There is apparently little ground for the alarm which the announcement of a general strike in the food supply trades of Paris which is likely to be declared on Thursday has created in Paris. Some papers have adopted a panicky tone, one of them going to the length of printing instructions from a scientist on how to make bread from flour, vichy pastilles, and water.

"Paris won't die of hunger," said to me M. Marguery, President of the Parisian Restaurant Keepers' Association and proprietor of the famous establishment near the Gymnase Theatre where thousands of Americans have enjoyed soles à la Marguery. "If the strike comes off and proves to be successful, as the organizers claim it will be, Parisians may not have as good bread as now, but they will have bread, and enough bread. The military bakeries alone can furnish a large supply, and even if every journeyman baker in the city stops work many smaller bakeries will be kept going by the proprietors and their families. I and all my fellow-restaurant keepers have taken measures of precaution, and I can assure you that our customers will find plenty of bread."

Inquiries at several other first-class restaurants and leading hotels showed that the immediate possibilities of the food supply strike are regarded with complacency, while at popular restaurants, like Duval's, equally little fear is felt.

It is feared that some of the developments might be dangerous attacks by strikers on non-striking establishments and possible rioting, but here the Government would step in, and I am informed on high authority that while the strike organizers have been talking about what they are going to do, the authorities have been quietly working with a view to all eventualities.

SULTAN SEES A LIGHT.

Tells Moors That They Are to Blame and France is in the Right.

PARIS, April 8.—Official dispatches from Tangier say that the Sultan, in a proclamation read in the mosques, has advised the population to maintain calm. He declared France was within her rights in occupying Oudja, adding that the Moors themselves were blamable for the step taken, owing to their excesses and outrages.

The Moorish Government was prepared to make sacrifices in order to restore good relations with France and terminate the occupation of Oudja.

COLOGNE, April 8.—The Cologne Gazette, in an inspired telegram from Berlin to-day, says the proclamation of the Sultan of Morocco to the effect that the French troops occupied Oudja by his orders, with a view to the suppression of the pretender, is a favorable sign that the Sultan is fully aware of the responsibility which has arisen from the murder of Dr. Mauchamp at Morocco City, and that his strong disapproval of this murder is proof that he does not favor the artful tricks of Oriental diplomacy, and is earnestly willing to give full satisfaction in the hope that the unfortunate occurrence soon will be forgotten.

It can be expected, the dispatch continues, that the Moroccan Government will do everything in its power to insure the safety of Europeans in Morocco, and furthermore, there is reason to believe that the Sultan is not opposed to the plans for reform, as has been asserted in some quarters in France.

DUMA IGNORES THREATS.

Speakers Urge Compulsory Expropriation of Lands.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 8.—The whole session of the Lower House of Parliament to-day was given up to agrarian debates, and in spite of threats in the official Rossia that the advocacy of compulsory expropriation of lands might result in the dismissal of the Duma, every speaker except the Conservatives urged this as the sole salvation of the peasantry. One peasant deputy declared that he "did not come here to talk purchase of land, but to take it."

The Cabinet submitted a draft of law replacing three varieties of martial law by a single one, namely, a state of extraordinary security proclaimable by the Emperor, which places supreme power in the hands of special commanders-in-chief who are subordinated to the Minister of the Interior. The commanders would have the following rights over the inhabitants: The search and arrest of persons, expulsion for a fortnight from the province, the censure and suppression of newspapers, the closing down of schools, imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, and the imposition of fines of $500. These rights may be enforced equally during war time when the functions of the commanders-in-chief will be given to the commanders of the separate armies.

The Constitutional Democrats have decided to hasten the passage of this law in order to put an end to the more arbitrary varieties of the law now in operation.

RUSSIA TO CRUSH STRIKE.

Oil Steamers to be Manned by Sailors of the Navy.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 8.—A strike by sailors on oil steamers on the Caspian Sea is causing considerable uneasiness to the Government, which fears an extension of the movement among the workmen in the Volga industrial region. The Government has decided upon extreme measures to break the strike.

Baron Taube, chief of the St. Petersburg gendarmerie corps, has been placed in supreme command at Baku, Astrakhan, Krasnovodsk, and Petrovsk, and has been empowered to deal with the strike independently of the Ministries or the Viceroy of the Caucasus.

The Government has undertaken the transportation of oil in vessels manned by sailors of the navy.

HANOVER, April 8.—Dr. George E. Krieger, formerly of Chicago, (whose son "Eddy" was kidnapped from the custody of his mother at Hamburg on March 23,) and Herr von Versen, manager of a detective bureau at Hamburg, arrived here this afternoon from Berlin upon a warrant issued by the Altona Court. Manager von Versen admits kidnapping the boy.

LONDON, April 8.—Jay Gould is not only the central figure in the tennis court, but is largely in evidence in the drawing room, being in great demand for social functions. He entertained to-night at Claridge's a small dinner party, including Miss Juliana Wood, the Misses Hannah and Dorothy Randolph, Mrs. W. B. Shoemaker, all of New York, and afterward took his guests to see Clyde Fitch's play "The Truth."

Newman Erb and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Dittenhoffer, who reached London from Monte Carlo a week ago with their motor, started from the Carlton this morning on a motor tour of England and possibly Scotland.

There was quite an influx of Americans from the Continent to-day. Pliny Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Prior Francis, and J. McCann at the Carlton; H. T. Dempster, Dr. Landen Humphreys, Miss Oliphant, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stanley are at the Savoy; Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Morse are at the Ritz; Mr. and Mrs. James Ross and Mrs. J. K. Ross of Montreal are at Claridge's.

The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe have just arrived at Floors Castle from Biarritz and expect to entertain there soon the Prince and Princess of Wales. They have been rebuilding Floors Castle, and the alterations and improvement of the grounds are about completed, so that the royal visitors will find that what formerly was an immense range of dilapidated buildings has been transformed into one of the finest residences in the world.

ORLEANS GOING TO ARCTIC.

Duke Will Explore the North Polar Regions and Seek an Island.

LONDON, April 8.—The Duke of Orleans told me to-day that he intended to start from Bergen on June 1 on his first voyage of exploration and scientific research in the north polar regions. He will sail on the ship La Belgica, in which Capt. Gerlache visited the south polar regions five years ago.

"My object," said the Duke, "is to study the topography of the ocean bed and the fauna in high latitudes, and discover, if possible, an island I have reason to believe lies northwest of the Kara Sea.

"I expect to be absent five months, but the ship will be provisioned for two years, so that if it is necessary or desirable to stay longer than five months I may do so comfortably."

MORGAN CAN'T SEE KING.

Arrives in Rome Too Late to Explain About the Van Dycks.

ROME, April 8.—J. Pierpont Morgan of New York, who arrived here yesterday on a brief visit, will, to his regret, be unable to see King Victor Emmanuel, who is in Greece.

Mr. Morgan wished to inform the King that he had nothing to do with the taking from Italy of the Van Dycks which have disappeared from Genoa, or the abstraction of marble fragments from the Trajan Forum, pieces of which are now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. The latter were purchased by Mr. Morgan in a shop in Rome, where anybody is free to buy similar antiquities.

Mr. Morgan, in view of his inability to see the King, will call on Minister of Education Rava and discuss the matter with him.

King Victor Welcomed to Greece.

ATHENS, April 8.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, accompanied by Foreign Minister Tittoni, Minister of Marine Mirabello, and a number of Court dignitaries, arrived here to-day on a visit to King George of Greece. He received a most enthusiastic welcome from the people.

SPAIN GREETS KING EDWARD.

Visit of British Sovereigns Raises the Nation's Hopes.

CARTAGENA, Spain, April 8.—King Alfonso, the Dowager Queen Christina, and the other members of the royal party arrived here at 7:30 this morning from Madrid in order to meet King Edward and Queen Alexandra of England.

The British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, escorted by warships, was sighted later in the day, and King Alfonso went out to meet King Edward and Queen Alexandra on board the Spanish royal yacht Giralda. A magnificent reception was accorded the royal visitors on their arrival here.

MADRID, April 8.—The newspapers comment upon the meeting at Cartagena as a solemn ratification of the perfect understanding between Great Britain and Spain. They call it another proof that Spain is coming out of the retreat in which she has vegetated for so long, and that she is about to take her place in international politics.

The Official Gazette to-day published a royal decree appointing King Edward an Honorary Captain General in the Spanish Army.

BRITISH BATTLESHIP ASHORE.

Tugs Pull the Trafalgar Off Rocks in Plymouth Harbor.

DEVONPORT, England, April 8.—The British battleship Trafalgar went ashore to-day on the rocks off Devil's Point, behind the naval victualing yard at East Stonehouse, while proceeding to Plymouth Sound from Devonport.

Six tugs succeeded in pulling her off, and she was taken back to be docked. There was a considerable quantity of water in her forward compartment.

Notes of Foreign News.

BERLIN, April 8.—Jules Cambon, the new French Ambassador to Germany, who succeeds M. Bihouard, arrived here yesterday. Emperor William arranged to receive him immediately, and accorded an audience to him to-day.

BELGRADE, Servia, April 8.—Widespread floods, caused by the melting of the snow, have wrought devastation in many Servian towns. Railway traffic is interrupted, and a number of fatalities have been reported.

ROME, April 8.—The Pope to-day received Archbishop Quigley of Chicago in private farewell audience, warmly praised his work, congratulated him on the progress made by the Archdiocese of Chicago, and encouraged him to continue his task.

HARBIN, Manchuria, April 8.—The mercantile suburb of the city known as Fudcadam, in which many large warehouses were situated, has been destroyed by fire. The burned area covers almost a square mile. The loss is estimated at $2,000,000.

ROME, April 8.—It is reported that the new syllabus being prepared by the Holy Office will contain a solemn condemnation of the works of the Abbe Houtin and of Fogazzaro, in addition to condemnations of the writings of the Abbe Loisy, the Rev. Dr. William Barry, and the former Jesuit priest Terrill. According to information received here, the Abbe Loisy is suffering from an incurable internal disease, but before dying he hopes to finish his most important work, an "Exegesis," or explanation of his apologetics.

OUR MARINES LAND IN CAPTURED CITY

Ceiba and Puerto Cortez Abandoned to Nicaraguans by the Honduran Garrisons.

FULLAM POLICES CEIBA

United States Forbids Central American Nations to Bombard Coast Cities.

MOBILE, Ala., April 8.—Advices received here to-day from Commander William F. Fullam of the United States gunboat Marietta, via steamer Columbia, just arrived, say that Ceiba was taken on the evening of April 3 by the Nicaraguan armies, and is now in command of Gen. Juan Estrada, Commander in Chief, and Gen. Manuel Letta, the latter a brother of Policorpo Bonilla. Ceiba fell without a shot being fired.

Cable advices announce also the occupation of Puerto Cortez.

After the capture of Ceiba the Nicaraguan forces left for Puerto Cortez on board the gunboat Ometepe, a gasoline launch, and a small gunboat. They were preceded to Cortez by the Marietta, to protect American interests. It had been agreed between Gen. Estrada and Commander Fullam that Puerto Cortez should not be bombarded.

NEW ORLEANS, April 8.—That Puerto Cortez was surrendered without fighting, and that about 1,500 Honduran soldiers abandoned the port two days before the Nicaraguan troops appeared, was the information brought to-night by the steamer Anselm from Puerto Cortez. The Hondurans did not desert their post through cowardice, according to these dispatches, but decided that the war was over. They returned to the banana plantations, where most of them had been employed as laborers before the war began.

United States marines closed all saloons in Ceiba after the abandonment of the port by the Hondurans. The following proclamation was issued by Commander Fullam of the Marietta and Virgil C. Reynolds, United States Vice Consul:

"To the People of Ceiba:

"The Generals of the Honduran Army having left Ceiba, the civil authorities will assume charge of the city government. All liquor saloons will be immediately closed and will remain so. Sailors from the United States ship Marietta will patrol the streets and assist the civil authorities to preserve order and protect property, foreign or private. The sailors are landed as friends of Honduras.

"All persons are warned that there must be no disorder or violation of the laws of Honduras, and all are advised to remain in their homes for the present.

"In case Nicaraguan forces concentrate at Ceiba they will not interfere with law-abiding people, and there need be no alarm whatever."

PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, April 4, (Via New Orleans, April 8)—An authoritative statement of great moment in the relations of the United States to Central American republics has been given out here. It is to the effect that bombardments of coast towns cannot be permitted "during the frequent wars and revolutions in Central American States." The statement is by Commander Fullam of the United States gunboat Marietta and is part of a letter to Gen. Juan J. Estrada, commanding the Nicaraguan expedition engaged in capturing Honduran ports. In part the letter reads:

"I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of March 25 in answer to my communication of March 24 requesting you to avoid the unnecessary destruction of coast towns by bombardment. It must be perfectly plain that foreign interests could not possibly be secure if bombardments were permitted. On the contrary, such interests would be subjected to the danger of complete destruction in every case. If bombardments of coast towns are to be resorted to during the frequent wars and revolutions in Central American States, the mercantile interests of all foreigners will be absolutely insecure in the future.

"From this it is plainly evident that assurances regarding the safety of American and foreign interests will be of no value whatever unless bombardments of these unfortified wooden towns are forbidden; and it is equally plain that a ship of war ordered here to protect American interests could not be excused for subjecting these same interests to inevitable ruin by permitting the destruction of these towns by fire and bombardment.

"Fully three-fourths of the valuable mercantile and business houses in these coast towns are owned by foreigners. Neither belligerents will be permitted to occupy or take cover in these houses during the course of hostilities.

"Trusting that I may not be compelled to inform the United States Government that I am mistaken regarding the attitude of Nicaraguan forces toward foreign business interests on this coast, and hoping that you will avoid all danger of complications by giving directions that property shall not be subjected to destruction by fire and bombardment, I remain," &c.

Commander Fullam notified Gen. Quiroz, commanding the Honduran forces near Ceiba, that it would be necessary to defend the town from a position outside the city.

Revolt in Venezuela Spreading.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curaçao, April 8.—According to information received here from Maracaibo, capital of the State of Zulia, Venezuela, the revolutionary movement in that republic is spreading and the Government is recruiting men, with the view of suppressing a possible extensive outbreak.

TAFT TALKS TO CUBANS.

They Learn That End of American Occupation is Not Near.

HAVANA, April 8.—The members of the committee of insurgents with whom Secretary Taft and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon made arrangements for peace in Cuba in September last had a conference with the Secretary to-day lasting from 10 o'clock in the morning until 1:30 in the afternoon. Secretary Taft refused to give his visitors the date of the withdrawal of the American forces from Cuba.

The committee asked that the Moderate Governors in the different provinces and the Moderate Mayors and City Councils be replaced by Liberals, but Mr. Taft declared that he would leave that entirely to Gov. Magoon. He added that the Administration was highly satisfied with the Governor's conduct of Cuban affairs and more authority than ever would be given to him.

At a second conference with the committee held to-night, Mr. Taft said he probably would recommend to President Roosevelt the holding of Presidential elections in December, and that the Cubans take possession one hundred days later as prescribed in the constitution.

At 2 o'clock Secretary Taft met the Conservatives and discussed the insular situation. He said that owing to economical conditions he considered a national election at an early date to be unwise, and recommended that such election be postponed until the outcome of the municipal and provincial elections could be seen. The Conservative representatives expressed their willingness to leave all to the good judgment of the United States.

Secretary Taft promised to confer with Gov. Magoon and President Roosevelt with a view to further conferences with the Liberals and Conservatives.

After this interview representatives of all the leading banks of Cuba called upon Mr. Taft and asked him to give them one or two years' notice before the holding of national elections, claiming that unless this were done the effect upon commercial conditions in the island would be disastrous. The bankers urged the Secretary not to change the present currency to American money, as to do so would increase the cost of living by 12 per cent. The committee of the Chamber of Commerce spoke to the Secretary in a similar vein.

Secretary Taft told the bankers he understood that they preferred permanent American control in Cuba, but that this could not be, as "we have obligations to the American people as well as to the Cubans, and the matter must be considered in its political as well as its economical aspects."

There is a general impression, gathered by what Secretary Taft said to-day, that the American occupation of Cuba will last for another year.

PAPER PLANTS FOR JAPAN.

One Company Orders $1,000,000 of Electric Machinery Here.

The Oji Paper Company of Tokio has placed a million-dollar order for electrical equipment with the General Electric Company, to be completed and shipped to Japan within six months. The machinery ordered comprises, besides the motor equipment for the papermaking machinery, a water power electric plant which will be erected fifteen miles from the mills proper. The transmission line and substation plants will also be supplied by the General Electric Company.

A smaller order comes to the same American concern from Hakone, Japan, a small town about thirty-five miles from Yokohama, where a water power electric plant which will cost $150,000 is required.

FAREWELL TO DR. AKED.

British Pastor Coming Here to Help Fight Our Materialism.

LIVERPOOL, April 8.—There was a great gathering at Pembroke Chapel to-night to bid farewell to the Rev. Charles F. Aked, who has been called to the pastorate of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York. The outgoing pastor received several presents as well as a number of illuminated addresses of appreciation.

In an address Dr. Aked said he was going to New York because of the wider field there, and that he was called to preach the gospel of spirituality in the fight against the materialism that was destroying American life.

MERRILL STILL IN DANGER.

Italians of Ozone Park Have Threatened to Take His Life.

The life of former District Attorney John B. Merrill of Queens County, who was attacked on Sunday night with a razor, is still in danger. It was learned yesterday that the Italian settlement of Ozone Park, where Mr. Merrill lives, had sworn vengeance upon him for the work he had done in stopping gambling and other crimes in the settlement.

Mr. Merrill himself said yesterday that he had heard that the attack on him was the result of a conference held in a barber's shop in the neighborhood at which the declaration of war was made.

"Merrill is in danger from them yet, for they mean business," said Coroner Nutt yesterday.

From the description which Mr. Merrill gave of his assailant, the police of the Richmond Hill Station tried yesterday to find the would-be assassin. Detectives Burke and Ring searched the Italian settlement in Ozone and another in Woodhaven, near by, without success. They took two Italians to the station house on suspicion, but after putting them through a severe examination turned them loose again.

Mr. Merrill appeared in the Third District Municipal Court of Queens with his face in bandages. The bandages covered a cut on the chin and another on the neck under the chin. Neither of them is serious. His life was saved by his linen collar.

Mr. Merrill appeared in court to aid Assistant Corporation Counsel Flanagan in trying a case against John Christibi, a barber of Ozone Park. Mr. Merrill said that he believed that his connection with this case was the cause of the attack. He informed the police that on Wednesday night last in Christibi's barber shop a threat was made by some Italian that Merrill would never try the case.

The suit against Christibi was brought to compel him to pay for the support of the child of Josephine Gillio of Ozone Park.

ELEVATOR FELL SIX FLOORS.

Boy Running It Probably Mortally Hurt in the Clifton Apartments.

The dropping of an elevator from the sixth floor to the basement in the Clifton Apartment House, at 2,010 Seventh Avenue, late yesterday afternoon, probably mortally injured Alexander Jameson, the elevator boy, and gave a severe shaking up to Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Blume of 2 East 125th Street, who were inspecting an apartment in the Clifton.

Jameson had just started down with the visitors when something snapped and the controlling crank began spinning around. Jameson had run an elevator three years and had been in accidents before.

"Jump for the ceiling," he called as the elevator began to drop.

The three were hanging by their hands when the elevator dropped into the pneumatic cushion and bounded up again. Jameson shoved the visitors bodily through the door to safety, and on the second rebound tried to follow them. He sprang too late, however, and was caught between the floor of the elevator and the ceiling of the hallway, blocking the elevator. His cries brought Frank Timan, the engineer, who finally got the elevator down and released Jameson.

Dr. Schofield of the J. Hood Wright Hospital found that Jameson's right leg was fractured and his hip dislocated. He was taken to the hospital, where last night Dr. Schofield said that possibly internal injuries might cause his death.

TAFT TIP IS OUT TO RANK AND FILE

How the Machine Stands in Cincinnati, Foraker's Home Town.

LOCAL POLITICS A FACTOR

And Still Roosevelt Looms in the Ohio Situation as the Dominant Personality.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 8.—In Senator Foraker's home city and county the question in the great Foraker-Roosevelt campaign is chiefly one of the Republican organization. Foraker, it is said, cannot credit the report that there is any chance of the organization being against him, and a Washington dispatch to The Cincinnati Times-Star to-night says that he "will not permit it."

Foraker will have a fine time trying to prohibit anything that the organization may want to do. Though this is Senator Foraker's home, he has nothing to do with controlling the organization. That has been attended to for many years by George B. Cox. Since Cox's alleged retirement from politics the controlling has been done by Rud K. Hynicka, although Cox could control it again to-morrow if he wanted to. Is the organization for Taft or against him? Foraker in Washington is serenely confident, but things have been going on here that Foraker knows not of.

Hynicka had a long conference with Charles P. Taft a while ago, and then immediately quitted the city, and has not been back since. Cox, when pressed to make an utterance, says it is "too early." Meanwhile the rank and file of the machine, the heelers, the roughnecks, the men who get their tips from headquarters, are talking Taft. Not that any of the rank and file are deeply in love with Taft. All over the State Taft's Akron speech in 1905 infuriated the organization, but the resentment in other sections was as nothing to the resentment here, for here it came home. Here Taft wrecked the organization, defeated its county ticket. His declaration was that, if he were in Cincinnati, he would vote the Democratic county ticket. No machine man anywhere enjoyed that, but in the other counties the machine man's resentment was a matter of principle; here it was a matter of bread and butter.

Had to Go to Work.

The county went Democratic, and the henchmen were out of jobs. Many of them had to go to work. Others are still hanging on, hoping for better things. These find the price of meat a more important matter than it was before Taft delivered his Akron speech. And it is that very fact that lends significance to the pro-Taft utterances you bear from such men. If a man who, but for Taft, might have been in the City Hall drawing a good salary is talking Taft instead of Foraker, it means much. It is not especially significant if such a man does not talk Taft very joyously. That would not be in nature. The fact that he talks Taft at all is the amazing thing. Hence the line of talk you get from such men is something like this:

"Taft oughtn't to have made that Akron speech. Still, in politics you have to do a great many things that you don't want to do. I don't want to support Taft, but after all I don't want to support Foraker either. They have both been against the organization. The only difference is that Taft has been on in the open and fought on the level, and Foraker has posed as a friend of the organization and stabbed it in private. As between two enemies of the organization I'm for the man who fought it openly."

The Real Answer.

Then you ask him why he is really for Taft, and he says:

"Well, we've got to elect our local ticket this Fall," and "that's the answer."

There is to be a mighty effort to run out the Democratic and reform administration this year, and it is perfectly hopeless to attempt to do it under the Foraker banner. Hence the real secret of that apparent mystery, the question why any member of the Cox machine should be for Taft.

Though nobody has been able to extract a word from Cox of Hynicka, every man who has had any experience of politics knows that when the underlings of a machine talk in a certain way it is a pretty fair indication of the way the bosses are thinking. The rank and file usually do not plunge without a tip. There is a mysterious telepathy, unexplainable, but well known in politics, by which the thoughts of the boss trickle down to the precinct Captain.

Charles P. Taft is the man chiefly responsible for this state of things. He is an organization man and has always been with Cox. His brother has been against Cox, and about the sincerity of their difference there has been no question. The organization has always loved Charles P. Taft and objurgated William H. Taft. Charles P. Taft is a power, he always was, but since William H. deprived the machine of its bread and butter the organization has been less cocky and less disposed to alienate its friends. The idea of embarking on a contest with Charles P. is abhorrent to the machine mind, and still more to the hungry machine stomach. If there are ever to be loaves and fishes in Hamilton County again, they are not to be got by driving leaders of the organization, especially such a man as Charles P. Taft, into the independent ranks. And no one doubts for a moment that if the organization were to come out against William H., Charles P. would join the Mugwumps for the first time in his life and take the Times Star with him.

Reformers for Taft.

Meanwhile the reformers are for Taft. The Roosevelt Club has declared for him. Cincinnati is a city of clubs, and its politics is club politics. The Blaine Club is not merely the organization club, it is the organization. Every officeholder must join the Blaine Club. It has been quite customary in the palmy days for an officeholder's dues in the Blaine Club to be deducted from his salary before it is handed over to him.

The Stamina League contained most of the reformers, but as it was not unanimous, a good many of the Staminas withdrew and started the Roosevelt League. This organization is composed of the men who bolted the Cox ticket in 1905, the men who are fighting for municipal reform now, and the men who will fight the Cox ticket in future. The Roosevelters adopted a resolution indorsing Taft a short time ago. Thus Taft seems to have a chance for both sides.

There is an element of danger here for Taft, however. It lies in the fact that in the organization indorses him, it will undoubtedly expect him to keep quiet in the local campaign next Fall, and if he does the machine will most likely assert that it now has both Tafts with it. In any such event the reformers are quite sure to address a letter to William H. Taft informing him that they followed his advice in the election of 1905, and asking him whether he still sticks to that advice or has changed his mind. There is not much doubt that if such a situation were squarely presented to William H. Taft he would reaffirm his Akron position without the slightest regard to the effect on his own political fortunes, and if he did of course the machine would fight him.

The reformers, however, say that on such an issue they could beat the machine, because of the immense Roosevelt strength in this county. The machine never has had much use for Roosevelt. When he came here on his Vice Presidential stumping tour in 1900 not a single party chief called upon him except Representative Bromwell. The affront was studied, premeditated, and caused by his reputation as a silk-stocking reformer. When he was inaugurated President the Blaine Club stayed at home and let the Julius Fielschman Colored Republican Club represent it at Washington.

Roosevelt the Vote-Getter.

But the machine must have votes, and it cannot get them if it opposes Roosevelt. Roosevelt's strength among the people here is great, fully as great as it is anywhere else. There is something in the excuse given by machine men for supporting Taft, that the organization has as little cause to love Foraker as Taft. Foraker was once a popular idol in Cincinnati, but he is so no longer. A reputation for being immensely selfish, for doing nothing for anybody and a great deal for Foraker, has grown up about him, and such a reputation is fatal to a man among politicians. As for the people who are not politicians, they don't like Foraker, either, for two reasons—first, that he is against Roosevelt, and, second, that his corporation alliances are too close, too open, and too flagrant.

"The impression current here about Foraker," said a Taft man to-day, "is that he can always be counted upon to be for anybody who is against the general public."

One difficulty with the Foraker plan to arouse sentiment against Taft on the score of his labor record is that the labor people are even more thoroughly against Foraker than they are against Taft. They do not like Taft's decision in the Phelan strike case, but when it is Foraker who presents that argument against the Secretary the average labor man listens coldly. Foraker has never been an organizer, and never had an organization of his own. He always trusted to making use of the local organization, using Cox's in Cincinnati and others in other parts of the State. The result is that he has nowhere to turn if the organizations are against him.

As for Dick, he amounts to nothing in Hamilton County, and never did. It was always Cox who ruled here. Dick is practically unknown here, has no following and no friends. Hence the situation in Hamilton County is desperate for the Senators unless they can hold the machine.

MRS. FORAKER A CANDIDATE.

Probably Will Oppose Mrs. McLean for the D. A. R. Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—There is prospect of a campaign in society that in feminine minds will overshadow in interest the Presidential contest. The name of Foraker will be conspicuous in it, too, for Mrs. Joseph Benson Foraker is about to enter the contest for the office of President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Donald McLean is now President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She is said to desire a third term, and her friends are urging her claims. But when the annual election takes place in Washington on April 15, Mrs. Foraker will be put forward in opposition. Mrs. Foraker has been "spoken of" quietly as a possible candidate, although some of her friends are insistent that under no circumstances would she accept the place.

The chief duties, powers, privileges, and prerogatives of the President-Generalcy of the D. A. R. consist of standing at the head of the receiving lines and furnishing headlines for the society pages. But there is no place, not even the Presidency of the American Federation of Women's Clubs, which carries with it more prestige among women. It is even said in the high circles of society that while Mrs. Foraker's election to the President-Generalcy would be of incalculable assistance to her husband's ambitions, should she be elected, it would not be necessary that Mr. Foraker seek further political honors.

President General McLean may not have aspirations to succeed herself, but it is evident she hopes to name her successor. There is a strong sentiment throughout the country against a third term in the D. A. R. Mrs. McLean may bow to it, but there is abundant reason to believe that there is a McLean "slate," and it is against this "slate" there is such hostility.

REBUFFS MRS. VON CLAUSSEN.

President Refuses to Hear Her Complaint of Minister Graves.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The President has declined to grant an interview to Mrs. Ida Von Clausen, who has complained to the State Department that United States Minister to Sweden Charles H. Graves refused to present her to King Oscar.

Mrs. Von Claussen arrived in Washington Saturday night from New York. To-day she sent a note to the White House seeking an appointment with the President in order to make a verbal statement of the case. Secretary Loeb, in reply, referred her to the State Departmnt as the branch of the Government with which properly to take up the matter.

Mrs. Von Claussen did not put in an appearance at the Executive offices during the business hours of the day.

Mrs. von Claussen said to-night that she had not been officially informed of President Roosevelt's refusal to see her and that she would call at the White House at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning in the hope of obtaining an interview. In case the President declined to receive her she would not take up the matter with officials of the State Department. She stated that she expected to remain in Washington until she did see the President.

COTTON EXCHANGE UPHELD.

United States Supreme Court Affirms Decision Against Hunt.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—In an opinion by Justice McKenna, the Supreme Court of the United States affirmed to-day the decision of the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Tennessee in the case of Clarence P. Hunt, a cotton broker of Memphis, Tenn., vs. the New York Cotton Exchange. The suit was brought in the Circuit Court by the Exchange to obtain an injunction against Hunt, prohibiting him from receiving or using its quotations, contrary to the regulations of the Exchange, and the injunction was granted.

EX-APPRAISER BROWNE WINS.

Extradited on One Charge He Cannot Be Imprisoned on Another.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—That a fugitive from justice in the United States who has been extradited from Canada on one charge cannot be imprisoned on another charge was decided to-day by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Charles C. Browne, an appraiser of merchandise at New York, who three years ago was indicted and convicted in connection with frauds discovered in connection with the importations of Japanese silks.

The opinion of the court was delivered by Justice Peckham and affirmed the decision of Judge Hough, sitting in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, who ordered Browne's release on a writ of habeas corpus.

Pets Saved; Nine Men Missing.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Nine men are missing from the naval coal barge No. 1, which, after being lost at sea for some days in heavy weather, off the Florida coast, has been finally towed into Jacksonville. The barge was picked up Saturday afternoon by the Norwegian steamer Nordkyn off Cape Canavarel, on the Florida coast. Only two dogs and two cats were aboard.

CONSTIPATION

COURT GIVES CUBA THE ISLE OF PINES

Supreme Bench Denies the Sovereignty of the United States.

BUT SUGGESTS A TREATY

Justices White and Holmes Dissent from an Interpretation of the Platt Amendment.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—That the Isle of Pines is not American territory was declared to-day by the Supreme Court of the United States. The decision was rendered in the famous case of Edward J. Pearcy versus Nevada N. Stranahan, Collector of the Port at New York. The case originated in connection with the importation of a few boxes of cigars by Pearcy in September, 1903. The cigars were made in the Isle of Pines of tobacco grown there, and when they arrived Pearcy refused to pay duty, on the ground that they were of domestic origin.

Chief Justice Fuller handed down the opinion of the court. Speaking of the status of the island at the date of the treaty of peace with Spain, he said:

"All the world knew that it was an integral part of Cuba, and in view of the joint resolution of April 20, 1898, it seems clear that the Isle of Pines was not supposed to be one of the 'other islands' ceded by Article 2. Those were islands not constituting an integral part of Cuba and adjacent to Porto Rico.

"The Isle of Pines continues at least de facto under the jurisdiction of the Government of the Republic of Cuba, and that settles the question before us, because, as the United States has never taken possession of the island as having been ceded by the treaty of peace, and as it has been and is being governed by that republic, it has remained 'foreign country' within the meaning of the Dingley act. There has been no change of nationality for revenue purposes, but, on the contrary, the Cuban Government has been recognized as rightfully exercising sovereignty as a de facto Government until otherwise provided."

Justice White concurred in the result, but took sharp exception to the court's position on the effect of the Platt amendment. He said that by taking this position the court contradicts itself, for while it professes to sustain the attitude of the legislative and executive departments of the United States toward the island, it immediately proceeds to discredit the former by a decision that the one proper way of adjusting the mattor is by treaty. Justice Holmes indorsed Justice White's opinion.

BRADY'S CHICAGO HOUSE.

Manager Leases the Auditorium for Big Productions.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 8.—An important deal, designed to help Chicago to become a producing centre of the drama and a factor in grand opera, has just been completed by W. A. Brady. The New York manager has leased the Auditorium Theatre for ten years at an annual rental of $100,000, and when he takes charge on Sept. 1 he will enter upon an ambitious programme.

"I propose to give Chicagoans the best there is in Europe in grand opera, the spectacular productions, and vaudeville," said Mr. Brady to-day. "Instead of a week or two of grand opera, the Auditorium henceforth will have a season of six or eight weeks of it with the best artists in the world. The stars of Paris, Berlin, London, and Vienna will be engaged for these presentations. Following the grand opera season a spectacular drama will be given, or possibly a Shakespearean festival. It will all depend on what particular drama can draw the crowd for a running season of several weeks.

"Another quarter of the year will be devoted to a theatrical water shower Hippodrome, such as has been given in New York City and London. The remainder of the year I intend to produce high-class vaudeville at moderate prices.

Asked what arrangements he had made for grand opera, Mr. Brady said:

"Whether the yearly season of opera will be supplied by Mr. Hammerstein or Mr. Conried I am not at liberty to state. I am convinced, however, that Chicago will support a much longer season than Mr. Conried has given."

COLLEGE GIRLS IN "HAMLET."

Smith Graduates Give Performance in Aid of the Building Fund.

Every seat in the Carnegie Lyceum was occupied last night when the Smith College Club of New York, with the assistance of the class of 1906, gave the tragedy of "Hamlet." The play was previously given by the senior class at the commencement in June, 1906.

A larger and better equipment in the matter of buildings at Smith College is desired, and $125,000 is necessary to complete the fund. Andrew Carnegie has given half that sum, and the alumnae and friends of the college are now at work raising the other half. It was to raise its share of the fund that the Smith College Club of New York gave last night's performance. There will also be a matinee and evening performance to-day.

The senior class, which gave the production last June, has since scattered over the country, but most of them volunteered to come to New York and take their original parts. Miss Hazel Josephine Goes came all the way from Chicago to play Ophelia, another came from Vermont, and another from Massachusetts.

The audience expressed its approval of the performance by frequent applause. But perhaps more eloquent than this was the fact that they sat until 11:30 o'clock when the curtain dropped on the third scene of the fifth act.

The cast was as follows:

Claudius, King of Denmark.....Julia Cotter
Hamlet, son to the late and nephew to the present King.....Elsie Herndon Kearns
Horatio, friend to Hamlet.....Alice Faulkner

GEN. VARNUM'S WILL FILED.

In Codicil ex-Surrogate Considered Possibility of Violent Death.

The will of Gen. James M. Varnum, ex-Surrogate of the City of New York, who was killed in a collision between his automobile and a Broadway car in Times Square on March 26, was filed in the office of the Surrogate yesterday.

A codicil provides that in the event that he and his wife die simultaneously in a catastrophe or being drowned at sea, his estate be distributed between other relatives.

The will itself gives to Mrs. Mary Dickey Varnum, the widow, the entire estate. The value of the estate was not given.

April's Most Impressive Show of Women's Dresses, Suits, Wraps.

EACH DAY TURNS A NEW PAGE of the Spring Fashion Book at Loeser's. Each day has added to the completeness and beauty of the collection of new apparel. Each day has demonstrated more clearly the fact that this is the most authoritative and splendid assemblage of women's outer-wear for Spring, and at the same time that the moderate prices are not easily to be equaled.

It is hard to appreciate how great is the variety of styles to be found here unless you make investigation. There are a dozen or more distinct styles of new Suits at $25. There is at least as great a variety of styles in the Suits at $50. Eight or nine new styles in Suits at $37.98 are just ready to be seen.

Whatever your special need, be sure that it will be met most completely here. You may pay as little as $9.98. You may pay as much as $150. Whatever you elect to pay, you will find that the Loeser showing represents the finest tailor work and the most distinctive styles to be had at that price, or anything near that price.

A special Display Day to-day will bring to the fore new Costumes, new strictly tailored Suits, new Linen and Lingerie Dresses, new Silk Suits in princess and two-piece styles, new Coats of coverts, cheviots and silks, new Skirts of Panamas, voiles, silks—some with suspender attachments.

It will be an OPENING DAY not wisely to be missed. Our cordial invitation to you not to miss it.

LOCAL OPTION BILL MENACE TO HOTELS

Would Keep Them Constantly Defending Their Rights to Sell Liquor.

FIGHT FOR ITS PASSAGE

Advocates Hope to Force Action, but Strong Opposition to It Is Shown in Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 8.—Deeplte the reverse suffered last week by the Anti-Saloon League in its campaign for the Local Option bill, when the Assembly by a vote of 69 nays to 61 yeas refused to discharge the Excise Committee on the measure, the concern of its opponents is not much lessened. They expect the league will compel another test of strength this week.

There were nineteen Assemblymen who did not vote last week on the question, and to get the bill out on the floor, the local-option people must get fifteen of these, as it takes a majority vote to discharge a committee. If the opposition to the bill can hold its strength and the league cannot obtain the necessary fifteen, it is probable that local option is dead for this session.

Strong opposition to the bill has been organized by the hotel men of New York City. They have been its chief opponents, although, of course, the brewing interests and liquor dealers have been working hard to defeat the Anti-Saloon League. Simeon Ford, George C. Boldt, Garrett J. Benson of Albany, and F. N. Bain of Newburg, the scope committee of the New York State Hotel Men's Association, have been looking to the interests of the hotel proprietors. Mr. Ford came here and heard the discussion before the Excise Committee.

There is much room for anxiety on the part of the hotel men. The passage of the bill would seriously affect them. For example, the Holland House, the Waldorf-Astoria, the Hoffman House, the St. Regis, the Knickerbocker, the Astor, or any other hotel might be deprived in any election of the right to sell liquor.

The Winters bill provides that the question "Shall liquor be sold?" must be submitted to the voters of an election district in cities biennially. If the negatives outnumber the affirmatives, then for two years there could be no trafficking in liquor anywhere in the boundaries of such election district.

Its practical working can be illustrated thus: At the next general election the 480 voters in the election district in which the Waldorf-Astoria is situated would have the privilege of voting whether the district should be "wet" or "dry" for the ensuing two years. If the no-license people had a majority of the votes, trafficking in liquors in this hotel would at once cease, under orders of the State Excise Department, and it could not be resumed until a majority of the voters voted the district "wet." This situation applies equally to any other New York hotel.

It would thus be possible for prohibition workers, or anybody else, to make life miserable for hotel managers, to say nothing of saloon keepers. It has been charged on the floor of the House that such a law would put an excellent weapon for blackmail into the hands of unscrupulous persons. That the antis would have the best of the situation cannot be questioned. They could with propriety drum up votes, while it could hardly be expected that hotel managers could get out with the plea, "Please help us to keep our bar by voting for license." The hotel and liquor people would be on the defensive continually.

The Prentice Laundry bill is another measure that has kept hotel men in hot water this session. By its terms the hotel laundries would be put under the factory law. The hotel laundry would be allowed to operate only a certain number of hours each week. A patron arriving on a Sunday who was obliged to leave early at night would have to forego any idea of having his linen cleaned, however much he might need it. This bill has been kept in committee thus far.

ONE TRANSFER BILL PASSED.

Provides for Free Tickets from Elevated to Subway at 66th Street.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 8.—By a unanimous vote the Assembly passed to-night the Francis bill compelling the Interborough Company to grant free transfers between the elevated railroad and the Subway at Columbus Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street. The bill was rushed through with such speed that it was passed before a majority of the members knew what had happened.

Senator Page is sponsor for a similar bill in the upper house.

S. P. C. A. WARNS DRIVERS.

Arrests Will Be Made If Horses on Ferryboats Are Not Blanketed.

Consent was obtained yesterday from the authorities of the ferry lines to Long Island to place on all their boats S. P. C. A. signs of reminder and warning to drivers who do not blanket their horses properly. This is the first step in the campaign of the society to better the conditions which result in suffering, sickness, and loss among the thousands of horses that cross to and from Manhattan daily.

The signs which will be placed on the Long Island boats, and boats of other lines later, read:

TO DRIVERS.

Blanket your horses. Protect them from draught and wind. Custodians of animals are subject to arrest and prosecution for failure to protect their charges from unnecessary suffering.

Cases of animal abuse or neglect should be reported to the society.

A bill providing that storm doors be required to shut in the gangways on all New York ferryboats has been introduced at the instigation of the society at Albany.

Another Peonage Arrest.

William R. Smith surrendered himself to United States Marshal Henkel yesterday. UTILITIES BILL DEFENDED.

Board of Trade Report Says Court Review Amendment Is Unnecessary.

The Board of Trade and Transportation, at a special meeting held yesterday, adopted a report of a special committee appointed to consider the Public Utilitiee bill, which puts the association on record as favoring not only the principle of the bill as originally drafted, but supporting the position taken by Governor Hughes in answer to the demands for a court review clause.

The report was adopted after some discussion. It was presented by a committee, of which J. Frederick Ackerman was Chairman. After reviewing the provisions of the Utilities bill, the report declares the existing conditions in the city of New York intolerable, both as regards passenger transportation and lighting companies. The committee declares that it had found in the new powers conferred on the proposed commission nothing experimental, problematical or extraordinary—"nothing that the public may not rightly demand shall be conferred upon and exercised by those who are obliged to stand between the public and the corporations, and nothing that the conditions do not require."

"Wherever property rights are affected ample protection is guaranteed by the Constitution, which a statute cannot limit or diminish. In our opinion, no provision should be incorporated in this bill which would give pretext for delay to multiply the resources of the defendant corporation, which are adequate under existing laws, against the giving of that full, just and speedy remedy of evils which this bill is intended to provide."

ARREST AT COOPER UNION.

Man Gave Out Circulars Attacking Hughes at Public Utilities Meeting.

Ex-Mayor Seth Low and William M. Ivins addressed a meeting in Cooper Union last night under the auspices of the People's Institute to advocate the Public Utilities bill. What appeared to be an attempt to spoil the effect of the meeting was made outside the building, according to M. M. Davis, one of the committee. He caused the arrest of a man who said he was Luther L. Bedford, and who was charged with violating the city ordinance in giving out circulars. Bedford was taken to the Fifth Street Station, but at the request of Mr. Davis was discharged after being warned not to give out any more circulars.

According to Mr. Davis, Bedford had bundles of circulars, which derided Gov. Hughes and the Utilities bill. One circular was a four-sheet posterlike affair. It was to the effect that Gov. Hughes was secretly the ally of "The Belmont Ryan merger," the "secret oppressor of the people," and "a friend of the trusts." The circular said that the Public Utilities bill was framed in behalf of the enemies of the people, and pointed to it as a clever attempt to help the "wealthy oppressors" of the masses.

The second circular, which was a one-page affair, was in the shape of a petition to the Legislature asking that body "not to destroy the Rapid Transit Commission at this time, when it is prepared to let contracts for the new subway system."

Bedford said he was giving out the papers in behalf of the West Side Henry George Club of 324 Hudson Street.

There were 1,500 men at the meeting. Mr. Low outlined the provisions of the Public Utilities bill, pointing out just why it was a good measure for the people. The men named on the commission, Mr. Low said, should be men of high character and standing in the community, and should compare with those on the Supreme Court bench. They should receive large salaries and have life terms.

Mr. Ivins also urged the benefits of the measure, saying better control of railroads was needed.

STATE AUTO WORK.

Five New Associations In West and South to be Formed This Month.

Five new automobile State associations will be organized before the close of the month, and it is expected they will all be elected to membership in the American Automobile Association at the Executive Committee meeting of the latter body during the last week of this month in this city. Secretary Frederick H. Elliott of the A. A. A. will leave to-day on a week's visitation trip among a number of clubs in the South and West. He will attend the annual meeting of the Automobile Club of Maryland to-morrow night at Baltimore. This is one of the most energetic clubs in the South, and its members have already planned several endurance runs and tests for the season. The Maryland autoists have been discussing the need of a State association for several months, and it will be organized before Mr. Elliott leaves for Louisville, Ky. Mnryland has three clubs, the Maryland Club of Baltimore, Hagerstown, and Roland Park, and they will bring about 400 members into the national body.

Kentucky also has three clubs—Louisville, Paducah, and Lexington. Delegates have been appointed to meet in Louisville this week and besides forming the State association, a plan for more energetic good roads work will be outlined. Mr. Elliott will then go to Indianapolis, where the Indiana State Association will be organized on Friday, and on Saturday night he will attend the meeting of engineers in that city to discuss plans and rules for the coming long-distance race for American touring cars, to be held in the Long Island Motor Parkway after the Vanderbilt Cup contest. H. O. Smith and Edgar Apperson, who have entered two Premier and two Apperson cars respectively, will confer with a number of automobile engineers and their suggestions for the race will be referred to the Racing Board of the A. A. A. for final action. Mr. Thompson, Chairman of the board, will confer with his Technical Committee after receiving the report of the engineers, and within the next month the complete conditions for the contest will be announced.

Mr. Elliott has been invited to address the Missouri delegates early next week, when a State organization will be formed there, and on his homeward trip he will stop at Detroit to assist in the formation of a Michigan State Association.

In addition to these five State organizations, the recently formed Wisconsin association will apply for membership in the A. A. A. this month, and it is expected that the Pennsylvania Motor Federation will also come in at the same time. President W. H. Hotchkiss will be present to-night at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania motorists in Pittsburg, when favorable action will be taken.

The tendency to assist in the practical work of the National association is growing all over the country, and an important conference was held yesterday afternoon in the office of Secretary Elliott, at which Chairman Hower of the Touring Board was present to meet a committee from the Long Island Automobile Club in reference to the return of that club as a member of the American Automobile Association. The Long Island Club is the only large club in the State that is not a member of the National body. The Directors, by a narrow vote, resigned a year ago, but under the more aggressive policy of the American Automobile Association this year a strong sentiment has been expressed by the members for a renewal of membership. With the return of the Long Islanders it will mean an addition in individual members of over 800 and the Board of Governors will meet within the next few days to act upon the proposition

FRENCHMEN ARRIVE FOR PEACE CONGRESS

Four Delegates Come, Headed by Baron de Constant of the French Senate.

ARMY CADETS DELEGATES

John Sharp Williams, Who Is Unable to Attend, Suggests Strengthening Hague Court.

Four eminent Frenchmen who are delegates to the Peace Congress which meets here next week arrived yesterday on La Touraine. They are Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, a member of the French Senate and founder of the American Branch of the Association of International Conciliation; D. L. C. Enlart, Director of the French Trocadero Museum; J. Rals, Secretary of the Chamber of Deputies, and Paul Doumer, Chairman of the French Senate and a candidate for the Presidency of the French Republic at the last election. All will attend the dedication of the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg, and Baron d'Estournelles will return to New York and take a prominent part in the Peace Congress. He will be the guest of President Roosevelt in Washington to-day.

Before the Baron came to America he had planned to make only one address on the subject of arbitration, at the Monday evening meeting at Carnegie Hall. A representative of the Executive Committee of the congress arranged with him yesterday to speak also at the meeting at the Hotel Astor on Tuesday, which will consider the commercial, industrial, and agricultural aspects of the peace movement.

Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi has written to the Executive Committee an explanation of his inability to attend the Peace Congress. The Senatorial campaign in his State keeps him away. In his letter Mr. Williams makes the suggestion, which he says he has talked over with President Roosevelt, that each country pay "a good, substantial salary" to the members of The Hague Court appointed by it, give them a long tenure of office, either for life or for ten or fifteen years, and forbid them to act as counsel for any nation while so serving. This, he says, would enable each country to select lawyers of international reputation, who can make a long work, if not a life work, of the objects set before the court.

"My idea," he concludes, "is to make the court of The Hague an amphyctionic council of the civilized world. I used this phrase in a letter to the President, and it seemed to please him very much. The details can be worked out easily by a committee, keeping the general object in view."

Forty cadets from West Point will be present, under command of officers of the United States Army, as delegates to the congress. Word was received from Col. Hugh L. Scott, Superintendent of the Academy, yesterday by Robert E. Ely, Secretary of the congress, that such a delegation, under three army officers, could be sent to represent West Point at the university meeting on the second day of the gathering. Invitations were immediately dispatched to the two-score cadets and their instructors, and a prominent place will be reserved among the college delegates for them.

Almost a hundred colleges and universities yesterday obtained places on the floor of Carnegie Hall for this meeting of college men in the interests of peace on next Tuesday evening. The Yale and Columbia glee clubs are rehearsing a special musical programme for the occasion.

It is probable that in addition to President Eliot of Harvard, President Butler of Columbia, Dr. Felix Adler, and Edwin D. Mead, who are the regular speakers of the occasion, many others will address the college men.

PLEA FOR A REIGN OF LAW.

Prof. Kirchwey and the Rev. Dr. Lynch Say War Is Passing Away.

A reign of law throughout the world as a substitute for the present suggestions for international disarmament and universal peace compacts between nations was suggested last night by Prof. George W. Kirchwey, Dean of Columbia University Law School, during a discussion of "The Dawn of the Universal Republic," in Emanu-El Temple. Prof. Kirchwey is a delegate to the Peace Congress. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Lynch, pastor of Pilgrim Church, also a delegate, followed out the idea advanced by Prof. Kirchwey.

In arguing that a reign of law may be the solution of the question which is being deliberated by the nations of the world at this time Prof. Kirchwoy told of the evolution which has resulted in the present reign of law that governs the people of the world and said that the same evolution could readily apply to nations as well.

"A general reign of law in international affairs as a substitute for the reign of brute force is within the range of probability," said Prof. Kirchwey. "It is an aim for which we may reasonably work. How can the thing be done? I will tell you. The reign of law in personal disputes now hold sway throughout the civilized world, why, in our private disputes can be settled by the arbitrament of the law, should the disputes of nations be settled by the arbitrament of the sword? The condition is the same. It can be done without any transformation of human nature, such as Tolstoy believes is necessary in order to bring about the solution of the universal peace problem.

"There was never a time when there was less mushy talk about peace and more practical talk of obtaining peace than now. The statesmen of the world are bending their energies to that end. Whether it comes from St. Petersburg or Westminster or from Congress or from that place of bloody rank, the White House, the voice is the same. It calls for the abolition, or at least a limitation, of the baleful effects of war.

"Every one seems afraid that The Hague Conference will go too far for those who are not friendly to universal disarmament. I think the result will be a general arbitration treaty submitted to all the nations of the earth.

"All that is wanted now is a few noted examples of nations submitting their grievances against others to arbitration."

Dr. Lynch said that the most encouraging evidence of a change in human nature is the sentiment toward a reign of law, world wide in its effect. He said: "Joined as we are with the nations of the world by steamships and cable and the telegraph and by a spirit of brotherly love, where one who asks "Where is Germany?" can be told 'Milwaukee,' and another who asks 'Where is Hungary?' will receive the reply, 'Right here in New York,' it is unlikely that the disputes of nations will much longer be settled by force of arms.

"The business men alone will stop war before long. The best allies of peace are the Chambers of Commerce."

Dr. Joseph Silverman presided at the meeting.

Inquiry Begun to Learn Why Hospital Patients Weren't Properly Covered.

Supt. Samuel T. Armstrong of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals wrote to the Superintendent of the Presbyterian Hospital yesterday asking why two improperly clothed patients were transferred from the latter institution to Bellevue on Sunday night in such a condition. The patients, one of whom was suffering from acute alcoholism and the other from dementia, were taken from the Presbyterian Hospital to Bellevue in an almost nude condition, the only protection afforded them from the chilly night air being a blanket.

The patients, who were sent in one ambulance all the way from the Presbyterian Hospital, at Seventieth Street and Madison Avenue, to Bellevue, at the foot of East Twenty-sixth Street, were Joseph Carbonneau, a drug clerk, and Aaron Ferry, a negro porter. Carbonneau was suffering from acute alcoholism and epilepsy, while Ferry was the victim of dementia. Dr. Le Roy Smith received the patients, and when he saw that both were almost nude he objected to taking the men in such a condition. His protests were of no avail, however, and he got no satisfaction from Dr. Goodwin, the physician who represented the Presbyterian Hospital in the transfer.

As soon as the patients were received at Bellevue they received suits of warm pajamas and were put to bed. Yesterday the patients were getting along as well as could be expected, and it was believed that no ill-effects had resulted from the chilly ride from Seventieth to Twenty-sixth Street.

When seen at his home, 144 East Thirty-seventh Street, last night, Dr. Armstrong was inclined to think that the occurrence had been exaggerated. He had, however, he said, asked for an explanation.

At the Presbyterian Hospital the Acting Superintendent, Dr. Young, would not even receive reporters. He was too busy he sent word out, to talk, but might possibly have a chance to say a few words to the newspapers to-day.

CREATORE DIVORCED.

Wife Gets an Absolute Decree from the Bandmaster.

Supreme Court Justice Davis granted an absolute divorce yesterday to Anna Creatore from Joseph Creatore, the bandmaster. The suit was not defended.

The couple were married in Barlotta, Italy, in 1886. They came to this country six years ago, but had not lived together for several years.

Jonnna Barrili, a singer who formerly appeared with the band, was named in the wife's complaint.

The whole strength of our Cravenettes doesn't lie in the fact that they'll shed rain, any fabric submitted to the Cravenette process will—ours go beyond that function—being fashioned of high quality fabrics, allied with clever designing and talented tailoring, they're as good for fair days as for wet ones.

To Build a Dormitory in Memory of Royal B. Fernald.

At a meeting of the Trustees of Columbia University yesterday the death of Prof. Rees of the Department of Astronomy was announced formally. It was resolved to commemorate his long service to the university in some fitting manner.

A bequest of $300,000 by the late F. P. Fernald was announced, subject to the life interest of Mrs. Fernald. The purpose is to erect a dormitory in memory of Royal Bleckler Fernald, of the class of 1901, who died before the end of his course.

Dr. Simon Baruch was appointed Professor of Hydrotherapy at the Medical School. Other appointments were: Dr. Porter F. Chambers, to be Clinical Professor of Gynecology, and, upon the recommendation of the Faculty of Barnard College, William P. Montague to be Adjunct Professor of Philosophy; Grace A. Hubbard, A. M., and Mabel F. Weeks to be Adjunct Professors of English.

Holland Society's Annual Meeting.

The Holland Society of New York held its twenty-fourth annual meeting at Delmonico's last night. The event was marked by a record attendance, for 300 of the 930 members of the society were present, a high-water mark. John R. Van Wormer retired as President, and his place was taken by Frank Hasbrouck, a Poughkeepsie lawyer. Henry L. Bogert and Arthur H. Van Brunt were re-elected Secretary and Treasurer respectively.

EDITORS STILL FOR ROOSEVELT

No Let-Up in the Tide of Opinion Reflected in Their Letters.

EVEN DEMOCRATS FOR HIM

Harriman Incident and Third Term Generally Ignored in the Discussion.

There was yesterday no sign of abatement in the Roosevelt tide, which has been reflected in the letters from Republican editors printed Sunday and yesterday in THE TIMES. Another large installment of letters was received, and with one solitary exception they reported Roosevelt stronger or just as strong as he was when elected.

A Maine editor says he is as strong today in Maine as James G. Blaine was at the height of his influence. Another man declares him to come as near to being a leader of the whole people as one man can be. From the West come more declarations that he is the kind of a man the West likes—active, energetic, impulsive, courageous, fearless, honest, able, wise.

No ground whatever seems to have been lost by the Harriman incident. On the contrary, the few references made to it speak of the President as being the stronger for it. Neither the Storer incident nor the Brownsville affair appears to have cost him any popularity, while his attitude toward overaggressive corporations is reported to have drawn many to his side. In some places Democrats have become Roosevelt men, and in others the "stand-pat" theory finds exemplification in the opinion that "the King can do no wrong."

There is one positive assertion that third-term sentiment is growing, but the subject is generally ignored or the opinion offered that if the people cannot have Roosevelt they want somebody with the Roosevelt "strawberry mark." Thus in Indiana, which is said to stand solid for Fairbanks, Taft is the second choice. In Kansas the President might, it is said, defeat Parker more easily than he could Bryan, but still the people are overwhelmingly with him.

While criticism of individual acts is commonly free, and many disagree with him on some things, few disagree on all—this refers to Republicans, of course—and in the long run the favor far overbalances the disfavor.

The letters received yesterday follow:

Colorado Springs, Col., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From present indications, Roosevelt can carry Colorado solidly as often as he is a candidate. Enthusiasm for him is not likely to wane, but if it does he can restore it any time by another bear hunt.

CHARLES T. WILDER,
Editor Colorado Springs Gazette.

Denver, Col., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Roosevelt is a great deal stronger in Colorado and the entire West now than at any previous time in his career. The controversy with Harriman et al. has been altogether in his favor, and I am quite certain that if he should consent to become a candidate for the Presidency again next year he would carry Colorado almost unanimously.

WILLIAM STAPLETON,
Editor The Denver Republican.

Canton, Ill., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my opinion the President is stronger with the rank and file to-day than he was at the time of his election. I have no doubt he would receive more votes now than he did then in this part of Illinois.

C. E. SNIVELY,
Editor Canton Register.

Ottawa, Ill., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is no change in the sentiment toward President Roosevelt in this vicinity. His is as popular and as strong, and even stronger, with all classes of people than ever before. The Republicans recognize him as a fearless, honest, and uncorruptible leader. The Democrats commend him for his democratic views, and a large percentage of them would support him even for a third term for the Presidency.

A. RICHARDS,
Editor Daily Journal.

Aurora, Ill., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Roosevelt is more popular and stronger generally with the voters in this section than ever before, if such a thing is possible. His "square deal" and "stand pat" policies have held his old supporters and gained him many new ones. No public man stands higher in the estimation of the people here than President Roosevelt.

GEORGE STEPHENS,
Editor Aurora Daily Beacon.

Macomb, Ill., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Roosevelt is as strong with the rank and file as he was at the election in 1904. Of course, some of them believe he has made mistakes, mostly, however, in doing the right thing a little prematurely. But they have the abiding faith in his honesty, ability, and energy that they had when they voted for him over two years ago.

W. H. HAINLINE,
Editor Journal.

Alton, Ill., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am convinced both by what I hear and see that there is no diminution in the popularity of President Roosevelt with the great mass of voters. It is no uncommon thing to hear Democrats announce their intention of voting for Roosevelt if renominated. The people believe him to be honest, courageous, and able—a trinity of qualifications rarely, if ever, equaled by any American statesman.

J. A. COUSLEY, Editor Telegraph.

Rockford, Ill., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Theodore Roosevelt is fully as popular in Northern Illinois if not stronger, than he was when last elected President. In fact, many Democrats in this section would like to have an opportunity to vote for him who were not for him in the last Presidential election. The rank and file of the Republicans are with him as solidly as ever because of his honesty, integrity, ability, and absolute fearlessness.

FRED E. STERLING,
Editor Register-Gazette.

Huntington, Ind., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think President Roosevelt is as popular now in Indiana as ever he was. As to Presidential possibilities, it is safe to predict Indiana will go into the next convention solid for Charles Warren Fairbanks. If Mr. Fairbanks should fail to land the nomination, I presume Secretary Taft would receive more support than any other person.

H. S. BUTLER,
Editor The Herald.

Chanute, Kan., April 4.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Roosevelt is stronger now with Kansas voters than ever before, and is constantly growing stronger. Nothing would better please nine out of every ten Kansans than to see him re-elected President. If Roosevelt cannot be induced to run again Taft is by far the most popular of the other candidates.

WILFRID CAVANESS,
Editor Tribune.

Salina, Kan., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to state that, in my judgment, President Roosevelt is as strong with the people of Kansas to-day as he has ever been. Their confidence in him has not been shaken.

He would not get so many votes if he were a candidate for re-election with Bryan as his opponent as he did when he ran against Parker, but it would be because Bryan is much more popular in the West than Parker was, and not because the President has lost favor.

I have conferred during the last few days with a number of leading citizens, and the unanimous opinion is that Roosevelt has not lost prestige. Many think he is stronger in Kansas to-day than he has ever been.

J. L. BRISTOW,
Editor Journal.

Emporia, Kan., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The popularity of President Roosevelt has in no way waned. People understand him as a man, are willing to concede that he has human failings, for which they are willing to allow a little, and they measure his work as a whole, rather than pick it to pieces. Hundreds of men may be found who disagree with him on certain propositions, but there is no one thing on which all men disagree with him, and no important thing with which many men differ with him. He is stronger than before he entered the Harriman controversy.

THE EMPORIA GAZETTE.

Topeka, Kan., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While there is more criticism of President Roosevelt than formerly, in my judgment it has as yet made no marked difference in his popularity with the people of Kansas. Kansas is undoubtedly a strong Roosevelt State, as it always has been.

DELL KEIZER,
Editor Topeka Herald.

Bangor, Me., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is no doubt a fact that the name of Theodore Roosevelt is not mentioned as frequently as it was when he spoke in Bangor and dined with Senator Hale in Ellsworth four years ago. Eastern Maine, like other sections of the country, has its periods of quiescence and eruption.

Meanwhile, it is my belief that the President retains the respect and will command the support of more Eastern Maine voters than any other President could have done since the days of Abraham Lincoln. In the minds of the young and healthy men of both parties the President is looked upon as an original and brave specimen of belated demigod, one who is filled with active and latent energy to be exerted for the uplift of mankind. If he made a mistake in ordering the discharge of the colored soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, he has atoned for scores of such errors by stepping in and ending the coal strike in Pennsylvania, when there were thousands of innocent sufferers. If he has dillydallied over the canal, he was swift and sure and noble in bringing the war between Japan and Russia to a happy ending.

A very large majority of the conservatives and more respectable residents of Eastern Maine have a deeply rooted and abiding trust in the ability and candor of Theodore Roosevelt. He is as popular to-day as James G. Blaine was in his prime. He is trusted more fully.

J. NORMAN TOWLE,
Editor Daily News.

Cadillac, Mich., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this section of Michigan and throughout the entire State President Roosevelt is fully relied upon to do as nearly right as he can. This confidence is as strong as when he was elected. It is recognized that he is not faultless, but his faults seem to be incidental to the peculiar characteristics which give him unusual strength. President Roosevelt has lost none of his strength or popularity in Michigan.

PERRY F. POWERS,
Editor Evening News.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is no indication that President Roosevelt has lost any popularity in this part of the country since his election. On the contrary, he seems to be stronger with the masses than ever before. Mr. Roosevelt is the kind of President that the West admires—vigorous, courageous, outspoken, progressive; a man who does things. His pugnacity is in his favor. Western people believe he is making a sincere fight against oppressive corporations for the good of the country, and that results will vindicate his course. However, if they should find themselves mistaken in this—if his policy toward the railroads and other great corporations should be productive of serious business disturbance, resulting in industrial depression and hard times, a reaction in popular feeling would ensue. The masses would quickly come to the belief of the large business men that the President is too impulsive, too radical, too headstrong for a man in his position. Prosperity was here when he went into office. If it should disappear under his Administration he could not escape the conclusion that his interference with business had wrought the ruin.

W. F. CRAIG, Editor The Journal.

Joplin, Mo., April 4.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Fifteenth Congressional District is close, Jasper County is close, Joplin is debatable ground. Last year the district went Democratic by 281. In 1904 it went Republican by 2,000. Of course, the Republicans want Roosevelt. Failing to get him again, they want some one with the Roosevelt strawberry mark where every one can see it.

P. E. BURTON, Editor News Herald.

Aurora, Mo., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Generally speaking, the popularity of President Roosevelt is not as strong as at the time of his election; however, there is a stronger tendency to Republican policies and principles than ever before.

E. A. MacMILLAN.

Lincoln, Neb., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The confidence of Nebraska in President Roosevelt has been rising steadily since 1904. He is as near the leader of the whole people as a President can be under the party system of government. But the Republicans of Nebraska will not be for Roosevelt in 1908. They will be for some man whose platform record and reputation mean Roosevelt-ism.

NEBRASKA STATE JOURNAL,
William Owen Jones, Managing Editor.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In South Dakota President Roosevelt is unquestionably stronger to-day than he has ever been. Perhaps 80 per cent. of the voters of this State would like to see Roosevelt re-elected. They believe him to be honest, fearless, and wise, and they believe that he has done a public service as great as that performed by Abraham Lincoln.

CHARLES M. DAY,
Editor Argus Leader.

Montpelier, Vt., April 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I should say that Mr. Roosevelt was stronger than ever with the people, especially in Vermont. The third-term sentiment is growing, and I should not be at all surprised, in view of the vicious onslaught of the trust and moneyed newspapers, to see Roosevelt delegates elected from this State. The Hearst-Rockefeller, &c., combination is not very seriously regarded, but wherever it is at all believed it has greatly strengthened the demand for Roosevelt to carry out the Roosevelt policies. The Journal and Watchman will support the nominees of the Republican National Convention, but is perfectly ready to declare in favor of a third term if the pressure keeps up. Trusting this may not be too late.

HOWARD L. HINDLEY.

Janesville, Wis., April 4.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

President Roosevelt enjoys his old-time popularity among the voters of Southern Wisconsin. The Brownsville affair, the Storer episode, and Harriman quarrel fail to disturb the masses. "The King can do nothing wrong," expresses popular sentiment in this neck of the woods, and nothing but an earthquake will disturb the serenity. "So mote it be."

H. F. BLISS, Editor Gazette.

Menasha, Wis., April 5.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Without taking the time to investigate the matter in detail, we are personally of the opinion that President Roosevelt is as popular with the majority of the voters in this section as he was previous to the time of his last election. This is merely the personal opinion of the writer.

A. D. CLINTON, Editor Menasha Record.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 5.

It is my opinion that President Roosevelt's popularity with the voters in this section has not waned since the time of his election. I do not believe the voters generally have lost any of the faith which they then reposed in him.

M. C. DOUGLAS,
Managing Editor Sentinel.

Racine, Wis., April 4.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has been no apparent change in the popular estimation of President Roosevelt that can be noticed. Unless something occurs, for instance, a demonstrative effort to discredit him, or a movement to nominate some man identified with corporative movements, Republicans generally will not insist upon renominating the President. Generally speaking, the idea is that there shall be an orderly and fair-minded contest to win the highest honors of the Republican National Convention in 1908. In the sense the word popularity is used, the President is as popular as ever, but at the same time the feeling is growing that Republicanism means fair-minded criticism of men and measures, and all Republicans with good records should be given a chance. The Republican Party may indorse individuals for the valuable work they have accomplished, but its welfare and its future is owned by no one man or belongs to any one man, and as highly thought of as is the President and loved for what he has done, yet the Republican Party is strong not for the personality, but for the deeds accomplished. The party gives all due tribute to those great names that it has honored and the great names that have honored it by noble virtues, public services, and faithfulness, and the name of Theodore Roosevelt is none the least of these.

EDITOR RACINE (WIS.) JOURNAL.

FEARS ROME'S FATE FOR OUR REPUBLIC

President Schurman, at Higgins Memorial Services, Warns the Nation.

A LESSON FROM TIBERIUS

Picture of the Roman Foe of Capital Regarded as an Attack on Mr. Roosevelt.

ALBANY, April 8.— What was taken to be an attack on President Roosevelt by Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, gave a political twist to memorial services for the late Gov. Frank W. Higgins, which were held in the Assembly Chamber to-night. The Emperor Tiberius of Rome was held up as an example of the sort of man who might bring about "the doom of our Republic," and many of Mr. Schurman's hearers applied the picture he drew to President Roosevelt.

The big Assembly Chamber was packed. State officials and well-known men and women occupied prominent places. No members of Gov. Higgins's family, except his sister, Mrs. Frank Sullivan Smith, were present. Mrs. Higgins and the children are in California with her eldest son, who is ill. Senator Horace White of Syracuse presided over the services. After prayer and singing he introduced Gov. Hughes, who said:

"I have already expressed my appreciation of our indebtedness to the long-continued and efficient public service of him in whose honor we have met. He was a faithful servant of the State and in the important offices which he held he revealed a sincerity of purpose and integrity of character which will always be remembered."

Schurman Fears for Republic.

Mr. Schurman was then introduced by Gov. Hughes. He reviewed Mr. Higgins's political career and paid high tribute to his services to the State for many years as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and lafterly, as Governor. Near the conclusion of his address he talked of the present-day problems, saying:

"The regulation of consolidated and incorporated capital is likely to be the problem of American politics for the next few decades. No thoughtful man acquainted with the lessons of human history can survey the prospect which stretches before us without deep anxiety. It took a great civil war, extending over four years, with a sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of lives and an expenditure of millions of money, to dispose of the constitutional issue on which American political parties formerly divided.

"Now that the contest of our parties is waged over economic questions with corporations indeed in the foreground but with the demand for a more equal distribution of worldly goods in the distance and the spectre of Socialism hovering just beyond the horizon—what eye but the eye of Omniscience can divine whither and to what we are drifting.

Tiberius's Fight with Capital.

"In all the vast and varied panorama of the history of mankind I know nothing so full of interest and instruction for this generation of American people as the later days of the Roman Republic—the century of the Gracchi, of Marius and Sulla, of Crassus and Cato, of Pompey and Julius Caesar.

"When the older Gracchus appeared on the scene Rome was still a republic which had undergone transformation from the earlier city-state, with its centuries of courage, civic virtue, and great achievement. Rome had become a world power and was bearing the responsibilities and the burdens of empire.

"Unhappily for Rome, a self-constituted savior of society appeared who had eyes to see that the times were out of joint and conceit to believe that he was born to set them right. He was a man of impulsive temperament, who brooked no opposition to his will, and who could not even appreciate a sincere difference of opinion in an honest opponent.

"Vain, self-confident, reckless, autocratic, he was also thoroughly honest and deeply persuaded of his own good intentions. And, as fate would have it, he possessed the gift of eloquent speech. This man, who thought himself foreordained by the gods to be the regenerator of Rome, was Tiberius Gracchus. He was, says the historian,

"One of the most striking instances in history of the amount of evil that can be brought about by a thoroughly honest and well-meaning man, who is so entirely convinced of the righteousness of his own intentions and the wisdom of his own measures, that he is driven to regard any one who strives to hinder him as not only foolish but morally wicked.

"The type of exalted doctrinaire who exclaims that any constitutional check that hinders his plans must be swept away without further inquiry, that every political opponent is a bad man who must be crushed, has been known in many lands and ages, from ancient Greece down to the France of the Revolution."

Overthrow of Roman Republic.

Mr. Schurman sketched the course of Tiberius as the "champion of the small producers who had been driven out of business by the great capitalists." He pointed out that Tiberius insisted on taking away from the capitalists, without compensation, the lands they had held without question from 70 to 200 years, and distributing them among the petty farmers. He continued:

"His reforms resulted in riot and massacre, in which the reformer himself miserably perished. But his policy of confiscation without compensation launched the State upon a century of civil war and ruthless proscription, which ended in the overthrow of the republic and the soulless despotism of the Caesars.

"Thus ended the first historic attempt of political parties to solve great economic problems. Yet Tiberius Gracchus is not to be blamed for recognizing and facing those problems. The agrarian question, involving the proper relations of the small cultivators and the big capitalists, had to be fought out in the Rome of that day as the relations of public service corporations to consumers in our day.

"The historical results would have been entirely different had not Tiberius Gracchus lacked a just sense of reality, a knowledge of business, and a perception of the dominance of natural law in the sequence of economic phenomena and had he not injected into a grave and complex question of Roman politics a personality of boundless self-confidence and autocratry, equally impatient of opposition and incapable of judicial investigation and consideration."

President Schurman is the guest of Gov. Hughes at the Executive Mansion to-night. Prior to the exercises the Governor gave an informal dinner, at which prominent State officers were present.

LINED UP BY ROOSEVELT.

Suspects Are Expected to Renew Professions of Fealty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A new movement on the White House has resulted from the President's conspiracy charges of last week. It is not much of a movement as yet, but it is expected to develop more ample proportions as the days go by, and unless it does, there is likely to be another pronunciamento from the President's official residence which will help it along. It is a movement to renew allegiance and clear away suspicion. It began with the assertion of Senator Penrose that he was first, last, and all the time for Roosevelt, had never been for any one else, and never would be, and that, moreover, he was coming to the White House right away to assure the President in person of his fidelity and regard.

The White House has not heard anything from Senator Penrose as yet to indicate that there is anything in his announcement more than mere talk. He said in Philadelphia that he was to see the President by appointment. At the White House this afternoon it was said explicitly that no appointment had been made and nothing was known about it.

Next in line to Penrose is Senator Scott, who has been demonstrating his undying affection for the President and his policies by a fine line of assistance to Senator Foraker in his Brownsville campaign. Senator Scott called at the White House this morning and took the oath of allegiance anew. When he came out of the President's office he was as smiling as two baskets of chips, and it was perfectly apparent that the skies were sweetly serene for him. He greeted newspaper men with this cryptogrammatic utterance: "You want to know whether I talked politics with the President? Of course I did, and the President said there are any number of good men who would make good Presidents."

"We are the best of friends," he said. "Couldn't be better. I don't know how that story [that Scott was among the conspirators] originated. It has given me some trouble in West Virginia."

Hence the new oath of allegiance. That "trouble in West Virginia" finds an illuminating commentary in the letters from Republican editors all over the country which THE NEW YORK TIMES is printing.

But just when Penrose was holding up his hand and vowing renewed allegiance to the dictator of his party, one of his leading henchmen, Mayor Reyburn of Philadelphia, was letting the cat out of the bag in an amazing speech to the Young Republicans of the Quaker City. Whatever may have been the inspiration of Mayor Reyburn's outburst of angry criticism of the President, it is at once accepted among the friends of Mr. Roosevelt here as expressing the real feeling of those organization Republicans of Pennsylvania who have been, by implication, included among the conspirators.

There is already speculation in Washington as to where the President's friends will turn for men to head their fight. It has been suggested to-day that Gov. Stuart is the man to handle the campaign. The situation in Pennsylvania when Stuart was nominated was somewhat parallel to that in New York which led to the nomination of Hughes. The organization realized that if it was to win it had to name a clean man, untainted with sympathy for the "interests." It was forced to take Stuart, and the Governor has already made it clear that he intends to fulfill the pledges on which he was elected.

HELD ON HARRIMAN CHARGE.

F. W. Hill, Accused of Publishing Private Letter, Will Be Heard Saturday.

Frank W. Hill, formerly stenographer to E. H. Harriman, who is charged with "willfully and without authority" publishing a private letter, was before Magistrate Wahle in the Tombs Court yesterday morning, but the hearing was adjourned to Saturday. Bail was reduced from $2,500 to one bond of $1,000, which was furnished.

Assistant District Attorney Paul Krotel appeared to prosecute, and ex-Magistrate A. E. Ommen represented Hill. Mr. Ommen said that the defense was ready to go on and "give Mr. Herriman the fight of his life." The court ruled that the prosecution was entitled to ask for adjournment, and after a conference between the lawyers the further hearing was set for Saturday.

When the case is taken up on Saturday it is expected that Mr. Krotel will put Mr. Harriman on the stand to identify the letter.

HER GIFT TO ROOSEVELT.

Will of Mrs. Glover, Who Left Pet Cat to President, Is Filed.

The will of Lulu B. Glover, whose body was found in her apartments, 2,089 Lexington Avenue, and who left to President Roosevelt all of her belongings, including her cat, Snowdrop Low, was filed in the office of the Surrogate yesterday. In the will the woman said:

"I owe to Theodore Roosevelt a debt greater than I can ever pay in this world, and in this way I wish to show that I am not ungrateful. He has been my good angel, who spread his wing of shelter o'er my peace through life, and was my only true friend in trouble. I gladly give my little all to him, and only wish it were millions instead of so small an amount. I hope he will accept it in the spirit I give it and with God's blessing."

POLICY FORGERIES TO GO TO JEROME

Grand Jury May Take Up Whole Subject of Insurance Vote Frauds.

FORTY AFFIDAVITS READY

Some Irregularities Admitted, but Inspectors Said Not to be Responsible.

Manager George Scrugham of the International Policy Holders' Committee followed up his charges of forgery in the elections of the New York Life and Mutual Life Insurance Companies yesterday by announcing that some forty affidavits relating to the alleged forging of ballots in New York City would be presented to District Attorney Jerome within a few days with a request that he take the matter before the Grand Jury. Mr. Scrugham said also that groups of affidavits relating to similar practices in other parts of the country would be given to the proper prosecuting officers with like requests. Policy holders who have contributed the affidavits are said to be ready to aid in pushing the cases.

There are about twenty-five affidavits relating to the Mutual and fifteen relating to the New York Life elections in the bunch that Mr. Scrugham has ready for Mr. Jerome. In many other instances, he said, it has appeared that fictitious names had been signed to forged ballots as witnesses, making detection of an individual impossible, but in the forty cases in question the name of the individual witnessing each ballot that a policy holder had repudiated had been traced.

For the New York Life Board of Inspectors of Elections, Alphonse Koebig said:

"It does not appear in Mr. Scrugham's statement that the inspectors in the New York Life have counted for the administration any of the forged ballots, and, therefore, we need not reply to it. We would like to have it stated, however, that in every one of the cases which he has enumerated, and in a good many other cases of ballots witnessed by Agent Frank of this city, we have already cast out the administration vote on account of the signature."

Vice President George T. Dexter did the talking for the Mutual Life.

"I do not believe that there is a forged ballot on either side," he said, "but it is possible that many mistakes have occurred. I have never seen any of the affidavits of which Mr. Scrugham speaks. The inspectors of election heard argument on both sides, and, after deliberation, they decided that they could not take evidence. They also decided that the first seemingly valid vote received should be counted. It is my understanding that the inspectors have followed this course."

Melvin H. Dahlberg of the Mutual's Board of Inspectors differed somewhat with Mr. Dexter.

"Of course there have been lots of forgeries on both sides," he said—"that is to say, I think it is possible that there have been. But the inspectors have not been called on to pass on any questions affecting the validity of the signatures, and have been obliged to count the first ballot received where there were duplicates."

Mr. Scrugham said yesterday about the comments of Mr. Dexter and Mr. Dahlberg:

"We presented to the Chairman of the inspectors affidavits showing the forgeries, but are not surprised to hear that Mr. Dahlberg did not see them, inasmuch as the inspectors in the Mutual attend the canvass only a few hours a week. We would like to hear, after investigation, Dexter's explanation of the following instance:

"U. S. Grant, a salaried agent of the Mutual Life, sent in hundreds of Peabody ballots from the State of Texas, which are counted as 'good' votes for the administration ticket. Among them is that of D. F. Johnson, General Manager of the Johnson-Hughes Company of Brownswood, Texas. Mr. Johnson voted an official ticket for the United Committee's ticket and Mr. Grant voted for him a Peabody ballot. The Peabody ballot was counted as a 'good' vote for the administration, while the official ballot legally cast by Mr. Johnson was thrown out. We can give Mr. Dexter hundreds of such instances, and believe that he will have ample opportunity to explain them in a short while."

ALBANY, April 8.—Gov. Hughes refused to-day to discuss the insurance election forgery charges. It is understood that Mr. Scrugham has written frequently to Gov. Hughes regarding the election proceedings, and that a communication was received from him last week setting forth in substance the charges made public to-day.

$11,000 RAISED AT CRIMMINS SALE

Large Prices Are Paid for His Famous Collection of Autographs.

HIGHEST BID WAS $2,850

George H. Richmond Gets the Set of Autographs of the Signers of the Declaration.

Some extraordinary prices were paid at the sale yesterday of John D. Crimmins's autograph collection by the Anderson Auction Company in West Twenty-ninth Street. The total realized was $11,000.

The highest price of the sale was $2,850, paid by George H. Richmond, for a set of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, consisting of 36 full autograph letters signed, 11 autograph documents signed, 5 lettera simply signed, 8 documents signed, and 2 signatures, the latter being of Thomas Lynch, Jr., and Burton Gwinnett.

W. R. Hearst obtained for $825 the autograph document signed by Gen. George Washington, three pages, dated "Camp near Dobb's Ferry, July 13, 1781," and giving directions for an attack on New York City by Count Rochambeau's troops and his own forces, a plan which was not carried out, the British General, Clinton, receiving reinforcements, and Washington therefore marching his army to Virginia, where he forced Cornwallis to surrender at Yorktown.

Another rarity was a quarto letter of Daniel Boone, Dec. 13, 1791, which brought $120. There was sold for $230 a three-page letter, not written, but signed by Thomas Jefferson, dated Monticello, Aug. 25, 1814, and giving Jefferson's ideas on slavery: "Yet the hour of emancipation is advancing in the march of time. It will come, and whether brought on by the generous energy of our own minds or by the bloody process of St. Domingo • • • is a leaf of our history not yet turned over."

A document signed by Lord Cardigan, commander of the British Light Brigade at Balaklava, giving an account of its famous charge, was bought by George H. Richmond for $55.

Three pages and a half of the original MS. of Faust in Goethe's autograph was purchased by George D. Smith for $630. An original MS. poem of Dr. Samuel Johnson to "Delia" was bought by the same bidder for $50.

Other items and the prices paid were as follows:

A letter of John Quincy Adams, Jan. 20, 1842, commenting on the war between Great Britain and China, $21.

A two-page letter of Patrick Henry, written as Governor of Virginia to Gov. Edward Telfair of Georgia, Richmond, Dec. 17, 1784, $25.

A three-page letter in English by Lafayette to Thomas Jefferson, then Governor of Virginia, in regard to the closing campaign of the Revolution, $100.

A two-page letter of Dolly Madison, wife of President Madison, Washington, March 15, 1838, $12.

A three-page letter of President James Monroe, written while he was Minister to France, Paris, Jan. 27, 1786, $27.50.

A letter of William Penn, London, May 25, 1684, written immediately after his return from Pennsylvania to England, $160.

A document signed by Isaac De Riemer, twenty-fourth Mayor of New York, dated Nov. 9, 1709, $17.

A three-page ms letter of Robert Fulton, New York, Oct. 25, 1813, relative to the building of two of his famous boats, $75.

A folio letter of Samuel Adams, Boston, Nov. 8, 1781, declining a seat in Congress on account of ill health, $24, bought by George H. Richmond.

A two-page ms letter of Henry Clay, Jan. 24, 1837, $19.50.

A two-page quarto letter of Benjamin Franklin, London, July 23,1762, $72.50, bought by George H. Richmond.

A letter of Gen. U. S. Grant to Gen. W. T. Sherman, Sept. 10, 1865, $26, bought by James F. Drake.

A war letter of Abraham Lincoln, Executive Mansion, May 27, 1861, to Gen. Thomas, $155, bought by Frederick W. Morris.

A two-page letter of Gen. Richard Montgomery, dated Holland House, before Quebec, Dec., 1775, to Gen. Sir Guy Carleton, written just before the battle of Abraham's Heights, in which Montgomery was killed, and calling on Carleton to surrender and thus save the property and lives of "the innocent people" of the city, $750, bought by George H. Richmond.

A document signed by Jacob Leisler, Governor of New York, and dated Sept. 14, 1083, $68; bought by Dodd, Mead & Co.

A document signed by Philip Slonghter, Governor of New York, and dated May 12, 1691, $40.

A document signed by Benjamin Fletcher, Governor of New York, and dated April 19, 1693, $75; bought by Dodd, Mead & Co.

A document signed by Thomas Willett, the first Mayor of New York, and dated Dec. 29, 1676, $45; bought by Dodd, Mead & Co.

HELD AT ELLIS ISLAND.

Well-Known Conductor Is an Invalid and Has Little Money.

Cavallere Emilio Rivela, bandmaster and composer, well known in this country, and his wife, a pretty American girl, are in the detention room at the immigration station on Ellis Island. They arrived there yesterday on the steamship Algeria from Naples. The man is suffering from paralysis of the right side, and his wife, who is an American citizen and cannot be held, will not leave him.

"My place is at my husband's side," she said to the Inspectors who ordered the Cavallere to be held.

The pathetic feature of the story is that this musician, after being knighted by the King of Italy and after having played before thousands in this country, is held because he and his wife have but $18 between them. The officials do not consider this amount sufficient to take them to California, where his wife's relatives live, and so he is held up at the door of the country in which he won his wife and in which he has swung his baton thousands of times.

The Cavallere, who is a handsome man, was knighted in 1898 by his King. His band was entered in the competition at the great musical festival at Turin with 150 other bands. The bandmaster conducted, and, besides three prizes for the work of his players, he received the honor of knighthood.

Commissioner Watchorn refused to discuss the case yesterday on the ground that it was "department business."

SADDLE HORSES SOLD WELL.

Winalo, for $2,050, Joined Miss Bedford's Show Stable.

A singularly ambitious auction sale of Kentucky saddle horses drew a large attendance of horse-show exhibitors and riding and driving persons to the Tichenor-Grand Company's building last night. The horses offered were those of the special consignment by S. T. Harbison & Co. of Lexington, Ky., which were shipped from Lexington by fast special horse train last Thursday, and have been on exhibition since their arrival at the Tichenor-Grand Stable. The consignment aroused great intereat, as the horses, carefully selected and trained, included many new candidates for show-ring honors in the exhibition season of the East, which already has opened. With that destiny planned for them, many of tha horses, both saddlera and combination animals, went into the saiss ring last night with engagements already made in horse shows for which entries have closed.

Tha first horse catalogued gave the sale a lively opening and brought ths nighest price of the night. This was $2,050, paid by E. T. Bedford for the registered saddle horse Winalot, dark bay or brown gelding, 5 years old, 15.3 hands. Winalot will at once join the select staole of show horses exhibitsd at the big Eastern exhibitions by Miss Emily Bedford.

Another star of the sals was the only horss of his type catalogusd, the thoroughbred Compradon, which attracted keen attention from the tidling crowd before he went to the bid of $675 by E. L. Elridge. The bidding was faster and higher for the saddle-bred and combination horses, and the best prices of the night included $940, paid by Mr. Porter for the heavyweight horse Sampson Rock; $700, paid by E. H. Weatherbee for another high weight carrying horse, Sir Nigel; $750 paid by Mr. Weatherbee for Brass Band, and $800, paid by Percy R. Grest of New Haven, for the fine big gray horsa David Grey.

The brown gelding Rideabit won an outburst of applause when sent out to show his gentleness and good manners. He cantered, bridleless, about the ring, and at his rider's command stopped just before the auctioneer's rostrum for the final bids. Rideabit went to E. F. Whitney for $625.

CORONA WILL NOT RACE.

Famous Schooner After Years of Service Will Lie Idle This Year.

For the first time in fourteen years the famous yacht Corona will not be in condition to race the coming season. Since she was first designed as a candidate to defend the America's Cup against the challenger, Valkyrie II., in 1893, she has been constantly a competitor in the leading races of the season. As the Colonia she competed against the Vigilant for the honor of defending the trophy, and many thought her as able as the cutter finally selected to uphold American honor.

In 1896 she was turned over to Cary Smith and altered to a schooner rig, and raced successfully in the schooner classes. Her old rival Vigilant was altered to a yawl rig in 1901, and one of the most interesting races of the season last year was furnished by these two old cup yachts, when they started from Greenwich and covered the seventy-mile course to New London, finishing under full spread of canvas one second apart—thirteen years after their creation.

Corona was the top of the heap in the schooner classes in 1904, and fought out the titular honors until the very end of the season in 1905 with F. F. Brewster's Elmina, but she was outbuilt and put out of racing when J. Roger Maxwell's Queen appeared. Arthur F. Luke, her owner, is going abroad this year, and if he can sell Corona, an ideal cruiser, he will build a 90-foot schooner to contend against Queen.

SEAWANHAKA'S RACING PLANS

Many Special Events Scheduled to Replace Yacht Club's Cruise.

The Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club is preparing for an elaborate series of special races to take the place of the cruise held last year in conjunction with the Atlantic Yacht Club and the Corinthian Yacht Club of Philadelphia. The first will be a club race for 27-footers, New York 30-footers, and the Seawanhaka 15-footers for the Robert Centre Memorial Cup. The Leland-Corinthian Challenge Cup will be sailed for in connection with the annual regatta on June 22 by the 27-footers. The Blair Cup for 22-footers will be raced for on July 30. A long-distance race for 27-footers and under will be sailed on Aug. 3 from Oyster Bay to Bartlett's Reef Lightship, off Morris Cove, and return. A special cup for sloops of over 33-foot rating will be contested for on Aug. 30, the day before the Fall regatta, all the boats sailing in one class. On the same day the 27-footers and the New York 30-footers will race for the Alfred Roosevelt Memorial.

Two special series of races for the 15-footers will be sailed on June 1, 8, 15 and 29, and July 6 and 13, for one cup, and on Aug. 3, 10, 17 and 24, and Sept. 7, 14, and 21 for another. A woman's race for cups given by Rear Commodore Hastings will be held for the 15-footers on July 27.

The three big regattas are fixed for June 21, Spring cups; June 22, annual cups, and Aug. 31, Autumn cups.

LASKER STILL CHAMPION.

Defeats Marshall in Final Chess Game for World's Honors.

The fifteenth and what proved to be the deciding game for the world's championship at chess was finished at the Everett House yesterday afternoon, and, as was generally expected, Dr. Lasker defeated Frank J. Marshall after thirty-seven moves. Lasker thus retains his title as champion by winning eight games, losing none, while seven were drawn.

Tournament for Princeton Golfers.

In addition to the three big golf tournaments that will open the metropolitan season, beginning with Garden City on April 18, the Princeton Golf Club applied last week for dates for an early event, and Secretary Leighton Calkins has assigned May 9, 10, and 11 for the Princeton open tournament.

An eighteen-hole qualifying round will be the feature of the first day's play in the Garden City event, which will occupy three days. The first set of sixteen will qualify for the Garden City Cup and the second sixteen for the President's Cup, while a trophy known as the Hempstead Cup will be offered for play by the defeated eight in the first set. The annual Lakewood tournament will follow Garden City, and then will come the three-day contest at Atlantic City May 2, 3, and 4. The qualifying round in this tournament will be thirty-six holes, and cups have been offered for the large number of six sets of sixteen.

Capt. Lovelace Talks on Balloons.

Capt. T. T. Lovelace, who did not sail as commander of Ralph Brandreth's yawl Taormina on its trip around the world, gava an illustrated lecture last evening before the members of the Aero Club of America at 12 East Forty-second Street on his balloon experiences in Jamaica last month. Capt. Lovelace visited Kingston shortly after the earthquake and took a number of pictures from the balloon over the stricken city, and these he showed for the first time since returning to New York.

It was announced that Alan R. Hawley, who was unable on account of bad weather and a snowstorm from making his proposed ascension at Pittsfield, would go up in Philadelphia next Saturday with A. N. Chandler, President of the Aero Club of that city.

N. Y. Y. C. Gets Model of Thistle.

George L. Watson has just shipped to America the newly completed model of the America's Cup challenger Thistle, to be placed in the collection of the New York Yacht Club, including all tha challengers and defenders of the cup. It is said to be an even finar bit of model work than was done on the three Shamrocks, which were completed at the cost of $25,000 for Sir Thomas Lipton for presentation to the club. Tha Thistle was tha cuttar which was built by the Clyde syndicate and sent to this country in 1887 to race against the Volunteer. She contested two races off Sandy Hook, one over the New York Yacht Club course, the other over a leeward and windward course, and was defeated in both. The model is presented to the club by a former flag officer.

MILLER RETURNS BUT HAS POOR DAY

COBMOSA'S CLOSE FINISH

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Two favorites, three second choices, and an outsider were winners at Benning to-day. Those who bet on the horses had the first heavy track of the meeting to reckon with, the rains of Saturday night and Sunday making the going sloppy. The bright sunshine of the early afternoon had a good effect on the attendance, a larger crowd than on Saturday being on hand.

Jockey Miller, who had been suspended by the Stewards for a week, made his reappearance in the saddle, and, though he had mounts in four races, he got only one of them home in front. That Miller is just as popular as ever was shown when he rode to the post in the second, that being his first race of the afternoon. He received a hearty greeting by tha crowd in the stand, but his mount, Awless, was unplaced at the wire.

There was only one finish of the afternoon that was close enough to arouss enthusiasm. This was ths fifth, in which Cohmosa squeezed bome a head in front of Delphie. Tha latter was the best horss and with good handling could hardly have lost. McDaniel, on Cobmosa, crowded Delphie all through the last sixteenth, and the mare was in close quarters right at the wire.

The third race caused a great deal of comment, because of the startling improvement shown by the winnar, Lord Boanerges. Last Wednesday Boanerges was unplaced in a race in which he waa a strong favorite. He showed little speed on that occasion, but to-day he had his field beaten from the first jump, and was only romping in front at the finish. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Selling; for 3-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Chippewa, 95 pounds, (McCarty,) 7 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Wabash Queen, 87, (Goldstein,) 9 to 5 and 2 to 5, second; Jack McKeon, 112, (Mountain,) 7 to 5, third. Time—1.31 4-5. Tom Lawson, Edwin H., and Jupiter also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Two-year-olds; four furlongs, old course. Beckon, 107 pounds, (J. Johnson,) 18 to 5 and 7 to 5 won; Merry Man, 107, (Radtke,) 12 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Lonz Hall, 107, (L. Smith,) 12 to 1, third. Time 0.51 4-5. Gossoon, Luzetta, Awless, and John Lee also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course. Lord Boanerges, 104 pounds, (Mountain,) 3 to 1 and even, won; Workmaid, 99, (McDaniel,) 4 to 1 and 6 to 5, second; Anna May, 101, (Miller,) 9 to 2, third. Time—1.16 2-5. Barkeley, Golf Ball, and Dog Rose also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Selling, for fillies and mares three years old and upward; five furlongs, Columbia course. Automobile Notes of Interest.

Herbert H. Lytle, who drove the Pope-Toledo car in the elimination trials for the last Vanderbilt Cup race, has been making some fast touring car runs around New York recently with the new 50 horse power Pope-Toledo car. He made a fast run to Huntington last week, and on the return trip covered the twenty miles to the Astoria Ferry in 20 minutes, going up Manhasset Hill by way of Lakeville and through Bayside and Flushing.

Traffic Manager Marvin of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers has issued a warning to the members of the association regarding the shipment of automobiles. Every industry has felt the growing need of freight facilities, but none greater than the automobile trade. With the increasing shipments of automobiles coming on and the decreasing number of available freight cars, a situation is immediate that may result disastrously to soma shippers. He strongly advises loading as many automobiles as possible in each freight car.

Harlem Handicap Billiard Tourney.

The Harlem amateur handicap 14.2 balk line billiard tournament began last night at Morningstar's Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, when three games were decided. C. A. Coleman (75) defeated T. A. Curtis (75) by the score of 75 to 73. Coleman ran out his string in twenty-five innings with an average of 3, his opponent averaging 2 23-25. In the second contest W. H. Hale (125) won from F. M. Bauer (125) by the narrow margin of one point, the final score being 125 to 124. J. Viertel captured the third game from R. W. Irving by the totals of 100 to 93. Both mea were handicapped at 100 points.

Clubs to Suffer for Illegal Boxing.

BOSTON, April 8.—In the Massachusetts House to-day a Committee on Legal Affairs reported a bill relating to boxing, based on the annual report of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. It provides that whenever any one is convicted of illegally participating in, or promoting a public boxing or sparring match for any remuneration or consideration, the Secretary of State shall have authority to revoke the license of the organization at which the exhibition takes place.

Snowstorm Stops Balloon Flight.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 8.—A snowstorm to-day caused the abandonment of the balloon ascension planned to be made from here today by Alan R. Hawley and Leo Stevens. The men left for New York to-day, after stating that the next ascension from here probably would be made in about two weeks.

Auto Engineers to Discuss Tires.

Several topics of importance to all users of automobiles will be discussed at the meeting next Friday of the mechanical branch of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers. Among these will be self starting devices, standardization of tires and rims, and the use of denatured alcohol as fuel.

Guided by Reason

rather than rule, we are not hampering the progress of better ideas by the limitations of past day methods. Perfection is our ulterior goal, and these $25 overcoats demonstrate how near we have come to it.

The series includes three-quarter models, following the form in indefinite lines, and also the new loose-back overcoats, fashioned of a high order of fabrics.

The Value and Importance of Ethical Remedies.

Remedies which physicians sanction for family use, as they act most beneficially and are gentle yet prompt in effect, and called ethical, because they are of Known Excellence and Quality and of Known Component Parts.

To gain the full confidence of the Well-Informed of the world and the approval of the most eminent physicians, it is essential that the component parts be known to and approved by them, and, therefore, the California Fig Syrup Company has published for many years past in its advertisements and upon every package a full statement thereof. The perfect purity and uniformity of product which they demand in a laxative remedy of an ethical character are assured by the California Fig Syrup Company's original method of manufacture, known to the Company only.

There are other ethical remedies approved by physicians, but the product of the California Fig Syrup Company possesses the advantage over all other family laxatives that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts, without disturbing the natural functions or any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of Syrup of Figs, and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtlessly it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs; and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for Syrup of Figs, or by the full name, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, and the same heretofore known by the name, Syrup of Figs, which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

RADICALS AND CONSERVATIVES.

If there is a conservative wing in the Democratic Party when the next National campaign is here it will not manage the campaign.—WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

If the Western radical wing of the Democratic Party controls the campaign it will not elect the candidate. Assuming that radicalism is what the people want, they would give their suffrages to a far greater, much more distinguished, and in many ways more radical radical than Mr. BRYAN. The Nebraska aspirant has hopes for 1908, but there are obstacles in his path. The people have lost interest in him, in his utterances, in his invention and discovery of issues. He is in eclipse. A larger figure fills the stage.

Even if the conservative wing and the radical wing of the Democracy should loyally join forces the party would probably fall against radicalism triumphant and in the saddle. We speak, of course, of conditions as they are now—as they have been so strikingly pictured forth in our dispatches from Republican editors bringing almost universally the report that Mr. ROOSEVELT is stronger with the people than ever, was never so popular as now. Next year may see all this changed. Mr. WATTERSON, in the exceedingly interesting interview which our Paris correspondent cabled to THE TIMES of Sunday thinks that Mr. ROOSEVELT'S quarrel with the "money power" involving the combustion of "the elements upon which the Republican leaders have hitherto relied for their equipment and resources" would create a great opportunity for the Democrats "if they were prepared to take advantage of it." Certainly they are not prepared—anybody can see that. Whether the opportunity exists at all is disputable.

For a generation the Republican Party has prospered through the alliance of power with pelf. It has "fried the fat" or has accepted contributions of "fat" from powerful interests that expected to receive, and formerly did receive, a satisfactory equivalent for their money. THE TIMES said this in 1904, and was, of course, promptly called a liar for saying it. It has now been proved that the managers of the Republican campaign in that year, while inspiring the people with the belief that their success would guarantee a correction of the abuses of wealth and privilege, were not above accepting and even asking very large contributions from the "interests." Power has prospered amazingly, but pelf has got its fingers burned. In what Mr. WATTERSON calls this process of combustion it now appears that the strong but certainly not sacred tie that bound the friere to ths fried has been sundered.

But does that create a "great opportunity" for the Democratic Party? Anybody can see that it does not. In place of the tariff-protected interests and the corporation interests that have so long contributed to the support of the Republican Party, Mr. ROOSEVELT has won the loyal, enthusaistic, and perfectly undiscriminating support of more legal voters than ever before gave their support to anybody in this Republic. The votes his personality has won for him are an immeasurably surer reliance than the money the manufacturers and the corporations used to contribute. He can get on very well without their help. It is true, as Mr. WATTERSON remarks, that a crusade against property will hurt not only the owners of the property, "but every man." Already men of sober minds, of foresight, of reasoned judgment draw back apprehensive of the disasters Mr. ROOSEVELT'S radicalism invites. But the more radical he is the better the people appear to like him. They are captivated by his "blind and miscellaneous vehemence." When he bluntly tells those in controversy with him that they are falsifiers he gets new rounds of applause. The people who like him like that, too. Vigorous language always pleases the crowd. But it happens that the crowd immensely outnumbers the soberminded and forethoughtful remnant who look with grave misgiving to the future. The Democrats would be able to seize their "opportunity" only if they were united and under conservative leadership, and if they could attract to their cause a sufficient number of conservative Republicans to offset the gain Mr. ROOSEVELT has undoubtedly made from their ranks. In such matters measurement is impossible, but any man who observes the signs of the times can judge for himself. It is very doubtful if there is in the whole country enough intelligent conservatism to prevail over the forces which the exceedingly skillful politician in the White House—and in addition to being a politician he is a genius in his command of the art of appeal to the people—has brought about him and so far firmly held.

Mr. WATTERSON takes the President at his word and does not think that he will seek the nomination for himself next year. Moreover, he says, "his nomination in my judgment would mean his defeat. It would not only precipitate an overshadowing issue, but so reinforce the Democrats by Republican defections as to insure the election of Mr. BRYAN." We are not of that opinion. The "overshadowing issue" means, of course, the supposed opposition to a third term, with doubtless some admixture of the imperialism idea of which so much was made when a third term for Gen. GRANT was urged in 1880. So far from overshadowing anything, we imagine this issue would be itself a shadow. Tradition easily maintains itself until it is challenged by a master of men; then the men follow the master and throw tradition to the dogs. That Mr. BRYAN would be more than a match for Mr. ROOSEVELT in a contest for the suffrages of the American people we are so far from believing that we should consider the nomination of Mr. BRYAN by the Democrats next year as puerile and fatuous.

We have spoken of the instability of the third term tradition. There is another tradition long respected, of which the vitality has completely gone out. We mean the tradition that candidates for the Presidency must be chosen from the Northern States. The events from which that tradition took its rise are now viewed with the calmness that comes of the historical perspective. The tradition is without substance, there is no justification for its continued observance. If the Democratic Party is wise, if it is disposed to turn its face to the future, it will look to the South for its candidate in 1908.

PEACE PILGRIMS.

Mr. W. T. STEAD is not willing that the Peace Conference to be held here preliminary to The Hague Conference shall adjourn without accomplishing anything. Accordingly he has proposed in Plymouth Church a new departure. Mr. STEAD has made quite a number of new departures in his time, though we do not recall that his arrival has been often reported. And, frankly, the augury of his latest new departure is not favorable. His plan is to start a delegation of eminent Americans to proceed hence to London, there to be joined by a delegation of eminent Britons, then to attract like delegations of Scandinavians, Frenchmen, Germans, Italians, and Spaniards, and finally arrive at The Hague not less than a hundred strong bearing Mr. STEAD'S ultimata.

That such a delegation would have a morally impressive appearance is not to be doubted. But we may doubt whether it would effect anything practical. The notion proceeds from the assumption that the world is governed by public opinion. That is true only of a small part of the world. It is true of the United States. It is true of the United Kingdom. It is true of France, but it were rash to assert that the public opinion of France is in favor of submitting the national interests to any outside arbitrament whatever. In fact, nowhere have Sir HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN'S platonics in favor of disarmament been received with less sympathy than in France.

The nations outside the circle of the great military Powers are not within that circle esteemed to be entitled to a voice in the matter. It is the nations within that circle, the nations which consituted the late Dreibund and the late Zweibund, which it is at once most desirable and most difficult to persuade to beat their spears into pruning hooks. Three of these have already reserved their right to "stand pat" on the original programme for The Hague Conference, and to abstain from discussing any topics not embraced therein. It is permitted us to doubt that they would recede from that position even when confronted by one hundred of the most eminent peacelovers of the world, and even were these peacelovers equipped, as Mr. STEAD seeme to propose, with some kind of credentials from their respective Governments. Such credentials they would probably find great difficulty in obtaining.

PENNSYLVANIA TRAINWRECKERS.

A Pennsylvania Railway trainwrecker was seen at work yesterday, and if he and his accomplices keep at work sooner or later they will meet their deserts. Poisoning has been reckoned generally the most detestable form of murder, because of its incompatibility with any theory of pity, and because of its cowardice. Trainwrecking is as bad as poisoning in these respects, and worse in some others. Occasionally families are poisoned, but never scores and hundreds. Poisoners have a grievance against those whom they kill, but trainwreckers have none. Not even a trainwrecker could wish to kill those he had never seen and can have no grievance against. It is his pitilessness toward the innocent which ought to give him short shrift when he gets into court.

The skill with which the wreckers work betrays both their trade and their motive. Sometimes they saw the track apart, sometimes they remove bolts and displace rails, but in either case they so manage as not to disturb the electrical connections which would prevent the accomplishment of their object. They are indicated to be railway men, and it would seem that their object must be to injure the railways by destroying their property and causing a reign of terror which should reduce their passenger traffic. Adjectives and threats are wasted in denouncing such crimes, even if they were equal to the subject. It would be a rightful pleasure to learn of a few hangings if the law permits, as it does in some States. The very least good news ought to be long terms of imprisonment.

ALTOGETHER AMUSING.

The dispatches which we printed yesterday from London and Berlin attest what a change has come over the financial situation, or rather over foreign appreciation of the situation. Only a few months or even weeks ago we were so deep in their books that we could scarcely hope to pay our debts. Now the shoe is on the other foot, and they can scarcely pay their debts to us. Then they declared that if we did not stop our excessive speculation, they would discipline us by calling in their credits, and by sacrificing our stocks and requiring us to pay for them in gold. But now it appears that they think we have both the stocks and the money. They have not the stocks to sell, and their pious wish is that we will leave them alone until they restore their bank reserves. Berlin's strained money market is due to the condition of the Reichsbank, which was "never before so unfavorable." London's comment, recently so portentous that we trembled, is now fairly plaintive. It dreads an outburst of purchases of American shares, against which the public was so clearly warned, and it hopes that New York will "at least leave our bullion market alone." What else have we been doing? Did we not long refrain from taking gold, and when the other day we took a little, did we not sell it back—at a profit—because London really needed it so badly?

When it was our cue we listened with all humility to foreign counsels over our weaknesses and faults, and even yet we take no position of condescension. But we can tell our foreign friends what we did in a similar unhappy experience of our own. We neither begged nor threatened nor preached. We gritted our teeth and earned and saved and sold what we had at prices which brought the gold we needed. It is not discipline of the United States which will save the foreign situation. If they want to save their gold let them offer us something we would rather have at prices that will move the goods. The discount on their merchandise must be proportioned to their own estimate of the premium upon the gold they want. From Paris there comes another note in our message. It was France, it will be remembered, which bought our securities when the other centres were threatening to throw what they had back on our hands. France is now reaping its profit, "causing a general rise under the lead of French rentes." We like to see all our foreign friends prosper, and there is something exceptionally pleasing in the good fortune of those who had the confidence in us which others lacked.

A NEIGHBOR'S PROGRESS.

Under our friendly urging The Tribune now explicitly admits that the Dingley tariff has not stimulated our exports to a total which might be expected from our wealth or population, and we do not understand it to contend that our exports of manufactures—even counting copper and petroleum and other similar goods as manufactures—reach a percentage of our total exports comparable with that of other nations whose manufacturee are really things made by hand. Not for a moment would we contend with The Tribune's explanations of these facts, no more indeed than The Tribune contends with the facts themselves. The facts, we take it, are more important than the argumente, and the facts are that as a stimulator of exports the Dingley tariff ranks below many other factors in our foreign trade.

If it is not pushing the subject beyond our neighbor's indulgence, we would like to learn from it why at this late day it takes any comfort in the growth of foreign trade for whatever reason, and if foreign trade is desirable, why it does not support such a change in the Dingley tariff as shall allow more goods to come in. We fear that our neighbor will reply that foreign goods are coming in satisfactorily, even though our imports, like our exports, are not proportioned to our numbers or wealth. Such a limited import movement accords better with the theory of compulsory exclusion than with our view of what is a satisfactory state of foreign trade. As it seeme to us, a tariff which stimulates imports when they are dear, and excludes them when they are cheap, is not in the interest of consumers as much as of trust producers. In times of prosperity, when money is plenty, we pay whatever price, and the foreigners are able to look over the tariff wall, but when money is scarce, and dear goods are a burden, then the trusts have the domestic market delivered over to their tender mercies. Is this also to The Tribune's liking? We are happy that we agree so well on the facts, and only regret our inability to approve of the arguments by which our neighbor so ably defends its welcome leniency toward foreign trade, which, we fear, may cause it trouble with those unaccustomed to changing points of view.

THE SIMPLE SPELLERS.

Birds in their little nests agree. But simple spellers in the little nest provided for them by Mr. CARNEGIE find themselves unable to do so. How painful to read that the Laodiceans of the effete East among the reformers excite by their timidity and time-serving the disgust of the bolder reformers of the untrammeled West! Mr. HENRY HOLT has introduced into the Simplified Spelling Board a list of 3,000 words which he desired the simple spellers to pledge themselves to spell simply, including, doubtless, the 300 which constitute the Thermopylae of "the reform." To the bigoted orthographical reactionary who spells as he has been taught and accustomed to spell an additional twenty-seven hundred words seeme a fairly large order. But not so to the radicals of the West. They enjoyed on this occasion the representation of Mr. VAILE of the Mississippi Valley, who demanded representation for Chicago, and who also, rejecting the mawkish mildness of Mr. HOLT, demanded a "key alphabet."

Mr. VAILE is a man of principle, such as one is always glad to meet and hail. Without doubt a "key alphabet" might be constructed which would unlock the secret of simple spelling, and which need by no means be as voluminous as the Chinese syllabary in order to indicate the pronunciation or mispronunciation preferred by the person who employed it. It would not, it is true, tend to uniformity. It was once remarked of a Western statesman that nobody could tell whether he spelled "chimera" or "chimaera," since he pronounced it "shimmyra." And that reformer was on impregnable ground who triumphantly inquired if k-a-w-p-h-y did not spell coffee, what it did spell.

For ourselves we are rather moved to sympathize with the Middle Western view. A principle is always a good thing to have as the basis of a reform. The Laodiceans seem to have no principle. If one abandons, in succession, phonetics, usage, and etymology there is no reason why he should not maintain the right of every American citizen to spell as he pleases, subject only to the great injunction to omit superfluous letters. It is true that thereby he subjects himself "in the present state of the art" to the imputation of not knowing how to spell. But the reformers might remedy that defect by proclaiming that, even as it is ordained that no presumption of guilt shall proceed from the failure of a culprit to take the stand, so no presumption of ignorance shall proceed from anybody's failure to spell like other people. As in certain cases the common law of England provided that for certain crimes the criminal who did know how to spell should receive no "benefit of his clergy," so the simplifiers might protest that the modern who will not or who can not spell should take no detriment by his heterography, and that it should be presumed that he misspelled not from ignorance, but from "pure cussedness." And, by the way, the argument of time-saving by simplification has become grotesque as applied to the leading simplifiers. There is not one of them who has not wasted more time in commending the reform than he would save by omitting superfluous letters from the cradle to the grave.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Flashlight on the World.

No reader of last Sunday's TIMES could have failed to notice that it presented a picture of the whole world at once larger and more detailed than we have been accustomed to give—a picture that covered practically every field of human activity and interest. A special effort had been made, or, rather, a special effort had been begun, to supplement what may be called the regular news of the day, obtained in the regular way from the established news-gathering associations, by means of our own correspondents and representatives, and the results were, we think, a highly satisfactory addition of the human and personal element.

This was particularly obvious in our cable dispatches from the European capitals, where the news is apt to be "covered," to use journalistic jargon, in a manner not quite American in its estimate of the relation between interest and importance. What we mean was well illustrated by the dispatch, which revealed a new effort to involve President ROOSEVELT, through his sister, in the—well, the intrigues, to secure another "red cap" for the United States. It was "inside information" that we were able to present on this very curious subject, and it was far from trivial, even if it did partake in some degree of the nature of gossip. Of like quality was the first extended revelation of the strange comedy played by M. PIOU, with M. CLEMENCEAU as a till now unconscious deuteragonist.

And there was nothing gossipy about the news that English statesmen see, or think they see—in either case, it is news and a fact—a tendency on the part of Canada to cut adrift from the mother country and in one way or another tie up with its nearest neighbor. It remains to be seen what Canada herself will say as to this, though we already know what Ottawa will say about it. Ottawa, however, is not Canada, nor is the Governor General the Government of Canada, as we have had occasion to remark several times before. The interview from Paris with HENRY WATTERSON was a characteristic breeze of good humor and good sense, blowing over the heated brows of those who are worrying at the Harriman-Roosevelt episode. At any rate, it distributed praise and blame with a fine impartiality. Another dispatch threw new light on Russian politics and politicians. Of a different kind were the dispatches about the perils of Roentgen rays and the experiments of Prof. CALMETTE with a vaccine to give immunity from tubsrculosis. The latter, alas! didn't tell why he and other scientific gentlemen will misuse the word "vaccine" as they do.

But to go through the whole list would be, if not impossible, at least a task too big to be performed here, where the intention is to call attention to a past achievement only as an indication of what is to come when our new service is in full working order.

Sufferings of a "Scientist."

A recent decision by the Texas Court of Civil Appeals—Fort Worth Railway vs. TRAVIS, 99 Southwestern Reporter, 1,141, to be very definite and formal, as becomes a solemn and important matter—reveals a follower of Mrs. EDDY held unwillingly to consistency, and that is a spectacle that always fills us with a deep delight.

"TRAVIS," it seems is a woman who, despite often announced disbelief in the possibility of pain, brought a suit for damages in compeneation for "the physical and mental suffering" that came to her after and because she had been expelled from a car in which she wanted to be a passenger. In the trial court the counsel of the railway company brought forward the fact that the plaintiff was a "Christian Scientist," and that therefore she could not be sincere in claiming that expulsion from the car had had unpleasant consequences at the time or afterward, but the Judge, who evidently lacked the sense of humor, would not listen to the ingenious theory thus presented, and the jury was equally inappreciative, for it brought in a verdict against the defendant corporation.

The higher court, however, is of another mind. It declares that the plaintiff's beliefs should have been put in evidence and that an error was made in excluding proof of them. "If," it says, "she had such control of her feelings, or thought she had, as to render her insensible to pain, when she willed to be, we see no reason why that circumstance should not have been considered by the jury in determining the extent of her suffering and the compensation to be made on account of it."

The good friend who called our attention to this highly interesting case, in commenting on it says: "The ruling seems to be good law as well as sound sense, and such of 'Mother's' followers as happen to come into intimate relations with railroad wrecks and other similar 'errors' may have to indulge in some little inconsistency in order to recover damages." They will, indeed, but when did a "Christian Scientist" ever hesitate to be inconsistent when it came to a matter of money? That is never an "error" for them, and few methods of obtaining it do they ever hold to be erroneous.

Much Ado About—a Little.

Stern, indeed, must be the sense of duty possessed by Lieut. Col. ROBERT L. HOWZE, Commandant of Cadets at West Point, else would he not have gone to the desperate length of depriving of their borrowed overcoats the young women who gathered on that bleak plain to watch dress parade Sunday afternoon.

Of course, their wearing of these garments was a technical violation of the law that the use of the United States uniform is restricted to the members of its army and navy, but the infraction was minute, and without any possible danger visible to eyes not peculiarly sharp. Naturally enough, the girls scolded and the cadets raged. If the one had cried and the others had sworn it would not have been surprising.

UNITED COPPER CO. DENIAL.

Declares That Net Earnings Have More Than Doubled Dividends Paid.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the article in your yesterday's issue based upon the alleged statements of a discharged employe which in effect charged this company with paying dividends in excess of earnings, we wish to state for your information (although you have not seen fit to ask for such information before printing the libelous article referred to) that the net earnings of the United Copper Company have, since its incorporation in May, 1902, exceeded the sum of $11,718,793.02, and the dividends paid to date amount to only $5,737,500.

Considering these facts, which will be proven in court, in due season, we request you to publish this letter as prominently in your paper as the article objected to was published, together with a retraction of the libelous statements made.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS REPLY.

A Committee Affirms the Merit of the Instruction and the Instructors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This letter, drafted by a committee appointed by the students of all the classes of the New York Evening High School for Men is the expression of the students' opinion of Mr. Handley's letter, and more especially of your editorial comment upon that letter.

The students of this evening high school wish first to indorse in full Mr. Mitchell's capable and convincing reply to Mr. Handley. Further, the students wish to state emphatically the fact that the instructors of this school, far from being men of the type characterized by Mr. Handley, are earnest in their efforts to impart instruction and interested in their students even beyond reasonable expectations.

Mr. Handley's mere assertion of incompetence, time-serving, and indifference on the part of these teachers does an honorable body of men a gross injustice. Moreover, when sanctioned by the editorial agreement of THE TIMES, his assertion, by reflecting upon the worth of the instruction given, and thereby questioning the value of the certificate granted by the above institution, deprives of the just reward of their efforts those students who, after obtaining certificates through earnest effort and long-continued application, wish to present these as evidence of intellectual qualification.

The Times's News by Cable.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to congratulate you on the very wonderful collection of foreign news submitted to the readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES in the Sunday edition of yesterday. You seem to have gleaned the uppermost thoughts of men in all spheres of European action, and the result is one which is unequaled in the history of modern journalism.

A Question for Statisticians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it fair, in a "discussion of the foreign trade of various countries in proportion to population and wealth," to include the trade between the various States of Europe in their respective statistics of foreign trade, and to exclude from the same classification the trade between the various States of the United States?

An Ill-Chosen Word.

From The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"We must take in sail," said the conservative railway President, firmly.

"Please don't say it that way," commented a Director. "We have abundance of water, but we don't want people to think we are running this concern on wind."

SPIRIDOVITCH'S MISSION.

The Russian General Explains the Purpose of His Visit to America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Stephen Bonsal, the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES at St. Petersburg, in a cable dispatch printed in your paper on Sunday under the heading "Spiridovitch's Mission," informs the public that he bade inquiries at the Russian Foreign Office whether it was true that Gen. Spiridovitch was sent to America to try to form a Russian-American alliance against Japen. The answer was in the negative.

I am thankful to Mr. Bonsal and to the Russian Foreign Office for so prompt and authoritative a denial of a false report which might diminish my popularity among Slavic organizations which never approved Russia's policy in the Far East, trying always to keep Russia's attention on the Near East.

I am a Major General attached to the Admiralty, (a military organization of the Russian Navy,) temporarily retired since my election to the Presidency of the Slavic organizations. In that last capacity only I am here, for the following reasons:

1. To present on behalf of the Slavic societies a cup to the President as an expression of the gratitude of Slavic nations for his initiative in terminating the Russo-Japanese war, which enabled Russia to resume her traditional policy of protecting the Slavs in Europe. The distinguished Russian Ambassador, Baron Rosen, has obtained for me audiences with Presidence Roosevelt.

2. The object of the Slavic societies is the education of young Slavs and the establishment of calm in Slavic countries. The society is watching with great admiration the progress of educational and peace organizations, which, under Mr. Carnegie's guidance, goes ahead with gigantic strides, and I am here to see and study them for myself.

3. To hear speeches of all prominent, peace-loving men gathered here by Mr. Carnegie and to try to impress on them that without serious improvement of conditions in Macedonia by the Peace Congress here and by The Hague Conference, Macedonia and Armenia will always remain a firebrand that may involve neighboring kingdoms and even empires in war.

4. Several benevolent societies, under the patronage of her imperial Majesty, the Empress of Russia, authorized me to investigate the working of similar institutions in America and to report the result.

5. In two Russian provinces, Minsk and Witebsk, where my estates are situated, my partisans proposed to nominate me as a member of the Duma, but I've declined the honor, because before teaching the nation from a parliamentary tribune, I wish to learn first the Constitutions of other countries, especially of the United States of America.

All other reports about my mission here have no foundation whatever.

REWARD FOR WOMEN'S BRAINS.

A Case Where More Than Equal Work Is Done for Less Pay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding the short editorial in the April 4 issue of THE TIMES: I am in an office now, in which the head stenographer, (while not occupying, strictly speaking, a private secretarysbip,) I believe, possesses more business sense than any man in the office (she is about 25) except the senior member of the firm, a man over 50 years of age, who has been engaged for years in the business, and possibly his son, who is following in his father's footsteps. Her work is perfect and she is not confined altogether to shorthand. She is discriminated against on account of her sex in favor of men with by no means her ability or intelligence.

The second stenographer is a woman of a clear, unprejudiced mind, capable of performing far more than she is doing. She left an occupation in the West, where she was making more than double her present salary, in order to secure the advantages New York offers. She was graduated from a high school two weeks before she was 16, but was unable to continue her education. If both of these women wore trousers instead of skirts they would be the "right-hand men" of the senior members of the firm. Every man in the office is pleasant and polite, and the women are always treated with courtesy, but according to my ideas on the subject the brains of the office are represented by the one man and the two women.

Of course, discrimination on account of sex, a relic of barbarism, is disappearing day by day, but there is still much injustice from which women suffer. This injustice has been evident since the world began, and is caused by what is, perhaps, the lowest form of jealousy—sex-jealousy.

The above is not simply one case—I have seen it before.

How to Get New Subways.

The retail dry goods merchants of the city realize how closely their interests are intertwined with the adequacy of transit facilities, and with the conviction of this close relationship to their prosperity, are fighting for better traction service. It is a rational fight they are making, a fight for principls and not against any privats or other interest. They realizo that men who have capital invested in the traction companies are entitled to a reasonable return, and that the people must not be too greedy in their exactions. On the other hand, it is only too evident that the present facilities are not equal to the requirements at certain "rush hours." It is quite obvious that the remedy does not lie in increasing the number of trains at this time, for that would be dangerous. The real solution of the problem is to increase the number of subway lines.

The problem, therefore, resolves itself into the question, "How best to get the new subways built?" The answer is not "unreasoning agitation," nor "municipal ownership," with the city so near its bonded debt limit. The dry goods men have determined upon co-operation as the best course to pursue. This may seem an abstract statement, but it is a terse form of describing a definite policy. By co-operation alone will capital be induced to seek new ventures in metropolitan traffic.

New York, April 8, 1907. SARDINE.

HUSH!

"Have I seen them?" The microbes, you mean—
Of course, They're all over the town!
One thinks that one really has seen
Because they have done us up brown!

"Bacteria?" Millions, no doubt,
Are out on their deadly parade!
I picture them bugs with a snout
And feet that resemble a spade.

"The Germs?" Sh! Don't mention them, please!
"I'm trying to dodge that black beap!
"A Taxpayer?" Yes, but disease
Is something, at least, one can keep.

"The Gutters? The Garbage?" Refrain!
Why mention such subjects, I pray?
In April, no doubt, there'll be rain
To wash all this horror away!

"Be dead then?" How dare you appear
Rebellious at such a sad state?
"A Taxpayer, too?" Well, my dear,
Why can't you take quinine and wait?

STEAD A CRITIC OF THE METHODISTS

London Editor Talks Plainly at Conference About Their Church.

SAYS ITS POWER IS GONE

Declares He Is Thus Frank Because Preachers Need Stirring Up to People's Needs.

William T. Stead, editor of The London Review of Reviews, talked in the plainest sort of fashion to the ministers in attendance upon the sessions of the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at the Union Church, in West Forty-eighth Street, yesterday. Mr. Stead's talk concerned principally the peace movement, but he touched upon other subjects, and when the audience cried "Amen!" "Amen!" when he asked the ministers if the Church in America was willing to have enacted an international statute that special mediators should be called in to obtain peace, if possible, before war is declared, Mr. Stead replied:

"Amen! Oh, nobody cares a damn for an amen unless it leads you to do something to put into effect your prayers."

"You Methodists," he said, "think perhaps you are the only Church of Christ in existence in America—you who are at least second in number in the country—but I tell you that the old Roman Catholic Church had a clearer conception of its duties as the executive of God Almighty and the arbiter of the affairs of nations than what the Church of Christ has at the present time. You are too comfortable and smug as you sit and contemplate it. We are all of us too satisfied, and I want to make you uncomfortable.

"I don't want to make you laugh, [as someone snickered.] I want to make you feel like going down on your knees and confessing that you have not done the things you ought to have done and have done the things you ought not to have done. In my visits to various parts of the world I haven't found any one who thought the Church of Christ was a force in the world to-day. You speak of it to Kings or the great men of Europe and ask their opinion of its power, and they shrug their shoulders and tell you that the Christian Church has been allowed to go to the devil."

Mr. Stead thinks the Methodists in America are somewhat better than their brethren in England. In England, he said, there was a tendency among some of them to think that frequenting saloons, playing cards for money, and visiting disreputable places, was no bar to the Christian life. He found no such sentiment, he added, in this country.

During the morning session of the conference one of the time honored institutions of the Methodist Church, the Presiding Elder, was attacked in a memorial presented by the Rev. Dr. James M. King, Secretary of the Home Missionary and Church Extension Society. The memorial proposed that the appointment of the Presiding Elders should be taken from the Bishops and placed in the hands of the Ministers themselves. The memorial was addressed to the General Conference of the Church, which meets in Baltimore next year.

There were also several talks upon the temperance question. Dr. Baker, President of the National Anti-Saloon League, said that on the railway dining car menus in the West is the statement that "no liquor sold while passing through the State of Kansas."

"And I have seen men spitting cotton for 700 miles because there is no liquor sold in Kansas," he said, and the ministers, seemingly understanding fully what he meant, laughed heartily.

PRESBYTERY MAKES CHANGES

Organizes a Moderators' Council to Consider Church Matters.

The Presbytery of New York held its regular April meeting yesterday morning in the Old First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street. The Rev. Dr. William Rogers Richards of the Brick Church was re-elected Moderator by a unanimous vote. The Rev. Dr. Walter Duncan Buchanan, John J. McCook, William E. Magie, and James Yereance were re-elected Trustees.

The following clergymen were chosen as Commissioners to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which convenes in Columbus, Ohio, in May: Thomas W. Smith, J. Ross Stevenson, A. Edwin Kelgwin, Francis E. Marsten, H. Roswell Bates, William Adams Brown, William T. Eising, and John Lyon Caughey.

An important feature yesterday was the organization of a body to be known as the Moderators' Council. The council consists of six ministers and six Elders, elected by the Presbytery, who will pass upon the credentials of ministers applying for admission to the Presbytery, and have authority in other matters of interest to the Presbyterians.

It was voted to hold four business meetings of the Presbytery each year in future and two devotional meetings. The business meetings will be held on the second Mondays in January, April, June, and the Monday preceding the first Tuesday in October.

MEARS VERDICT TO-DAY.

Bishop Greer's Commission Finishes Inquiry Into Clergyman's Conduct.

The investigation of Bishop Coadjutor Greer's commission into the case of the Rev. William Howard Mears, curate of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, who was arrested in a negro dive in Seventh Avenue while pursuing sociological studies at close range in the Tenderloin, is at an end.

The sealed report is in the hands of Bishop Greer and will not be made public until to-day.

Upon this report depends whether Mr. Mears will be tried before an ecclesiastical board on charges of conduct unbecoming a clergyman.

No evidence was taken by the commission yesterday when it resumed its investigation in the See House, in Lafayette avenue. The evidence taken last week, when Mr. Mears and his wife, Dr. Arthur D. Judge, his Rector, and the two detectives who arrested the curate testified, was discussed and compiled by the Commissioners, and the report was then prepared.

Bishop Greer said later in the day that he would not have an opportunity to dissect the report before to-day. Each of the Commissioners said that they were not at liberty to even intimate what the result of their investigation had been, because it would be a breach of etiquette.

THE REV. DR. ORR'S LECTURES

Glasgow Professor to Talk on the Birth of Christ.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Orr, Professor of Apologetics and Theology in the United Free Church College of Glasgow, Scotland, will deliver the first of a series of ten lectures on "The Virgin Birth of Christ" in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The lectures will continue from day to day, omitting next Sunday, until completed. The denial of the truth of this doctrine resulted in Algernon Crapsey leaving the Ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The subject of the lecture to be delivered to-day is "The Statement of the Case." In this lecture Dr. Orr will deal with the recent attacks on the doctrine. Two of the lectures will be criticisms of twenty-five papers on the doctrine, written by distinguished scholars, and submitted to Dr. Orr for review.

The lectures are delivered under the auspices of the Bible Teachers' Training School, and are open to the public. Admission is free.

MISS STEVENS WEDS OGDEN H. HAMMOND

Ceremony Performed in Trinity Church, Hoboken, by the Rev. J. C. Mitchell.

TO SAIL FOR EUROPE

Big Gathering of Prominent New Yorkers at Service—Couple to Live at Superior, Wis.

Amid Easter lilies and Spring flowers and palms which filled the chancel the wedding of Miss Mary Picton Stevens, daughter of the late John Stevens, to Ogden Haggerty Hammond, son of the late Gen. John H. Hammond, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at Trinity Church, the fashionable Episcopal church of Hoboken, N. J.

The Rev. J. Clayton Mitchell, rector, performed the ceremony. The bride was escorted by her uncle, Col. Edwin A. Stevens, who gave her in marriage. The bridal party was led by the ushers, and promptly at 3:30 o'clock to the music of the wedding march from "Lohengrin," accompanied by the singing of the Trinity boys' choir, the bride and her attendants followed the procession to the altar.

The bride's Empire gown was of white satin, with a yoke and sleeves of rose point, and was embroidered with chiffon rosettes and seed pearls. Her tulle veil was edged with rose point, and was shirred under orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bride was attended by Miss Martha Marvin of Louisville, Ky., who wore a white chiffon cloth gown, topped by a yellow lace coat. She carried pink roses. Four young girls, the bridesmaids, were attired in frocks of white and carried baskets of pink roses. Their white picture hats were trimmed with pink roses. These young attendants, relatives of the bride and bridegroom, were the Misses Caroline and Emily Stevens and Miss Mary Chanpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merrill Chapin, and Miss Elsie Stevens.

John Henry Hammond, who married Miss Emily Vanderbilt Sloane, and who is a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were John B. Adams, William A. Delano, John F. Talmadge, Nelson Burr, Vance McCormick, and Theodosius Stevens.

The reception following was held at Castle Point, the historic home for generations of the Stevens family, and the place where the wedding receptions for the various brides of the family have always been held. It is situated on rising ground overlooking the Hudson, and is a well-known landmark on the Jersey side of the river. Many large and notable entertainments have been given there.

Among those invited were:

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius K. Wilmerding, E. Coster Wilmerding, Mrs. John C. Wilmerding, Mr. and Mrs. Lycurgus Winchester, Edgerton Leigh Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer, Miss Mathilde Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. James Bliss Townsend, Miss Mildred Gibert Townsend.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Venderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McKay Twombly, Miss Ruth Twombly, Mrs. Grenville Temple Emmet, Mrs. Frederic Tremaine, Lyman Tremaine, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor, Mrs. Robert Sturgis, the Misses Rosamond K. and Susan W. Street, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Stockton Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Stevens, Miss Priscilla D. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sorchan, Mr. and Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, the Misses Irene and Mildred Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Satterlee, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Rutherfurd, Mrs. Hilborne Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Alexander, Miss Dorothy Q. Roosevelt, Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, the Misses Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Miss Natica Rives, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt, Franklin A. Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Pierson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mortimer, and Goold Hoyt.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond are booked to sail this week for Europe, and after a couple of months spent in foreign travel will make their home at Superior, Wis., where Mr. Hammond's business is situated.

OGDEN—FROST.

Miss Mary Gladys Frost, daughter of Mrs. Henry Titus Frost, and Herbert Gouverneur Ogden were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Thomas's Church, the Rev. Ernest M. Stires officiating. The church was decorated with Easter lilies and azaleas. The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Henry Titus Frost, wore white satin Empire gown, with point de gaimpe and Iberia and a tulle veil and valley lilies. Mrs. Witherbee Black of Pelham Manor, N. Y., and Mrs. Darrell Harvey of Providence were the matrons of honor. They wore white lace applique frocks topped by pale-blue hats trimmed with white lilacs and pink roses, and carried pink roses. The three bridesmaids were the Misses Grace Tucker of Albany, Elizabeth Lauder, and Miss Helen Ferguson of Pittsburg, and Kathleen L. R. Bulkley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Duncan Bulkley of this city. These were frocked like the matrons of honor.

Warren Green Ogden, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Paymaster Charles Palmer Dyer, U. S. N.; Dr. N. Darrell Harvey of Providence, Witherbee Black, Henry Sheldon, Charles Hildreth Blair, Charles Talcott Ellis and Clifford Black of this city.

Mr. Ogden is a descendant of John Ogden of Southampton and Hempstead, L. I., and a graduate of Cornell University. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 65 East Fifty-sixth Street.

EDDY—WOODRUFF.

The marriage of Mme. Elisabeth Woodruff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Woodruff, and Jesse Mase Eddy will take place on April 15 at the Church of the Redeemer, Morristown, N. J. The maid of honor will be Miss Reta Metcalfe of New York, and the bridesmaids the Misses Mildred Eddy and Margaret Hoyt of Morristown and Miss Antoinette Scudder of Newark. The ushers will be Thomas Dickson and Edward Hall of Morristown, Edward Scudder of Newark, and James K. Hyde, Ralph Carroll, and Morgan D. Griswold of New York. After the ceremony a small reception will be given by the bride's parents at the Morris County Golf Club.

KAHN—SONDHEIMER.

Miss Emily J. Sondheimer, daughter of Julius Sondheimer, was married to Bernard S. Kahn of this city at 6:30 o'clock last evening at Delmonico's by Dr. R. Grossman of the Sixty-third Street Temple. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Julius Sondheimer.

The matrons of honor were Mrs. Alvin S. Cahn of Cincinnati, a sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Charles S. Untermyer. The Misses Blanche Rothschild of Pittsburg, Elsie Bamberger and Beulah Hydeman of New York were the bridesmaids. Milton M. Machol of New Haven, Conn., was the best man. A reception followed the wedding.

VON WOLF—HUMPHREYS.

News was received in this city yesterday of the marriage in Dresden, Germany, of Miss Jayte Humphreys, daughter of Mrs. T. B. John Caffrey, wife of the American Consul General at Dresden, to Capt. Hans Heinrich von Wolf of the German Army. Capt. von Wolf is a son of Gen. Ernst Hugo von Wolf, late Commander in Chief of the Saxon Artillery. His mother was the Baroness von Oppel. Miss Humphreys is the granddaughter of the late Dr. Frederic Humphreys of New York.

MISS WASHBURN'S WEDDING.

Marriage to Sidney B. Wood to Take Place in St. James's Church.

Miss E. Lucoy Washburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tucker Washburn, and Sidney Beardsley Wood, whose engagement was announced on March 24, have decided on June 8 as their wedding day. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at St. James's Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street, and will be solemnized by Bishop Courtenay, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 52 East Seventy-ninth Street.

Miss Washburn will have her sister, Miss Marion S. Washburn, as her maid of honor, and Mrs. Joseph F. Simmons, who was Miss Mabel Storm and a bride of last Spring, will be the matron of honor. The bridesmaids selected are Miss Ruth Starbuck, Miss Josephine Munson, and Miss Lucy Burke of New York, Miss Mary Myrick of Dobbs Ferry, Miss Helen Schermerborn of Philadelphia, and Miss Florence Harris of Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Wood, who was formerly of Bridgeport, Conn., but who makes his home in New York, will have the following men among his attendants: Mayhew Wasburn, a brother of the bride-elect; Stanley Washburn of Minneapolis, Augustus Wood, his brother; Walter Whipple, William Hall, and Richard Barry.

TEA TO DUKE OF NEWCASTLE.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dunn Entertain at a Small Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Shannon Dunn gave a small informal tea yesterday afternoon at their home, 127 West Fifty-eighth Street, for the Duke of Newcastle, who is booked to sail on April 25 for England. Mrs. Dunn was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Charles Stickney. Mrs. John Duncan Emmet, (Miss Josephine Drexel,) and Miss Nathalie Lorillard Bailey poured tea. Elnar Vallin, the Swedish pianist, played. Miss Amy Baker recited, and the hostess also gave two recitations.

Among those who attended the tea were Mrs. John H. Bradford, Miss Julia Phipps, Mrs. John Erving, the Misses Erving, Mrs. George R. Schieffelin and Miss Schieffelin, Mrs. Benjamin Knower, Mrs. Sanford Bissell, Mrs. Daniel Butterfield, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Livingston, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, Mrs. H. H. Piffard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ferris Simmons, Mrs. Gustav Amsinck, Miss Alice Hunt, Mrs. Sidney de Kay, Miss Janet de Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Worden, Mrs. Eugene Parsons, Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Martin, Mrs. W. Best, and Miss Annie Best, Mrs. Griswold, Robert Elmer Boorman, Howard Constable, Gen. Kneeland, Benjamin S. Church, Schuyler Schieffelin, Eckford de Kay, John Griswold, Henry Burnett, Jr., Walter Horatio Kreischamer, John Tobin, George Gibbins, Victor Cushman, and Vlga Schatel.

Duc de Chaulnes to Visit Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Duc de Chaulnes et de Pisquigny, the reputed fiancé of Miss Theodora Shonts, daughter of Theodore P. Shonts, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Shonts for some weeks, will leave here Thursday for New York, where he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leroux at their country place on the Hudson.

Social Notes.

There will be a reception at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Settlement House, at Rivington and Eldridge Streets, to open the art exhibition. Among the women who are to be present are Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. Archibald Huntington, Miss E. Mabel Clark, and Mrs. Edward Ringwood Hewitt. The loaned pictures will be on exhibition free of charge for two weeks.

The chief matrimonial event of the day is the wedding at 4 o'clock in St. Patrick's Cathedral of Miss May Nesser of New York and Charles Lestelle of Paris.

This evening there is to be the benefit performance of "Aida" at the Manhattan Opera House, and also the Easter Collation at Dodworth's under fashionable patronage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ives Plumb have left the Waldorf-Astoria and have opened their country place at Islip, L. I.

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON.

The President Entertains a Distinguished Company at Dinner.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The President entertained a distinguished dinner company this evening at the White House. The guests were Baron d'Estournelles Constant, the Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte; the Postmaster General, George Von L. Meyer; Dr. Lyman Abbott, the Assistant Secretary of State, Robert C. Bacon, and Gifford Pinchot.

Kermit Roosevelt, who has spent his Easter holidays at the White House with his parents, has returned to his school at Groton, Mass. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who has been here for several weeks, will remain for a short time longer.

Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth closed their Washington house and left at midnight for Cincinnati. They will remain in their home there for some weeks, and then make a trip through the northwestern section of the country, spending the month of July in Alaska.

The British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, who have been on a visit to New York, Canada, and Chicago, returned to the Embassy this morning.

Miss Joanna Schroeder, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Seaton Schroeder, entertained a company of young people at dinner this evening. Her guests were Miss Harvey of New York, her house guest; Miss Caryl Crawford, Miss Evelyn Chew, Miss Mary Brewster, Miss Millie Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Legare, James Hopkins, Donald Cassels, J. A. C. Palmer, Halsey Malone, and Seaton Schroeder, Jr. After the dinner the guests went to the ball at Rauscher's.

Actors' Society Benefit.

The third annual benefit of the Actors' Society of America will take place this afternoon at the Hudson Theatre, the proceeds to be devoted to the building fund of the society. The performance will begin at 1 o'clock, and will last until 7. Among the prominent players to appear will be Ethel Barrymore, Margaret Anglin, Adele Ritchie, Mary Shaw, Elsie Janis, Annie Yeamans, Mrs. W. G. Jones, Lotta Faust, and Edward Abeles and Mary Ryan in the third act of "Brewster's Millions."

Wreath for Rose Stahl.

Silver souvenirs were distributed last night at the Hackett Theatre, where Rose Stahl, as Patricia O'Brien, celebrated her two thousandth performance in "The Chorus Lady." At the close of the third act Miss Stahl was presented with a laurel wreath by the author, James Forbes. Henry B. Harris, the manager, cabled from London, "Patricia Mavourneen, God bless you. May your shadow never grow less."

Usher Found Bellow's Wallet.

John Leahey, an usher at the Hippodrome, yesterday returned to Kyrle Bellew a wallet containing $1,500 in notes and checks, which he lost at the Hippodrome on Sunday night and which he supposed had been stolen. The usher found the wallet as he was going through the building after the audience had left.

Kelly at the Alhambra.

William J. Kelly, Harlem's favorite actor, made his first appearance in vaudeville at the Alhambra yesterday, presenting a one-act romantic drama entitled "A French Spy." The theatre was packed to the doors. Mr. Kelly was warmly welcomed and made a speech.

"BOYS OF COMPANY B" ARE JOLLY FELLOWS

ARNOLD DALY IN COMEDY

A Capital Performance That Exudes Good Humor from Start to Finish.

Jim MacLane.....Alfred Kappeler
C. Holbrook Allen.....Verner Clarges
Tony Allen.....Arnold Daly
Sigsby Sissen Sewell.....Morgan Coman
"Babe" Carruthers.....Howard Estabrook
George Bright.....Charles Arthur
"Doc" Stuart.....Percival T. Moore
Mike MacNab.....W. Elmer Booth
Henry Stabler.....Robert McWade
Arthur Stabler.....Roy Fairchild
Serg. Walker.....Richard Garrick
Corporal Robinson.....F. P. Cahill

Mrs. MacLane.....Jennie A. Eustace
Eileen MacLane.....Frances Ring
Madge Blake.....Florence Nash
Florence Henderson.....Gretchen Dale

The boys of Company B are a jolly, wholesome lot of fellows, who can take a joke and give a joke, who are not above a bit of a flirting now and then, but who can get right down to business when it comes to love in earnest. They can 'josh' a pal to the Queen's taste, as the saying goes, but they can also stand by him to the finish when he is in trouble. In other words, they are just boys, and as such they are going to be extremely popular with the girls as long as they continue to pitch their camp at the Lyceum.

That promises to be for a fairly long time. For Rida Johnson Young has undoubtedly struck a popular chord in her latest play.

It again takes three acts to prove the old adage that "the course of true love never did run smooth." But your feelings are never unpleasantly harrowed, for you cannot help feeling through it all that such a good-natured, resourceful, manly hero as Tony Allen, who proposes through a speaking tube, in order to outwit a vigilant mother, will ultimately win out in anything he has set his heart upon. In this case it is Eileen McLane, who you feel is too nice a girl to throw herself away on a bounder who does nothing but talk about his father's money. Even when she finds Tony kissing another girl and scorns him as a base deceiver, you feel that it will be all right. As for Tony—well, who could keep a straight face in the presence of a fellow who insists that he merely kissed out of curiosity. He had an uncontrollable desire to know how it feels to kiss a girl who lisps. And come to think of it the novelty of the sensation ought to provide its own excuse.

When Tony's sweetheart, however, gets bold of a letter to the lisping girl which that young soldier boy had written for a friend who, in addition to a sprained wrist, confessed to a lack of imagination, it is a case of trifles light as air, which, confirmation strong as holy writ, and love's young dream has a rude awakening.

When the clouds look darkest, as they would say in the book, if "The Boys of Company B" were a book instead of a play, Tony wins out, and of course everybody is delighted.

Mrs. Young has the faculty of writing pleasing little plays about the sort of people in whom one is never too old to be interested. One does not expect much ingenuity of plot in a play of this sort, and one does not get it. Mrs. Young is more successful in lines than in plot, and she translates the vernacular of up-to-date juvenile smartness to her plays with excellent effect. You find yourself laughing at these young people as much for what they say was for what they do. But both are interesting, and types and incidents are true enough.

In the first act one gets a "go" with the gloves and with the folks in a household gymnasium, and the second shows the routine turned into sport and an occasional song to enliven things. Mr. Daly plays with a plentiful show of good humor and just the dash of sentiment needed in the treacle passages. In occasional scenes one rather longed for Mr. Collier, but, on the whole, Mr. Daly's is an excellent comedy performance. The others meet all the requirements, which, as may be imagined, are not a great deal.

Good humor exhudes from the performance.

Morgan Coman and Florence Nash are particularly amusing as a pair of lisping lovers; Miss Ring shows signs of improvement since her last appearance in "Man and His Angel," while Gretchen Dale, Howard Estabrooke, Alfred Kappeler and Joseph Whiting add excellent touches. Mr. Clarges is amusing, but he might be equally so with less noise; possibly more so.

"THE ORCHID" PLEASES.

Newest Musical Comedy the Work of Six Authors.

"The Orchid," which opened at the Herald Square Theatre last night, offered many diverse forms of amusement. It could hardly fail to make a hit at some point of the compass. The boxing match between Eddie Foy and Joseph Herbert, in their respective characters, contained revelations in the "manly art." The audience appreciated this exhibition. It also appreciated Trixie Friganza's song, "No Wedding Bells for Me," and it showed decided weakness for several of the romantic ditties. The chorus also pleased.

"Why do they call me a Gibson girl?" asked Mr. Foy, repeating that oft-repeated question. He wore so many different and absurd disguises during the evening that it was indeed impossible to tell what to call him. But he made the audience laugh.

"The Orchid" is the joint work of six authors—which is being much jointed even for an up-to-date musical comedy with Summer show intentions. The book is by James T. Tanner and Joseph Herbert, the lyrics by Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank, and the music by Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton. Naturally it lived somewhat more than the allotted span of life for an evening's entertainment. The audience will not be less pleased when some surgical operations of the stage managerial desorption have been performed.

The plot is a mere incident in the scenery and action, and so may go with little description. It is all about an orchid of rare degree that everybody is trying to find, and that finally comes into the possession of Eddie Foy, the eccentric gardener. The juvenile love complications are due to the fact that the minister mixed names when he performed a double marriage. Leading roles were played by Trixie Friganza, Amelia Stone, Irene Franklin, Melville Ellis, Alfred Hickman, George C. Boniface, Jr., Joseph W. Herbert, and Laura Guerite. The piece landed in so many spots it almost landed all over.

ELSIE JANIS ENJOINED.

Injunction Prevents Her from Appearing Under Williams's Direction.

A temporary injunction was granted in the Supreme Court by Justice MacLean yesterday restraining Elsie Janis from appearing under any other management than that of Milton & Sargent Aborn and Liebler & Co. She was specially enjoined from appearing under the direction of Percy Williams, with whom she had recently signed a vaudeville contract.

Mr. Aborn said last night that the argument to make the injunction permanent would be heard on Wednesday. Herman Fromme represents the plaintiffs, who assert that their contract has still two years to run.

Miss Janis contends that she is no longer a minor, as she has passed the age of 18, and that consequently the contract made by her mother as her guardian may be annulled. By arrangement with the Aborns Miss Janis has been appearing in "The Vanderbilt Cup" under the direction of Liebler & Co.

Her present salary is $700, and she is said to have been offered $3,000 a week in vaudeville.

MME. NAZIMOVA ILL.

Opening of Her New Comedy Postponed—Arthur Forrest In Cast.

Mme. Alla Nazimova did not appear at the Bijou Theatre last night, though she was announced to give her first performance of a new comedy translated from the Italian and entitled "Comtesse Coquette." The reason assigned by the management was that of illness, and the date of the opening has been postponed until Thursday evening of this week.

When the play finally opens the leading male rôle, to have been performed by John Blair, will be taken by Arthur Forrest. A representative of the management said last night that Mr. Blair had found himself not suited to the rôle.

It appears that Mme. Nazimova has caught a severe cold, which has affected her vocal cords, and must wait a couple of days to regain her usual good health. The rehearsals have also been a severe strain and she is nervously exhausted. "Comtesse Coquette" is the first play for her to produce here without having first performed it in her native Russia and the consequent anxiety has told on her. She is being attended by Dr. Holbrook Curtis of 118 Madison Avenue.

JARDIN DE PARIS HERE.

Ziegfeld Will Transform New York Roof for Summer Season.

Klaw & Erlanger and F. Ziegfeld, Jr., formed an arrangement yesterday whereby Mr. Ziegfeld will transform the New York Roof Garden into a Summer place of amusement similar to the Jardin de Paris. The entire roof will be rearranged and new decorations devised as nearly as possible to duplicate the Parisian place of entertainment. Mr. Ziegfeld will organize a company to present a review based on important events of the past year, in addition to a vaudeville programme. The roof garden will open on June 4.

Mr. Ziegfeld also announces that he will be interested with Klaw & Erlanger in two new musical productions to be made under his direction in September. Anna Held and the entire Parisian Model company will go to London immediately after the run at the Broadway Theatre.

"ROUND UP" FOR CHICAGO.

Klaw & Erlanger to Present Edmund Day's Western Play Next Sunday.

Klaw & Erlanger's company, which is to present Edmund Day's new Western drama, "The Round Up," at McVicker's Theatre in Chicago next Sunday evening, will leave New York this morning by a special train of two sleepers, a day coach, a palace horse car and five baggage cars.

Among the principals of the company are Macklyn Arbuckle, Orme Caldara, Wright Kramer, Harold Hartsell, Elmer Grandin, Jacques Martin, H. S. Northrup, S. J. Richardson, Cheries Abbe, John J. Pierson, Joseph Lothian, Fulton Russell, Florence Rockwell, Julia Dean and Marie Taylor.

In addition to these players there will be thirty-five cowboys and eighteen cow ponies. In the battle scene of the third act, two men stand off a band of Apache Indians.

MISS NETHERSOLE'S PLAY.

She Produces "The Awakening," from the French of Paul Hervieu.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Olga Nethersole tonight produced for the first time in America "The Awakening," an English translation of Paul Hervieu's "Le Reveil."

The play is a drama full of exciting action laid in modern Paris. It was produced with elaborate scenic effect. Miss Nethersole assumed the rôle of Therese de Megeo, and got much applause. Frank Mills, Charles A. Stevenson, and Julien Royce also were received well.

"The Primrose Path" Produced.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 8.—Margaret Wycherly appeared as a star to-night at the Hyperion Theatre in "The Primrose Path," a four-act drama by Bayard Veiller. It treats of a woman's sacrifice to save the life of a starving man, who afterward casts her off for a wealthy society girl. Miss Wycherly and Sheldon Lewis, in the leading rôles, were warmly applauded.

Miss Hall Has Appendicitis.

Mary Hall, who has been playing the leading rôle in the touring company of "The Girl of the Golden West," and who was taken ill while in the West last Friday, was reported yesterday to be in a serious condition. It is expected that an operation for appendicitis will be performed to-day. Jane Wheatley has been sent to take her place in the company.

Shriners' Night at the Circus.

To-night will be Shriners' night at Barnum & Bailey's Circus at Madison Square Garden. The major portion of the boxes and prenn seats have been purchased by the Shriners. The camels have been carefully groomed for the occasion.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Amy Sumers, the original Miss Boynton in "Brewster's Millions," returned to the cast last night at the Hudson Theatre, replacing Edna Brana, who has been playing the role for several months.

"The Girl in White," the latest production under the direction of James K. Hackett, was first seen in Boston last night, at the Tremont Theatre.

Ada Chambers, who already has appeared in concerts by Sousa, Herbert, and Damrosch in New York City, will be the soloist of the Herbert concert next Sunday evening at Daly's.

The repertoire for Ermete Novelli's final week at the Lyric has been changed somewhat. The repertoire for the remainder of the week will be: Tuesday, "King Lear"; Wednesday, "Papa Martin"; Thursday, "Kean"; Friday, "Shylock"; Saturday afternoon, "Papa Lebonnard," and Saturday night, "The Taming of the Shrew."

"Ehrliche Menschen," by Adolf Schaffmeyer of The State-Zeitung will be presented for the first time to-night at the Irving Place Theatre, as a testimonial to Friedrich Holthaus, one of the leading actors in the company.

HERR CONRIED SAYS HE IS NOT TO RESIGN

Operatic Manager Tells of His Plans Before Sailing for Europe.

TO OPEN WITH "SALOME"

Denies That Miss Abott Tried to Keep Him from Sailing—A Prosperous Season.

Heinrich Conried sails for Europe to-day on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, to regain his health and to look over the field for operatic novelties and singers. He was in his office at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon, and there he saw a few friends and newspaper men.

"'Salome' will begin my next season," he said. "It will be given with the same cast as formerly, but not in the Metropolitan Opera House. Soon after I was able to be about I saw several of the Directors and the President of the Metropolitan Opera House and Realty Company, and asked them if they had any objection to my producing the work outside the house. It seems they have not. One of the men even has engaged a box for the first night. I had promised Burrian, Van Rooy, and Fremstad a certain number of 'Salome' performances this season, and these I had to pay for, besides a large royalty to Strauss, which will be larger next year.

"Besides, numerous American managers are attempting to get the rights of this music drama. I could not afford to drop it if I wanted to. I tried the German version of the Oscar Wilde play at the Irving Place Theatre last week, to give people an opportunity to object if they desired, and they didn't. Richard Strauss glorifies this play with the music. One of the Directors of the opera company has just cabled me from Brussels that, after seeing the performance of 'Salome' there, he realizes what I have done in giving it so completely here.

"These rumors about my resignation are not true. I wouldn't remain where I am not wanted, but it looks as if the Directors wanted to keep me when they let me make plans for four years ahead which involve the expenditure of millions of dollars.

"Nearly all the leading singers of this year's season have been re-engaged for next year, including Mmes. Sembrich, Eames, Farrar, Cavalieri, Fremstad, Gadski, and Homer, and Caruso, Burrian, Burgstaller, and Rousselière. I shall have several new artists, including Mr. Chaliapine, the famous bass, and Knote, the German tenor.

"In place of Arturo Vigna, the Italian conductor, who has resigned, I have engaged Rudolpho Ferrari of Rome, and of course Alessandro Bonci is engaged to sing here. It is very difficult to get good conductors. I have made attempts to get Campanini, Motti, and Toscanini, but it is impossible. I shall produce several novelties next season, at least six, and the scenery and costumes for these have been ordered.

"During the last season we took in $1,005,770.20, which shows an increase of $23,308.90 over the previous season. The financial result has been more than gratifying, as our balance sheet will be able to show even a small profit in spite of having charged our account this year with the entire loss sustained at San Francisco, the replacing of nineteen operas, with scenery, costumes, properties, music, and the very new and costly productions we gave this season.

"I shall not manage the Irving Place Theatre any longer, but shall pass it on to some one else; not least, if I decide to continue to run it as a German house, and I think I shall not change the policy."

Mr. Conried was asked if there was anything in the rumor that Bessie Abott had attempted to enjoin him from sailing.

"Of course not," he replied. "It would be impossible. Miss Abott objects because I have not given her a chance to appear in all the subscription performances of a long list of operas, including 'Faust,' 'Traviata,' 'Martha,' 'Bohème,' 'Romeo et Juliette,' and many others. Why should I engage Sembrich, and Farrar, and Eames if Miss Abott was to appear in all these?

"Much complaint has been made in the papers this year about my bad chorus. As a matter of fact, after the chorus strike, as everybody knows, I had to get entirely new people, and it has been very difficult to train them for opera in three languages.

"I shall go directly to Berlin, and then to Vienna, where I shall take the baths at a near-by cure. I hope to have three months' rest, and I shall return on the Kaiser Wilhelm on Sept. 17."

"Martha" at the Manhattan.

Flotow's joyous "Martha" received its third presentation at the Manhattan Opera House last evening with Mmes. Donalda and de Cisneros and Messrs. Bonci, Arimondi, and Gianoli-Galletti in the cast. It is a cast which makes the most of the comedy values of the opera as well as of the music. Mr. Tanara again had some difficulty in controlling his forces, but in general the performance was an excellent one. The audience was not large.

REV. DR. JOHN JOHNSON DEAD.

Author of "The Defense of Fort Sumter" Was One of Its Defenders.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 8.—The Rev. Dr. John Johnson, rector emeritus of St. Philip's Church, Major of Engineers in charge at Fort Sumter during the siege of the sixties, author of "The Defense of Fort Sumter" and other historical works, died last night at the age of 78 years. John Johnson was born in Charleston, S. C. He studied civil engineering, to which for ten years he devoted his energies in railroad constructing and other large engineering work throughout South Carolina. In 1853 he published the largest map of his native State ever undertaken. In 1860 he studied for the ministry at the Camden University, South Carolina, but on the outbreak of the war entered the engineering corps of the Southern army with the rank of Lieutenant of Engineers. He rapidly rose to the rank of Major of Engineers. He was mostly engaged on the fortifications of several towns. He was in Fort Sumter during fifteen months of its bombardment, and received two shell wounds which afterward left him a cripple. At the end of the war he was paroled as senior officer of engineers.

After the war he resumed his ministerial studies and was ordained in 1866. In 1872 he was appointed rector of St. Philip's.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Rollin H. Lynde.

Rollin H. Lynde, a lawyer, of 82 Beaver Street, died of heart failure at Atlantic City on Sunday. He was a grandson of Joseph Wesley Harper, one of the founders of the publishing house of Harper & Brothers.

Mr. Lynde was graduated from Princeton in the class of '77, studied law at the Harvard and Columbia Law Schools, and became a member of the firm of Bushe, Clarke & Lynde. He became an expert in insolvent assignment law, and was engaged in many celebrated cases.

After the death of his father, Charles Rollin Lynde, who was a Yale graduate, and who founded the Lynde debate at Princeton for the junior class, Mr. Lynde retired from the active practice of law. For many years he lived at South Orange and took an active interest in the South Orange Field Club.

He was also a member of the University, City, Princeton, Baltusrol Golf, Nassau, and Downtown Clubs, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The funeral will take place at Princeton to-day, and the pall bearers will be his classmates, Moses Taylor Pine, Dr. Frank Hartley, Prof. H. F. Osborn, H. C. Pitney, Jr., Prof. William B. Scott, Frank Shier, and R. E. Annin.

He leaves a widow and three children.

Stanford Newell.

Stanford Newell, ex-United States Minister to the Netherlands, died Sunday at his home, in St. Paul, aged 78 years. For several years he was Chairman of the Minnesota State Republican Committee, and in 1888 and 1892 served as a delegate to the Republican National Convention. He was appointed by President McKinley to the post of Minister to the Netherlands in 1897. He was also appointed as Minister to Luxemburg when that post was created in 1903. For eight years he represented the United States at The Hague. In 1905 he resigned from that office. He was a delegate to the International Peace Conference which met at The Hague in 1899.

Mr. Newell practiced law for many years in St. Paul, where he was highly esteemed as a man and as a lawyer. He devoted much of his time to the defense of persons who would otherwise have suffered for want of legal aid.

In 1880 Mr. Newell married Miss Helen F. Fiedler, daughter of Ernest Fiedler of this city. He had many friends in New York.

John A. Ackerman.

John A. Ackerman died at his son's home, 154 Rahway Avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., yesterday, aged 75 years. He had been associated with the Adams Express Company for forty years as a Superintendent, and formerly lived in Jersey City. Fourteen years ago Mr. Ackerman was made Assistant Tax Collector for Jersey City, which position he held four years. He retired from active business ten years ago.

Mr. Ackerman was a member of Hiram Lodge No. 17, F. and A. M., of Jersey City; Past Commander of Hugh De Payen's Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar; Enterprise Chapter No. 2, Royal Arch Masons; Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Thirty-second Degree Northern Masonic Jurisdiction, and Mecca Temple of the Mystic Shriners, New York. He served in 1885 as Commander of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar of New Jersey. He leaves two sons.

Capt. Hezekiah Brown.

Hezekiah Brown, a retired sea captain, died on Sunday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Carroll French, 59 Whittlesey Avenue, East Orange, aged 79 years. Capt. Brown had followed the sea for more than fifty years and had owned several ships which traded between New York, Philadelphia and tropical ports. He was born in Tuckerton, Ocean County, N. J., and became a cabin boy when he was but 14 years of age. He rose rapidly and was placed in charge of a ship when he was 21 years old.

During the civil war Capt. Brown's ship was used as a military transport, and the skipper passed through many stirring experiences. He retired twenty-one years ago. He was a member of several marine organizations and was a Mason. He leaves five sons, two daughters and several grand children.

George Greenville Benedict.

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 8.—George Greenville Benedict, editor in chief of The Burlington Free Press, died to-day at Camden, N. C. Mr. Benedict was born in Burlington Dec. 10, 1826. He was the son of Prof. George W. Benedict, with whom he later became identified in The Free Press. He was graduated from the University of Vermont in 1847. He served throughout the civil war and received a gold medal from Congress for distinguished conduct at the battle of Gettysburg. He first entered politics in 1869, when he was elected to the State Legislature. He wrote a history of Vermont and the civil war.

The Rev. Dr. Paul Menzel.

RICHMOND, Va., April 8.—The Rev. Dr. Paul Menzel, President of the Lutheran Synod of the United States and for the past twenty-one years pastor of St. John's German Evangelical Church here, died to-day. He was born in Lucerne, Switzerland, March 5, 1839. Eight years ago he represented America at the dedication of the Evangelical Church in Jerusalem, being selected by the American Lutheran Synod for this service. He was an author and musical composer, much Lutheran Church music having been composed by him.

James H. Ricketson.

BOSTON, April 8.—James H. Ricketson, well known as a tenor singer, died at his home in Milton to-day, aged 48. He was formerly a member of the choirs of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, and St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Providence. Several years ago he was prominent as a soloist in New England musical festivals.

ELEVEN JURYMEN DECIDE CUP CASE

One Man Excused Through Illness in Family After Hearing Judge's Charge.

SEALED VERDICT RETURNED

Lawyers Waive Right to Sum Up—Jurors Come Into Court for Instructions.

The verdict in the Memphis Gold Cup trotting case was returned by the abbreviated jury late last night, and will be announced in the Supreme Court this morning. After counsel waived their rights to sum up Judge Greenbaum charged the jury yesterday morning and a speedy verdict was expected. After nearly five hours' discussion the jurors sent word to Justice Greenbaum that they desired instructions on certain of the evidence.

Just before 7 o'clock last night the jury was again called into court, when the Justice announced that as the wife and child of Juror Osea Stelman of 119 East 112th Street were dangerously ill, counsel had agreed to permit him to be withdrawn and accept the verdict of the remaining eleven men. Jurors have been withdrawn from the box before while cases were in progress, but the withdrawal of a juror, as in the present case, after the Judge's charge, is considered an unusual and remarkable proceeding.

Only one witness was examined yesterday. Thomas G. Scarborough testified that Lou Dillon possessed good staying qualities after her Summer illness. At this point much surprise was occasioned when lawyers for both sides waived their right to sum up the case.

Judge Greenbaum, in his charge to the jury, informed them that the case had been simplified to a charge of fraud by the plaintiff. They must take into consideration that around race tracks there was a great deal of "horse talk" and many stories floated around, and they must consider whether some of the statements alleged were hearsay talks or whether stated in calmness by those to whom they were attributed. Another matter of importance to be considered was the expert testimony, a great deal of which had been given on both sides by men claiming to be veterinary surgeons. From the testimony of these men it appeared they took opposite views on the same conditions.

"It is a case where doctors disagree, but it is for you to determine which is right. Again, if the testimony has convinced you that a conspiracy was formed you must be satisfied that it was consummated before you find that the charge of fraud is proved," concluded Judge Greenbaum.

When the jurors returned to court in the afternoon for instructions they requested information on the following points: "Whether the fact that Mr. Smathers and 'Ed' Sanders had held the conversation on the day before the race, as alleged, and if Mr. Smathers had offered 'Ed' Sanders $5,000 to secure the race to Major Delmar, constituted sufficient evidence to prove fraud and conspiracy."

Judge Greenbaum answered: "To the first question, the answer is, categorically, No; to the second you must be guided by the evidence presented in court." The foreman of the jury then requested a copy of the minutes of the expert testimony, which was furnished.

SPORT OF ROUGH RIDERS.

Obstacle Races Causes Merriment at Durland's Academy.

A splendid exhibition of rough riding, marked by several spirited contests, was witnessed last night by over 1,500 persons at Durland's Riding Academy, West Sixty-sixth Street, near Central Park West. The event was held under the auspices of the Rough Riding Club, which includes a number of Seventh Regiment members, and Col. Daniel Appleton, who was present, received the opening salute preceding the music ride.

The obstacle race was the most amusing event of the evening. Six members took part, each riding to the end of the ring, then dismounting, opening a suit case, putting on a shirt, lighting a cigarette, and, after opening an umbrella, remounting to ride to the opposite end and win the prize. Three riders were thrown before they reached their destination, and for a time there was a wild waving of umbrellas as the contestants scurried hither and thither for their obstinate mounts.

F. H. Cone got through the difficulties of the competition better than his rivals and won the prize, with J. L. Vanderbilt second. A mounted football match occasioned peals of laughter from the spectators, as the players found it almost impossible to place the ball where they wanted it to go.

Over twenty members took part in the rough riding exhibition, commanded by Lieut. O'Ryan. All of the customary events, such as mounting at full gallop and a trot, and Roman riding with teams of two and three horses were performed with scarcely an error. Ten of the rough-riders conducted teams of two and three horses, standing astride, over half a dozen low jumps, and the horses were kept going at a fast pace.

Among those taking part in the various events were J. H. Smith, C. D. Randall, C. W. White, W. B. Lawrence, W. J. B. Mills, W. McKeever, H. Major, C. W. Allen, N. S. Babbitt, E. V. Holland, W. S. Wood, L. C. Wagner; C. V. Jordan, J. R. Hilton, W. C. Dixon, M. P. Garretson, T. C. Crawford, J. I. Berry, W. Brennan, L. E. Reed, J. W. Slawson, W. F. maul, D. Hennessy, A. F. McCabe, L. Coventry and E. H. Janes.

The members of the Seaside Fishing Club will open their house at the Highlands about May 1. The portion of the house that has been set aside for rent will be ready about the last week in June. The sloop belonging to the club will be overhauled and put in good condition this Summer.

Henry Talbot, Vice President of the Game and Fish Protective Association, says that since the protection of fish set in a few years ago fishing has not been what it used to be. He believes that efforts will finally result in success. Pulp and paper mills dispensing acids, ore mines discharging sulphites, and twenty fishermen to where were two, in a measure account for the change.

Flounders are biting freely in the Shrewsbury River, Jamaica Bay, Prince's Bay, City Island, Long Beach, Gravesend Bay and South Beach. Motor boat parties will leave Morgan's Station about April 15.

The change in the weather conditions has had a decided effect on shad, striped bass, trout, and herring. Improved conditions are expected when climatic changes take place.

Hundreds of thousands of brook trout fry have died in the State hatchery at Roxbury, and the mortality continues to so great an extent that there will be comparatively few for distribution when the brooks are clear and the time arrives for planting.

Columbia's Stroke Oar Out of Boat.

P. Cerussi, who has been stroking Columbia's first 'Varsity crew ever since the candidates have been on the water this year, was forced to stay away from practice yesterday owing to an injury to his right leg. He has received assurance from his physician, however, that it is nothing serious, and that he will probably be able to resume rowing before the end of the week. With the putting in of Braun, bow of last year's first boat, at the same place yesterday, Coach Rice seems to have filled the position to his satisfaction. The men who have rowed there previously are Haight, Spalding, Kobbe, and Sneviley.

There are at present four 'Varsity boats and two freshman, all of the men rowing on an average of eight miles every day. No four-oared crews have been picked as yet, nor is there any indication of how they will be made

WIN WITH ORTH PITCHING.

Greater New Yorks Find Lynchburg a Difficult Team to Beat.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNCHBURG, Va., April 8.—The regular team of the Greater New Yorks of the American League defeated the local champion team of the Virginia League here this afternoon in a five-inning game that was stopped by rain, by the score of 3 to 0. It was played in the mud. Despite this the playing was fast and snappy. Al Orth, whose home is in this city, pitched for the visitors, and it was only by sharp fielding that the opposing team did not score. The New Yorks were unable to bat Shemesky with any effect until the third inning, when Orth hit for a double. After that there were three more doubles and a scratch hit, which Moriarty beat out by a small margin.

The runs of the big leaguers in the first inning were the result of Hoffman being hit by the first pitched ball of the game, followed by a wild pitch and a wide throw of Betscher to first, on Keeler's hard drive to third. Hoffman scored from second on the throw-in, and Keeler went to third. The latter tallied on Conroy's long fly to left. In the first inning Kleinow scored on Betscher's wide throw to first base. In the second inning Kleinow doubled to left field. Orth advanced him on a sacrifice and Kleinow scored on Betscher's wide throw to first base. In the second inning, with no one out, the locals filled the bases by two doubles and a base on balls. Orth struck out the next batter, and Hoffman slipped in from centre and caught Henninger napping at second. Then Shemesky struck out.

The New Yorks leave to-night after being joined by the second team, which played at Roanoke to-day, for Baltimore for two games before the opening of the season. The score:

More Clubs for Inter-City Baseball.

The meeting of the Intercity Baseball Association at Lyric Hall, Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, last night was largely attended. President Nat Strong was in the chair and Secretary Joseph J. Prince of the Spooner Field Club of Brooklyn took charge of the minutes. Eight new clubs were admitted to membership. They were the Bay Ridge A. C. of Brooklyn; Omaha A. C., Bronx; St. Philip's A. C., New York; Missouri Pacific Baseball Club, ("Mops,") New York; North Hudson A. C., Jersey City; Erie A. C., Brooklyn; Carlton A. C., New York, and the All-Mount Vernons, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Treasurer Holmes, who leases Ozone Park, Ozone, L. I., predicted a successful season and said the members of the association would receive the preference in obtaining dates at his grounds.

Some of the clubs represented at the meeting were the Okalonas Field Club, Brooklyn; Bay Ridge A. C., Kingston A. C., Brooklyn; Stapleton A. A., Staten Island, and Atlas A. C., Jersey City.

Just Before the Baseball Season.

Winter weather and bad grounds yesterday stopped the Giants from playing the Newark team of the Eastern League at the Polo Grounds and the Brooklyns from playing between themselves at Washington Park.

To-day the Giants will play the university nine at Princeton, and Brooklyn will go to Holyoke. To-morrow McGraw's men will play the Jersey City team at the Polo Grounds and Brooklyn will go to Norwich, Conn.

The Greater New Yorks will encounter a pretty severe proposition to-day and to-morrow, when they meet "Jack" Dunn's candidates for Eastern League honors at Baltimore. As the runners-up for the American League championship last year are scheduled to open the regular season at Washington on Thursday, the two games at Baltimore should place them in admirable shape to begin a strenuous campaign.

While Manager McGraw will not say so, it is generally believed that the Giants' leader has given up all hope of having Donlin on the team this season. That "Mike's" batting will be missed goes without saying, but this excellent qualification is conceded to be offset by eccentricities which mars his work considerably.

According to George Davis, there was no trouble between President Comiskey and himself which caused him to hold back so long before reporting for work. "The fact is," said Davis, "I did not want to take the trip to Mexico and Comiskey let me off."

President Murphy will delay the raising of the National League championship pennant on the Chicago grounds until President Pulliam of the League can attend.

Word came from Manager Clark Griffith's camp yesterday that Hobbs, a student of the University of North Carolina, might become a member of the Greater New York's pitching staff before long. Hobbs is six foot two, weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds, and is said to be a fast and steady pitcher.

Chicagoans are much pleased over the fact that Catcher King has agreed to play again this year, and will support Mordecai Brown in the opening game on Thursday against St Louis.

"Jim" McGuire's second team of the Greater New Yorks was unable to play the scheduled game at Roanoke, Va., yesterday on account of rain.

YALE AND HARVARD TO PLAY.

Managers of Football Team Agree to Meet, Probably on Nov. 23.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 8.—Yale and Harvard are to meet on the football field next Fall. Negotiations for the game have been practically concluded between the managers of the two elevens, in spite of the fact that the general athletic agreement between the two institutions expired last March. The date for the contest will not be announced until the Yale schedule is completed, but it is understood to be Saturday, Nov. 23. The game will, of course, be played at Cambridge, as Harvard came to Yale last Fall.

No opposition from the Yale Faculty is expected to the game, or, indeed, to the ratification of the Yale schedule, which will be submitted to the Faculty as soon as one or two minor details are perfected. Although Mr. Foster would not confirm the dates to-night, it is understood that Yale's important games, which take place in November, are to be as follows:

Nov. 2, Yale and Washington and Jefferson University at New Haven; Nov. 9, Yale and Brown at New Haven; Nov. 16, Yale and Princeton at New Haven, and Nov. 23, Yale and Harvard at Cambridge.

Professional Skating Races Revived.

Professional roller skating formed the feature last night of the weekly competitions at the Clermont Rink, Brooklyn. Five of the fastest professionals in the East started in the three-mile race, which was won by Chester D. Smith of Scranton, Penn. Harry McDonald, formerly of the New York Athletic Club, and his brother, J. J. McDonald, were contestants, but in the fourth lap, when the pair led by over ten yards, J. J. McDonald fell, and this tripped his brother, putting both out of the race. Summary:

Three-Mile Race.—Won by Chester D. Smith, Scranton; B. Anthony, Newark, second; T. Longfield, Jersey City, third. Time—11:04.

Williams First in Swimming Race.

The weekly handicap swimming race of the New York Swimming Association, held last night at the Interior Baths, 232 West Sixtieth Street, was won by Williams after a close contest with Culhane. Williams received two yards' handicap and finished second to Roeberg (8 seconds) in the first heat. Summaries:

60-Yard Handicap.—First Heat—Won by Roeberg, (8 seconds;) Williams, (2 yards,) second. Time—0:50 3-5. Second Heat—Won by Curran, (9 yards;) Acker, (6 yards,) second. Time—0:51. Third Heat—Won by Culhane, (16 seconds;) Miller, (scratch,) second. Time—0:50 4-5. Final Heat—Won by Williams;

MAY BE COLUMBIA FOOTBALL.

Rumor Credits Authorities with Favorable Action—Start Next Fall.

There was a well-defined rumor about the Columbia University campus last evening that the virtual consent of the authorities to the restoration of football had been obtained, and that the game would be resumed this year. Color was given to the story by the refusal of the various members of the student committee recently appointed to consult with President Butler, the Trustees, and the University Athletic Committee to discuss the situation, of which they talked freely heretofore. The frank avowal of Chairman Francis S. Bangs of the University Athletic Committee a few days ago in favor of the new game was supposed to indicate an early resumption, though no official declaration on the subject could be secured.

There was a meeting of the Columbia Trustees yesterday afternoon, at which the subject was expected to be broached, but no announcement was made regarding it. The hearing of the Alumni Committee, headed by D. Le Roy Dresser, was also expected to take place early this week. The combination of favorable indications are taken to mean that final disposition of the subject has been made, and the general demand for the game satisfied.

In the recent agitation for the game the sentiment has been almost unanimous in favor of resumption. The students, of course, have been united in their desire to play, and the alumni have backed them up solidly. The most substantial men among the graduates—men who have given liberally to the support of Columbia and have been influential in directing her policies—have taken up the cudgel for the sport. Only President Butler and a few of the university professors have opposed it. Secretary Pine of the Board of Trustees and Chairman Bangs of the University Athletic Committee have been classed as determined opponents of the game.

At the alumni meeting at the opening of Hamilton Hall the first sign of a change of position was given by Mr. Pine, when he proposed a compromise resolution declaring in favor of resuming the game, but not committing the authorities to intercollegiate contests. Then last week Mr. Bangs declared that he thought the new game had remedied the evils of the field and suggested that if the other objections to the sport—its too great interest and too restricted participation—could be overcome he thought the desired resumption could be effected. There have been many rumors of the altered attitude of President Butler, so that there remained no active opposition to the sport that was apparent.

It is now believed that a basis has been agreed upon and that formal announcement of it only awaits the definition of the conditions under which the game will be permitted.

Auto Boat Makes Fast Record.

MONACO, April 8.—The resumption of the annual autoboat regatta to-day was marked by the performance of the seventeen-foot cruiser Mais-je-vais-piquer, which covered fifty kilometers in 98 minutes 24 seconds, in spite of heavy seas. This is said to be the best time ever made by a boat of the size, and is equal to nearly twenty-eight miles an hour.

The Oldsmobile Again a Winner!

An Oldsmobile Touring Car driven by Ralph R. Owen won a remarkable match race March 30th, over the 600 miles of miserable roads from Los Angeles to San Francisco. Incidentally it won a bet of $6,000, which shows that the Oldsmobile is a car to depend upon.

If this isn't evidence enough that the Oldsmobile is the car you ought to buy, think back over some of the past performances of this remarkable car. Think of that wonderful run from New York to Florida made last December, over the worst roads in the country, the car carrying four passengers and 600 lbs. of baggage. After making this record run—a feat never equalled in automobile history—the same car was entered in the Daytona Beach races and won.

Oldsmobile

If these things do not prove the perfect reliability of the Oldsmobile, let us refer you to the new record an Oldsmobile made over the mountain roads from Denver to Colorado Springs two weeks ago: 81 miles of hard going in two hours and eleven minutes.

Then remember the achievements of the Oldsmobile in 1906. If you read your newspaper, you will remember it won nearly every stock touring car event it entered—and it entered everything that was open.

These wonderful performances of the Oldsmobile during the past and the present season have made it easier than ever before to choose a car.

Of course you want a car that will do things; you want a car that will "stand up."

Then remember that the car that has done is the car that will do; the car that has stood up is the car that will stand up.

We claim nothing for the Oldsmobile that has not been actually proved by past performance. If you buy an Oldsmobile you are not dealing in "futures"—you are getting a car of such unique goodness that a new word had to be coined to describe it. That word is the sum and substance of satisfaction.

"OLDSMOBILITY", WHICH MEANS ROADABILITY, DURABILITY, RELIABILITY

We are ready to give you a personal demonstration at any time. We guarantee delivery on date promised at time of sale.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—AARON M. JANPOLE and LOUIS WEBNER, plaintiffs, against CHARLES MORRIS and TILLIE MORRIS, his wife; Simon Ruppin, Jennie Weill, John Weber, the name "John" being fictitious, &c., et al., defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the 28th day of March, 1907 I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 24th day of April, 1907, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Samuel Goldsticker, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

"All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the building and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City and County of New York, bounded and described as follows:

"Beginning at a point on the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street, distant one hundred and eighty-seven feet six inches easterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street and the easterly side of Amsterdam Avenue running thence southerly parallel with the easterly side of Amsterdam Avenue and part of the distance through a party wall, one hundred and twelve feet four and one-quarter inches; running thence easterly parallel with the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street, thirty-seven feet six inches; running thence northerly and parallel with the easterly side of Amsterdam Avenue, one hundred and twelve feet four and one-quarter inches to the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street, and thence westerly along the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street, thirty-seven feet six inches to the point or place of beginning, be said several distances and dimensions more or less."

Dated New York, April 1st, 1907.

NEUTRAL LINKS FOR WOMEN'S GOLF

Eastern Association Will Hold Championship Tourney at Atlantic City.

TO ISSUE HANDICAP LIST

Will Represent Fifty Clubs with Over Four Hundred Players—Point Trophy Cup Offered.

Atlantic City was chosen as the locality for the annual championship of the Eastern Women's Golf Association at the meeting of the Executive Committee yesterday, held at the home of the President, Mrs. E. F. Sanford, at the Hotel Hargrave, West Seventy-second Street. The choice of the Atlantic City course was somewhat in the nature of a surprise, as the Oakley and Brookline Clubs, near Boston, and the Merion Cricket Club of Philadelphia made applications for the event, but after the first ballot, when the sentiment in favor of the neutral Atlantic City course became prominent, the Boston and Philadelphia delegates agreed and factional differences were dropped. Mrs. Sanford made it clear, however, that the holding of the tournament on the dates selected, June 11 to 14, will depend upon the willingness of the Atlantic City Country Club to offer its course for that time, but no difficulty is expected.

The championship will be at thirty-six holes, medal play, eighteen holes being played on each day as was the case last season. On the third day the first match in the Tri-City Cup competition will be played, Boston meeting New York, while the winning team will play the Philadelphia women on the following day. Philadelphia won the trophy last year.

One new club was elected to membership, the Philadelphia Cricket Club, which gives a total of 78 clubs in the Eastern Association. Miss Frances C. Griscom reported that she had written to all of the clubs asking them to send lists of their women players with handicap allowances, as it is intended to issue a handicap list. Fifty clubs responded, with a total of 407 names. These women will all receive official handicap ratings in the Eastern Association list, which will be ready for use early in June.

It was also decided to offer a special trophy for the member of the association who makes the best golf showing during the year on a point scoring basis. A committee was appointed to arrange the points to be offered for taking part in open and club tournaments, winning first or second place and for competition in team matches. The woman golfer taking part in the largest number of events will naturally have the advantage of scoring the greatest number of points, provided she is a fair player. It is believed this trophy will act as a stimulus in bringing to the front many new players.

Besides Mrs. Sanford, the other members of the committee present were Miss Louise Wells, Boston; Miss Griscom and Mrs. Charles F. Fox, Philadelphia, and Miss Georgianna Bishop of the Brooklawn Club, Bridgeport, Conn. It has been proposed to increase the committee from nine to eleven members.

POWER BOAT CRUISE PLANS.

Itinerary of the Annual Event Announced by Chairman McIntosh.

The Cruise Committee of the American Power Boat Association has fixed the details of the annual cruise, which will be held in August. It will go to Jamestown to the Exposition, and will remain there for the week of motor boat racing, which is contemplated beginning Sept. 3. It is planned to occupy seven days in transit, stopping at various yacht clubs along the route.

The fleet will rendezvous at the Atlantic Yacht Club on the morning of Aug. 22. In the afternoon it will start for New Brunswick, where it will lie during the night, continuing through the Delaware and Raritan Canal in the morning. The night of Aug. 23 will be spent at the Riverton (N. J.) Yacht Club, and on the 24th the fleet will proceed to Delaware City, where it will be locked into the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal. Sunday will be spent in a run to the Sassafras River, and Aug. 26 will be spent in reaching Annapolis. The run for Aug. 27 is to Soloman's Island, and Aug. 28 to Milford Haven, while it is planned to reach Hampton Roads on the night of Aug. 29.

Ideal ALL YEAR Recreation

No other place in the country is so adapted for real rest and recreation as OLD POINT COMFORT; and at the HOTEL CHAMBERLIN, one of the famous hotels of the world, one finds genuine home comforts, with that rare Southern hospitality we often read about, but so seldom find.

If you have been here before, you need no urging to come again. If you've never been here, write to-day for full particulars.

THE POMPEIAN BATHS, new this season, are the finest and most complete in the country. Every form of bath for Hydro-therapeutic treatment. For swimming, the beautiful SEA POOL, 40x75 feet, lined with ceramic mosaic tile, is filled with pure, fresh sea water agreeably warmed; the whole room being radiant with sunlight.

The Atrium and entire pool are furnished and patterned after the Baths of Diocletian at Rome.

Special book on Baths and Bathing sent free. Write me to-day. Address

BANKS AGAIN GAIN CASH

Money Market Ease Sustains Prices—Possibility of Reduction in Bank of England's Discount Rate.

Prices in yesterday's stock market fell steadily throughout the morning session and well into the first hour of the afternoon, and then rose slowly until at the close all of the day's losses had been reduced to unimportant fractions. Profit-taking sales and the tentative renewal of short selling by the more speculative elements of the Street divided the responsibility for the downward movement, while the afternoon advance on dull trading represented, apparently, the covering of older short accounts and bona fide purchases. In the morning dip Union Pacific was conspicuous, losing in all a trifle more than 2 points, and other active shares followed its example with declines only little less severe. News developments of the day were relatively unimportant so far as they affected financial markets, although much interest attached to private cables from London banking houses intimating the probability of a reduction in the discount rate of the Bank of England at the meeting of the Directors on Thursday. The reasons for such expectations seem to lie in the fact that so complete a change has come over the money markets here that a drain of gold from London is no longer to be feared, this making it possible, of course, for the Bank of England to secure without difficulty the heavy consignments of new gold constantly arriving at the English capital from South Africa. The Bank of England obtained over $1,300,000 gold in this manner yesterday and the continued firmness of foreign exchange markets at quotations precluding engagements for American account points toward the rapid upbuilding of the resources of the Bank. The home money market also showed further improvement as a result of the measures of the Treasury Department, and while the necessity of preparing for the redemption of such of the Government 4 per cent. bonds maturing in July as are not refunded into 2 per cents. will apparently compel Mr. Cortelyou to limit the customs receipts to be placed at the disposal of local banks from this time forward, deposits thus far have been so heavy that the position has become much easier.

It is only necessary to recall that a year ago this week the banks were confronted by a deficit in reserves, that call money rose to 25 per cent., and that Secretary Shaw put into effect his interest saving device in order to promote an inflow of gold, to appreciate the real ease in money now. The present surplus of the banks, $19,441,000, has only been exceeded a half dozen times in a decade or more at this season of the year. Call money rules around 2 per cent., after having touched 1 per cent., the lowest rate quoted at this time since 1893, and rates in the foreign exchange market have advanced to the point where discussion of gold exports is invited. The banks reported a substantial gain from the Sub-Treasury yesterday, and in spite of the preparations which were under way for the making of rather heavy payments falling due to-day, including the $24,000,000 representing four installments upon the $60,000,000 of new Great Northern stock, the money market was undisturbed.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Interest in the stocks listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange to-day centred in the Traction issues, and Chicago City Railway was the strong feature. There was little of this stock to be had at any price, as fully 95 per cent. of the $18,000,000 outstanding is held by the Morgan-Mitchell syndicate. The remaining 5 per cent. is closely held. There is a demand for North and West Chicago and for Union Traction preferred, but the common is a clear gamble in the eye of the speculator which may or may not get a little out of the reorganization.

BALTIMORE TRADING.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 8.—United Railways' issues were the leading and strongest feature today. The free stock sold up to 13¾, an advance of ⅞. The income bonds at 56½ were up ⅜. Gottlieb-Bauernschmidt-Strauss Brewing issues were also firmer, the 4s advancing ½. Seaboard 4s and 5s were firmer, as were also Mount Vernon Woodberry Cotton Duck 5s. Fidelity & Deposit Company shares gained another point. Consolidated Cotton Duck shares were stronger. Houston Oil stocks were harder.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—United Gas Improvement developed decided strength to-day, rising sharply on buying by important interests. Philadelphia Electric held firm, but Philadelphia Rapid Transit declined a point. Two strong features were Tonopah Belmont and Tonopah Mining, both of which were in active demand. Reading and United States Steel were heavily dealt in, and Cambria Steel and Lehigh Valley were also fairly active. Total sales, 47,430 shares.

TOPICS OF WALL STREET.

The present stock market is almost entirely professional, and it is plain that professional operators at the present time are exceedingly cautious. Traders have no disposition to conceal the fact that their experiences in the recent panic have imbued them with ths idea that a fixed position on one side of the market or the other is not particularly good until the situation becomes clearer and the tendency of prices more distinct. This cautious attitude is reflected in the daily irregularity of price movements, even while the general sentiment is bullish.

While ths volume of trading yesterday was comparatively large, the market did not present an appearance of activity. Brokerage offices scemed to he doing very little, and it was a general complaint throughout the Street that there was practically no commission business. This is scarcely true, but it is safe to assume that a very large part of the day's transactions originated either on the floor or in professional headquarters. This particular kind of a market does not reflect anything more than the individual sentiment of a few traders.

***

London advices were very hopeful from the point of view of general conditions, and particularly with regard to ths money market, but a lower range of prices for Americans was not regarded as supplementing the general tenor of the dispatches. There is a well-grounded belief that the Bank of England will reduce its rate on Thursday to 4 per cent. This in itself would be the best manifestation of a betterment in money conditions abroad, but the cancellation of a gold engagement last week showed very plainly that our needs in that respect are not so serious as they appeared to be a week or so ago. With regard to the reduction of the Bank of England rate, bankers here point out that it must not be taken for granted until actually accomplished, inasmuch as the Governors of that institution have had an extreme lesson in conservatism and will move very slowly.

***

Few stocks presented price movements of interest in yesterday's market. While attention was directed to the Amalgamated Copper and Anaconda issues, there was nothing very conclusive in the fluctuations in these stocks. Amalgamated was one of the most active issues, and at times showed pressure, but it was not very weak, nor did it give the opportunity to the bear crowd to force the stock down sharply. One of the elements of strength in this stock, as in Union Pacific, St. Paul and other issues paying a substantial dividend, is that the present figures are attractive to those who figure out the investment yield.

***

Among the bond houses there is a disposition to believe that the betterment in bonds is not merely temporary. They express the opinion that it will be continued, and that a good bond market is entirely probable. This is not unanimous, and possibly the appearance of savings banks as purchasers of bonds has helped the impression that a substantial bettsrment is likely. It is true that the market for bonds of a certain character has improved distinctly, and this manifestation of investment demand has attracted less attention than it should ordinarily because of the activity in the note market.

***

Brokers have to answer all kinds of questions from their customers, and for the most part these questions are shrewd and to the point. The day when the trader was a novice in everything that pertained to stock trading has passed. The query most often heard these days is whether in the opinion of the broker a period of industrial depression is impending. Of course, no broker will admit that he cannot answer promptly and precisely such questions, but it is to be feared that many of the answers would make an economist shiver. Certainly there seems to be no set formula for a reply to this question, and the Delphic Oracle never devised more subtle combinations of words that might mean anything or nothing than are sent out from the fininclal district. Brokers are not to be blamed for their inability to satisfy curiosity on this point, for the division of opinion is national, and not local.

***

A former Governor of Massachusetts who is a very large employer of labor was in the financial district last week. Ordinarily he is extremely optimistic, but at the same time he is noted for his close attention to all factors and conditions that enter into his particular industry. He expressed himscif as satisfied with conditions generally, but he took the position that corporations and companies doing an extensive business should fortify themselves against the emergency of a temporary halt in business. To that end he has taken steps himself, but he does not manifest any pronounced pessimism as to the ultimate outcome.

***

One of the disadvantages of the averagc system in the bank statement is that the exact condition of the banks at the end of the week is not presented. One of the advantages is that it conceals weak spots until there is time to adjust matters in a satisfactory manner. The supplementary report gives a good idea of the condition of individual banks. For instance, there were twenty-one banks last Saturday showing less than 25 per cent. reserve. Considering the increase in reserve and the total reserves of the banks, this number is comparatively large, but it is a substantial reduction from the corresponding week a year ago.

***

Operators who trade on technical conditions and who are very careful to watch all possible developments both here and in London were purchasers of stocks. This position is based on the theory that a betterment in prices in London was practically certain to-day, inasmuch as it was the first day of the settlement, and trading would be for the new account. Reference to first settlement days transactions in London are not conclusive as to the accuracy of this theory, but of course conditions are different at each settlement day, and the present optimism in London may warrant this view of the situation at the present time.

***

Were it possible to compile a list of the individuals who are rated in the public mind as millionaires who lost heavily in the late slump, a very interesting question might be raised as to where the inspiration for a sustained upward movement would come from at the present time. A dozen men might be mentioned who suffered losses of from a quarter of a million dollars to two million dollars, and in one instance at least a man who had been a consistent bear for months previous was hit to the extent of more than $1,000,000. For the first time in years he has closed all his stock accounts and hereafter will eschew the game.

Curb Trading Taking Cue from 'Change Moves Within Narrow Limits.

MANHATTAN TRANSIT UP

Sheehan Stock Goes to 5¼ on Heavy Trading—Copper Irregular, with Some Losses.

Curb trading, taking its cus from the Inside market, was extremely sluggish yesterday, and prices moved within narrow limits, though there were some features of activity. Notable among these was Manhattan Transit, which moved up from 4 to 5¼, on transactions of 8,000, closing at 5¼. International Mercantile Marine preferred was active on the downward scale, selling 1,000 from 24¾ to 24.

Little interest was manifested in the coppers, although the Cole-Ryan shares were traded in in considerable volume and a number of small recessions were made in the narrow market. Butte Coalition sold off from 28¼ to 27½, on transactions of 1,250. Greene-Cananea and Greene Consolidated both moved upward fractionally, the former going from 17 to 17⅝, and closing at 17¼, after transactions of 4,000, and the latter rising from 25⅜ to 26, on transactions of 800. Boston Copper sold 1,250 from 26½ down to 25⅝.

NEW NATIONAL BANK.

To be Opened in Brunswick Hotel Building Near Madison Square Soon.

A new National bank which is to be identified with business interests in the Madison Square neighborhood is being organized by Leslie R. Palmer of the law firm of Olney & Comstock of 68 William Street, and expects to open for business within a few months in the new Brunswick Hotel building, which is approaching completion, on the Fifth Avenue block front, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Streets.

Mr. Palmer said yesterday that the scheme had not progressed far enough as yet for him to say who would be the backers of the bank. He said that a charter had been applied for, and that the capital at the start would be $200,000, with a surplus of an equal amount. He said options had been taken on one of the ground floor offices in the New Brunswick Hotel.

Yesterday the law firm of Olney & Comstock, as counsel for the Organization Committee, advertised for applications for official and clerical positions in the new bank.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 8.—The supplies of money were plentiful in the market today and rates were easy. Discounts were lower in anticipation of a reduction in the Bank rate.

The Bank of England obtained all the gold available in the market, $1,750,000, at a reduced price. The Indian Secretary secured an option on $625,000 in gold due here shortly.

Operators on the Stock Exchange were chiefly occupied with the arrangement of the settlement, though a cheerful tone prevailed, and prices, led by consols, hardened, chiefly owing to the easier rates for money.

Foreigners improved, owing to Paris support, Russians recovering from an early decline. Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 103¾.

Americans started at above parity and further improved, especially Canadian Pacific, but the bears sold Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and United States Steel, and trading became dull, with prices easy. Later New York sent a few buying orders, but the volume of business was not large, and the market closed with prices quietly steady.

Bar silver steady at 30 3-16d per ounce.

Money, 2½@3 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 4 1-16@4⅛ per cent.; for three months' bills, 4@4⅛ per cent.

Bar gold, 77s 9d. American eagles, 76s 4½d.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 10.00; Lisbon, 2.75.

***

PARIS, April 8.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened firm, trading was inactive, and the market closed dull on a roaction in Russians. Russian imperial 4s closed at 73.40 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 488.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f 67½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f-28c for checks.

***

BERLIN, April 8.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were weak. Americans were lower on New York advices.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 52¼ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates: Short bills, 4 per cent.; three months' bills, 5⅛ per cent.

OUTSIDERS TO BID ON NEW SUBWAYS

Interborough to Meet Lively Competition in Getting Building Contracts.

METZ'S PLAN FOR 96TH ST.

He Has a Scheme to Obviate Congestion at That Point by Changing the System of Switching.

There is every prospect that the Interborough-Metropolitan Company will not have its own way in the bidding on the construction of new subways. It developed yesterday that there is every prospect of sharp competitive bidding for the construction of the new north and south lines, and in view of this it is possible, if not probable, that the leasing of the new roads to operating companies may be delayed until the lines are built.

Previous to yesterday it had been assumed that the Interborough would be the only bidder, because, it was widely believed, it was the only company that could operate the lines, give transfers and otherwise comply with the requirements laid down by the Rapid Transit Commissioners.

It was learned on the best authority yesterday that several local contracting firms will bid for the construction work, and in addition to this contracting firms in Boston and Chicago have asked for the plans and conditions, presumably with the idea of competing for the contracts.

In some quarters the advent of what may be termed foreign contractors into the field is thought to presage the introduction of out-of-town capital. The fact that outsiders are apparently willing to bid for the building of the tunnel roads is looked upon as indicating that the same concerns may, at some later date, put in a bid for the privilege of operating.

Should the Interborough not be successful in obtaining the contract, the letting of the roads to an operating company will necessarily go over until the lines are completed, or nearly so. As that time is about four years off, there is considerable likelihood of the traction situation changing in the meanwhile.

Bids for the subway loop between the three East River bridges will be opened by the members of the board on Thursday. There will probably be six or eight bids. No question of operation enters into the bidding. Some of the firms which are bidding on the building of the loop are also expected to bid on the Lexington and Seventh and Eighth Avenue subways.

At the meeting of the Rapid Transit Commission on Thursday Controller Metz will probably submit a plan, devised by one of his engineers, to obviate the congestion at Ninety-sixth Street in the Subway at an expenditure of about $2,000, instead of at a cost of $850,000, the sum approximated as the cost of installing the three additional tracks suggested by the Interborough.

The Finance Department plan contemplates the running of all local trains past the Ninety-sixth Street Station without a stop. Whatever switching is necessary for south-bound Lenox Avenue locals would be done south of the station, and northbound Broadway expresses would also be switched before they reached the station.

Apparently the drawbacks to the plan are that it would entirely deprive the residents of the section near the Ninety-sixth Street Station of local service; that it would prevent persons living to the north taking advantage of the express service between Seventy-second Street and Ninety-sixth Street, and that it would not eliminate the cross-over switches which cause all the trouble at present, but would simply move them further to the south, probably transferring the present congestion at Ninety-sixth Street to Seventy-second Street.

INSURANCE LOSSES HEAVY.

Jersey Companies Hard Hit by San Francisco Fire, Report Shows.

The fire and marine insurance companies doing business in the State of New Jersey, the annual report of Commissioner of Banking and Insurance Watkins, issued yesterday, shows, paid out fire losses last year amounting to $221,644,684, or within $2,289,680 of the year's total premiums, the losses being $123,276,618 larger than in 1905. This showing includes thirty-two foreign companies doing business in New Jersey, as well as the 104 companies operating in that State but organized in other States. The total number of companies included in the report was 171.

The San Francisco conflagration was responsible for the great increase in the fire losses. As a result of these losses, the surplus of the companies over all liabilities was smaller than in 1905 by $37,730,943, amounting to $100,053,349. The aggregate capital of all the companies increased by $8,018,515, but the assets at the end of 1906 were smaller by $1,903,024 than they were at the close of the previous year.

The foreign companies, the report shows, received from their home offices last year $47,221,477 more than they remitted abroad, whereas in 1905 they sent to their home offices $5,887,113 more than was received from them. This change was due to the heavy remittances to this country made by foreign companies to cover their Pacific Coast losses.

SERVES $36,000 ATTACHMENT.

Sheriff's Office Ties Up Funds of the Friede Globe Tower Company.

Deputy Sheriff Burnes has received an attachment for $36,716 against the Friede Globe Tower Company of 27 William Street in favor of Henry R. Wade on an assigned claim of the Empire Bond and Securities Company for balance of commissions on sales of stock of the Friede Globe Tower Company.

The attachment was granted on the ground that the concern is an Arizona corporation. It was stated that the Empire Bond and Securities Company sold 84,808 shares of preferred stock at $10 per share on 25 per cent. commission, amounting to $87,020, of which $57,000 has been paid, and 15,192 shares of preferred stock at $10 per share, on which the commission was 5 per cent., amounting to $7,596.

The Sheriff served the attachment on the Colonial Trust Company, where the company has an account, and also put a keeper in the office at 27 William Street. Officers of the company said that the attachment would be bonded immediately as soon as the necessary legal papers could be prepared.

The company is building the big 750-foot tower at Coney Island. Henry R. Wade was formerly Treasurer of the company.

No More Salary for Attorney General.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT,
Third Judicial District,
Ulster County.
ASHOKAN RESERVOIR.
Section No. 4.
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSIONERS OF APPRAISAL.

Public notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York to make application to the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended. Such application will be made at a Special Term of the Supreme Court to be held in and for the Third Judicial District, AT THE COURT HOUSE, IN THE CITY OF KINGSTON, ULSTER COUNTY, N. Y., ON MAY 15TH, 1907, AT 10 O'CLOCK in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard. The object of such application is to obtain an order of the court appointing three disinterested and competent freeholders, one of whom shall reside in the County of New York, and at least one of whom shall reside in the county where the real estate hereinafter described is situated, to act as Commissioners of Appraisal under said act, and discharge all the duties conferred by the said law and the acts amendatory thereof, upon such Commissioners of Appraisal, for the purpose of providing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water for the City of New York.

The real estate to be acquired herein is situated in the Town of Olive, and is to be acquired in fee for the purpose of furnishing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water to the City of New York.

The following is a statement of the boundaries of the lands to be acquired herein, with a reference to this date and place of filing of the map.

All the parcels herein described are to be acquired in fee and are colored pink on the map hereinafter referred to.

All those certain pieces or parcels of real estate situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, shown on a map entitled "Reservoir Department, Section No. 4, Board of Water Supply of the City of New York, Map of real estate, situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, to be acquired by The City of New York under the provisions of Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended, for the construction of Ashokan Reservoir and appurtenances, in the vicinity of Olive City and Brodhead," which map was filed in the office of the County Clerk of the County of Ulster, at Kingston, New York, on the 4th day of March, 1907, and is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the junction of the centre lines of the Tongore and Samsonville Roads, said point being the southeast corner of parcel No. 145, and running thence along the centre line of the said Samsonville Road and the southerly line of said parcel No. 145, S. 67° 18' W. 105.4 feet to the southeast corner of parcel No. 143; PUBLIC NOTICES.

INVITATION TO CONTRACTORS.
LEXINGTON AVENUE ROUTE.

The City of New York (hereinafter called the City,) acting by its Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners (hereinafter called the Board,) contemplates building a Rapid Transit Railroad along the routes described below. By this advertisement the City invites proposals to construct such railroad upon the routes and in accordance with the detailed plans and specifications adopted therefor. Such proposals may be submitted for any one or more of the eleven separate parts of which such railroad consists, as hereinafter stated.

The points within the City between which the said several parts of the said road are to run and the route or routes to be followed, are briefly as follows:

Section 5-O-3: This part of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan, begins at Lexington Avenue and 129th Street and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point at a point 50 feet north of 103rd Street.

Section 5-O-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-3, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 71st Street.

Section 5-O-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-2, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue and Morris Avenue and then curves under private property to a point in 149th Street between Morris Avenue and Courtlandt Avenue, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the present subway.

Section 5-C-1: This part of Section 5-C as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the northerly end of Section 5-O above described, and runs thence northerly under Lexington Avenue and the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, and then continues under Park Avenue to 150th Street.

Section 5-C-2: This part of Section 5-C consists of a loop beginning at a point on the main line of the route of Section 5-C at Park Avenue and 140th Street, and runs under private property 153rd Street, Exterior Street and Sedgwick Avenue to the intersection of Sedgwick Avenue and 164th Street.

Section 5-C-3: This part of Section 5-C consists of a loop beginning in the Borough of the Bronx at a point in Park Avenue between 151st and 152nd Streets, and runs thence northwesterly and westerly under private property and connects with the spur Section 5-C-2 above described near the point where the centre line of said spur would intersect 151st Street if produced.

Section 5-D-3: This part of Section 5-D as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O above described in Lexington Avenue between 42nd and 43rd Streets, and runs thence southerly under Lexington Avenue on a curve to a point between 36th and 37th Streets, at which point the tracks will diverge into two branches. One of these branches will curve southwesterly under private property to 36th Street, and then run westerly under 36th Street, curving southerly into Fifth Avenue, and then under Fifth Avenue to a point where it will be rejoined by the second branch diverging as above stated. The second branch will run from the said point of divergence southerly and westerly under Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to Fifth Avenue, where it will rejoin the other branch first described at a point between 34th and 35th Streets. From the last mentioned point, the route of this Section will run southerly under Fifth Avenue along Madison Square and into Broadway; thence southerly under Broadway to a point about half way between 17th and 18th Streets.

Section 5-D-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-3 and runs southerly under Broadway (passing under Union Square) to a point about 50 feet north of Reade Street.

Section 5-D-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-2, and runs thence southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Church Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street to a suitable terminus under Battery Park.

The general plan of construction calls for a railroad placed on viaducts or tunnels. The road is intended to be operated by electricity or some other power not requiring combustion within the tunnels and the motors are intended to be capable of moving trains at a speed of not less than forty miles per hour for long distances, exclusive of stops.

For all of Sections 5-O-1, 5-O-2, 5-O-3 and 5-A there will be four tracks. For Section 5-B there will be two tracks. For Section 5-C-1 and Section 5-C-2, there will be two tracks. In the loop above described in Section 5-C-2, there will be one track. For Section 5-D-3 there will be four tracks as far south as the point between 36th and 37th Streets, where the line diverges as above described; there will be two tracks from the point of divergence through 36th Street and Fifth Avenue to the point where the lines reunite and two tracks from the point of divergence through Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to the point in

More than a quarter of a million dollars has been spent by us in the physical development and improvement of this high-grade Residential Park. Does not that demonstrate and establish our absolute faith in its future?

We will ask YOU to determine the effect which our work and the new transportation facilities must have on the value of land in Beechhurst. Quite a number of houses of handsome architecture are now in course of construction. They can be bought on a monthly payment plan. Lots are 10% lower than they will be after the first of May—and you have a wider choice. Are you interested? Then send for a descriptive booklet with photographs.

"HOW THEY GOT RICH,"

revised and improved. This booklet, the subtitle of which is "Real Estate Facts," is something every one who wants to get ahead on sound principles should read and study. Do not write for it if you are one of those that think to plant to-day and reap to-morrow; if you want to get rich as rapidly as that you can generally find a kindly poolroom to take your money and place it on a sure thing, or you can go to the tracks yourself shortly. But if you want to take advantage of a sound principle, a principle as sound as the growth of crops, I mean the increase of real estate values in Greater New York, send your name and address and let us show you what you can do for as little as $60 or $70 down and $12 or $15 monthly.

GUESS WHAT THIS MEANS:

L-E-O-N-I-A!

It Means Much If You are Looking for a Beautiful Home Site.

It Means Still More if You Seek a Wonderful Investment.

LEONIA is the name of the most picturesque suburb round about New York—a haven of rest; healthfulness and refinement, where rent money is paid from one pocket into the other; where rapidly increasing land values net one a handsome dividend on one's savings; where the shrieking of city whistles gives way to the song of birds; where one may live—as one should live—quietly, peacefully, joyously, economically and profitably; where houses and lots are sold on the easy monthly payment plan, and, in brief,

JUST WHERE YOU AND YOUR FAMILY SHOULD LIVE.
JUST WHERE YOUR INVESTMENT WILL GROW FASTEST.
JUST 15 MINUTES FROM 130TH STREET FERRY.

Come to LEONIA, where life is worth the living; where beautiful homes, churches, schools, clubs, and all sorts of healthful amusement places abound; where fishing, boating, and bathing are at their best—a place we invite you to visit at OUR expense.

THE COZIEST OF HOMES

It does not follow that a cozy home must be a small cramped affair. The fact that it may be plenty large, amid attractive surroundings and yet cozy, is proven by a visit to any one of the many houses ready for

Immediate Occupation at

MORSEMERE.

They have all been designed for maximum comfort and elegance, with reasonableness in price.

One of the most perfectly appointed, charmingly located, artistically arranged and withal comparatively inexpensive homes is but partly described as follows:

Nine rooms and bath, steam heated, double hardwood floors on first floor. Hardwood trim throughout—Oak, first floor; Red Hazel on second and third floors. Cemented cellars. Decorations, fixtures, mantels, etc., complete and selected to please the most critical.

All improvements in the street—Water, gas, sewer, cement sidewalks, curb and gutters; shade trees. One block to trolley, whence seven minutes to 130th Street Ferry. Price, $9,500, on terms to suit purchaser.

DELIGHTFUL COMMUNITY, GOOD SCHOOLS AND MODERATE TAXES are but few of the attractive features of this most easily accessible suburb. Office on the property.

TALK ON AUTO-INTOXICATION.

Dr. Stern Believes It Causes Insanity In Some Cases.

Dr. Heinrich Stern, Professor of Medicine in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Boston, at last night's meeting of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence in the Academy of Medicine, 17 West Forty-third Street, developed a theory that many of the lawyers, who, as members of the society were present, said went further than the famous "brainstorm" hypothesis.

Dr. Stern had been speaking of what he called "auto-intoxication," which he defined as resulting from poisons generated within the organism itself, such, for instance, as the poisoning resulting from the retention of carbon dioxide which had been developed within the system.

Auto-intoxication, he said, was distinguished from poisonings and disorders engendered through the taking into the organism of some extraneous substances or bacilli. Then he asserted positively that he believed auto-intoxication in certain forms produced insanity. Poisonings resulting from outside causes did so, and so did auto-intoxication. The strange acts of men who drew wills leaving their nurses fortunes might be traced to this cause. It was something of which the courts should ultimately take cognizance.

After an insane man died it would be possible to determine whether his mental disorder had been due to this cause by examining his blood. Also, if his insanity had been due to auto-intoxication his brain would not exhibit any change in molecular structure.

MATES WANT MORE PAY.

Demand to be Made by Union on Coastwise Steamship Companies.

For some weeks Harbor No. 1 of New York of the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots has been preparing demands for higher wages, to be presented to the coastwise steamship companies on behalf of the first, second, and third officers. Luther B. Dow, general manager of the union, said yesterday that the demands would be ready in a week, and would then be submitted to tha Maine, Mallory, Clyde, Ward, Red D, Metropolitan, Old Dominion, Southern Pacific, and Ocean Steamship lines.

Asked if he expected the companies to grant advances, Capt. Dow said:

"Tha wages are so low that the companies will surely not refuse to advance. When masters are only receiving $125 a month you may guess what the mates must be receiving. We will first ask for arbitration, and—our requests will be so moderate that I hardly think arbitration will be refused. We believe in arbitration and are opposed to strikes."

WANTS TO REVOKE ALL PARK LEASES

Hotels and Amusement Places Not Paying Fair Rentals, Controller Says.

PUBLIC BIDDING IS URGED

Lax Business Methods in Previous Letting—Claremont Repairs Eat Up Year's Rental.

Controllar Metz sent a letter to Commissioner of Parks Moses Herrman yesterday asking him to cancel the leases, permits, and licenses of practically all the businesses now conducted in the city's parks, including such places as McGown's Pass Tavern, the Casino, and Claremont. Mr. Metz's action was taken after he had received a report from the head of the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics which revealed some apparently remarkable things in connection with these matters, all supposed to be due to granting the privileges without public letting.

There are in the Park Department for Manhattan and Richmond approximately seventy of these licenses and leases outstanding. The terms on which they are held differ materially, some being under lease and others at the pleasure of the Commissioner. Some pay a fixed rental and others a percentage of the gross receipts. The places dealt with at length in the report include refreshment stands, stands for the letting of skates, amusement enterprises, and hotels.

How the City Loses.

The examiners found that there had been a tendency of recent years to reduce the rentals charged and a lack of businesslike methods in granting and renewing the licenses. A stand under the stairs of the Brooklyn Bridge, in City Hall Park, for instance, was first let by the city for $83 a month, and then the rent was reduced to $50. The lessee, it transpires, "farms" the privilege out for $100 a month, making a profit of $116.

The carrousel in Central Park has paid during the last three years not more than $498 a year in percentage. The same privilege in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, was leased for $6,600 a year by public letting. There are many similar instances of the city getting small return for valuable privileges.

Repair items, charged against the rentals, are dwelt upon in the report, and it is shown that in many cases the repairs, "so the examiners are informed," brought the rental down to a nominal sum, or else, as in several cases, wiped it out altogether. The allowances for repairs on Claremont, for instance, were so extensive that on the first of the year an amount equal to about one year's rent was due the proprietor from the city. The manager of the Arsenal Restaurant paid $1,000 a year as rent. Repairs and alterations cost $2,355, to be allowed on rent. This arrangement was made in October, 1905, and the lessee will not have to pay rent until October of this year. The West End Hotel Company, which has the hotel privilege at Boulevard Lafayette and 173d Street, has spent so much for repairs that it will be twenty years before it owes the city anything.

The Reforms Advocated.

The examiners make the following recommendations, all of which have been transmitted to Commissioner Herrman:

First.—That in future no reductions in rent should be granted and no allowances for repairs or alterations under existing leases should be made.

Second.—That in all cases where permits or leases are revocable they should be at once revoked, and, if the privilege is one which park use by the public makes desirable, the same be relet after public advertisement. If not a desirable or useful privilege for the public that it be discontinued.

Third.—That the rental of buildings in public parks for private occupancy be discontinued at once and the land given over to the use of the public and the buildings destroyed if not suitable for park purposes.

Fourth.—That where privileges are granted on a rental basis of percentage of gross receipts, some adequate system be established for checking these receipts to assure proper returns to the city.

Fifth.—That all future privileges granted should be only after public advertisement, and that no betterments or alterations should be permitted to be made by the lease holders in lieu of rent, all these improvements being properly the duty of the city and should be made before the privilege is put up at public letting, whereby the respective lessees will be in a position to make the best possible offer to the city for the use of the premises.

"I would further respectfully recommend," say the examiners, "that a copy of this report, with the accompanying schedule, be sent to the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity for his examination, to determine whether or not these various privileges are compensating the city for the use of its water.

"It is but fair to the present Commissioner of Parks, Boroughs of Manhattan and Richmond, the Hon. Moses Herrman, to say that all the leases and privileges referred to in the foregoing report were authorized prior to his taking office as Commissioner, and he has informed your examiners that he is making every endeavor to see that the irregularities complained of are remedied. He has already succeeded, he says, in revoking many licenses and collecting rents that have been a long time overdue."

NOTHING TO EAT FOR SIX DAYS

Starving Youth Arrested While Beating His Way Home on Train.

John Beckler, 19 years old, who said he lived at 1538 Frankfort Avenue, Philadelphia, was caught by Special Policeman Berry of the New York Central in a car at 131st Street and Twelfth Avenua on Sunday night while trying to beat his way into the city. He was taken before Magistrate Finelite yesterday morning, where he fainted. When he was revived he said he was starving, and had had nothing to eat for six days. After he had been fed he told his story.

Six months ago, he said, he had some trouble with his father, and left home. He met a sailor, and together they beat their way to Chicago. He got work there, but learned from his mother that she and her five children were penniless and that her husband was helpless in the hospital. Then he determined to return home at once, and was beating his way when arrested.

The youth's story so impressed his hearers that a new suit of clothes was bought for him and a sum sufficient to pay his fare home was raised among those in court.

SELLERS OF POOR MILK FINED

Penalty of $100 Imposed on Riebe for Handling Product Below Grade.

In the Court of Sneclal Sessions, before Presiding Justice Olmsted and Justices Deuel and Wyatt, a number of persons were fined for sellin~ milk which did not come up to the required standard of the Sanitary Code.

The largest fine, $100, was imposed on Charles A. Riebe of 410 West 127th Street. Philip Senger of 640 Union Avenue, was fined $50; and later in the day a woman who said she was Mrs. Frederica Senger of the same address was fined $10 for a similar offense. The woman had pleaded guilty and had paid her fine before it was discovered that her address was identical with that of the man Senger.

Others fined were William Held, 194 Broome Street, $40; Mary Milich, 545 West Fifty-ninth Street, $20; Charles H. Cave, 1,040 Jennings Street, $15; Eliza Turck, 228 Courtlandt Avenue, $10, and Max Dubin, 362 Bleecker Street, $10.

HORSE DECIDES THE CASE.

Animal Which Had Been Stolen Walks to Its Owner's Stable.

A horse decided a case in the Bayonne Police Court yesterday that had puzzled two lawyers and Acting Recorder Hugh H. Mara. Simon Cohn of 521 Avenue C reported to the police some time ago that his horse had been stolen. Later the horse said to be Cohn's was found in the possession of Jacob Alpine of Passaic.

Alpine declared the horse belonged to him, and nt first refused to surrender it. Cohn had witnesses to prove that the horse was his, and Lawyers Salter and Meinlker, who appeared for the defendant and the plaintiff respectively, wrangled over the ownership of the horse for over an hour and a half.

Finally Cohn said that the horse knew the way home from any part of Bayonne. The animal was liberated from a stall in the Police Headquarters, and the animal went straight to tha stable of Cohn. The court then decided that the horse belonged to Cohn.

The court and lawyers followed the horse at a distance of fifty feet to Cohn's stable, three blocks from the Police Headquarters.

LEONARD LISPENARD IN TRINITY VAULT

The Bones of a Man Who Died Over 100 Years Ago Find a New Resting Place.

FRIEND OF WASHINGTON

Descendants of Revolutionary Patriot Found His Bones on New Rochelle Estate.

For the first time in twenty-six years the Lispenard vault in old Trinity Church was opened yesterday and the remains of Leonard Lispenard, a member of one of the oldest families of New York, who died more than 100 years ago, were laid beside his relatives. When he died he was at his own request buried upon a favorite spot on his estate at New Rochelle, but the building up of that neighborhood disturbed his grave, and it was deemed fitting by the Lispenard descendants that his final resting place should be in the family vault.

Originally the vault was in Trinity graveyard, just behind the church, but when the chancel was enlarged it was built over the vault. A narrow passage gives access to it and other vaults, and down this yesterday afternoon the coffin of Leonard Lispenard was borne. Upon it was the inscription:

Leonard Lispenard, son of Leonerd Lispenard and Alice Rutgers, his wife. Born in 1743 and died about 1800.

His remains were first interred in Mount Aetna, near Davanport's Neck, New Rochelle, and disinterred by others, were removed to Trinity Church in 1907 by the children of the late Lispenard Stewart.

William R. Stewart, Lispenard Stewart, and Frank S. Willoughby were present yesterday. On either side were the entrances to vaults of the Colliaters, the Rogers, the Crugers, and other families well known in old New York. The bones were reverently inspected, and then the lid of the coffin was fastened down. It was placed among the coffins which for a century have held the other Lispenards, and the vault was securely sealed.

Workmen Found the Remains.

The remains of Leonard Lispenard were found on March 5 on the Fisher estate in New Rochelle at the corner of Siwanoy Avenue and Cedar Road. Some workmen as they cut away a rocky hill known to the children of the neighborhood as Mount Aetna came across a skull and bones and the rusted metal ornaments of a coffin. They lay in a cavity hewn in the rock, 20 inches deep, 7 feet long by 3 feet wide, and marked by a stone at its head and its foot.

It was evident that a regular burial had taken place there, and the discovery of the grave was mentioned in the newspapers. Careful inquiries were made by the children of Lispenard Stewart of this city, and it was established that the tomb contained all that was left of Leonard Lispenard, the brother of their great-great-grandfather. Arrangements were therefore made by them with the Trinity Church for the final deposit of the remains alongside those of the other members of the family.

The Lispenards are of Huguenot extraction. Antoine L'Espenard fled from Rochelle, France, in 1669 to escape the persecution of his faith. After an adventurous career in Northern New York he settled at New Rochelle in 1690 and built a manor house at Davenport's Neck, on what was afterward the old Iselin homestead.

Leonard Lispenard was his great-grandson. He was born in 1743, the eldest son of another Leonard Lispenard and Alice Rutgers. This older Leonard was a man of prominence in the colony. He owned the Rutgers farm, where now swarming thousands make Rutgers Street and East Broadway one of the most densely populated spots upon the globe, and a country house, then two miles from the city, where to-day Desbrosses and Hudson Streets join. Leonard and Lispenard Streets cross the old Lispenard meadows from Broadway to the North River. Leonard is an old family name, and the streets were called after the two Leonard Lispenards, father and son.

At a critical moment of the Revolution Leonard Lispenard, the elder, took up a position which did much to confirm the wavering minds of the good citizens of New York. Washington was on his way to take command of the forces besieging Boston. Gov. Tryon was on the high sea bringing with him unknown instructions from England. It was by no means certain that New York would throw in its lot with Massachusetts, and the city Council knew not what to do.

Washington His Guest.

Revolutionary General and Royal Governor arrived the same day, and the perplexed city fathers decided to receive them both with equal honors. But old Leonard Lispenard knew no wavering. To Washington he threw open his home on the North River, and for a few days it was the most important centre in the whole of America.

The exact date when he died is not known, but it was probably about 100 years ago. Already many of his kin had been buried in New Rochelle; on the Iselin estate a tombstone marks the resting place of Elizabeth, wife of David Lispenard, and Elizabeth, their daughter, who both died in 1797. So it was natural that Leonard Lispenard should ask that he might not be taken to the family vault in Trinity graveyard, but be laid in the open country, at the very spot where he had spent so many happy days.

When the Lispenard descendants heard that the changes of a century had disturbed the body of their ancestor, they decided to bring it to join its kith and kin underneath the chancel of Old Trinity. By a curious coincidence it was only last Fall that a memorial window was erected by the same family in St. Paul's Chapel at Columbia University in memory of Anthony, brother of the Leonard whose remains have just been found and son of the Col. Leonard Lispenard, who played so distinguished a part at the crisis of the Revolutionary War.

The public hearing in connection with the investigation into tha affairs of Borough President Ahearn's department, which was to have begun yesterday, was adjourned for a week at the request of Mr. Ahearn's counsel, Martin W. Littleton.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Snow or rain continues in New England, while there have been thunderstorms in Virginia and the Carolinas. Elsewhere the weather has been generally fair. It is colder in the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have fresh and variable winds and cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Tuesday, except snow in north portion. Wednesday, fair; fresh southwest to west winds.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair and slightly colder Tuesday. Wednesday, fair; fresh west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

SUSPEND SENTENCES NOW

In the Last Ten Days, by Order of Stolypin, None of the Military Death Sentences Has Been Carried Out.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 9.—While other questions are being hotly debated the immediate future and the whole situation depends upon what final action the Ministry will take in the matter of drumhead courts-martial.

So far as can be ascertained Premier Stolypin has kept faith, and for ten days none of the death sentences inflicted by the military courts has been carried out. Some have been commuted, but in the greater number of cases the sentences have simply been suspended. It is fair to say that the Premier is confronted with great difficulties. Several of the more important provincial Governors have challenged his authority to issue orders suspending sentence and the conflict of authority is before the Czar for decision.

The campaign of assassination by the revolutionaries, with the exception of several insignificant murders of police by irresponsible students, has also ceased, at least for the moment. What this cessation of crime, official and revolutionary, means will be more clearly understood when I say that a careful examination of the official figures discloses the fact that since August 1,080 men and women have been hanged or shot under sentence of the military courts, mostly within forty-eight hours of arrest. The other side of this gory picture is equally appalling. During the same period 1,242 wearers of the Czar'a coat, of high and low degree, died at the hands of assassins. How many innocent bystanders were involved in these tragedies is not easily ascertained, but the number is conservatively estimated at 2,000.

For many of the recent revolutionary murders, even by those who do not preach liberty with the dagger doctrine, mitigating circumstances have been advanced. Some of the victims undoubtedly were monstera of hardly human shape. Others, however, were killed simply because they wore the Czar's coat, and because, ever since the military courts have been set in motion, the revolutionaries demand a life for a life, and a few more for good measure.

The manner of executing men and women sentenced by summary proceedings, too, is horrible in the extreme, more from bungling and awkwardness than from calculating ferocity, a trait wholly lacking in the Russian character. The executions never take place in the prisons or fortresses owing to disorder and riots among the prisoners which they several times occasioned. At midnight the victims, escorted from their place of detention by two officers and a file of soldiers, proceed out by railway to an isolated station, and one after another the victims are hanged to a tree by soldiers inexperienced in the hangman'a duties. Waiting their turn, they must witness the agonies of their comrades.

The greatest secrecy has always been observed in carrying out these hanging parties. Information as to details comes almost exclusively from the unfortunate officers upon whom the executioner's task devolves. While certainly the officers in the St. Petersburg district are loyal to the Czar, they do not fear to talk of this matter with outspoken detestation. It is to be hoped, though few are sanguine of this result, that Russian officers and soldiers will never be called upon to perform such duties again."

STEPHEN BONSAL.

PREMIER ROUSES DUMA'S IRE.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 9.—The relations between the lower house of Parliament and the administration are daily becoming more acute on account of Premier Stolypin's repeated rebukes of the lower house for overstepping its competence. He has already refused the request of the Famine Committee to be allowed to examine the statistics of the Zemstvos and has denied the right of the Budget Commission to invite the assistance of non-bureaucratic experts. To-day the Premier addressed three new letters to President Golovin calling the lower house to account for further alleged illegal acts and demanding that steps be taken to prevent their repetition.

The Constitutional Democrats hitherto have been in a yielding mood, but their organ, the Rech, to-day says that the limit of surrender has been reached and points out that other Legislatures, in Europe and America, are entitled to summon experts to hold legislative hearings before committees, and that the Senate, the highest judicial body, recognized this right of Parliament last year and demands to know on what authority the Premier is interfering in the internal affairs of the House.

The Constitutional-Democratic resolution to refer the budget to a committee for consideration was adopted by the lower house of Parliament to-day by an overwhelming majority, scarcely eighty Socialists and Social Revolutionists voting for the Radical resolution providing for the rejection of the estimates.

The passage of the resolution, which was advocated by the Government, is considered to be a great victory for the Constitutional-Democrats, who succeeded in winning over the members of the Group of Toil and other radical groups from the Socialist camp. The members of the Right also voted with the Constitutional-Democrats.

LODZ, April 9.—Numerous fights occurred among the workmen in this district to-day. The men were actuated by political motives and the fighting resulted in the killing of twelve and the wounding of fourteen persons. Two Government alcohol stores were robbed this morning, the two soldiers guarding the buildings being killed by the robbers.

RUSSIAN JEWS IN PANIC.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 9.—The attention of the Government has been called to the fact that thousands of Jewish families in the southern provinces of Russia are selling their homes and departing in fear of wholesale anti-Jewish attacks.

The efforts of Jewish organizations to allay this panic have been fruitless.

PRESIDENT AS A MEGAPHONE.

Stead Says He Should Preach American Ideals to the World.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—"President Roosevelt is the incarnation of American energy and ideals, and his duty is to act as a great megaphone and preach those ideals to all the peoples of the earth."

So said William T. Stead to-night. Mr. Stead had just been to the White House with Dr. Albert Shaw.

"I have not been in America for ten years," he continued, "and to-day I saw Theodore Roosevelt for the first time. I expected to see exaggerated eyeglasses and large, protruding teeth, as indicated in the cartoons that have become famous the world over, but instead I found average-sized glasses and the most beautiful teeth I have ever seen.

"I found the President an engaging personality, but what struck me most was that the President would be the best man of any I ever met to talk into a graphophone. You can just imagine him sitting there with the talking machine before him, articulating every word distinctly. And it is his mission to talk through that machine to all the world, expressing the feelings, sentiments, thoughts, and ideals of the American people, of whom he is perfectly typical in his energy and his ideals.

"Over on the other side of the water people know more about the energy of the American people than they do about their moral ideals. But because the President typifies those ideals as much as the energy they are, through him, learning more of them."

MAY MAKE HARRIMAN TELL.

Commerce Commission Will Ask Court to Compel Him to Testify.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The Commerce Commission has decided to ask the Federal Court for the Southern District of New York to compel E. H. Harriman to reply to questions which he refused to answer in the recent hearings in New York City. F. B. Kellogg, special counsel of the commission, will be in charge of the matter before the court.

The principal questions which Mr. Harriman refused to answer concerned his personal dealings in securities. The commission wants to know the share he had with George J. Gould, James Stillman, and Mortimer L. Schiff in the Alton syndicate. The commission also wants to know about the Union Pacific dividend transaction, where the announcement was held up long enough for all sorts of things to have been done in the market.

HARRIMAN ASKED TO COURT.

Request to Him to Attend the Arraignment of His ex-Clerk.

In so far at least as concerns his letter to Sidney Webster, publication of which stirred up the controversy between himself and President Roosevelt, E. H. Harriman may learn where he stands next Saturday. Assistant District Attorney Paul Krotel has asked him to be present in the Tombs Court then to testify in the case of his former stenographer, Frank W. Hill, who is charged with "willfully and without authority" publishing the letter by selling it to a newspaper. Hill was arraigned before Magistrate Wahle yesterday, and after a conference between Mr. Krotel and ex-Magistrate Ommen, representing the prisoner, the hearing was adjourned until Saturday. At the same time Hill's bail was reduced from $2,500 to $1,500, which was furnished.

In court on Saturday Mr. Harriman will be asked to identify his letter.

ROADS TO REDUCE SPEED.

Western Lines Because of Rate Laws, Reading for Safety.

OMAHA, Neb., April 9.—Western railroads have definitely decided upon a date for lengthening the schedules of their fast trains and on June 9 all trains will be slowed down. This announcement comes from Union Pacific headquarters in Omaha, as the result of the conference between general passenger agents of the Union Pacific, Rock Island, Northwestern, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroads. Other roads are expected to subscribe to the agreement, which was made necessary by the cutting of rates by Western Legislatures.

READING, Penn., April 9.—In order to insure safety to passenger trains the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company to-day issued orders to trainmen to reduce speed around certain curves and through certain switches on its various lines.

In some places where high speed was maintained the company has ordered that trains be run at a speed not higher than twenty-five miles an hour.

WAR ON TRAIN WRECKERS.

Pennsylvania Road Makes No Special Effort to Guard Carnegie.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—Guards along the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company are to be doubled to prevent train wreckers from derailing the fast trains of the company. This was decided on here this afternoon at a meeting in the office of Supt. Long of the Pittsburg division. Afterward one of the officials said:

"If it is necessary we will put armed guards on every hundred yards of track from New York to Chicago. It was decided to work for the passage of a bill increasing the penalty for train wrecking from ten to twenty-five years."

Several arrests were made in the Pittsburg district in the last eighteen hours, and half a dozen persons are locked up until they can give better accounts of their whereabouts lately.

The Pennsylvania Railroad officials, when asked if they had made any special preparations for taking care of the train on which Andrew Carnegie and his guests will travel to-morrow, said they had not, save that the party would leave New York in a special car attached to the Pittsburg Special, leaving New York at 9 A. M.

VINTAGE CHAMPAGNES.

Non-vintage champagnes are blends of various vintages of no special merit. Vintage Champagne is produced entirely from grape grown in an exceptionally good year, which year is invariably indicated on the label. The Vintage of 1898 was one of the best in recent years; hence Monopole 1898 and Dry Monopole 1898 are sold at a premium in all other markets of the world. In the United States this excellent vintage: Monopole Red Top 1898, "moderately dry," Dry Monopole Brut 1898, "very dry," is now sold at non-vintage prices for the purpose of making this brand of wine a favorite.—Adv.

DIES ON STEAMER OF A PET DOG'S BITE

Connecticut Man Was Hurrying Here for Treatment at Pasteur Institute.

NO VIOLENT SYMPTOMS

Sitting on Deck When He Fell from Chair Dead—Fear, Not Rabies, May Have Killed Him.

Having been bitten in the hand by his pet dog, an Irish setter, John J. Clark, employed in a cotton mill at Jewett, Conn., died on the Norwich Line steamer Chester A. Chapin early yesterday morning. He was on his way to this city to be treated at the Pasteur Institute, on Twenty-third Street, for hydrophobia. The case was pretty far advanced, Clark having been bitten in the early part of January, and the physicians at the institute last night expressed doubt that they could have saved his life, even if they had received him twenty-four hours before.

Clark was taken on the ship at New London, Conn., on Monday evening. He was in charge of two brothers, a cousin, and Dr. S. J. Holmes, his physician. The group of men did not seek to advertise the malady of their charge, but before the ship landed at her dock the 350 passengers aboard had, in some way, learned the nature of his illness, and gave him a wide berth.

Clark was 33 years old, and had been in health an active and sturdy citizen. He was much exhausted when he boarded the ship, but refused to stay in his stateroom. He insisted upon going on deck and into the saloon of the ship. He showed none of the symptoms which superstition ascribes to the disease, but he was very nervous.

Clark was on deck yesterday morning just as the Chapin was feeling her way to her dock at the foot of Clarkson Street. Dr. Holmes and Clark's brothers and cousin were beside him. Suddenly he fell from his chair and died before his charges could carry him into his stateroom.

Dr. Holmes reported to Coroner Shrady, and also told the physicians at the Pasteur Institute, that Clark had had a weak heart, and that he might have died of exhaustion and fright; that in fact, when the specialists at the institute had examined him, they might have discovered that he didn't have rabies at all, but merely the fear that he had.

The physicians at the institute laugh at this idea, however. They have no sympathy there with those who contend that all there is of hydrophobia is a belief that one has it. They say that experience has cleared that point for them, and that Clark's manner of death is a common result of the disease; that paralysis ensues.

The physicians explained last night that they had recently had several cases of hydrophobia from the region in Connecticut where Clark lived, and that most of them were cured. This agrees with the statement of Dr. Holmes.

"Jewett is a small place," he said. "There was something of a hydrophobia scare in the town just before Clark was bitten. In consequence of the scare an ordinance was passed ordering the muzzling of all dogs. Several of them were shot, including the one which bit Clark. Then the people began to talk to Clark about the possibility of his having the rabies from the bite.

"In the mill where we worked the men were constantly referring to his case. All this so preyed on his mind that he finally came to believe that he actually had the malady. His heart was not overstrong, and the strain of the convulsions was too much for it."

According to a remark dropped by Dr. Holmes, Clark's mother was also bitten by the same dog, and was said to be coming to the Pasteur Institute, but no arrangements have been made for her there.

Coroner Shrady has ordered an autopsy made to-day on the body of Clark, which was taken to the Morgue here. The brain of a victim usually shows the germs of the disease.

LOST IN STOCKS—A SUICIDE.

S. B. Van Sicien Found Dead by His Wife in Their Home.

Samuel B. Van Sicien, described variously at the apartment house in which he lived with his wife, at 408 Manhattan Avenue, as a curb broker and a bank clerk, committed suicide yeaterday afternoon by shooting himself twice in the head with a revolver. To make sure of a second shot if the first did not kill him, he had tied the revolver to his waist with a piece of tape, so that it could not fall beyond his reach. He left two letters, one to his wife and the other to his father, A. J. Van Sicien of Jamaica, in which he said that his heart was broken over his troubles in Wall Street.

Van Sicien had returned to the house late in the afternoon while his wife was out. When she returned at 8 o'clock she found his body stretched out on the kitchen floor. The letter to his wife was as follows:

My dear wife: Forgive me for this great wrong, but my heart is broken over my luck in Wall Street. I wish you good luck and happiness, as we have been very happy together. Your husband, SAM.

The wife was completely prostrated, as her husband had carefully concealed his reverses from her, and only on the previous evening, when he had taken her to the theatre, had seemed to be very cheerful.

Van Sicien's father, Abraham, to whom he appealed in his letter to care for his wife, is a wealthy farmer, living on Lincoln Avenue, Jamaica. He has made considerable money by raising vegetables in forcing frames and getting them on the market in Spring before his competitors. The son was 35 years old and had spent some years in the West, where, it was said, he had lost much money.

HUNT WEDS MRS. BASSETT.

Ex-Minister Was Corespondent in Her Husband's Divorce Suit.

Dr. E. Lawrence Hunt, the ex-pastor of the Noble Street Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Fanny Rice Bassett, who was recently divorced from Charles Chester Bassett, a clerk at Washington, were married at 6 o'clock last night by the Rev. Henry Marsh Warren, the hotel chaplain. The ceremony took place in the presence of only two witnesses. One was the 8-year-old son of Mrs. Bassett. The second waa Charles Boston, a law partner of William B. Hornblower.

After Dr. Hunt had made arrangements by telephone for the wedding the party drove to the home of Dr. Warren in a carriage. Dr. Hunt wore a dark business suit, and appeared to be in the best of spirits. Mrs. Bassett was attired in gray, and also seemed cheerful, continually petting her boy, whom she kept by her side during the ceremony.

When the ceremony had been performed Dr. Hunt and his bride drove away, presumably for Dr. Hunt's Brooklyn home, where the former minister said that he should stay, at least for a time. To Dr. Warren, Hunt said that it was possible that he should re-enter the ministry. Dr. Hunt resigned his pastorate of the Noble Street Church some time ago, and retired from the Brooklyn Presbytery on last Monday night.

He first gained notoriety in March, 1906, when Mr. Bassett filed his suit for divorce in Washington, naming Hunt as corespondent. Bassett was connected with the United States Geological Survey, at Washington, where Dr. Hunt had at one time been in charge of the Heights Presbyterian Church.

EXONERATES ANDREWS.

Medical Society Almost Unanimously Dismissed Mooney Charges.

After a five-hour session, the New York County Medical Society, by a practically unanimous vote, dismissed the charges made by Dr. Charles J. Mooney against Champe S. Andrews, counsel of the society. Four hundred members attended the meeting. A policeman was called to keep out reporters.

The debate began at 8:30 o'clock. Several reports were read, including one from the Comitia Minora, which had supported Mr. Andrews. Then speeches were made.

Dr. Mooney spoke at length, and then Mr. Andrews talked for half an hour in his own defense. The vote followed.

OIL TRUST SCORES.

Judge Landis Likely to Compel the Government to Prove Intent.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Counsel for the Standard Oil Company scored on the Government in the rebate case before Judge Landis to-day. The Judge made several oral statements, showing that he believed intent was a necessary question in a rebating case, and intimating that he would permit the company to bring out evidence to show it believed it was paying the lawful rate in the instances in question.

While Assistant District Attorney Wilkerson and Moritz Rosenthal were arguing, Judge Landis interrupted with the question:

"Do you gentlemen of the Government have it in mind that it is incumbent upon the shipper to go to any place other than the railroad station to find out the lawful rate? The question of intent is in this case, and it has got to be considered."

This expression from the court is said to be what the attorneys for the defense have been fighting for in the last three days. At the adjournment of court Judge Landis announced that he would render a decision to-morrow.

MISS GIBBES BROKEN DOWN.

Member of a Once Prominent Family a Victim of Hallucinations.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, April 9.—Miss Emily O. Gibbes, a member of a once-prominent New York family, is seriously ill, practically a mental and physical wreck, at her cottage on Gibbs Avenue, in this city, where she has lived apart from her relatives for several months.

Because of her hallucinations and irritability, Miss Gibbes had been unable to keep her servants and attendants for any long period. She had run through the list of trained nurses in Newport, a week being generally the longest period for which any one of them would remain with her. Among her hallucinations was the idea that she was being robbed by her employes.

On Good Friday she discharged all her employes and her physician, and for three days remained in the house alone, having little if anything to eat. Finally two former employes decided that something must be done for her. Entering the house they went to her room, and found it locked. After long persuasion Miss Gibbes managed with great difficulty to reach the door of her room and unlock it. She was removed to her bed, a physician and nurses secured, and other employes engaged to run the house.

Miss Gibbes became more tractable, and her condition is improved. Her mind, however, is little improved, and there is little hope of the recovery of her full mental faculties.

BIG BUCKET SHOP PLOT.

Farcical Trading at Superior Supposed to be Part of It.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 9.—Sensational testimony given by A. S. Hicks, a former broker at the Superior Board of Trade, together with the evidence of A. W. Harris, given Saturday, indicates that the local Chamber of Commerce, in its action against the board, is on the trail of a big bucket shop conspiracy affecting many big Western cities.

The Chamber sued to prevent the use of its quotations by the Superior Board, the Wisconsin Grain and Stock Company, and the Superior Clearing House. It alleged that these companies were all affiliated and were connected with the Edwards-Wood Company, against whom it obtained an injunction some months ago.

A. S. Hicks testified that he was hired by the Edwards-Wood Company at its office, in St. Paul, and sent to Superior with instructions "to trade and make a market." He bought and sold many hundred thousand bushels of wheat without orders from Wood or any one else for his sales or purchases. His transactions were all with two men whom he knew to be in Edward Wood's employ, he said, and the dealing on the Superior Board was farcical.

WOMAN THREATENS JOHN S. HUYLER

Blames Him and Family for Taking Son Away from Her 15 Years Ago.

SENT TO THE INSANE WARD

Boy Was Adopted by Mrs. Huyler's Sister and Is Living in Albany—Mother Wants to See Him.

An act of philanthropy performed years ago by his wife brought John S. Huyler, the candy manufacturer, into the Tombs Court yesterday as complainant against Mrs. Mary E. Hart of 173 East 122d Street, who has been writing threatening letters for some time past to Mr. Huyler, accusing him of depriving her of her son.

On the complaint, which was based upon forty letters, all more or less incoherent and full of Biblical allusions, Magistrate Wahle committed the woman to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital for examination as to her sanity.

The story as it came out in court, added to by Mr. Huyler last night at his home, 301 West Seventy-second Street, shows that fifteen years ago Mrs. Hart was employed in the Huyler house at her trade as an upholsterer. She sometimes brought her little son with her. He was then about a year and a half old.

Mr. and Mrs. Huyler became attached to the boy, and, according to Mr. Huyler, his mother was persuaded to give him up so that he might have the benefit of better surroundings. Mrs. Huyler persuaded her sister, Mrs. Robert Lee of 35 North Pearl Street, Albany, to adopt the child. He was taken into the Lee household and has been reared and educated under the name of Lee. Mr. Huyler said last night that he had borne out his early promise and had justified the pains that had been taken to give him an excellent education.

"He was a great favorite at school," Mr. Huyler said, "and he will be sent to college."

Mr. Huyler admitted that he had not told Mrs. Hart where her son was. The letters which resulted in Mrs. Hart's arrest have been coming to Mr. Huyler and members of his family for more than a year.

It was one in yesterday morning's mail which made him take steps to have the women committed to Bellevue. He would not say what the letter contained except that it was incoherent and led him to believe that the woman was a dangerous person.

Mrs. Hart was arrested at the East 122d Street address on a warrant issued in the morning by the Magistrate. When she was arraigned in court the letters were not made public. Enough of their contents came out, however, to show that Mrs. Hart was expecting her arrest, and she declared that she was not afraid to bring her case into court.

At Bellevue Mrs. Hart described herself as a widow, 48 years old, and said that she had been in this country 88 years. She was born in Ireland. She told the surgeon who examined her that she had gone to Mr. Huyler's house on Monday night, but had not been admitted.

"I went there to get some news of my boy. He was adopted when he was only 2 years old, and I want to see him. I think it is a shame for them to arrest me," she said.

Mrs. Hart's East 122d Street address is a furnished room house kept by Mrs. J. L. Filkins. Mrs. Filkins said last night that Mrs. Hart had been living with her for about six years and had during that time been earning good wages at her trade as an upholsterer. Mrs. Filkins said that Mrs. Hart had mentioned at times having a growing son, who was at school in Albany, and she had always understood that Mrs. Hart regularly sent him money.

All that Mrs. Filkins knew of her history was that she had told her that Mr. Hart died in Baltimore about ten years ago. Mrs. Hart had frequently talked of her wrongs in connection with her husband's estate, which she said amounted to $10,000, a large part of which she thought was being withheld from her. She was constantly seeing lawyers, Mrs. Filkins said. It was denied at the Huyler home that Mrs. Hart contributed to the support of her son.

ARRESTED FOR LAUGHING.

Play's Serious Side Excited Dorn's Mirth, and Audience Protested.

Because he laughed at the wrong time while witnessing a production of "Sunday" at the Yorkville Theatre, Charles Dorn, 18 years old, of 27 East Sixty-fourth Street, was arrested and arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Walsh, in the Harlem Court, charged with disorderly conduct. The complainant was Manager Frank Gerston of the theatre.

That particular part of the play which was being acted when Dorn began to laugh was a serious one, according to the manager. But Dorn could not see it that way. The longer he looked the more he laughed. Those sitting near him in the theatre could not see the joke and objected to the merriment. The actors, too, were not at all pleased. So Dorn was hustled out of the theatre and taken to the station house.

The prisoner was much excited yesterday when arraigned, and was held until to-day in order that he may regain his equanimity.

HARVARD STUDENTS FINED.

Others Apologize for Disturbance from the Stage at "Brown of Harvard."

BOSTON, April 9.—Robert T. Lee and Henry Watson, Harvard students, were each fined $40 in the Municipal Court to-day, after pleading guilty to a charge of creating a disturbance in the Majestic Theatre last night during the opening performance of "Brown of Harvard." Three other students who pleaded not guilty had their casea continued until Thursday.

A sixth student was accused of being intoxicated, but was released as it was his first offense.

The Presidents of the four undergraduate classes at Harvard appeared on the stage at the opening of to-night's performance, and expressed regret on behalf of the students of the university for the occurrence. The apology was accepted by J. D. White, President of the senior class.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—Arrangements are under way for the organization of a commercial bank to be financed and conducted by Chinese merchants. It will be known as the Canton Bank.

So far, $200,000 of the capital stock has been subscribed. It is the intention of the promoters to incorporate with a capital of $1,000,000.

MORGAN SEES RAVA.

Tells Him He Had Nothing to Do with Missing Van Dycks.

ROME, April 9.—J. P. Morgan had an interview to-day with Minister of Education Rava for the purpose of telling him he had nothing to do with the alleged removal from Italy of the paintings by Van Dyck which have disappeared from Genoa.

Signor Rava was very cordial and said the Italian Government was not quite sure that the paintings in question had been taken out of Italy. He again expressed the thanks of the Italian Government and people for the return to Rome by Mr. Morgan of the famous Ascoli cope, which is now on exhibition here, adding that he had given orders to have Mr. Morgan's name embroidered thereon, in memory of his generosity.

This evening Mr. Morgan called upon and had a friendly conversation with Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State.

A BILLION PAID FOR AUTOS.

French Statistician Says That America Now Leads the World.

Speciol to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—M. Faroux, a French statistician, according to a report received by the Bureau of Manufactures, estimates that about 550,000 motor cars have been manufactured in the nine years since the experiment of self-propelled road vehicles first succeeded. These machines sold for more than a billion dollars.

Until a year ago France, the pioneer, led the world in the production of the motor vehicle. Now the United States has taken the lead. According to M. Faroux, the United States built 60,000 automobiles in 1906, France 55,000, England 28,000, Germany 22,000, Italy 19,000, and Belgium 12,000. In 1901 the United States built only 314 cars, and that same year France built 23,711.

There are 20,212 automobiles owned within fifty miles of the New York City Hall.

HOPE TO TRACE $173,000.

Negro Woman May Clear Up Chicago Sub-Treasury Mystery.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 9.—A solution of the theft of $173,000 from the United States Sub-Treasury here recently is believed to be in sight. Secret Service officers say they believe that a negro scrubwoman, Mrs. William J. Hudson, whose house was searched to-day, can clear up the mystery. An arrest is expected to-morrow.

The clue to the woman was obtained from the display of a $1,000 bill by a negro in a saloon. A search warrant was issued, and the Secret Service officers searched the home of the woman. After a thorough hunt Capt. Porter, head of the Secret Service Bureau, said:

"We found absolutely no trace of the money, and we are no nearer a solution of the theft than ever before."

THAW'S PLEA IS UNWRITTEN LAW

Delmas Asks Discharge of Man Who "Struck for Purity of Homes."

"DEMENTIA AMERICANA"

That Was Thaw's Insanity, Says His Counsel in a Surprising Appeal to the Jury.

THE TRIAL TO END TO-DAY

After Three-Hour Address by Jerome the Case Will Be Given to the Jury.

Bringing his appeal to the jury to an end yesterday afternoon, Delphin M. Delmas asked for the acquittal of his client, Harry K. Thaw, charged with the murder of Stanford White, on the ground of the unwritten law. Those who heard the final word of the summing up of the California court orator and had heard other similar appeals in this State said that the appeal of Mr. Delmas was the most direct of the sort ever made in the New York courts.

"His mind reeled," said Mr. Delmas, after telling how Thaw killed White. "He struck as does the tigress strike at the man who endeavors to take her cubs. He struck for the purity of the wives and homes of America."

"Dementia Americana."

And when he reached his peroration the pleader for Thaw's life declared with all his force:

"It may be said that the learned alienists have left the matter in an uncertain condition, because they have not classified the insanity under which this defendant is laboring, or was laboring, at that time. Gentlemen, I care not whether you give that insanity a name or not. It is a species of insanity which, though it may be unknown to these learned alienists, is perfectly familiar to every man who is familiar with the history of jurisprudence in these United States.

"It is a species of insanity which has been recognized in every court in every State of this Union, from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico. It is that species of insanity which, if you desire, you learned gentlemen, to give it a name, I ask you to label 'dementia Americana.'

"It is that species of insanity which makes every American believe that his home is sacred. It is that species of insanity which makes him believe that the purity of his daughter is sacred. It is that species of insanity that makes him believe that the honor of his wife is sacred. It is that species of insanity which makes him believe that whoever invades the sanctity of that home, whoever brings pollution upon that daughter, whoever stains the virtue of that wife, has forfeited the protection of human laws and must appeal to the eternal justice and mercy of God, if he may so appeal, for his protection.

"It is that species of insanity which a New York jury recognized in the case of Cole, who killed Hiscock for having seduced his wife. It is that species of insanity which a New York jury in this city recognized in the case of McFarland, who killed Richardson—"

Mr. Garvan objected to the citing of cases to the jury, and Mr. Delmas went on:

Appeal to Men of Families.

"The law, gentlemen, is a human law, and it is a law that, thank God! must be administered by men.

"You are not the cold, the soulless human beings and abstractions that the learned District Attorney would have. You are men of flesh, men of blood, men of families, men who have led wives to the altar, men whose homes have been graced by children, and I violate no law when I ask you to judge a fellow-man by that law which is at the foundation of all laws, by that law which was spoken by Him who spake as no man spake when He said: 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.'

"Send this young man to his death for what he did when, goaded to frenzy by the persecution which he had suffered, he turned at last, as the weakest of created things will turn—as a worm, it is said, will turn against its tormentor—send him to his death for that!

"Ah! gentlemen, I recall the language of that great Book in which is contained the wisdom and the religion of the people of old, and I say to you: 'Shall Jonathan die for working this great salvation in Israel? God forbid! No hair of his head shall fall to the ground, for he wrought with you on that day?'

"And, gentlemen, redeeming the promise which I have made to you and to the court to be brief, I now, with all solemnity, leave unto your hands the fate of Harry K. Thaw."

Mr. Delmas had begun his summing up the day before with the declaration to the jury that he would not base his case upon any such foundation as the unwritten law, and that the written law of the State of New York was amply sufficient to protect the life of his client. When, therefore, he delivered the peroration of his speech yesterday afternoon a buzz of surprise went through the crowd which packed the courtroom.

Jerome Absent, but Follows Speech.

There were two other striking developments of the day. A TIMES reporter learned that the stenographic copy of the speech of Mr. Delmas was being hurried to 3 Rutgers Street, page by page, and that while the Californian was making his appeal District Attorney Jerome was following it in "copy" and paralleling it in the preparation of his address to the jury, which he will begin to deliver this morning.

The other development—rather an incident—was the forcible exclusion from the courtroom of Howard Nesbit, the brother of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. The young man went to the Criminal Court Building yesterday angry and distressed because of the attack made on his mother the day before by Mr. Delmas. He was heard to say that he would not stand for any more of that sort of business, and the man who heard him half-way threaten to interrupt the lawyer pleading for the life of his sister's husband reported the matter to Police Sergeant Kellerer, in charge of the squad on duty outside of the courtroom. Sergt. Kellerer found young Nesbit and ejected him from the courtroom. He feared that the young man would jump to his feet during the remainder of the summing up and create a disturbence. Young Nesbit was indignant and protested vigorously, but had to go.

When Mr. Delmas again faced the jury yesterday morning the big courtroom was crowded. The snow slapped against the northern windows in great sheets of big, soft flakes. The light on clear days is none too bright. Yesterday it was a dull, gray diffusion of light, making the anxious, pallid face of Thaw almost ghastly, and the tired, deeply lined face of his mother gray and toneless. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw also showed a wan countenance. Lady Yarmouth and Mrs. Carnegie watched the man pleading for the life of their brother with staring eyes.

But Mr. Delmas was almost rosy. His skin is always richly tinted. Even in such a drab atmosphere as the courtroom afforded yesterday he stood forth in the pink of condition, carefully groomed and well polsed.

The defender of Thaw had said the day before, after having addressed the jury for two hours and twenty-five minutes, that he would conclude by noon of the following day. Mr. Delmas had not addressed the jury an hour yesterday morning when it was evident that he would not be able to cover all of the points of the defense by noon. He did finally ask for a recess and for permission to resume in the afternoon. All told, he covered two hours and twenty-five minutes on Monday, two hours yesterday morning, and an hour and a half yesterday afternoon.

Deannciation of Hnmmel.

Mr. Delmas, beginning the second and last day of his summing up, opened with a brief and bitter review of what he had said the day before, giving most of his effort to a further attack upon Abraham Hummel.

After declaring that on the criminal skill of Hummel Stanford White had depended for the return of Evelyn Nesbit to his power, after saying that Hummel's art in perjury had served to separate Evelyn from the man who was trying to save her and uplift her, Mr. Delmas lifted his voice, and, bringing his right arm over his head, declared:

"I trust that I shall not see the last act of my client's tragic life threatened by your prosecutor. I hope I shall never see tha District Attorney standing here, where I stand, and where he stood and denounced Abraham Hummel, now his chief witness. Here he denounced Hummel as a menace to the community and as a perjurer. I say, I hope that I shall not see the District Attorney standing here and pleading with you to send this defendant to death, to make a widow of his young wife, and to bring the gray hairs of his mother in sorrow to the grave."

The "Snblime Renunciation."

This done, he launched into the story of the night in Paris when Evelyn Nesbit refused to marry Thaw and gave as her reason that Stanford White had wrecked her life.

The return to this story, told on the stand by the prisoner's wife, caused Thaw to bury his haggard face between his hands. When she had testified to it during the taking of evidence Thaw had broken down and sobbed. Seeming to fear its relteration by his counsel Thaw crouched down in his chair and hid his face yesterday.

Shaking his index finger at the faces of the jurors before him, Mr. Delmas cried:

"This sublime renunciation the learned District Attorney has sneered at! Think of it, the refusal of a poor stage girl to accept riches and honorable marriage! Nothing made her refuse save the fact that she loved this man, who would have taken her up from the plight she was in and have her as his wife, to love and protect."

Witb letters written to Thaw's attorney, Mr. Longfellow, soon after June, 1903, when tbe confession in Paris was made, Mr. Delmas sought to give final proof that this story had been told to the prisoner, as the wife testified, and that it had preyed upon his mind.

Saves Peroration for Afternoon.

Mr. Delmas lingered over the interim between the story of the renunciation until the day of the killing. It seemed that he desired to separate his peroration from the rest of his summing up, and that he was killing time until the recess hour. He brought Evelyn Neshit back to New York from Paris and to the time when she again met Stanford White. He pictured Tbaw as a knight of the olden days going forth to rescue maidens in distress. He laid the colors on thick when he told of Thaw meeting Evelyn Nesbit in a drug store on Broadway after their separation following the making of the Hummel affidavit accusing Thaw, and pictured the distress of the lover when he saw that the wan cheeks of his sweetheart were painted. The morning was spent along these lines, and adjournment was taken for recess.

The crowd that piled out of the courtroom showed weariness. There had been no climax to the morning address, and only in the part of it when Hummel waa under fire did Mr. Delmas manage to send the blood coursing through the veins of his auditors. In invective he seemed to excel.

Crowd to Hear Closing Speech.

The crowd of the morning was swollen to twice its size after the luncheon hour. The police had to swing their clubs to drive back importuning hundreds who wanted to get within sound of the voice of the Californian and within view of the man he was defending.

Mr. Delmas plunged right into the closing of his address as soon as quiet in the courtroom was obtained.

"Nothing now remains," he said to the jury, "but to call your attention to the facts that transpired on the night of June 25, 1906."

Rehearses Story of the Shooting.

"Thaw and his wife and two friends went to the Café Martin to dinner on that night," said Mr. Delmas. "It was Summer, and the night was sultry. Tables had been placed on the balcony in the open. While the party was at table, Stanford White entered through a door not in the line of vision of Mr. Thaw. It was either by accident or design. But the wife did see him. Foreseeing that it might not be safe to tell her husband of the presence of White, the wife did not tell him then. White passed through the place to the Fifth Avenue balcony.

"When he left the place she took a pencil and wrote, 'The B was here a minute ago, but went out again.' Thaw turned to his wife and asked if she was all right. His first thought was for her, and his mental condition was that of a man fearful of harm to the one he held dearest and most beloved."

Mr. Delmas then carried the party to Madison Square Garden and sent Thaw adrift in the audience, restless, nervous, seeking, and finally finding, a seat beside James Clinch Smith, the brother-in-law of the man he was to kill in a few moments. Then he took him back to his wife and McCaleb and Beale, their two friends, and started them up the aisle to the elevator. He recited, in close detail, every step the party made on the way out, the incident of Thaw dropping back of Beale, who had stopped to chat with a friend, and then pictured Thaw suddenly and unexpectedly beholding White at his table.

"He suddenly espied Stanford White," declaimed Mr. Delmas, dropping his voice to the lower register and lifting his right hand as if to give warning of the impending picture of the tragedy. "Mr. Thaw walked slowly and quietly toward Mr. White, faced him, and fired three shots which caused his death.

"The witness Meyer Owen swore that as soon as the body of Mr. White fell to the floor Mr. Thaw spread out his arms, making of his body the sign of the cross, a circumstance which denoted the character of his act. His arms were spread out like the arms of a priest after the sacrifice of the mass has been consummated and he has turned to the worsbippers to bid tbem depart.

Struck for Purity of the Home.

"What was his condition of mind when he first beheld White? He stood there beholding the figure, the hideous figure, of the man that had caused him so much sorrow. In a flash he saw the whole panorama of his past. He saw White in the guise of a protector, lured by the beautiful form and face of Evelyn, the child. He saw him laying his plans to send her mother away that he might lure the poor child to one of his dens. He beheld White inflaming her young imagination with tha works of art that decorated his dens of iniquity and vice. He remembered the story the poor girl had told him, the story that had made him cry out to God and to ask of his Creator why such a thing had been done. He saw her fall again into the hands of White and saw himself again rescuing her.

"His mind reeled. He struck as does the tigress strike at the man who endeavors to take her cubs. He struck for the purity of the wives and homes of America.

"He had appealed to Anthony Comstock and to the District Attorney to put an end to the vices of this man. He had been turned away. The ears of man listened not to him. He appealed to God, and God at last answered the cry of the fatherless child as He had promised He would answer when He spoke to the Children of Israel. He kept His promise that to those who afflicted the fatherless child would be meted out punishment that would make widows of the wives of those who afflicted the fatherless and make fatherless their children."

Garvan Checks Delmas.

Mr. Delmas then recalled that the witness Martin Green, a newspaper reporter, had testified to the look of insanity in the eyes of Thaw as he turned from the man he had slain. He followed this with reference to the testimony of a wardman of the Tenderloin Station that the prisoner had complained of hearing the cries of young girls when no one else had heard them and when no young girls were imprisoned there.

"As regards Dr. Hamilton," he said, "this picture confronts you. The District Attorney asked Dr. Evans to express his opinion of Dr. Hamilton, and when Dr. Evans objected to this the court asked Mr. Jerome if he would call Dr. Hamilton to the stand. Mr. Jerome replied that ha would if the defense did not. His official pledge was not redeemed, and when Dr. Hamilton was called to the stand by the defense the District Attorney objected to his being examined. Dr. Hamilton would have testified that Mr. Thaw was not sane at the time he shot Stanford White. He would have testified that Mr. Thaw did not know the nature and quality of his act when he committed it. If he had asked any others of his experts if Thaw was insane at the time he killed White—"

Mr. Garvan objected and the Californian turned sharply on his heels and faced the court, only to have the objection of the District Attorney's assistant upheld.

"Let me say to you," said Mr. Delmas, turning to the jury and declaiming with greater vigor. "Let me say to you that I believe that I am within my rights, for I have endeavored merely to call your attention to the fact that none of the experts for the prosecution has testified that Thaw was not laboring under a defect of reason on the night of June 25, 1906."

Question of Reasonable Doubt.

"The humenity of your written law," Mr. Delmas went on, "says that in the matter of the fate of a human being, the reasonable doubt should go to the accused. That is the thing on which a defendant may base his hope. It is his property. The law gives it to him. It is for the District Attorney to prove that he was sane when he killed White. He has not done this. It is not for us to prove that he was insane.

"A learned English Judge once said that ninety-nine guilty men should escape rather than one innocent man be punished. If there is one chance in a hundred that this defendant was of unsound mind as not to know the nature and quality of his act, you must give him the benefit of the doubt. If we contend that this defendant was insane it is for the learned District Attorney to prove that he was sane. He must establish that he was sane at the time of the enactment of the tragedy; that he was in full possession of his reason and mental faculties.

"Gentlemen," he said, slowly, "I ask you in the name of the law which I invoke, I ask you in the name of humanity, I ask you in the name of the religion which even antedated humanity, to resolve whatever doubt you may have in favor of this defendant."

He pointed to Thaw, who was sitting erect, with his eyes fastened on the speaker.

Then Mr. Delmas dellvered his peroration, quoted above, and court adjourned until this morning.

Jury May Get the Case To-day.

Mr. Jerome will take about three hours for his address to the jury to-day. By completing his argument this morning, or at latest by early afternoon, he will give Justice Fitzgerald ample time in which to charge the jury.

The chances are that the jury will be sent out late this afternoon with the case in its hands for a verdict.

GUY HELD FOR WIFE MURDER.

Has No Recollection of Night's Events, Says His Counsel.

Samuel S. Guy, the Far Rockaway dentist, who was arrested Monday night on a charge of having shot and killed bis wife in the Mott residence in Far Rockaway, which had belonged to her family, was arraigned before Magistrate Healy yesterday and held without bail to await the result of the Coroner's inquest. Former Deputy Police Commiseloner Mathot appeared as his counsel.

Guy seemed on the verge of a breakdown in court. Mr. Mathot said that his client had no clear recollection of the night's events. He recalled that he had left the house on some errand and had returned to see his wife lying dead on the floor.

Five revolvers were found by the police in tha Mott homestead. One that belonged to Mrs. Guy contained three exploded cartridges. This revolver was in the drawer of a bureau in Mrs. Guy's room on the bedroom floor.

As there is no direct witness to the shooting, it is believed that Mr. Mathot will set up that his client did not fire the shots, but left tha bouse immediately after his quarrel with his wife.

Some of Guy's friends say that he had been in the habit of late years of using drugs, and that he had been extravagant in the use of his wife's money after the death of his wealthy father-in-law, Benjamin B. Mott, who had owned large parts of Far Rockaway.

The Mott family, through Lawyer W. F. Petty, are about to taka legal steps to safeguard Mrs. Guy's securities and other personal property understood to be in safe deposit vaults. They wish her son Harold, who is 14 yeers old, to have her estate under a proper guardian. The keys of the Mott house are in the hands of District Attorney Garvin.

Mrs. Guy's body has been removed to the home of her brother, Guy Mott, on Mott Avenue, where it will remain pending the arrival of Mrs. Guy's mother and sister, who are now in California.

JUSTICE HERE TOO SLOW.

Gaynor Declares New York County is the Worst Offender.

Commenting on "The Responsibilities of the Bar" before the Brooklyn Bar Association at its annual dinner at the Union League Club, Brooklyn, last night, Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor severely criticised the slow administration of justice in New York County, particularly in criminal cases. He declared that conditions are tolerated here which would not be borne in any of the other counties in the greater city.

"At this time it is particularly the duty of the bar and the bench to bring about a more speedy administration of justice," he declered. "The courts in the borough across the river are three years behind the calendar even in common litigation cases, and here they are one year behind. One year is not very bad.

Discussing the part that the lawyers must take in the present war against railroads and trusts, Justice Gaynor declared:

"The remarkable man now in the Chief Executive ship is trying to impress upon the public that the railways are public highways, in which everybody is entitled to equal privileges of passenger and freight traffic. The courts have decided that the railroads are not private enterprises, but public highways. In the control of men who operate them for the public. This is readily understood by the lawyer, but how hard it is for the community to understand it! It is your duty to educate public opinion in this matter."

SUITS TO STOP TUNNELING.

Jersey City Officials Think Dispute with Companies Will Tie Up Work.

The Jersey City Street and Water Board, by advice of Mayor Fagan, yesterday broke off all negotiations with the Hudson River Tunnel Company looking to the establishment of local stations in return for the privilege of opening Railroad Avenue at Henderson Street for the purpose of building a transfer station, and authorized the city law officers to bring suit to test the company's right to tunnel under any of the city's streets.

A second suit was also authorized against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to test that company's right of way through Railroad Avenue. This right, the company's officials say, was acquired from the State, and long before the strip was a thoroughfare.

The Street and Water Commissioners say that tha suit will tie up the construction of the tunnel, but the local officials of the company said they did not think it would have any bearing upon the company's rights to bore under the streets in any direction.

OIL PROMOTER ARRESTED.

H. H. Tucker, Jr., Believes Standard Oil Caused His Indictment.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 9.—Having been indicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud, H. H. Tucker, Jr., of Cherryvale, Kan., Secretary and promoter of the Uncle Sam Oil Company, was arraigned in the United States District Court here this afternoon. He was arrested in Kansas City last night. Judge Pollock set Tucker's bond at $15,000.

It is charged that Tucker sold for about $1,200,000 stock in the Uncle Sam Oil Company with a par value of over $10,000,000; that about $20,000 paid in dividends was taken from the receipts of stock sales and not from the earnings of the company; and that the assets of the company are now $150,000 less than the money received from the eale of the stock.

The company has a capital of $17,000,000. It has 10,000 stockholders, of whom, according to its officers, there are 1,000 each in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York.

Mr. Tucker gave out a statement, in which he said:

"I have solicited money from the people of the United States in absolute good faith, and with this money have built four refineries, 150 miles of pipe lines, and purchased thousands of acres of the best oil lands in Kansas and Indian Territory."

He intimated that the trouble with the Federal authorities, which resulted in his indictment, had been stirred up by the Standard Oil Company because the Uncle Sam Company was an anti-trust concern. Gertrude Curtis of New York is one of the complainants.

FORAKER STARTS FOR SCENE OF WAR

Will Open His Taft Fight with a Speech at Canton To-night.

ROOSEVELT'S EYE ON KNOX

President's Friends Say He Would Not Object to the Senator's Genuine Candidacy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Senator Foraker left Washington to-day for Canton, Ohio, where he is to open his campaign against Taft to-morrow. He refused to comment on the report from Canton that Chairman Dougberty of the Board of Trade was opposed to his delivering a campaign speech at the non-political banquet of the Board of Trade. It that wera so, it would have no terrors for Foraker. He will make his speech, even if he has to hire a hall.

Ever since Secretary Taft turned down the proposition for an alliance with Foraker just before he sailed for Panama, the Senator has been breathing fire and snorting defiance. He is not alone in his anger at that turn-down. Senator Winthrop Murray Crane of Massachusetts, who was the bearer of the olive branch, has been filled with bitterness. The fact of the matter is that Crane had fixed up a nice little trap for Taft, and his failure to catch the big War Secretary has filled him with grief and rage.

Crane has had the reputation of being able to accomplish more with Mr. Roosevelt at critical junctures than any other of the Republican Senators. He maintained close relations with the White House, notwithstanding his open alliance with Aldrich. But in the later stages of the Rate bill fight last year the real activities of Crane became thoroughly well understood at the White House, and the President was reported to have referred to the Massachusetts Senator as "that little busybody trotting about doing Aldrich's dirty work."

That cheering remark was not long in finding its way to Crane, and since then he has not been so keen in his enthusiasm for the President. There have been several evidences in recent times of his activity in the effort to create division in the Cabinet supporters of the President. It has been whispered softly about that it might be contrived to have the Massachusetts delegation to the Republican National Convention support the delicate boomlet of that practiced Cabinet officer, Mr. Cortelyou.

There have been indications that the buzzing of the Presidential bee is no more resented in the Treasury Building now than it was in the days when Leslie Mortimer Shaw held forth there. It is understood that recognition of that fact was what led some of the Foraker-Dick combination to declare recently that Secretary Cortelyou was with them in their fight against Taft.

The advances made by Crane to Secretary Taft were in line with the delicate influence set to work to detach Cortelyou from the Presidential support. Taft saw through it on the instant, and rejected it with a bang. He told Crane that he didn't think that much of the Presidency, and his manner convinced the Senator that he was in earnest. If Taft had agread he would have been allied with tha very interests that are now branded from the White House as conspiretors.

The developments in the conspiracy story promised from the White House hangs fire. Letters and telegrams having been pouring in there from all parts of the country since the conspiracy cry went forth, but so far not a hint of their character has come from the President or any of his official family. Tba only indications of their tenor are the action of the Pennsylvania and Nebraska legislators, with their emphatic indorsements of the President's policies. The letters published daily in THE NEW YORK TIMES from Republican editors are accepted here as fully aetting forth the tremendous demand from the entire country for the continuance ot the Roosevelt policies.

But it is pointed out hy close observers here that there is a significant undercurrent in many of these letters against the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for a third term.

It is explained by close friends of the President that his real anxiety is to make it absolutely certain that there shall be no retrogression from the programme he has developed. The cry that he is attempting to dictate his successor has not passed unheeded. As a matter of fact, it is explained, ha is making no such attempt. There are several men whom he believes fully equipped to carry on the fight, any one of whom would be entirely satisfactory to him. The logic of circumstances has led more and more to Taft.

There have been numerous evidences also that the President would not be greatly disappointed if Senator Knox were to develop as a genuine candidate. It is certain that no move would be made among the real friends of the President in Pennsylvania to hinder the Knox campaign for delegates under the circumstances. The only question about the Knox boom is as to its genuineness. Mr. Knox has held his peace carefully and he is the only man who can throw light upon the situation.

CINCINNATI FOR TAFT.

Foraker Will Find His Supposed Stronghold Swept Away.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 9.—Hamilton County is for Taft. Tha weakest spot in Foraker's attempt to organize the State according to his own wishes, is to be found right here in his own city and county. Although the State is for Taft everywhere, there is no place where the same weakness is so pronounced in Foraker's canvass as in the city and county where he lives.

Ask the man in the street who is he for and he will say he is for Taft. Ask the machine politician who he is for and he will say he does not like Taft, but is for him A while ago it was stated in these dispatches that the only question in Hamilton County was how the organization would stand. Further investigation has relieved that doubt. The organization is for Taft.

In tha mind of tha east there has only been one leader of the Hamilton County organization, George B. Cox. There has really been a triumvirate, Cox, Hynicka, and Herriman Since Cox practically retired from the leadership Hynicka and Herriman have practically run the organization. Both of them are for Taft. Herriman is for Taft anyhow, and Hynicka is for him for two reasons, first, that he hates Foraker, and, second, that he wants to win.

Foraker does not understand this, and is totally unprapared for it. When ba gets here this week he will receive the awakening of his life.

The Dampsay administration, which was put in power by William H. Taft's speech at Akron, and soma other contributing causes, is to stand or fall at the polls this year. The Cox machine is very hungry and very thirsty. It is for Taft.

The foundation of things is Roosevelt. There ara many strong Roosevelt States in tbe Union, but there is not one State, not even South Dakota, where the cowboys shout, which is stronger for Roosevelt than Ohio; and there is not a county in Ohio which is stronger for Roosevelt than Hamilton.

This, of course, is the animating motive with the business men, the workingmen, and generally the men who do not take the trouble to go to the primaries. But it is also the animating motive with the men who do go to the primaries, because they know that their only chance of overthrowing Mayor Dempsey at the polls next November is to join with tha truly good.

How Joseph B. Foraker, sitting back in aerene confidence in Washington, can disregard the plain manifestatione of his coming overthrow in his own city is a thing which no one here can understand.

It la trua that if Foraker'e challenge is carried out and the question is allowed to be decided at the November polls, Forakar will not carry a single precinct in the City of Cincinnati. This statement is made in full appreciation of the ridicule which will be cast upon it by men who know nothing of Cincinnati or Foraker's influence in it, and is made only after most careful and thorough investigation of tbe city.

At the present moment Charles P. Taft is endeavoring to arrange for a meeting of the County Executive Committee as soon as Hynicka gets back from Atlantic City. If he succeeds, the committee will declare for Taft. There is some opposition to the scheme, coming mostly from Harriman, and it is based on the idea that this is a trifle too early for the Executive Committee to take action.

Thera is another consideration, which is that Vorys and his men have not made any such plans anywhere else in the State; that no Executive Committee, excepting Hamilton County, has had the idea raisod that it should hold a meeting, and that, therefore, it would seem a most unjustifiable slap at Foraker to have his own County Committee, the only one in the State, to take such action.

The real reason back of it is that it is desired to have tbis action taken for the sake of its effect on the rest of the Nation, where there is no idea of the real extent of Taft'e strength in Foraker's home county. It is an absolutely certain conclusion that if the committee did hold a meeting it would repudiate Foraker and declare for Taft.

ROOSEVELT FOR THIRD TERM.

Minnesota Legislature's Vote Described as "Nearly Unanimous."

ST. PAUL, April 9.—The Minnesota House of Representatives with a rising vote to-day which the Speaker announced as "nearly unanimous" passed a concurrent resolution indorsing President Roosevelt for a third term.

DIDN'T INDORSE ROOSEVELT.

Connecticut Legislature Fails to Pass Clergyman's Resolution.

HARTFORD, April 9.—The Rev. G. H. Gardner, a Representative in the General Assembly, offered a resolution to-day indorsing President Roosevelt in his position in the controversy with E. H. Harriman. The resolution wes at once defeated, Representative Banks, the Republican leader, saying that the General Assembly hed enough "live issues" at home, without going afield to take part in the controversies of others.

As the resolution was new business, Representative Gardner failed to get enough votes to pass it after Representative Banks' objection.

INDIAN HUNT CUT SHORT.

Cook Partly Spoiled Young Black's Fun, Then Police Got Him.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, April 9. — Foster Black, the fourteen-year-old son of a resident of Naw York, applied at Melhado's clothing store here yesterday for an exchange of his knickerbockers for long trousers. Mr. Melhado discovered that the boy had a belt around his waist in which dangled a hatchet. The boy was turned over to tha police, to whom he said that he was bound for a hunt after Indians in the Catskill Mountains, killing lions and bears on the side.

"I had a bully outfit all ready for this expedition," said young Black, "if it hadn't been for that darn cook of ours. I had a valise full of clothes and a gun hidden on our woodshed, but the cook got on to it and locked the woodshed, so I couldn't get them out. There were two pounds of nails, 100 feet of fish line, and a box of cartridges in the grip."

The boy's father at his office in New York was informed by telephone of the intention of tha boy. He asked that he be sent to New York in charge of a policeman. Chief McCabe took Foster down on an evening train and was met at the Grand Central Station by Mr. Black, who said:

"This is the second time he has left home. The first time he went to Bridgeport, and we got very much excited over it. This time I decided to let him go until he was picked up by the police. I hope you have cured him of his nonsense. I will add a few ellopathic doses when I get him home, as I have a key to the woodshed."

THRASHED A BIG POLICEMAN.

Ninety-Pound Waiter Played with Him as He Pleased.

A featherweight Greek waiter who had some knowledge of jiu-jitsu did as he liked with Policeman Gonnoud of the Mercer Street Station late on Monday night when the policeman grew abusive and a trifle violent in the restaurant of George Aariauakos at 301 West Fifty-second Street. The little waiter, who weighs only 90 pounds, took Gonnoud's badge and revolver from him and, after beating a tattoo on the policeman's head, sat on his chest until Gonnoud promised to be good. The policeman tips the scales at 210 pounds.

Gonnoud strolled into the restaurant about 11 o'clock on Monday night. The prospect of twenty-four hours off duty was before him and he was feeling fine. He ordered a glass of beer and a ham sandwich, ate them, and started out of the place. Arthur, the little waiter, approached, but Gonnoud only flashed his policeman's badge, smiled, and continued toward the door. This did not satisfy Arthur at all.

"Yes, I know you, but I want the money," he said pleasantly.

Tha policeman threw a sugar bowl at the waiter. It smashed a mirror and then they clinched.

When the policeman had had quite enough Arthur took the revolver and badge to the Mercer Street Station and gave them to tbe Sergeant, then returned to see what had becoine of Gonnaud. The latter had revived and accompanied two other policemen to the station, where he charged Arthur with assault and accused the proprietor with having sold liquor without a license. The Greeks were locked up and eo was Gonnoud, tha latter on a charge of assault.

In tha West Side Police Court yesterday the two Greeks and tha policeman were paroled for a further hearing on Thursday morning.

RIVER OF MILK ASTRAY.

Times Square Flooded After a Crash of Wagon and Car.

Folks asleep in the hotels about Times Square were awakened at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning by a rumbling as if the Subway was falling in. Those who ran into the street to see what had happened found several hundred people gathered about a wrecked milk wagon of the McDermott Dairy Company.

It had been hit hy a Seventh Avenue north-bound car and seventy cans, each containing forty quarts of milk, had been spilled in the roadway. The smashing of the cans had caused the dln.

The wagon was overturned and the axles and wheels broken into matchwood. The driver, Philip Smith of 707 Ninth Avenue, was pitched out and landed on hie head on the sidewalk.

A river of milk flowed down Seventh Avenue. The railroad employes scoopad up pails of it. The injured driver was taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

Says Central Removed Rails.

Special to The New York Times.

RHINECLIFF, April 9.—Theodore S. Barnes, Superintendent of Ellersile, ex-Gov. Levi P. Morton's estate, denied today that the New York Central Railroad track on the siding on land owned by Mr. Morton had been removed by the latter's employes. Mr. Barnes says the rails were removed several days ago by the road's employes, as the company hed no further use for the siding.

John Fox Home from Seeing Croker.

John Fox, President of the Democratic Club, was among tbe passengers arriving from Europe on the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria yesterday morning. Mr. Fox while away visited Richard Croker at his homa near Dublin. Mr. Croker, he said, was not in the best of health, and he had no idea of returning to the United States in the near future.

APRIL SNOWFALL BREAKS THE RECORD

Five Inches Which Soon Became Slush Overspreads the Town.

THE EARLY ROBIN TROUBLED

What's Become of Spring Anyway?—Even the Weather Man Didn't See This Coming.

Long Island cabbages put to rout,
Hail the gentle Spring!
Delaware peach crop up the spout,
Hail the gentle Spring!
Snow all over budding trees,
Slush that's up to the public's knees,
All the world a colossal sneeze,
D—n the gentle Spring!
What the Poet said.

The Broadway robin early astir yesterday morning building his nest in the façade of one of the hotels centring about Times Squere shivered in the cold air as courageously he labored with cigarette stumps, theatre seat coupons, and pieces of early edltions of afternoon newspapers.

It was very cold at 6 o'clock in the morning.

"It certainly ought to be Spring," he reflected. "Oscar Hammerstein has put the men to work on his roof garden, the critics say the theatres are slumping off into silly plays, the hotels are furbishing up their roofs, and the advertising men are flying kites. But it certainly is cold."

At 6:20 what at first seemed at a distance to be a mist drifted and swirled in from the sea. When it reached Forty-accond Street the Broadway robin found it was snow. All signs had failed. There was nothing for the wise bird and his mate to do save to crawl into the partly finished nest and keep warm.

An April Rain Frozen.

According to the Official Forecaster yesterday's snowfall was not a joke, but an accident. An April shower came in from the sea on Monday night, appearing off the Middle Atlantic States and moving northeast. It happened to strike the land at a time when the temperature was near the freezing point. The result was that instead of the rain usual at this time, there came snow, as far south as Washington. Another storm in the lake region caused rain and snow there and in the Ohio Valley and New England.

Up to 2 o'clock the snowfall in the city was three inches, which exactly paralleled the record of April 7, 1893, when three inches fell. But by 5 o'clock five and a half inches had been spread over town, making the highest April record since the Weather Bureau began to note conditions in 1871.

In 1898, on April 5, 2.6 inches were registered, and again on April 7, 1.7 inches. On April 3, 1895, there was an inch of snowfall, so that yesterday was not only the record-breaker in snowfall for April, but was also two days later in point of time. There have been some flurries of snow at even a later date in April, but yesterday's fall passed the previous record by 2.5 inches.

Mr. Emery thought last night that the storm would be over by this morning, though he said it was working itself out very slowly indeed.

Shock to Weather Prophets.

It was not only the birds and the Delaware peach crop that were shocked by the unexpected frozen April shower. Manhattan has an increasing number of persons who, while they profess to be weatherwise in the open country, have come to rely when in town implicitly upon the Weather Man. Some of these, beguiled by his forecast for yesterday, had left umbrellas, stormcoats, and rubbers in their downtown offices. When they awoke in Harlem or Jersey or Westchester County, they said things, and then grinned and bore it.

If, before leaving the suburbs, they glanced at their wives' flower beds, they saw the cherished geraniums set out only a few days before half buried beneath the whiteness. They also marveled at their own exceeding wisdom in having refused to plant the sweet peas and nasturtiums as the women had tried to induce them to do last Saturday.

No Time for Parkmaking.

Around City Hall the Park Department, which had already made preparations for Spring, viewed the event of the day with disapproval. Early in the morning a large wagon with the Park Department legend on it drove up before the County Court House. Onlookers grinned while park employes took from it rakes, hoes, and the implements of a Spring park cleaning, which they dumped resentfully into the cellar. In the park itself the shoots from tulip bulbs had begun to appear, only to be covered up again, while the old elm, which had begun to bud, had little piles of snow in its crotches.

Tha snow bureau of tbe Street Cleaning Department decided early in the day that it would be a woeful waste of the city's money to call on anybody outside of the department for help in the removal of the snow, since the half of it melted almost as soon as it touched the pavement. However, they had a regular force of 2,000 men, with 1,000 carts, at work clearing tha crossings.

Traffic was badly hampered by tha slippery underwheeling. In Broadway, near Fulton Street, one truck got afoul of two surface cars. An uptown car struck tha rear of the truck, swinging it about, and then a southbound car wedged itself against the side.

As the driver didn't move, both motormen put on power for a moment, each hoping to frighten the driver. A policeman had to rescue him.

At 7 o'clock last night the temperature, which had hung persistently at 34, jumped to 36. Then the frozen April shower melted. At that time the trees in tbe parks and the open spaces in such sections as Morningside Heights were covered with snow, and the general aspect was that of midwinter. In the streets the rain added to the snow covering made slush that stopped up the gutters and left small lakes at the curbing, through which people had to wade.

Again at 9 o'clock the temperature altered, this time receding to 35. As 34 had been the temperature when the snow was falling, and 36 that of the rain time, tbe result wes a gentle sleet.

IMMIGRANTS HELD BY SNOW.

Intense Suffering Caused by Tie-Up of the Canadian Northern.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 9.—Traffic conditions on the Canadian Northern Railway in the Northwest are reported in worse shape than they have been on any Western road this year. All freight offices have had notices of the embargo on shipments west of Kamasach, and passenger travel is limited.

The present tie-up has been caused by terrific blizzards which have been sweeping over Western Canada. From 1,200 to 1,500 cars have been tied up between Emerson and St. Vincent. Most of the cars are loaded with immigrants. It is said, and the suffering at times has been intense.

Wires Down Through New England.

BOSTON, Mass., April 9.—Telegraph and telephone wires which withstood many severe snowstorms of the last Winter fell to-day under the weight of wet snow and sleet, and for several houre to-night telegraphic communication throughout Eastern New England was prostrated. The storm was general over the greater part of New England. Little damage was done to shipping.

An ARISTOCRAT Among Pianos

The Steck Demi Grand

HERE is a piano that imparts an air of distinction to any surroundings in which it may be placed.

First you remark the richness of its exterior, its classic outlines, the rare beauty of its veneers.

Then, if you are a judge of piano-quality, you are amazed at the depth and brilliancy of tone.

The Steck Demi Grand responds with the Real Grand Quality of Tone in which many other small grands are notably deficient.

This piano measures only 5 feet 5 inches in length, thus requiring very little more floor-space than an upright.

Price, $650, in mahogany

Moderate monthly payments may be arranged if preferred.

BRACKETT FACTION TO MAKE TROUBLE

Republican Leaders Learn Their Apportionment Plan Will Be Fought.

THEY MEAN TO DO LITTLE

Woodruff and Parsons Say That Up-State Districts Will Scarcely Be Touched.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Trouble is expected from various parts of the State in case the Republican leaders should adhere to their present programme in connection with the new legislative apportionment, made necessary by the recent action of the Court of Appeals.

This programme has been made clear by the leading Republicans in the Senate as well as by Stats Chairman Woodruff and Herbert Parsons, Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee. It involves a more or less perfunctory adjustment of Senatorial district lines which would not materally alter the present situation, the only marked changes to be made being in the districts that constituted the basis for the recent court decision.

It was learned to-day that if the present Legislature should carry out its programme, its action would be taken into court by Republicans who figured big in the councils of the perty and who suffered politically from the 1906 reapportionment. One of these is ex-Senator Edward T. Brackett of Saratoga, whose renomination was prevented by the changes in the district he represented.

It is also practically certain that there would be trouble should only one Senatorial district be given to Westchester County. This plan probably would meet with the approval of William L. Ward, the Republican boss, because with the county divided it is more likely that one seat might go to a Democrat.

It is said, however, that the Democrats in the county insist upon a division. It is pointed out that while Senator Raines's district boasts of little more than 90,000 inhabitants, Westchester County, with 202,000, has only one Senator.

Ex-Senator Elon R. Brown, who acted as counsel for some of the complainants in the cases which went to the Court of Appeals, was in Albany to-day and had a talk with various Republican leaders. His friends declare that he lies been studying the Court of Appeals' decision closely and that hs would be likely to come to the front again to contest the constitutionality of the reapportioument plan as planned by the Republican leaders.

Chsirman Woodruff, who came to the Capitol last night, said to-day that there would be few chenges in the up-State districts and that the principal change to be made would involve a readiustment of the Senatorial district which takes in Richmond County. He expressed his belief that the up-State districts would be declared constitutional if left as thsy are at present.

Chairman Parsons declared that the principal change in New York City would involve the Thirteenth Senatorial District end two adjacent districts.

"I believe," said Mr. Parsons, "that only slight chsnges will be necessary to effect a reapportionment that will stand the test of constitutionality. The division of New York City as decreed by the Constitutional Convention of 1894, to which we have automatically reverted, could not be tolerated. It was very bad, and inequitable, and while it proposed to lay down a constitutional precedent, it did nothing of the kind."

Mr. Parsons was asked whether he thought a reapportionment would affect the leadership in New York County.

"If you mean what we would call control in New York County it would not. It might have been different a year ago. It will affect possibly the control of certain districts, but will leave the general situation unchanged."

LIMITS CAMPAIGN EXPENSES.

Mr. Phillips's Bill Passed by the Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Assembly passed Mr. Phillips's bill to-day to limit the expenses of political candidates at elections. The candidates for Governor are limited to $10,000; other State officers, except members of the judiciary, $6,000; Congress, $4,000; State Senators, $2,000; Assemblymen, $1,000.

Mr. Phillips withstood several attacks on the measure.

"There is enough reason for this," he said, "if one reflects on the spectacle we had last campaign, when one of the candidates tried to buy the office of Governor."

Glynn of Monroe offered two amendments—one to limit the expenses of candidates to actual traveling expenses, the other to restrict the expenditures of political committees. Both were voted down.

H. H. ROGERS, JR., A CAPTAIN.

Gets His Commission in the New Company of the Twelfth.

ALBANY, April 9.—Adjt. Gen. Henry issued to-day a commission to Henry H. Rogers, Jr., as Captain of the new company recently mustered into the Twelfth Regiment, New York. A commission was also issued to Edgar Bacland as Second Lieutenant of the new company. Cornelius Vanderbilt also is a Captain in the Twelfth.

Gen. Henry announced the acceptance of the resignation of Major Anthony J. Bleecker of the Seventy-first Regiment, New York. Major Bleecker had been connected with the National Guard for many years.

NO COMPLAINTS, SAYS KELSEY

The Insurance Department Hasn't Received Canvass Protests.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 9.—Supt. Otto Kelsey of the State Insurance Department said to-day:

"No complaints concerning the admission of forged ballots in connection with the election of Directors of the New York Life and Mutual Life Insurance Companies have been received by this department. It has been said that complaints were forwarded to the Governor, but none has reached here."

SHERMAN TO RESIGN SOON.

State Commissioner of Labor Returns to Albany After Week's Illness.

ALBANY, April 9.—P. Tecumseh Sherman, State Commissioner of Labor, returned to Albany to-day, after a week's illness at his home in New York. Asked when he expected to resign from office, he said:

"I am anxious to resign as soon as possible, but do not care to press the matter with the Governor until after the legislative rush is over. I believe I shall retire just as soon as the Governor finishes his labor with the thirty-day bills."

Hughes Declines to Save Slayer.

ALBANY, April 9.—Gov. Hughes announced to-day that he would not interfere with the sentence of death passed upon Edward Sexton of Farmington, who is to be executed in Auburn Prison in the week of April 15. Sexton was convicted in Canandiagua about three years ago of the murder of Thomas Mahoney, Jr.

HUGHES VETOES CLAIM BILL.

Tells the Legislature to Give General Powers to City Board.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Gov. Hughes to-day vetoed a bill introduced by Senator Harte of Queens, giving the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of New York City power to provide for the payment of a claim against the city by Robert E. Jones for services and materials furnished in the repair of the fire alarm system of the Fifth Ward in Queens.

The Hartje bill is typical of a large crop of measures introduced at each session. Gov. Hughes in a statement explaining his action practically declared that he will veto all such measures.

"It is a simple matter," he said, "to give the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York, by a general bill, the necessery power to deal with the equities of any claim."

VOTE FOR MILITIA INQUIRY.

Then Senators Learn the Passage of the Bill Was Illegal.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Wainwright bill providing for the appointment of a commission of nine to investigate the National Guard and revise the Military Code was passed by the Senate to-day by a vote of 48 to 0. Then it was discovered that the bill had not been printed in its amended form the three days before passage required by the legislative law. The vote was declared void and the bill put over for future action.

This is one of the Governor's reform bills which was first blocked in the Senate Finance Committee by the joint efforts of Senators Raines and Grady and then reported out with slight amendments after Raines had seen Gov. Hughes and experienced a change of heart whioh ceused a sensation at the Capitol.

The charge was made in the Assembly to-day by Assemblyman Cuvillier of New York that the Wells bill to lodge with the Governor the appointment of the Brigadier Generals of the National Guard, in place of allowing the Guard to elect them, was nothing less than a move to oust Gens. McLeer and George Moore Smith from their commands. This was denied by Wells, ths introducer, and also by Wainwright of Westchester. Wainwright said that the election of high officers of the Guard had not proved a success. The bill went through by a vote of 85 to 42.

A LITTLE JOKE ON TAMMANY.

McCarren Proposes to Make It an Annex of Brooklyn Academy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—A bill by Senator Travis, intended to exempt the Brooklyn Academy of Music from taxation, came up to-day in tho Senate. It provides that the proper authorities have power to exempt any hail or public meeting place, erected by public subscriptions, where it shall be shown that the previous year has not produced a net income large enough to justify the payment of a dividend.

Senator Travis explained that Mayor McClellan and the city authorities were in favor of the bill.

Senator "The" McManus arose.

"I would like to know," he said, "whether the Mayor would be in favor of exempting from taxation a Democratic clubhouss in New York which seems to fit these conditions. I mean Tammany Hall."

He suggested an amendment to effect this purpose. Senator Travis smilingly declined to accept it.

Senator McCerren arose with a quizzical smile.

"I would suggest," he said, "that we can easily bring Tammany Hall within the provisions of this bill by making it an annex to the Brooklyn Academy of Music."

After a hearty laugh nnd some more sallies the bill was laid aside.

HOTEL GOTHAM BILL UP.

Senator Raines Pleads for a Liquor License for the Place.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Senator Raines today urged the Saxe bill, which would permit the Hotel Gotham at Fifty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, New York City, to obtain a liquor license, despite the fact that it is within 200 feet of a church. Senator Thomas C. Platt lives at this hotel.

Saxe's amendment to the liquor law provides that a license shall be issued in such a case unless the Board of Trustees of the church effected, after being duly notified that a license will be applied for, shall within thirty days file objections.

Senator Agnew, who represents the district in which the Gotham is situated, opposed the bill.

Senator Raines explained, in reply to questions, that the bill as at present drafted would apply to the entire State. His was willing that it should be amended so as to apply only to the Gotham case. The bill was then temporarily laid aside.

CONKLIN BILL PASSED.

It Deprives Borough Presidents of Aldermanic Membership.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—After a desultory fight, the Assembly passed to-day the Conklin bill, which deprives the five Borough Presidents of New York City of membership in the Board of Aldermen, and reduces the powers of President McGowan to the right to vote only on financial measures. The bill is expected to give to the Republicans the control of the Board of Aldermen by one vote.

State Chairman Woodruff and County Chairman Parsons are not losing any time keeping the bill going. If the Republicans control the Board of Aldermen and there is another apportionment of Assembly districts this year, it will fall to them to do the dividing in New York City.

CHILD LABOR BILL PASSES.

Wadsworth Machine Makes a Fruitless Effort to Amend It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Wadsworth machine suffered a setback in the House today, when it put forward an amendment to the Page bill, limiting the hours of labor for children between 14 and 16 from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M. Assemblyman Prentice offered it. The amendment provided that the hours should be from 7 A. M. to 6 P. M. The House voted against it 75 to 58, leaving the bill to go through as it came from the Senate.

The House machine fought hard for the amendment.

PLATTSBURG'S MAYOR OUT.

Dr. Rehyde Resigns After Row with Superintendent of Streets.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Dr. Rehyde has resigned as Mayor of Plattsburg, to take effect immediately. Differences with the Superintendent of Streets is supposed to be the cause.

The vacancy will be filled by Alderman Baker, as Acting Mayor, until a successor is chosen by the Common Council.

Insists on Higher Legislative Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Assemblyman Cuvillier of New York served notice to-day that he would move to discharge the Ways and Means Committee from further consideration of his bill which would amend the constitution and increase the salaries of legislators from $1,500 to $3,000. There is much interest as to whether the New York law makers will fall in line with the Congressmen who voted themselves $7,500 a year last session.

Psi Upsilon Convention To-morrow.

The seventy-fourth annual convention of Psi Upsilon will be held in New York City to-morrow and Friday. PEARY READY FOR ANOTHER POLE DASH Gets 3 Years' Absence and Will Start in the Roosevelt in June.

FUNDS SAID TO BE AMPLE

This Time He Will Start More to the Westward on Seventh Attempt to Gain Goal.

The Navy Department at Washington granted another three-years' leave of absence yesterday to Commander Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, and this added to the fact that orders had been given to hurry along the repair work on the polar ship Roosevelt, convinced the friends of Peary that he would have another expedition ready to sail for the north pole by June 10. It is known that he is anxious to get away about that date.

Commander Peary stated in his lectures that if he ever started again to reach the Pole he would take a course more to the westward from the last starting point, a thing he learned on his last trip.

There were only two obstacles that he encountered in his plans to try again to reach the goal of his ambition.

One of these was the raising of funds to pay the expenses of the expedition, and the other was the necessity of obtaining a leave of absence from the Navy Department. A few days ago the announcement was made that Commander Peary had received a guarantee of $200,000 for a new expedition.

The other obstacle was overcome yesterday, when the Navy Department granted the three years' leave of absence.

One of Commander Peary's friends said last night that there was now nothing in the way to prevent going ahead with the plans for Peary's seventh polar expedition.

In preparation for his seventh polar attempt Commander Peary has notified Capt. Robert Bartlett of St. John's to get ready by May 20, when the Roosevelt will be in shape. At present he is on leave of absence from the navy on a lecturing tour. This leave of absence expires next Sunday.

Herbert L. Bridgman, the Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, when asked last night at his home in Brooklyn for some of the details of the coming expedition, said that he had not seen Commander Peary for several weeks, and consequently could not talk about the matter.

Mr. Bridgman said that the new boilers for the Roosevelt were not more than half ready, but the work of putting the ship in shape was well under way, and that it was possible to have the Roosevelt ready before June 1, if Commander Peary was ready to make a new start northward at that time.

It is understood this time Commander Peary will select his own crew, so as to avoid trouble, and that he has already got the censent of Roy Marvin, naturalist, and Dr. Louis Wolff, to accompany him on the trip. To one of his friends he said he believed that by going further to the westward than he did on his last trip, and drifting, he will be able to establish a base of supplies near enough to the Pole to enable him to make the trip there and return over the ice on sledges in less than three months' time from the date of sstablishing his base.

In one of his recent lectures he said that his next expedition ought to set a course, not direct for the pole on the over-ice sledge journey, but for a point to the westward of the pole, so as to take advantege of the eastward drift of the ice floes.

The Roosevelt, which was built by the Peary Arctic Club, sailed for the Polar regions on July 16, 1905, and got back a few months ago. She got as far as Cape Sheridan, the northernmost point reached by a vessel that had to fight against ice and Arctic gales. Explorer Nansen's ship, the Fram, on Sept. 5, 1905, got further, but by drifting.

This time it is Peary's intention to drift with the ice floes as far north as possible and then he believes he can reach the pole by sledge. He said after his return from his last trip that if the season had been normal he would have done better, but he encountered an arctic storm that disabled the Roosevelt for a time.

After establishing Winter quarters near Cape Sheridan, Peery went over the ice on a sledge, but finally his progress was stopped by leads or open lanes of water. He succeeded in crossing many of these after waiting for them to freese, but the young ice compelled the party to leeve much of their supplies behind, as they could only carry half loads on their sledges.

They then made a dash forward to get as near to the pole as possible, but, losing many of their dogs, had to return to their ship after having planted their silk flags at 87 degrees 6 minutes north.

Stokes-Randolph Suit Up To-day.

Starch Indigestion

A Very Common Form of Dyspepsia Vanquished By Eating

Grape-Nuts

"There's a Reason"

The starchy foods so much used nowadays—white bread, pastry, potatoes, hot biscuit, etc., often cause "starch indigestion" and a long line of troubles because the digestive organs are unable to handle the excess of this kind of food-material.

It remains in the stomach, partially ferments, causing gas and sour eructations, besides preventing the body from absorbing the full amount of food necessary. Such persons often feel hungry a short time after eating.

In making Grape-Nuts, a food expert combined whole wheat and barley in the same way the human organs act on food—with heat, moisture and time—the diastase in the barley, during the process of manufacture, changing the starch into a form of soluble sugar, thus making it easy of digestion.

In this way he devised a means of assisting weak digestive organs to handle natural food with ease and not only build up brain and nerves, but strengthen the digestive organs at the same time.

If you have any kind of indigestion or nervous dyspepsia, you'll find a marked change in your condition by a ten days' use of

MAY GIVE UP CUBA ON JULY 4, 1908

Taft Hears Pleas of Conservatives and Liberals and Compromise May Result.

THOROUGH CENSUS FIRST

Secretary Considers This Step Absolutely Necessary Before Successful Elections Can Be Held.

HAVANA, April 9.—It appears likely to-night that July 4, 1908, will be the day when the control of Cuban affairs will be given back to the Cuban people.

The Liberals are anxious that the final elections be held in December, 1907, and the Government turned over May 20, 1908, the aniversary of the inauguration of the first Cuban Republic; they also want the municipal and provincial elections held simultaneously. The Conservatives, on the other hand, desire that the final elections be held later than next December and that the municipal and provincial elections be held six months apart.

In view of this divergence of desire, a compromise which will result in the turning over of the control of Cuban affairs on the American holiday is probable.

It is known that Secretary Taft insists upon a thorough census, considering such a step absolutely necessary before successful elections can be held. This undoubtedly will require more than four months, the estimate of time therefore made by the Liberals.

Consequently the municipal elections would fall in October or November, but as December is the month for harvesting the sugar crop, it is recognized that elections in October or November are impracticable, as they would pretty thoroughly disorganize the community at just the time when the greatest number of men are needed in the fields.

The wishes of the planters, therefore, will be heeded, and the next Cuban sugar crop will be gathered under American control.

A committee of the Conservatives called upon Secretary Taft. The committee, which included some of the strongest men in Cuba, argued that Cuba to-day was torn by political passions and that at least one year must pass before these could subside and elections be carried out in a manner creditable to both the United States and Cuba.

The only other desire regarding the date expressed by the Conservative Committee was that Cuban independence be re-established before the expiration, Dec. 19, of the present reciprocity treaty in order that Cuba may be in a position to treat for a renewal of this treaty.

A delegation from the Planters' League also called on the Secretary and expressed the hope that no elections would be held at an early date, saying that such a prospect would prevent them from obtaining money from the bankers.

A committee of insurgent Generals called and asked for the removal of the municipal officers of the cities of Havana, Marianao, and Batabano, contending that ex-President Palma illegally substituted the present officers for regularly elected Liberals.

PARIS STRIKE TALK.

Indications That Threatened Big Turnout Will Not Occur.

PARIS, April 9.—The Confederation of Labor continues to utter threats of a general atrike to begin next Thursday or ahortly thereafter, when it declares that 50,000 men in the provision trades, not counting the bakers and the postmen, will turn out. The proprietors of the principal provision atores, however, declare their staffs will remain at work; the bakers declare unanimously they will not atrike, and it is probable that large numbers will refrain from joining the movement.

According to officials of the postal service, the discontented letter carriers number only 1,500 men. The leaders of the strike movement among the postmen probably will be dismissed. The Government has taken steps to carry on the postal service by means of troops in the event of a strike.

MOORS KILL FRENCH TROOPS.

Algerian Irregulars Said to Have Clashed with Tribesmen.

PARIS, April 9.—Private dispatches from Oudja, Morocco, now held by French troops, report that a number of Algerian irregular troops were killed in the vicinity of the town recently in the courae of an altercation with Moroccan tribesmen. No details of the affair are given and no confirmation of the report is obtainable at the Foreign Office.

In official circles here the pacific utterances of the Sultan of Morocco, in the course of his proclamation read in the mosques, are regarded as evidence of his good intentions. The French Government, however, considers that his promises are not sufficient to justify the evacuation of Oudja, and is determined to await a more tangible demonstration of the Moorish desire for a restoration of the former relations before withdrawing the French troops.

TANGIER, April 9.—The Consular Corps at Casablanca has forwarded a joint protest to the Diplomatic Corps here against the Governor of Casablanca, declaring he is doing nothing to insure the safety of Europeans.

PARIS BOURSE INACTIVE.

Belied Improvement in International Situation Is Temporary.

PARIS, April 9.—The financial situation arising from the advance in the private rate of discount and the rumored advance in the bank rate may be described as one of inactivity and expectation. It is held that the defensive policy of raising the bank rate would be fully justified by the reduction of 23,000,000 in the gold receipts and various other conditions that recently have come to the public notice.

The improvement in the monetary situation in New York is believed to be momentary only and due entirely to the steps taken by Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou. The expected reduction in the bank rate of discount in London is declared here to be unjustifiable and unmaintainable, and these conditions, coupled with the lack of anything definite from Berlin, tend to confirm the belief that the improvement in the international situation is temporary.

The wisdom of the French financial policy is not questioned, and consequently business is inactive.

Germans Pleased with Tower's Speech

COLOGNE, April 9.—An inspired telegram from Berlin published in the Cologne Gazette to-day says that the speech of Ambassador Tower at the Manhattan Club dinner given in his honor April 8 was so friendly in tone, rendering at the same time justice to German ways and aims, that it must be received in Germany with the greatest satisfaction, especially as it comes from a man who has known Germany personally for a long time, and who enjoys the reputation of being a clever and sagacious observer of German methods.

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

First Large Personally Conducted Party Sees the Sights.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—The first large personally conducted party of Americans to visit London this season arrived at the Hotel Cecil to-day and immediately became a rival attraction to the Colonial Premiers sojourning there. It was very showery all day, but that did not prevent the visitors from carrying out the programme laid out by their conductor.

The day's arrivals also included Paul Loving, Mrs. W. H. Brown, and R. F. Rogers of New York at the Carlton; Aurlel Batonyi of New York at the Ritz, Mrs. Marshall Field and Master Henry and Miss Gwendolyn Field at Claridge's.

F. Coleman of New York gave a dinner to ten English friends to-night at the Carlton.

SHAKESPEARE IN ESPERANTO.

Series of Plays to be Given When Esperanto Congress Meets.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—A series of Shakespearean plays in Esperanto is promised for the edification of those who attend the annual Esperanto Congress at Cambridge in August.

Pretty nearly everybody in Cambridge will know some Esperanto by the time the congress assembles. Walters, barmaids, cabmen, and policemen are being instructed in it so as to be able to understand and make themselves understood in the universal language.

WILLIAM T. STEAD'S STATUS.

British Government Says He Is Not Representing It.

LONDON, April 9.—Foreign Secretary Grey, replying to a question in the House of Commons to-day, repudiated any Governmental connection with William T. Stead's recent tour of the European Courts in support of the discussion of the limitation of armaments at the coming Peace Conference at The Hague.

The comments of Continental newspapers attributing some semi-official status to Mr. Stead led Mr. Haddock, Unionist, to ask for a copy of the instructions given to Mr. Stead prior to his departure on his mission. The Foreign Secretary replied:

"There has been no such mission in connection with his Majesty's Government."

FISHERIES TREATY BASIS.

Reached as Result of British Negotiations in Washington.

LONDON, April 9.—The statement cabled from Washington that it is officially admitted there that an Anglo-American treaty has been drafted providing for the appointment of a joint commission to consider the boundaries and fisheries questions between the United States and Canada has caused much surprise in official circles here.

The Foreign Office officials say they have no advices from Ambassador Bryce that any such arrangement has been reached. In fact, so far as known here, the formal negotiations have not yet been opened, although there has been considerable discussion of the various questions outstanding between the United States and Canada.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—It is stated here that probably lack of advices upon the recent developments in the exchanges that have occurred between America and Great Britain relative to the settlement of the questions between the United States and Canada accounts for the statement from London to-day to the effect that formal negotiations have not yet been opened.

While the agreement reported is not quite as comprehensive as was at first supposed, it is now authoritatively stated that negotiations have been formally conducted, with the result of reaching a basis for a treaty that shall provide means for the settlement of all questions relating to the fresh-water fisheries and control of the waters of the international rivers and streams. The regulation of the navigation of St. Johns River being otherwise provided for in an act passed at the last aession of Congress, will be treated by a special commission to be appointed for that purpose.

ON STRIKE FOR THREE YEARS.

British Miners Refuse Terms Offered —Have Cost Union $250,000.

MEXBOROUGH, Yorkshire, England, April 9.—The miners of the Thrybergh Hall colliery, who went out on strike nearly three years ago, to-day refused the terms offered by the employers to return to work.

These strikers have received over $250,000 strike pay from their union.

Women's Rights Bill Up Again.

LONDON, April 9.—Sir Charles Dilke, Advanced Radical, introduced in the House of Commons to-day his Women's Enfranchisement bill, which was read for the first time without any discussion. The bill is similar to the one he introduced last year, which was defeated. It provides that nobody shall be disqualified by sex or marriage from being elected to either House of Parliament or to local bodies, or from exercising any public functions whatever.

PEACE CONFERENCE JUNE 15.

Members Will Foregather in the Knights' Hall at The Hague.

THE HAGUE, April 9.—June 15, at 2 o'clock, has been fixed for the opening of the Second Peace Conference here. The function will occur in the Knights' Hall, a brick building resembling a chapel and forming part of the Binnenhof, a mediaeval pile of buildings, in the centre of the city, aurrounding the palace built for Count William I. of Holland in 1250.

Doude Van Troostwijk, former Chief of the Bureau of Political Affairs of the Foreign Office, will be proposed for Secretary General of the Conference.

HONDURAN CONSUL OBEYS NICARAGUAN

Gives Up His Consulate at New Orleans Without a Protest.

SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON

Official Not Obliged to Surrender—Nicaraguan Legation Had Received No Instructions About It.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 9.—Nicaragua considers that she has subjugated Honduras. Such is the meaning, and practically the only meaning, that could be assigned to a cablegram received today by Ramon Echazareta, New Orleans Consul for Nicaragua, from the General Secretary for the Nicaraguan Government. Mr. Echazareta was instructed to take charge of the Honduran Consul's office in this city and notify all shippers, or any other persons having documents to be signed by the Honduran Consul, that the same must bear the signature of Mr. Echazareta before they will be admitted by the Nicaraguan Government into Honduras.

When the cablegram was shown to Juan F. Fernandez, the Honduran Consul at this port, he at once turned the office over to Mr. Echazareta. Mr. Fernandez said he had heard nothing from his fallen Government. The cablegram from the Nicaraguan Government was official, he said, "and of course there was nothing for me to do but to turn my office over to Mr. Echazareta."

Incidentally it is stated that Mr. Fernandez was deposed because he was hostile to the Zelaya faction while all of Mr. Fernandez's relatives were on friendly terms with the President of Nicaragua. It is still insisted here that President Zelaya aspires to become the chief executive of four united republics, Nicaragua, Honduras, Salvador, and Guatemala. By encouraging revolutions, it is said, he expects to set up provisional Governments in Salvador and Guatemala. The next step will be to call a general congress and be hailed as President of the united republics.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The surrender of the Honduran Consulate at New Orleans to the Nicaraguan Consul there without a protest is inexplicable on any information received here. The Nicaraguan Legation has received no instructions from its Government in the matter, and says that any instructions to the Consul at New Orleans would have been transmitted through the Legation. No such instructions have been transmitted, and the Legation is entirely in the dark as to the occurrence. The Minister from Salvador and Honduras to the United States has been absent from his post here for some time, and there is no one in Washington to represent him.

The Honduran Consul at New Orleans was manifestly under no physical obligation to surrender his Consulate, and at the first show of force would only have had to invoke the assistance of the police to receive full protection and involve his adversary in trouble.

As to whether the action in New Orleans had been general in the Honduran Consulates in this country, the Honduran Consul General in this city, Dr. Salvador Cordova, said last night that he had not received any instructions to that effect, even by intimation, and that it was in the highest degree improbable. However, as he had not been at the office since yesterday noon, instructions might have been received to that effect.

Alfonso D. Strauss, the Honduran Consul General, was out of town, and no verification could be obtained at his office.

THORODDSEN GETS MEDAL.

Says American Geographical Society Is the Greatest in the World.

COPENHAGEN, April 9.—Before a great assembly, gathered under the auspices of the Royal Geographical Society and presided over by Crown Prince Christian, the American Minister, Thomas J. O'Brien, on behalf of the American Geographical Society, to-night, presented the Daly Gold Medal to the celebrated Icelander, Thorvald Thoroddsen, scientist and explorer, who has mapped the volcanoes and glacial plateaus of Iceland, and who is the author of many important works on that country. On making the presentation Mr. O'Brien delivered an eloquent speech and was enthusiastically applauded.

Responding, the Crown Prince eulogized the United States, its people, and its scentists. Mr. Thoroddsen then spoke, thanking Minister O'Brien for the gift, and declaring that the American Geographical Society was the first, most important, and most renowned in the whole world.

Notes of Foreign News.

GIBRALTAR, April 9.—The American steam yacht Corsair, N. Y. Y. C., owned by J. Pierpont Morgan, arived here to-day from New York, March 29, bound for Marseilles.

PEKING, April 9.—Shih Chao Shi, a graduate of Cornell, has been selected by the Government to be chief adviser on railroad affairs of the Board of Communications.

HAMBURG, April 9.—Another attack upon the substitute English longshoremen occurred last night. Imported laborers who were unloading the steamer Luise on returning from supper found the way blocked by a cordon of strikers, who drove the strikebreakers off with sticks and stones. One striker fired a pistol at the fleeing Englishmen, wounding one of them in the thigh. Foreign longshoremen continue arriving here. Nearly five hundred reached Hamburg yesterday, but many of the Englishmen are returning home, over 300 having gone back to England since Saturday last.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 9.—Basil Miles, Third Secretary of the American Embassy here, left St. Petersburg to-day for the United States on a four months' vacation.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 9.—Grand Duke Michael, brother of Emperor Nicholas, has accepted the invitation of Prince Ferdinand to attend the manoeuvres of the Bulgarian troops, which will be held in August.

LIVERPOOL, April 9.—The Cunard Line steamship Carmania, which sailed from here to-day for New York, via Queenstown, took among her passengers the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, formerly of Pembroke Chapel, who has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, of New York.

BELGRADE, Servia, April 9.—The widespread floods caused by the melting of the snow are growing more serious. To-day many towns are practically under water. The military authorities are making every effort to save life and property.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, April 9.—The Government has issued an appeal to landholders and farmers to return to their properties and arrange with the peasants for the resumption of work. It promises laws that will improve the lot of the peasants without working injury to the legitimate interests of the land holders.

KINGS VISIT SPAIN'S SHIPS.

Anglo-Spanish Understanding Said to be Perfect.

CARTAGENA, Spain, April 9.—Premier Maurn and the British Ambassador to Spain, Sir Maurice de Bunsen, held a lengthy conference to-day on board the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, and King Alfonso, the Dowager Queen, King Edward, and Queen Alexandra visited all the ships of both squadrons.

The royal meeting terminates to-morrow morning.

MADRID, April 9.—The Anglo-Spanish understanding is perfect, according to the newspapors here, the majority of which comment favorably on the meeting of King Alfonso and King Edward at Cartagena. At the same time the consensus of opinion is that Spain must refrain from taking part in a discussion of the question of the limitation of armaments at The Hague, in which she cannot follow the British policy, as the country generally is in favor of a thorough reorganization of the Spanish Army and Navy.

TERROR IN BARCELONA.

Another Bomb Explosion Causes a Number of Casualties.

BARCELONA, Spain, April 9.—Another bomb explosion occurred here this morning and a number of casualties are reported to have resulted.

It appears that five persons were seriously injured by last night's bomb explosion at 26 Boqueria Street.

All despatches are strictly censured. The population is showing signs of great panic. The authorities will not permit the publication of details relative to the bomb explosions and other outrages are feared.

CAPITOL SCHEDULE GONE.

Important Paper in the Harrisburg Scandal Cannot Be Found.

HARRISBURG, April 9.—The official copy of the schedule of 1902, upon which the $2,000,000 contract for the metallic furniture of the new Capitol was awarded to the Pennsylvania Construction Company cannot be found. This schedule is necessary to show the terms of the contract between the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings, composed of the Governor, Auditor General, and State Treasurer, and the construction company. Without this schedule the State would be unable to recover anything from this company if it should be found that there has been overcharges for the furniture. The commission will go to New York to-morrow to take testimony of New York sub-contractors.

Charles W. M. Juple, a former employe of Joseph M. Huston, the architect of the Capitol, testified that his work was to copy the original drawings of Henry Ives Cobb of New York. The doors of the room in which he worked, he said, were locked by orders of Huston, and drawings were kept in a secret drawer when not in use. The witness explained that Cobb was the architect who originally designed the Capitol and that Huston got all his ideas from the Cobb drawings.

Henry Ives Cobb, the architect, said last night that the testimony in Harrisburg did not surprise him. He said that the plans of the present Capitol, when compared with the drawings made by him, would be seen to be practically identical.

Mr. Cobb has been trying to collect a balance owed him by the State of Pennsylvania for several years, and it is probable that unless a settlement is effected in the near future he will appeal to the Federal courts to obtain a 5 per cent. commission on the cost of the Capitol building, exclusive of furnishings and decorations.

PRESIDENT THANKS EVANS.

Art Collector's Gift to National Gallery Is Appreciated.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Roosevelt has written the following letter to William T. Evans, who recently gave to the Smithsonian Institution a collection of paintings for the National Gallery of Art:

"The White House, Washington,
April 6, 1907.

"My Dear Mr. Evans: I have just been over to see the fifty specially selected paintings by American artists which you have so generously given to the Nation. I feel that action such as yours works in direct and practical fashion to encourage the development of American art and to foster its appreciation. I am particularly gratified at seeing such a gift come to Washington. You doubtless know that Mr. Freer's noteworthy collection of paintings has also been deeded to the Nation. Your gift, taken together with what has already been done, will form the cornerstone for a National gallery of art in the Nation's capital. In my judgment, a building to harbor this National gallery has become a necessity. In the case of the Freer collection, the generosity of the donor provided for its housing, but it is impossible that this should be ordinarily the case. An adequate building must be provided so that there may be incentive for gifts such as that of the Harriet Lane Johnston collection and yours. I very earnestly hope that Congress will at a very early date provide an adequate building for a National art gallery.

"With renewed thanks, believe me, sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

MRS. VON CLAUSSEN CALLS.

But Does Not See the President—Will Be Examined by Alienists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Mrs. Ida M. von Claussen undertook this morning to submit to the President her grievance against the United States Minister and Mrs. Graves, whom she calls the President's "representatives in Sweden." She got as far as the anteroom of the White House offices, and no further.

Mr. Loeb turned the affair over to Assistant Secretary Foater, who informed Mrs. von Claussen that both the President and Mr. Loeb were so busy that it would be impossible for either of them to see her. Thereupon Mrs. von Claussen handed to Mr. Foster a letter to the President, which read in part:

Mrs. von Claussen begs President Roosevelt to at once appoint a committee of experts to make sure that she is of sound mind before she proceeds further in this case, for she knows well, from previous reports, that when President Roosevelt is cornered he has a habit of appointing such committee to help him out of his difficulty. Therefore, not caring to lay herself open to further criticism, Mrs. von Claussen demands that such a committee be appointed at once, otherswise she will call the experts in herself.

Mrs. Von Claussen said later that Assistant Secretary of State Bacon had telephoned to her that if she would present her side of the case in writing, it would receive his careful consideration. She said she would prepare the statement, but that she will not call in person at the State Department to present it.

RESIGNED BECAUSE OF HEINZE LOANS

Ex-Cashier Holmes Says His Objections to Advancing Bank's Cash Led to Unpleasantness.

WAS IGNORED, HE DECLARES

Further Testimony in Preliminary Hearing in T. F. Hodgens's Action to Inspect United Copper's Books.

More light wns thrown upon the past relations of the various Heinze companies and the State Savings Bank of Butte when the preliminary testimony in the action started by Thomas F. Hodgens against the United Copper Company was taken up agsin yesterday before Nicholas W. Bindsell of Newark as Commissioner for the New Jersey Supreme Court. Mr. Hodgens, as the holder of 1,300 shares of United Copper preferred, seeks to examine the books of the company to see in what shspo the assets behind his investment have been left by the dividend policy of the Heinze management since the sale of most of the United's properties to the Ryan-Cole interests.

It became evident yesterday that the bitterness with which the Hodgens action is to be fought is growing as the case develops. The present hearings are only for the purpose of producing affidavits to substantiate the complnint. At the first one last Saturday, counsel for the United Copper Company made a determined effort to keep them frou being reported, and yesterday they postponed the cross-examination of Mr. Hodgens when his direct testimony was concluded until after all of the testimony for the Hodgens side should have gone in.

There is prospect of a warm session when Mr. Hodgens is cross-examined. The Heinze counsel yesterday questioned another witness at length, seeking to draw from him admissions in confirmation of the allegations made against Mr. Hodgens in the suit which the Heinzes have already brougbt against him in the name of the State Savings Bank. The Hodgens lawyers came to the conclusion that this was with a view to laying a foundation for Mr. Hodgens's cross-examination later on.

Testimony of Ex-Cashier Holmes.

William A. Lockwood of counsel for Mr. Hodgens, testified that he had learned through the Corporation Trust Company of Jersey City that the United Copper Company has filed no annual report with the Secretary of State of New Jersey since 1904. Mr. Lockwood declared that the filing of such reports was required by statute. The other development of interest in yesterday's hearing was the statement from Frank W. Holmes, ex-Assistant Cashier of the State Savings Bank, that the unpleasant relations which led to his eventual resignation from the bank a year ago developed coincidently with his own protests against increasing further the personal indebtedness of F. Augustus Heinze and that of some of the Heinze companies to the bank. This was after the Heinzes had come into complete control of the bank through the purchase of Mr. Hodgens's stock.

The circumstances of Mr. Holmes's withdrawal from the State Savings Bank were taken up as soon as he went on the stand by T. J. Walsh, counsel for Mr. Hodgens with Mr. Lockwood. A. P. Heinze, writing as Vice President of the United Copper Company, had referred to Holmes as a "discharged employe" in a letter printed by THE TIMES yesterday morning, complaining of the report of Saturday's testimony, the burden of which was that sometimes, when the United Copper Company did not have money enough in the bank to pay its dividends it happened that a draft was drawn on the New York account of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company and credited to the United's dividend account. When the draft came back unpaid from New York, the bank, said Mr. Holmes, would make a loan to the Montana Ore Purchasing Company and "carry it." The "M. O. P." was a subsidiary of the United Copper.

Mr. Walsh asked yesterday how Holmes came to leave the bank.

"I found," said the witness, "that I wasn't being taken into their confidence. It looked to me as though I was being ignored."

"Was F. H. Heinze then the controlling interest in the bank?" Mr. Walsh asked.

The answer wss in the affirmative.

"Did you ever bave any controversy with the bank's officers?" was the next question.

"I objected to their increasing the indebtedness of Heinze and his companies," was the reply.

"Were you ever an employe of the United Copper Company?"

"I was not."

"Or any of its constituent companies?"

"No," said Mr. Holmes.

"Did your objections to Heinze's loans give rise to any feeling between you and F. A. Heinze?" demanded Mr. Walsh.

"It did," replied the witness.

"And the objections occurred many times?"

"Yes," repeated Mr. Holmes. "I objected to the loans to Mr. Heinze and his companies many times."

"Why?" came the question.

"Because," the witness replied, "I always objected to Heinze and his companies borrowing so much money from the bank. I was always sfraid of the bank loaning them so much money."

Loans to the Heinzes.

Under cross-examination Mr. Holmes said that the loans to Heinze and his companies increased approximately from $1,100,000 in September, 1905, to $1,218,000 in the following Spring, after Mr. Hodgens had left the bank. F. J. Faulks of Newark, who was conducting the examination for the Heinzes, asked him what particular accounts increased, and Mr. Holmes specified F. A. Heinze's personal account and the accounts of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company and the Johnstown Mining Company. Mr. Faulks questioned the witness about overdrafts on the bank allowed to the Silver Bow Oil Company, in which Mr. Hodgens was a stockholder. Mr. Holmes remembered that there had been overdrafts, but he said that he personally did not authorize them.

A loan of $40,000 to the Montana Coal and Coke Company in 1905 was next taken up, but the witness did not remember whether Mr. Hodgens was a stockholder in that concern or not. Mr. Faulks pressed on to a loan of $70,000 made to the Capital Brewing Company.

"Was Mr. Hodgens interested?" he asked.

"He was a stockholder and Director," said the witness.

"Where did Mr. Hodgens get his interest?"

"The bank originally made a loan to the Capital Brewing Company and Mr. Hodgens had to take an interest in the company to protect the bank's interest."

The subject was not pursued farther, the entire cross-examination resting under an objection by Mr. Walsh that it was an effort to drag in issues in no way related to the complaint.

Present Heinze Copper Holdings.

The other witnesses yesterday were Mr. Hodgens himself and W. W. Johnson, a lawyer who had been in the employ of the Amalgamated Copper interests in Montana in different capacities for many years before the settlement of the Heinze-Amalgamated difficulties. Mr. Hodgens indicated on a map of Butto all the copper properties which, he said, were not producing properties, and declared that none of them, with a possible exception, was still in the possession of the United Copper. This was by way of substantiating his allegation in the complaint that the transfer of the United's producing properties to the Cole-Ryan combination had left that company in effect a mere shell, and lacking income to enable it to pay anything like the amount of dividends that were declared and paid in 1906.

Mr. Johnson, who had lived in Butte for seventeen years, said that his understanding, gained through participating in the negotiations preceding the Heinze settlement, was that all the producing properties of the United Copper, with the exception of the La France, were taken over by the Cole-Ryan interests.

WARNED OF FATAL CURVE.

Central Yardmaster Tells of Report Before Brewsters Express Wreck.

Continuing its investigation of the wreck of the Brewsters express on the New York Central on Feb. 16, the State Railroad Commissioners took testimony yesterday concerning a report made by Engineer Louis Beale to S. J. McEwen, yardmaster at Wakefield, about the roughness of the track on the fatal curve. McEwen testified that on the morning of the wreck Beale came into his office and reported that he had "struck a piece of rough track down the road."

On the strength of Beale's statement McEwen telegraphed to Division Superintendent Myles Bronson, his superior: "On track No. 3 north of Bronx Park curve track very rough. Needs attention." Several days after the wreck Supt. Bronson called on McEwen, and, learning that he had a copy of the message, advised him to keep it.

Job E. Hedges of the commission, recalling the sensations he experienced in going around the curve during the test run last week, asked Beale as to his feelings when he discovered the roughness in the curve. Beale said the engine made a lurch from one side to the other, and then straightened up. He made a jump for the brake valve, but had no occasion to use it.

At the close of the session Mr. Hedges asked the officials of the New York Central to furnish him records about the super-elevation of the track at the curve, taken for as many years back as possible. He was informed that the company had compiled since the wreck statistics of this nature as far back as 1895 and had verified them. Mr. Hedges expressed the opinion that, due to wear and weather conditions, the regular superelevation of 4½ inches might dwindle to 4 inches unless carefully watched.

OPERATORS UNIONIZED.

Seven Hundred Western Union Men Enrolled, Says President Small.

The organization of the telegraph operators of the Western Union Telegraph Company is almost complete, according to a statement made yesterday at the Astor House by President L. S. Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America. Within the last two weeks, he said, more than 700 operators hsd been enrolled, and the rest will join the union within the week.

President Small said that the organization was made with no idea of pressing demands against the Western Union at this time.

"Only a month ago," he said, "we got an increase of 10 per cent. in wages, and the best feeling now exists between the company and the operators."

President Small came to New York two weeks ago from Chicago, bringing with him 1,000 union badges, 200 of which, made on a slightly different pattern, were intended for women operators. All the women operating the Barclay automatic telegraph instrument were enrolled on Monday night and wore their badges yesterday morning for the first time.

With the organization of the Western Union, said President Small, the unionization of all operators in New York City will be complete. Hitherto regulations of the Western Union have prevented operators from joining secret orders. These restrictions were removed a short time ago.

"We had a few Western Union men on the quiet before," said President Small, "but we'll have them all now."

NEW ENGINEERS' CLUB OPEN.

Thirteen-Story Building for Which Carnegie Gave $1,500,000.

The United Engineers' Society opened its new home on West Thirty-ninth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, yesterday. This is the building for the erection of which Andrew Carnegie gave $1,500,000.

Rising thirteen stories high, with a frontsge of 125 feet, the clubhouse is an imposing structuro overlooking Bryant Park and the New York Public Library. The construction is of steel covered with two to four inches of porous terra cotta, and the columns are grounded with concrete. Particular attention has been given to the fireproofing because of the valuable scientific records and the material which the building contains.

The idea is to bring together the various engineering societies of the United States, where they will have a common meeting ground, and to provide quarters for the National societies of mechanical, electrical, and mining engineers, as well as for such associate societies as may require headquarters in New York. While each is to maintain its individual character, all are to unite to advance the engineering arts and sciences.

The feature of the building is the large auditorium capable of accommodating 1,000 persons. Another feature is the free public library on the top floor.

Child Ate Strychnine and Died.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., April 9.—While playing in their home in Salisbury to-day, Helen, 4, and Glen, 3, children of William Knox, found a quantity of strychnine and ate it. Helen is dead, and the doctors say the little boy cannot live.

POLICE SHAKE-UP IS COMING SOON

Bingham Now Considering Most Radical Changes in the Force's History.

MANY INSPECTORS TO GO

Detective Bureau to be Turned Inside Out and Dead Wood Eliminated.

Mayor McClellan will hold a public hearing on the Bingham Police bill tomorrow. No opposition is expected, as it is hardly likely that any of the Inspectors will venture to renew the tactics which at Albany led to the accusations of graft. The bill will probably be signed by Gov. Hughes next week, and developments are expected to follow immediately. Commissioner Bingham is now at Atlantic City, thinking the situation over, and will come back with a scheme for the most radical shake-up the department has ever known.

There are nineteen Inspectors, and all of them may be relegated to Captain's duty at the will of the Commissioner. To obtain a pension a man must be 55 years old and have served twenty-five years in the department. Nine of the Inspectors have fulfilled these conditions, and it is probable that if the Commissioner feels that they are not the men he wants as his principal subordinates they will at once apply for permission to go upon the pension list.

However, of these nine Inspectors O'Brien was the last to be promoted, and no one wants Chief Inspector Cortright—"that old Roman," Commissioner Bingham called hi mbefore the committee at Albany—to drop out of the service. Consequently there are only seven Inspectors, James F. Nally, William W. McLaughlin, Max F. Schmittberger, John Weigand, Thomas Murphy, Adam A. Cross, and Donald Grant, who are likely to take their pensions.

May Be Reduced, but Get Same Pay.

Inspectors who are deposed, but do not retire, are not to be eliminated from the force, but are to be made Captains again. Some of them have boasted that as their pay is not to be reduced they don't care whether they are asked to go back to the precincts or not.

But there is a serious question of the efficiency of the force involved. "It may be this way," said one. "Suppose I'm reduced. I've been a good Captain, or else I shouldn't be here now. But then I had something to work for. But if I go back to the station house I've got no more hopes of promotion. I may have to work under a man who was under my orders and I had a run-in with. Do you think I'm going to work hard to make his job a success? It isn't in human nature."

A point which is causing a good deal of criticism among the Captains is the new law with regard to the pay of Acting Inspectors. The grade of Inspector is abolished. Captains are to be detailed as Acting Inspectors, and while doing duty as such will obtain the pay of an Inspector. But they may bo reduced at any time, and will have no right to retain the pay of the higher rank until they have served for five years in that position.

The Roundsman Is to Go.

Another change is in nomenclature. The Roundsman is to be abolished, and all those who have that title now will be Sergeants, while the present Sergeants will be styled Lieutenants. This provision of the law is thoroughly popular. It gives the force a more military sound and does away with a title which no man would have chosen for himself and no civilian understood, "Roundsman."

In the Detective Bureau the greatest shake-up is expected. Every one around Police Headquarters believes that the official days of Detective Inspector McLaughlin are numbered. He is almost certain to be retired on a pension immediately. Then, the Commissioner has not much faith in almost all of the 247 Detective Sergeants, and believes them to be incompetent and corrupt. Out of the entire force he regards about twenty or thirty as worth keeping, and by the bill he can send back to duty as ordinary Lieutenants all the rest.

In their place he will tske 150 men from the uniformed force as detectives of the first grade, to rank and receive the same pay as ordinary Lieutenants, but to be liable to return to the uniformed force at his pleasure. In the first draft of the bill he asked for permission to enroll a certain number of civilians as detectives, but this provision was stricken out by the Cities Committee.

Detective Bureau Shake-Up.

The new head of the Detective Bureau, however, may be a civilian, and it is understood that out of the twenty applications that have been received for the post several have come from men not at present connected with the force. It is expected that Inspector Stephen O'Brien will be appointed, as he has already had charge of the bureau twice before, once under Commissioner McAdoo and once when President Roosevelt was the moving spirit at Mulberry Street.

It was rumored at Police Headquarters yesterday that the entire organization of the detective force is to be changed. At present one Inspector tries to manage over 500 men, and this is an altogether impossible task. The squad system is to be adopted, and men are to be specialized as much as possible. While nothing is at yet definitely known, it is said that Detective Sergeant Barney McConville will be put at the head of the men who are particularly trained in running down commercial swindlers, and will have the rank of Captain. Detective Sergeant Frank Peabody is mentioned as the possible pickpocket expert, and Detective Sergeant Mooney may be asked to look closely after the pawnshops.

An attempt will also be made to hide as far as possible the identity of the new detective force. At present every crook of experience knows the "secret police" by sight, and clears out as soon as they appear on the scene. Efficiency will be greatly promoted if no one but their own chiefs knows exactly who the detectives are.

With nearly 250 Detective Sergeants to revert to the uniformed force as Lieutenants, the Commissioner will find himself overmanned. Actually he will have more men of that grade than the law allows. He is supposed to have four Lieutenants to every 50 patrolman. There are at present 417 ordinary Sergeants and 247 Detective Sergeants. With these he should have 8,300 patrolmen for them to command. He has only 7,578. However, it is believed that many of the present detective force will retire rather than revert to the uniformed force and thus the excess will be absorbed.

Law to Stop Reed Bird Slaughter.

TRENTON, April 9.—The House to-day passed the Senate bill which extends the open season for reed birds from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31 and forbids the taking of the birds between sunset and sunrise. This is intended to stop the wholesale slaughter by pot-hunters, who paddle up creeks in the night and daze birds with lights, so that they cannot get away.

Night Schools for Immigrants.

TRENTON, April 9.—The House to-day passed the Wakelee bill, which permits Boards of Education to establish night schools for teaching English and other studies to foreign immigrants. This was a recommendation of Gov. Stokes in his annual message. No school district may expend more than $5,000 for such purpose in one school year.

NEW YORK'S FORESTS MAY SOON BE GONE

At Present Rate There'll Be No Real Timber 28 Years Hence, Says Report.

DIRECT WARNING GIVEN

Adirondack Association Believes Attempt to Divert State Lands Is Beaten.

The Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks held its sixth annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the Directors' room of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. These Directors were elected for the next three years: Dr. Samuel B. Ward, Albany; William P. Goodell, Syracuse, and J. H. Censidine, Elmira; William H. Boardman, William G. Verplank, Thomas S. Waller, Alfred L. White, Prof. Charles S. Smith, A. G. Vanderbilt, and H. P. Whitney of this city.

Henry E. Howland, President of the association, in his annual report, said that the association now had 1,000 members resident in all parts of the State, and its work had been maintained by the annual membership dues of $5 each and a few life memberships of $100.

"One of its most useful objects," the report continued, "has been the encouragement of legislation for the enlargement of the State's holdings within the Adirondack Park. The necessity for this course, to prevent the complete obliteration of our forests and its inevitable train of direful effects, appears from the bare statement of the amount of timber now standing and the rate at which it is being removed. The total stand of timber in the State of New York is 46,060,000,000 board feet. Of this, it is estimated 12,750,000,000 board feet is on State land, leaving 33,310,000,000 board feet on private land. In 1905 the cut of timber on private land in this State amounted to 1,212,070,168 board feet. At that rate, if there is no replanting, there will not be a stick of timber standing in the State of New York twenty-eight years hence except what is protected by the Constitution in the forest preserve.

"The present season, however, finds us contending with those who are desirous of securing a constitutional amendment which will permit the flooding of State lands in the forest preserve. Assemblyman Merritt and Senator Malby took the interests which they represented into the Legislature, and in the closing hours of the session of 1906, and without giving the public hearing for which we asked, rushed through a concurrent resolution proposing to amend Section 7 of Article VII. of the Constitution so as to read as follows, the amending words being in brackets.

The lands of the State, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, [excepting such lands as the Legislature shall provide by law, shall necessarily be used for the storage of water for public purposes and the construction of dams therefor], shall be forever kept as wild forest lands. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed.

"This resolution, fathered by Assemblyman Merritt and Senator O'Neil, was reintroduced in the present Legislature, and at the only public hearing accorded on the measure on March 29, 1907, our representatives successfully stripped the veil from the sponsors of the measure by eliciting from both Assemblyman Merritt and Senator O'Neil the admission that they were financially interested in its passage.

"We are now earnestly combating the amendment, and believe that our arguments must address themselves to the common sense of the Legislature. Our canvass of the members leads us to believe that the resolution will be defeated."

Reward for Tobacco Raiders.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 9.—Gov. Beckham to-day issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of every person guilty of destroying tobacco beds and barns in the Western Kentucky dark tobacco district.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

A THEATRICAL NOVEL WHICH REALLY RINGS TRUE.

"Felicity, the Making of a Comedienne," by Clara E. Laughlin, Bids Fair to Prove the Most Popular Novel of the Year—A Delightful Love Story to Begin With, It Depicts Life Behind the Scenes Without Any Gilding or Exaggeration and With a Fairness Which Is Most Rare.

If Clara E. Laughlin isn't an actress she certainly possesses a fuller and more intimate knowledge of stage life as it really is than many a woman who has trodden the boards for years. There is something about her first book, "Felicity, the Making of a Comedienne," which makes it, quite apart from its splendid merits as a novel, stand out as one of the fairest and most honest briefs that have been held out for the American stage.

The story is dedicated to "Lonely Folk, on the Heights or Otherwhere," and no story has set forth so successfully the utter loneliness of a woman who strives earnestly to reach the heights of her profession. • • • In this novel there is no attempt to exaggerate the glories of an actress's triumphs. In fact, this illustration of the utter emptiness of most of these laureis from a woman's point of view is one of the points which make this novel so human and remarkable.

Those persons who read this novel from motives of idle curiosity merely to try and discover in the story of Felicity Fergus the history of some well-known woman of the stage, will meet with a disappointment—but we predict that it is the only disappointment they will encounter in this book. Their curiosity, for one thing, will have brought them in contact with the most charming love story that any American author has written in many seasons.

This is one of the novels which creep into your heart and stay there. Felicity is not drawn from life but from lives; she is a blending of the experiences of many women of the stage who have won success only to find it a bitter sweet, and in the same way that Grand Old Man, Phineas Morton, the old comedian, is no photograph of an individual player, but a splendidly executed rechauffe of the characteristics of several wise old men of the stage. To be sure, he makes you think of William Warren, of Florence, in some respects of Jefferson and in still others of Stoddard.

But in his individuality he is really none of these, but merely a finely drawn character, who seems to live a great deal more vividly in these pages than many persons ever do in real life.—Acton Davies in the New York Evening Sun.

THE NEW AGREEMENT WITH GERMANY.

We have made a new temporary trade agreement with Germany, which, if it is assented to by the Reichstag, as probably it will be, will give our Congress another chance to come to a more permanent understanding. This is good news. We have been running along now for more than a year on the agreement reached in the early part of last year, by which we continue to enjoy the lower rates of the treaty tariff accorded to nations which make to Germany the concessions we have refused to make. That the German Government should be willing to extend this arrangement and grant another opportunity to the President to see what he can do with his heretofore stubborn Congress, is unquestionably a distinct mark of practical and sincere desire to maintain solidly friendly relations with the United States.

The news is all the more agreeable for the manner in which it was announced and referred to at the dinner given to our Ambassador to Germany, Mr. TOWER, by Mr. HERMAN RIDDER on Monday evening. Not only did Mr. TOWER himself speak of the "conciliatory spirit with which the German Government approaches all international discussions with us" as being shown in a special manner in this case, but he was confirmed by Mr. NORTH, the Chairman of the Commission sent to inquire into the situation in Germany. And to these expressions was added the cordial and graceful speech of the Kaiser's representative at Jamestown, Gen. LOWENFELD, with the official statement that it had been the intention of the Kaiser to send one of his sons to seek a degree at Harvard University, thus becoming a college mate of the son of our President, a plan that was balked, as like plans have often been in less illustrious families, by the young gentleman's contracting an engagement to marry. Quite apart, however, from the significance of these passing courtesies, it is perfectly plain that Germany must have a very definite and strong desire to keep up friendly trade relations with the United States, and to secure, if possible, relations still more friendly, or her Government would not have shown the persistence and patience it has shown in the discussion of this matter.

We are not so foolish as to interpret this feeling on the part of the German Government as a manifestation of pure altruism. We accept it simply as a manifestation of enlightened self-interest. Whatever pressure Germany might bring to bear on our own Government, should a tariff war arise—and the pressure could be very severe and hard to bear—it would also be extremely costly to Germany. It would involve a substantial increase in the prices of food and of the materials of some of her most important industries on the one hand, and it would involve a loss of a market for the product of some of those industries on the other hand. The trade between the two countries amounts to nearly two millions of dollars for every business day. Such an enormous traffic could not be interfered with by hostile tariff rates on the one side and on the other without immense loss and intense annoyance being inflicted on both nations. But peace, commercial and political, with a powerful, enterprising, and progressive people like the Germans is surely not the less welcome or the less likely to be lasting because it rests on an intelligent understanding of the real and permanent interests of that people and our own. Nor, looking at it the other way around, is a peace founded on interest less likely to be lasting or less pleasant while it lasts because it is sought and sustained by courtesy and kindness on the part of those responsible for the policy of Government.

The immediate outlook is agreeable enough. We wish we could await the action of Congress with greater confidence that it will avail itself of the opportunity offered for wise treatment of this hitherto vexed question. Unless there is a radical change of heart in the dull and greedy majority, or unless the President is prepared to bring to bear on the majority such influence as he has exerted in other and less important matters, nothing that ought to be done will be done. The terms of the new proposition from Germany are not yet announced, but they are not likely to be more exacting than those of last Fall, and these were not at all extreme. The two points requiring action by Congress were that duties should be levied on actual cost abroad instead of on market estimated prices, and that penalties for undervaluation should not be enforced unless the undervaluation exceeded 5 per cent. To these requests Congress turned an ear wholly deaf. We wish there were less reason to fear that it may do the same thing now. The remarks of Ambassador TOWER are, however, extremely significant of the probable attitude of the President, whose influence with Congress gives some ground for hope.

PERNICIOUS INSURANCE LEGISLATION.

Mr. CLEVELAND is industrious, but the sundry Legislatures are more so. No one man could be expected to produce briefs against unwise laws as fast as twoscore Legislatures can enact them. The latest example is Mr. CLEVELAND'S argument against insurance salary legislation, which appears concurrently with the passage by the Texas Senate of a bill to compel the investment in Texas of 40 per cent. of the reserve from Texas business. The general character of Texas legislation being similar to this insurance law, the pretense that the best investments are to be found in Texas is not reasonable. But what of that? The insurance companies might do better for the policy holders elsewhere, but this law is not for their benefit. The idea is to do something for Texas borrowers by supplying them capital at the insurance companies' risk. It is characteristic of this law, as of much contemporaneous legislation, that it seeks to decree benefits to those not entitled to them at the expense of third parties, who are unjustly and unwisely burdened. The results of this sort of legislation are the only cure for it, when the teachings of experience are rejected.

In his brief upon the salary limit law, Mr. CLEVELAND confined himself chiefly to the financial aspect of the subject. He easily succeeded in showing that the amount of the largest salaries paid bear an infinitesimal relation to the volume of business. His calculations are in hundredths and even thousandths of 1 per cent., although the current allowance to trustees of estates for fees, for less onerous duties, is over 1 per cent. It can hardly be doubted that Presidents could be found who would accept the administration of millions of assets for much less money. In fact, there are those who would be willing to pay for the privilege of handling so much money, from which the indirect profits would easily exceed any salary whatever. It is also obvious that in this legislation, as in the railway rate legislation, a statutory maximum tends to become a practical minimum, and the tendency of the law meant to limit salaries would be on the average to enlarge them.

These are minor objections. No extravagance in salaries seems to us so serious as the fact that thirty-seven States have united in legislation described by so judicious and conservative a commentator as Mr. CLEVELAND in these words:

> Legislation of this character is so new and startling as to indicate a disposition to depart from all conservative and steady sentiment touching State supervision and regulation of life insurance companies.

The justification of this language lies in the fact that, although no State can even pretend to have a right to regulate the affairs of corporations of another State, yet if the pending statutes become laws insurance companies preferring not to comply with them will lose their right to do business in five-sixths of the Nation. How unimportant the question is appears from the fact that in one State there are pending seventy insurance bills. Forty-one companies have reported to the Insurance Department of this State increases of taxes absorbing more than one-quarter of their dividends, the taxes totaling $9,000,000 and the dividends $35,000,000. In the background are the laws regulating investments.

These extremes of insurance legislation are quack remedies, and not addressed to the real trouble, which is that the policy holders have never come to realize that the assets belong to them, and that their officers are responsible to them, and that they are primarily responsible for their officers' delinquencies so far as they do not check them. How little laws alone can do is illustrated by the elections now proceeding in this State. The indifference of the policy holders is shocking. A livelier sense of individual responsibility and less legislation whose effect is to lull into a false feeling of security those who should look out for their own interests is what the case calls for.

THE MONTAGNINI LETTERS.

The publication of the letters found in the late Papal Nunciature in Paris is described at Rome as "dishonorable" and "immoral." The French Government disclaims all responsibility for the publication, while it assumes full responsibility for the seizure. It is noteworthy that while the seizure of the papers is denounced, their authenticity has not been impugned. These letters are calculated to attract as much attention at Rome as at Paris. Particularly, one would imagine, they are calculated to attract the attention of the Pope to the Papal Secretary of State, in whose favor no presumption either of infallibility or of sanctity runs. The last batch of letters published shows that, as early as November, 1905, the agent of the Vatican on the spot assured it that the majority of the French Bishops, including the Coadjutor Archbishop of Paris, were in favor of the separation law. Already, in August, Mgr. MERRY DEL VAL had assured the nunciature that "it was not the Pope's idea to oblige the Bishops to make a collective protest against the law, but that on the contrary he meant to leave them to act according to their own will." And later the Papal Secretary of State wrote to Mgr. MONTAGNINI "to confide under the seal of secrecy to the Archbishop of Paris" that the Archbishop was not "to put faith in any protests of the Pope in respect to the separation law." He added that those protests were "platonic, and that after having violently protested, the Holy Father would accept." Cardinal MERRY DEL VAL added, on his own account, apparently, that "the forces of hell, which is to say, of international Freemasonry, were leagued against the Church, and France was at the head of the struggle"; and furthermore: "It is certain that if the majority of the Bishops are disposed to submit to the law, it will be difficult for the Pope to order them to act against their convictions, although, even in that case, he is assured of their obedience. However, it is entirely false that the Holy Father is not disposed to preach resistance so long as he is encouraged thereto by only a few Bishops."

The bearings of these confidences on what has happened since in France are too obvious to need pointing out. It is incredible, always granting the authenticity of the letters, that the French Government should really regret or really deprecate their publication. But one's thoughts necessarily turn to the Vatican, and to the effect of these disclosures upon the mind of the Pope. Humanly speaking, it would appear that the usefulness of Cardinal MERRY DEL VAL as Papal Secretary of State was permanently impaired.

THE SAME THING IN ENGLAND.

It is rather interesting, and, from another point of view, comforting, to find that just at a moment when the subject of corporation contributions to campaign funds is uppermost in people's minds in this country, England is having a somewhat intense discussion of the same question. It seems that the Board of Trade discovered that the Directors of the London & Northwestern Railway contributed $1,000 of the railroad's money to the funds of the London Municipal Society, which played a leading part in the recent London County Council elections. Learning this fact, a member of the House of Commons gave notice that when a certain bill, fathered by the London & Northwestern Road, came up for a second reading in the House, he would move "that no bill can be satisfactory to this House which confers increased powers to a railway company created by act of Parliament which has subscribed out of its corporate funds to a party organization."

Of course the point at issue did not affect the merits of this particular bill fostered by the railroad, but it brought the entire matter before the House, and an interesting debate followed. One member participating in the discussion maintained that since the railway companies contributed to local and national taxation they should be permitted to exercise an influence in politics, and this sentiment was much applauded, according to reports of the proceedings, although the final turn of the debate was such that it drew from Col. LOCKWOOD, a Director of the London & Northwestern and a member of the House, the statement that the Directors had decided to refund out of their own pockets the contribution of $1,000 and that the company would not subscribe to any political object in the future.

English comment upon the whole question of corporation contributions has been widespread, following this incident, and The London Economist in summing up as follows the case from the English point of view seems also to have had an eye upon conditions in this country:

> There are two issues raised in this controversy—one affecting shareholders, the other involving the far wider and important problem of purity of administration. The shareholders of a commercial or individual company are composed of men of varying shades of political opinion; and that being so, it would be manifestly unfair that Boards of Directors should be permitted to expend corporate funds in subsidizing political causes which many of the proprietors might regard with sentiments of bitter hostility. This phase of the question, however, is of minor importance when compared with the effect of such subsidies on public administration. The object of a company in laying out its funds in any direction is to secure pecuniary benefit for itself, and when candidates for election to public bodies are assisted by the money of wealthy companies, they are naturally expected to remember the interests of their backers in the hour of victory.

THE RIGHT OF WAY.

President MCCREA declares that he will stop the willful derailment of trains on the Pennsylvania system if he has to station a man on every rod of track between New York and Chicago, or words to that effect.

It is a noble determination. More than that, at the rate at which outrages are accumulating on the Pennsylvania, it is a necessary determination. But it seems that the Pennsylvania can accomplish the object more cheaply. Why should the Pennsylvania not do as is done in Europe, which is to say, fence in its right of way and treat every unauthorized person found on any part of it as a trespasser, or at least make him give an account of himself, and, if his account be unsatisfactory, hale him before a Magistrate to explain what he was doing on that track. One understands that there are many American railroads of which that precaution should not be required. It would be rather absurd to require the Union Pacific, for example, to fence in its track from Omaha to Ogden, in order to keep out trespassers, when so much of the country through which the road passes does not yield one inhabitant per running mile. But a corporation which maintains a system through the populous country from New York to Chicago, and undertakes to run eighteen-hour "fliers," may well consider its responsibility. It may and should take whatever precautions are necessary to see that its track is clear, that there are no grade crossings, and that there is no admittance to the tracks "except on business." Such precautions would be equally effective against the discharged employé with a spite against the company, against the wretch who wrecks trains with a view to robbery, and against the mere destructive lunatic.

The Province of Quebec has just repealed the drummers' license or tax which it imposed a couple of years ago upon all persons, firms, and corporations not having places of business in Canada. British Columbia has also taken similar action. It would be agreeable to believe that they did so from neighborliness, but it is more likely that other reasons prevailed. It pays them better to buy our goods than it does to collect a license fee and not know what our bargains are. This petty interference with trade they did not borrow from us. Of course we cannot complain of their tariff, modeled after our own, but they bettered our example by much when we levied our stock transfer tax. It worked so well that they levied a license fee of $100 upon our brokers who went to Canada to sell stocks, and a fee of $2,000 on the home office or firm guilty of sending its agents into Quebec.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Remarks About Weather.

For fear of going further and faring—more wickedly, let us all unite in advising the Weather Bureau people to beg, borrow, or steal a calendar, since it is evident that they haven't one and presumable that the state of their appropriation will not permit of a purchase. The calendar once obtained—nobody will ask how—they might learn that this is Spring, and has been for three weeks past, both by astronomy and by custom, and that, even though the time of leaves and flowers is not yet, that of Franz-Josefian, and eke of Nova Zemblan, blizzards, like the one allotted to this part of the country yesterday, has gone as well as come. Then, possibly, may they, if not blush—perhaps that would be too much to expect from Government officials—at least take thought to themselves of their present and personal safety.

For the public mind is just now in a somewhat excitable condition, a condition, as it were, of we-have-stood-a-lot-and-WON'T-stand-any-more, and a real snowstorm on the 9th of April is an imitation of the unendurable as close as could be asked by the most exacting taste. And it was close. A snow flurry, lasting a few minutes and melting at once, would pass as a sorry joke, even several weeks later than this, but for "it" to begin snowing at 7 A. M. and to keep it up all day long, especially when accompanied by a wind that spoke the language of January—that is not a jest; it is an outrage.

The Weather Bureau, having procured THE TIMES and other newspapers to spread abroad among their trusting readers the crazy mendacity that yesterday was to be "fair" with "fresh southwest to west winds," no sooner had us all made ridiculous than it began to talk about a storm from Lake Huron colliding with one from down the coast! That may be an explanation, but it is the poorest of excuses, and the poorest of recompenses, too, for our generosity in daily giving for nothing to the bureau's prophecies space at the top of our first page for which many an honest advertiser would give hard—or at any rate current—cash in considerable quantities.

When the Great Blizzard, which is for New York what the Great Wind is for Ireland, came, nineteen years ago, on the 12th of March, there was, as we remember it, a distinct understanding that it was done simply to make a record and that there was nothing like it, certainly nothing worse, even as to date. It must be admitted that at the moment of writing this indignant protest not quite all the atrocities of the Great Blizzard had been duplicated, but there was then no visible promise that they wouldn't be before morning, and our hearts were bleeding for the little birdies and all the rhubarb plants.

A Few Words With Dr.—Huggins?

It grieved us sorely to read in yesterday's dispatches that the eminent and reverend Dr. CHARLES F. AKED, in a farewell address to his Liverpool congregation, had told the sorrowing flock assembled in Pembroke Chapel that he was going to New York because he was "called to preach the gospel of spirituality in the fight against the materialism now destroying American life."

This grieved us because it is a statement likely to linger long in many American minds, and will add much to the difficulties which will necessarily be caused for Dr. AKED here by our inability even to imagine whether his name is to be pronounced in two syllables or one. In either case it sounds like a rather impossible name, and the chances are that, after the dear British fashion, the pronunciation and the spelling are entirely unrelated, and he is to be called something which we, in our ruder way, would set down as "Cadwallader," or maybe "Huggins."

But that, we fear, is an excursion. What we really want to know is how the good gentleman acquired the impression that America is just now in especial need of a gospel of spirituality, and what makes him think that materialism is destroying our life. We are not denying, mind, a need of the sort mentioned; we are only questioning whether New York is less spiritual, say, than Liverpool. As for our danger from materialism—well, a memory that runs back some years doesn't recall for us a time when that particular peril was less menacing, a time when more people were more given to reaching after high ideals in Government, in business, and in life. Materialism destroying us, indeed! Why, it is the material interests that are in deadly terror, and if Dr. AKED really has heard any shrieks for help from this side of the salt water they have come from a few men whose lives have been devoted to the making of money, the ruling of railways, the exploiting of mines, and from the beneficiaries of tariffs on steel and cotton goods and like substantialities.

Somebody should tell him that already, and with no assistance from him, some millions of us have ceased to regard spiritualities and ideals and the political and other virtues purely as topics of conversation in an elevated tone of voice, and are acting—yes, acting, as there were really something in them. Poor man! He is, we fear, one of the many blind who assume that resonant public scandals are evidence of a declining morality, when as a matter of fact they prove better than anything else could do it a firm determination to reform and live decently.

Recalling the Paragon.

How the late and ever-to-be-lamented RICHARD LEARY, Captain, U. S. N., would have rejoiced in an opportunity to issue to the Central American republics the proclamation just addressed to them by Commander FULLAM of the gunboat Marietta! Of course, LEARY was specially trained in the adaptation of language to the needs of natives and foreigners living on small and sequestered islands—Samoa, Guam, and the like, but his exhortations to virtue, usually made with his trigger finger crooked over something impulsively responsive, were quite large enough to have served in Honduras or Guatemala.

We are not denying to Commander FULLAM a fine humor of his own; that would be impossible after reading how he gently hoped that necessity would not arise for him to confess to his Government a mistaken confidence in Nicaragua's stern determination not to loot the stores of foreign merchants in the coast towns. Capt. LEARY himself could not have done much better than that, but he would have done more, and it is the more we miss. The Commander, we fear, will never rise to the height of advising a saddle-colored population to keep more hens and to abstain from abstaining from the marriage ceremony. At least he will never put the two requests in a single sentence.

THE DEMAND FOR ROOSEVELT.

Two Interesting Comments on The Times's Canvass of Editors.

From The New Yorker Herold of April 8.

An eminent and by no means sensational paper of this city, THE TIMES, published yesterday about seventy answers to its request, addressed to the editors of 500 Republican papers, for their opinion as to whether President Roosevelt is as strong and popular with the voters as he was at the time of his election.

The answers received so far express, according to THE TIMES, in a confident, eager, and enthusiastic way "one unanimous shout of praise" for Roosevelt. From Maine to Minnesota these interpreters of public opinion voice their conviction "that the President has so grown in the public confidence and admiration that he is now the idol of his party and of thousands of habitual opponents of his party."

This plebiscite of Republican editors is certainly very appropriate just at the present moment. And both the enterprise of THE TIMES and its loyalty in the faithful and truthful reproduction of the answers received are all the more praiseworthy and decidedly symptomatic, as THE TIMES is held to champion principles and politics that are in strong variance with those advocated and fought for by President Roosevelt.

It seems superfluous to analyze the causes of this magnificent popular current. They find their expression in one sentence of one of the editorial answers: "The President is idolized by the masses and is hated and feared by the classes."

To the German-American voter Theodore Roosevelt seems to be doubly sympathetic, perhaps less for political reasons than for reasons of sentiment. Roosevelt understands and knows how to appreciate German nature, and he recognizes the value of German culture and character. It is for this that the German Emperor, who in temperament and character features has a remarkable likeness to the President, entertains such outspoken esteem and admiration for him.

From The Evening Post of April 8.

The burning question of the day seems to be: Is Roosevelt more popular than ever?

THE TIMES has been moved to demand of 500 Republican editors their opinion on the momentous topic. To date it has published replies from about 100. With almost one consent they declare that Roosevelt is, variously, "fully as strong," "stronger than ever," or "tremendously stronger than ever." A hardened skeptic might object that this is not an absolutely infallible proof.

If these Republican editors had spoken with entire frankness they would have said: "You ask us if we think Roosevelt is as popular as ever. So long as the organization is for him; so long as we get the official advertising; so long as we are consulted and flattered and named as delegates and mentioned as candidates, you may just bet your boots that we do think so."

In any case, we do not think the political dovecotes should be too much fluttered by all these speculations a twelvemonth in advance. Political sentiment changes with lightning-like rapidity in this country. The most popular man of to-day is often the most execrated of to-morrow.

Appomattox Day Recalled.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Forty-two years ago to-morrow, as a kid of 18, I listened to the last fight made by my old and greatly beloved commander, Gen. Robert E. Lee; cut off from my command and inside of the Federal lines, that Sunday morning, all I could do was to lie low and hope that he could make his way through to Lynchburg, where we, who had been cut off, could follow and join him.

It looks like a dream now, and the day is fast passing without being noticed, except, of course, by "us boys," who were either there in the thick of it, or bid, as I was, in the "thicket" near by, because of the confusion and rapid change of positions. D. A. W.

Rapid Transit by Water.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I write this to make a suggestion as to rapid transit in the city. Could not our waterways be used as they are in London and Paris?? Small steamers could ply up and down the East and Hudson Rivers, touching at frequent landings. The trolleys could make connection with the main landings. In the Spring, Summer, and Autumn this would be a very enjoyable way of going from one end to the other of the city, or from home to business.

Closing of the Paris Morgue.

From The London Pall Mall Gazette.

PARIS, March 31.—There is a lady, a member of a foreign aristocracy, who, the moment she arrives in Paris, drives off to the Morgue. Apparently it gives her an agreeable sensation before dinner. No self-respecting British tourist ever missed the Morgue, if he could help it; that is the standing joke of the Parisian. Yet the Parisian himself can be a very morbid creature. On the morrow of a crime it is astonishing to see the hues disgorge in front of the lugubrious little building: the world hurries in to have a look at the victim before business hours. Well, these innocent pleasures are to be stopped; M. Lepine says so. He has not been able to find another site for the melancholy monument, but he has decided to close its doors to the merely curious. Only those who have information to give tending to identification will be admitted in the future. That famous sketch of Cham's, representing two "voyous" in conversation outside the Morgue with the legend: "Ah, how 'triste' it is to-day; there is nobody there," has become a most historical document.

A PANIC COMING IN 1913.

Prophecy Scientifically Reached by a Successful Prophet of High Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial on "Mr. Belmont's Prophecy" you say, "but this panic has had ninety prophets, each of whom in the years to come will claim to have seen it first."

During the Presidential campaign of 1896 Gov. Altgeld in his Music Hall speech at Chicago said: "Prices will continue to go down, down, never to rise again as long as the gold standard exists."

I made the statement to a friend that "Mr. Altgeld is mistaken, and that the tide will begin to turn in 1898, and by 1900 everybody will see it, and by 1903 an era of high prices will be attained, and that the building business will be good after that time, and remain good until the next panic, which is due to occur in 1913; that this will occur whether McKinley or Bryan is elected President."

When this prediction was made the fact that Joseph Leiter was about to attempt to corner the wheat market was unknown to me. It also was the fact that the United States was soon to be involved in a war with Spain. Both of these facts tended to stimulate prices sooner than would have otherwise happened.

In 1901 or 1902 I wrote to Mr. Altgeld quoting that part of his speech and asked him how he could reconcile his predictions with the facts then occurring. His answer was that the rise in prices is only temporary. In my correspondence with him I told him about when the tide would begin to ebb, and that the next panic was due in 1913. As he has since died, my letters, I suppose, are destroyed.

The crest of the wave was passed more than a year ago, but the volume of business does not yet indicate it.

These conclusions are not guessed, but are scientifically arrived at. No flurry in Wall Street can bring on a commercial depression until the conditions are ripe for it. If all the stocks and bonds and all the speculators who deal in them were blotted out it could not affect the volume of business appreciably. The cause of the ebb and flow of the tide of business lies wholly in the labor question proper. The volume of money, or its kind in use, has practically nothing to do with it.

"THE SIMPLE SPELLERS."

Henry Holt, on Their Behalf, Welcomes Criticism and Strikes Back.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let me thank you for the criticism of "The Simple Spellers" in this morning's issue. We need all the criticism we can get, especially when it comes from people who know what they are talking about.

Permit me to give you a fact or two:

I did not "introduce into the Simplified Spelling Board a list of 3,000 words." That list was introduced in 1883 by such worthy objects of the wit and learning of your staff as William D. Whitney, Francis A. March, and the other members of the American Philological Association, with the concurrence of the Philological Society of England. It is printed in the supplement of nearly every English dictionary of consequence—in the Century with an introduction by Whitney himself—and is so generally known as "the three thousand words" that its having, even under that title, escaped the knowledge of the philologists of your staff arouses some interesting suggestions.

Since that list was made, in the very infancy of spelling reform, a great deal of attention has been given to the subject. The immense complexities involved, inevitably filled a first attempt with inconsistencies and defects. My effort, which you do me the honor to notice, was simply to point out some of these and to move for a revision. This my colleagues agree is advisable.

There is no more disagreement between Mr. Vaile and me than between two men at table of whom one calls for bread and the other for butter. He favors what I want and wants more. I favor what he wants (and worked hard for it at the session following the one where we incurred your attention) and want more.

It is not consistent with the general character of your editorials, which has long made me their admiring reader, that you should print such a sentence as "And, by the way, the argument of time saving by simplification has become grotesque as applied to the leading simplifiers. There is not one of them who has not wasted more time in commending the reform than he would save by omitting superfluous letters from the cradle to the grave." People spending themselves (wisely or unwisely) on reforms are not supposed to be doing it to save themselves time; and to inform your readers that they do not succeed in doing so is not a characteristic use of your valuable space. It is in full keeping with the rest of the article, however; and, for that matter, with nearly all the criticism of the reform that I have seen.

I hope you will give us some more, up to your usual standard of both knowledge and intelligence; we should certainly be the gainers, even if you convince us that we would better divert our efforts to something else. HENRY HOLT.

Life Insurance Salaries.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your paper this morning contains an article stating that ex-President Grover Cleveland has prepared a brief against the proposed laws in the State Legislatures that Insurance Presidents' salaries shall not exceed $50,000 a year. With all due respect to Mr. Cleveland, it is in order to ask what quality of brains such men are endowed with, and what exceptionally important work they do or can do to be worth actually worth, half that amount. An itemized statement of what such men can do that hundreds of others cannot do would be interesting at least. Is it honest work in the interest of policy holders, or is it diplomatic financiering known as "high finance," of which many prominent examples are before the public?

Thousands of honest, competent men exist who are able to handle business affairs as effectually, and save confiding policy holders a larger percentage for dividends to be declared at certain fixed periods. It seems to many thinking and equally intelligent men that the individual brain worth of a few is being greatly overestimated at the expense of the trusting public, who are justly beginning to say unto themselves: "On what meat do these our Cæsars feed that they wax so fat in finance, and perchance grow so lean in honesty?" Why? M. D. H.

Odell vs. Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Odell made for the gayety of nations in his "merrie jests" leveled at the President.

He is too near to himself to see himself, or he would know that the greatest evidence of Roosevelt's popularity is the fact that he is attacked by such men as Odell.

While it is all funny we do return thanks for the enemies our President has made.

SPRING SONG, 1907.

April, the month of showers sweet—
Of storm and hail, of snow and sleet—
When bursting buds bedeck the trees
And smiling Nature wakes—to freeze.

The robin woos his willing mate,
The children hug the blazing grate,
While Southern zephyrs softly play
O'er snow-clad hill and icy bay.

The Winter's past, the Spring is here,
The North wind howls a warm good cheer,
The glorious Sun exerts his power
On ice and snow, on bud and flower.

OGDEN SEEKS REST FROM SCHOOL WORK

Asks Southern Education Conference to Elect Another as President.

WARM TRIBUTES TO HIM

Gov. Glenn Declares Whites, Negroes, and Indians Cannot Associate in the Schools.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 9.—A suggestion that he should be permitted to retire from the Presidency of the Conference for Education in the South was made in a letter from Robert C. Ogden of New York which was read at the opening session of the conference to-day. It is probable that, for once, a suggestion from Mr. Ogden will not be heeded, and that the conference will insist on honoring him with an election for another year. Mr. Ogden has held this post for seven years.

Dr. S. C. Mitchell of Richmond, Va., was elected President pro tem. of the conference. He read this letter from Mr. Ogden:

"It is a painful and unwelcome task to give you official notice that it will be impossible for me to attend the tenth Conference for Education in the South.

"In my judgment, the present conference should take rank far above any of its predecessors in the creation of ideals and in the formulation of policies that in turn should influence every State represented to gather enthusiasm and larger efficiency.

"My personal disappointment because of present limitations is proportionate to my faith and hope in what will be accomplished on the present occasion. Extraordinary progress in many directions is full of inspiration. The great undone margin is a challenge to patriotic self-sacrifice and lofty endeavor. In the presence of the ability, conscience, and devotion represented in the conference, a President's message would be superfluous.

"Allow me to suggest that the present is an opportune time for me to retire from the office the conference has honored me with for so many years."

The conference sent this message to Mr. Ogden:

"The Conference for Education in the South sends affectionate greetings to its President, with sincere wishes for his speedy restoration. Our meeting is a great success, both in numbers and spirit. All regret your enforced absence. Your spirit leads."

Dr. Mitchell was enthusiastically applauded when he spoke of Mr. Ogden's work.

"Among the builders of National education," he said, "four men will probably rank pre-eminent. They are Horace Mann of Massachusetts, George Peabody, founder of the Peabody Fund; J. L. M. Curry of Alabama, and Robert C. Ogden. I cannot praise too highly the value of Mr. Ogden's creative efforts and his genuine sincerity of purpose which has made his work the deepest influence in the cause of education in the South. He is great because he loved much."

Several officers said that they could not afford to lose Mr. Ogden.

About 250 women and men prominent in educational matters and representing practically every State east of the Mississippi were present at the conference.

In his address on "The Task of the Neighborhood," Dr. Mitchell said:

"The fact is we are governed, not by law, but by respect for law. Whatever impairs this sensitive respect for law strikes at the heart of all our institutions. It is from this standpoint that we see the enormity of the crime of lynching, which stabs fatally the majesty of the law. Lynching is the greatest menace to State integrity in the South to-day. Democracy implies more than liberty, more than equality. It involves a sense of brotherhood.

Robt. R. Glenn, Governor of North Carolina, in an address of welcome, said that the association of whites, negroes, and Indians in schools was not only impossible in the South, but that North Carolina would decline any gift or endowment which suggested such a combination.

ELLISON OVERRULES RIVES.

New Opinion Strips Building Superintendent of Power Over Plans.

According to an opinion just given by Corporation Counsel Ellison, the Superintendent of Buildings is no longer the highest authority in the matter of building plans and similar matters. Reversing his predecessor's opinion, Mr. Ellison declares that the Board of Examiners, and not the Superintendent, has the final word in all matters that come before the body for adjustment.

Ex-Corporation Counsel Rives, during the Low administration, held that the Superintendent of Buildings was supreme, after there had been several rows between that official and the then Board of Examiners.

The Board of Examiners at present consists of the Superintendent of Buildings, Edward H. Murphy; Fire Chief Croker, and William J. Frayer. There have been numerous disagreements, and one case, pertaining to alterations to the building at 20 Broadway, was carried by Mr. Frayer to the Corporation Counsel's office. From the Legal Department Mr. Sperling sent Mr. Frayer Mr. Rives's opinion.

Believing that if Mr. Rives's opinion was correct there was no use for such a body as the Board of Examiners, Mr. Frayer went to Mr. Ellison and asked that an original opinion be given on the question. Mr. Ellison sent Mr. Frayer a letter yesterday in which he absolutely reverses Mr. Rives. In the letter he says: "Your decision is final and must be carried into effect by the Superintendent of Buildings."

The result of the opinion will doubtless be to deprive Mr. Murphy of much of the power that has been his since he took office. His actions as to building plans, fireproofing, and alterations, may now be overruled by the two other members of the board.

FAVOR PASTEURIZATION.

Health Committee of the Aldermen Advocates Passage of the Ordinance.

The Board of Aldermen received a report of the Health Committee yesterday favoring the passage of an ordinance making it compulsory that all raw milk sold in the city and not certified be pasteurized. The report of the committee is looked upon as a victory for those who have spoken at the hearings in favor of pasteurization. No action was taken by the board on the matter yesterday, but it is expected that at the next meeting there will be a lively fight.

Alderman Jacobson, Chairman of the committee, offered a resolution favoring the pasteurization of all milk which has no certificate attached to the effect that it was free from tuberculosis, and which had more than 500,000 bacteria to the cubic centimeter.

Alderman Dowling opposed the passage of this resolution. He said doctors disagreed on the subject, and that he wanted the matter to lie over. He thought that the proposed ordinance would increase the cost of milk, and therefore would be a hardship on the poor.

The proposed resolution stipulates that for a violation or failure to pasteurize the offender should have his permit revoked temporarily, and for a second offense the offender should be punished as for a misdemeanor. It is proposed that the ordinance shall go into effect on June 1 next.

On Alderman Dowling's motion the matter went over for a week.

MISS NEESER WEDS IN THE CATHEDRAL

St. Patrick's Crowded with Guests for Her Marriage to Charles Lestelle.

COUPLE TO LIVE IN PARIS

Ceremony Performed by Archbishop Farley—Date for Dodge-Rockefeller Marriage — To-day's Weddings.

The marriage of Miss May H. Neeser, daughter of Mrs. John G. Neeser of this city, to Charles Lestelle of Paris, France, son of Col. Lestelle of the French Army, took place yesterday in St. Patrick's Cathedral at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Archbishop Farley officiating.

Miss Neeser entered the cathedral escorted by her eldest brother, John G. Neeser, who gave her in marriage. She wore a white satin Empire gown, with point lace yoke and fichu, and trimmed also with much-shirred tulle. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a white Prayer Book. In addition to her bridesmaids, two little altar boys in scarlet walked one on either side of the bride near the end of her train as she walked down the nave.

Miss Elvine L. Neeser, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and the Misses Rosina Sherman Hoyt, daughter of Mrs. Alfred M. Hoyt; Miss Mary Redmond Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cross, and Miss Alice Everard Strong, daughter of Mrs. William E. Strong, were the bridesmaids. They wore white lace frocks, with pale green girdles, and their white Neapolitan hats were trimmed with pale green. Each carried a sheaf of American Beauty roses.

Robert Wilden Neeser was best man.

The ushers were John Sherman Hoyt, Robert W. Neeser, Ernest Iselin, Rudolph Neeser, Schuyler Schieffelin, Robert Dunn Graham, Cecil Barrett, Charles W. Ogden, and George S. Blagden.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother, 5 East Sixty-fifth Street. The bridal couple stood in the drawing room against a background of banked palms and large sprays of white flowers. The red dining room had its mantel banked with American Beauty roses, and vases filled with similar roses were about the room.

Mr. and Mrs. Lestelle will soon sail for Paris, where they will live. They are distantly related and have known each other from childhood. Mr. Lestelle arrived in this country about three weeks ago.

Among those asked to the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Amsinck, P. Ashton de Peyster, Mrs. Frederic J. de Peyster, the Misses de Peyster, Mrs. Edward Leverich, the Misses Leverich, Mrs. A. T. Van Nest, Mrs. W. D. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Phelps, Mrs. John C. Wilmerding, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wellman, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie B. Parsons, Mrs. Austin Flint, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Holbister, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wysong, Mrs. G. G. De Witt, Mrs. John T. Hall, the Misses Hall, Mrs. George Norton, Mr. and Mrs. William Perry, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rieman Duval, Mrs. H. B. Terrell, Mrs. F. B. Keech, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Auerbach.

Mrs. John Henry Bradford, Miss Phipps, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Schieffelin, Miss Dorothy Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph H. Kissel, Mrs. Gouverneur Kortwright, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Pellew, Miss Pellew, Mrs. James L. Barclay, Mrs. Francis Dana Miller, Mr. and Mrs. John Hobart Warren, Mrs. Henry Brockman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Trevor, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kessler, Mrs. Benjamin Knower, Mr. and Mrs. H. Coleman Drayton, Charles Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Mason Jones, Miss Lydia Mason Jones, Mrs. Henry Coster, Mr. and Mrs. Lester del Garda, Mr. and Mrs. Friedrich Suse and the Misses Suse, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oelrichs and Miss Oelrichs, Mrs. Noel and Miss Noel, Mr. and Mrs. C. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Loew, Miss Sands, Miss Elizabeth Stewart Hamilton, Miss Hollins, and Mrs. Herbert Johnston.

ROCKEFELLER WEDDING PLANS.

To Take Place April 18—The Bridal Party Selected.

The wedding of Marcellus Hartley Dodge, grandson of the late Marcellus Hartley, and Miss Ethel G. Rockefeller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rockefeller, on the afternoon of April 18, will be strictly private, owing to Mr. Dodge being in mourning. It will take place at the home of the bride's parents, 680 Fifth Avenue, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires of St. Thomas's Church officiating.

Miss Anna Bush of Tarrytown is to be Miss Rockefeller's maid of honor, and Barnett Lefferts is to be Mr. Dodge's best man. There will be no bridesmaids, and as it is a family wedding there will be no ushers.

BOLLING—PHILLIPS WEDDING.

To Take Place in June at the Country Home of the Bride's Mother.

The wedding of Raynal Bolling of New York and Miss Anna Tucker Phillips of Boston will take place in June at Moraine Farm, the country place at Wenham, Mass., of Miss Phillips's mother. Miss Phillips and her mother, Mrs. John C. Phillips, have recently returned from a trip around the world.

Miss Phillips and her sister were presented at the English Court in their absence. Miss Anna Tucker Phillips is a sister of Miss Martha Phillips, George Wendell Phillips, Dr. John C. Phillips, now in Mexico, and of William Phillips, now at Peking. Mr. Bolling is a Harvard graduate, class of 1900. The engagement was announced several weeks ago.

TO-DAY'S WEDDINGS.

Five Marriages of Interest to Society to Take Place Here.

There are several important weddings scheduled for to-day. That of Miss Katharine Lansing Barney and Cortlandt Dixon Barnes will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tracy Barney at noon. About five hundred guests have been asked to the wedding and reception.

The wedding of Miss Helen Gillette Ballard and Walter Heyward Powers will take place in the Church of the Heavenly Rest at 4 o'clock, and will be followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Ballard, 21 West Seventy-third Street.

The marriage of Miss Ruth W. Steele, daughter of the Rev. J. Nevett Steele and Mrs. Steele, and Joseph C. Borden, of South Orange, N. J., will be celebrated in Trinity Chapel, West Twenty-fifth Street, at 4:30 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception at the Steele home, 22 West Seventy-third Street. The father of the bride, the Rev. Dr. Steele, assistant rector of Trinity Parish, is to officiate.

In St. Thomas's Church at 4 o'clock Miss Katharine Converse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Converse, Sr., and Benjamin Strong, Jr., are to be married. The wedding reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Converse, Jr., 37 West Forty-eighth Street, as the bride's home is in Greenwich, Conn.

In Grace Church chantry Miss Blanche Rumsey, daughter of the late Judge William Rumsey, will marry Joselyn Herle Evans, second son of the late Sir Francis Evans, Baronet, of London. Relatives only have been asked, as the bridegroom's father died only a short time ago.

GLEDHILL—BEARDSLEY.

Miss Lillian Beardsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beardsley of this city, was married to John C. Gledhill at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents, 315 West Seventy-fourth Street. The Rev. Townsend Glover Jackson of St. Paul's Church, Flatbush, L. I., performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with Duchess point lace. Her maid of honor was Miss Mabel Gledhill, a sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. Sterling Beardsley, a sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Isabel Gledhill and Miss Helen Charlick. Sterling S. Beardsley was best man, and the ushers were Duffield Prince and Frank Walker. A reception was held at the home of the bride, in West Seventy-fourth Street, following the ceremony.

SALOMON—HECHT.

Miss Sophie Hecht, daughter of Mrs. Meyer Hecht of 40 West Eighty-seventh Street, was married to Leo Salomon at 6:30 o'clock last night at Delmonico's. The Rev. Dr. Silverman performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white satin embroidered with orchids and trimmed with duchess point lace. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. Miss Julienne Blum was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Edna Logine and Janet Hecht, a sister of the bride.

Miss Unger, a cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

The best man was Arthur Salomon and the ushers were Herbert Salomon, P. Flower Salomon, Jacques Hecht, Arthur Levis, J. M. Kastner, and P. L. Duschnes.

A dance and reception followed the ceremony, which was attended by the friends and family of the bride and bridegroom. After a tour through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Salomon will live in this city.

PHILADELPHIA MAY HAVE AN OPERA HOUSE

And Hammerstein May Build It and Run Opera in Two Cities.

$1,500,000 BUILDING PLAN

Mr. Hammerstein Admits He Is Considering It, but Has Not Decided Yet.

Oscar Hammerstein's success as an operatic impresario may soon be a tale of two cities. If present plans materialize, this man, who entered the operatic field only a few months ago, will shortly accomplish an entirely new feat in American managerial history.

Mr. Hammerstein confided to a TIMES reporter last night that he might build an opera house in Philadelphia similar to the Manhattan, and devoted to the same class of permanent grand opera attractions. From Philadelphia came news that he was negotiating for property at the northwest corner of Broad and Spruce Streets, in the heart of the hotel district, and might build there an opera house at a total cost for site and building of $1,500,000.

Mr. Hammerstein bore the brunt of the revelation from Philadelphia kindly, and was ready to admit that certain plans for an opera house there were under consideration.

"It is true that this site has been suggested," said the impresario, "and that the suggestion was meant for an opera house. Various propositions have been made to me, and various locations have been considered. The idea is that some of the leading citizens of Philadelphia, who have been corresponding with me about the matter, desire to establish a permanent home for grand opera in their city, and wish me to become interested in the project. Only this afternoon I received a letter in which the location you mention was named.

"I have not yet acquired any property and I have not accepted any proposal. You see, I am too busy winding up the season here to have any time to attend to anything else. However, I will say that I would be glad to do anything for the uplifting of musical art anywhere, and it is not a matter of money with me, as I have shown right here. I will soon have time to go into the Philadelphia matter in detail."

Asked if the proposal made to him was for the formation of a company similar to the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, with himself as the active director, Mr. Hammerstein smiled sagaciously.

"No, it is not at all that," he responded. "When I do anything I want to be the whole business myself, and then I know how I can make it go. I want to be President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, and everything else, so I can be sure of having my own way and exercising my own judgment. The idea is simply for me to become interested in building a great opera house there, and to furnish Philadelphia with the same sort of grand opera that I have been giving to New York.

"The whole thing is yet so vague that I don't want to try to discuss it. I only know that it is something that may possibly happen, and that prominent men are interested in the project."

As he turned to go, Mr. Hammerstein volunteered a little information about directors of grand opera in general, and some in particular.

"Some men are born directors," he said. "Some men are made directors, and some men have directorships thrust upon them—just like somebody in the neighborhood of Thirty-third Street."

After this modified quotation from Shakespeare Mr. Hammerstein gazed absentmindedly up toward Broadway.

NEW PLAY IN IRVING PLACE.

Schaffmeyer's "Honest People" an Able and Interesting Comedy.

Gustav Kiesel, Fabrikant	Adolf Winds
Marianne	Hedwig v. Ostermann
Ludwig Grottkau	Friedrich Holthaus
Justine	Marie Immisch
Rudolf	Otto Treptow
Lont	Mill Reimann
Wettinger	Carl Machold
Dr. Martini	Max Haenseler
Conrad Schoeppel	Max Lobl
Gieselbrecht	Jacques Horeth
Frau Gieselbrecht	Marianne Bratt
Minna	Lina Haenseler
Anton	Louis Koch

Adolph Schaffmeyer's "Ehrliche Menschen" (Honest People), produced for the first time at the Irving Place Theatre last night, again reveals the familiar triangle, and, as in many other cases, domestic felicity is disturbed for a time by the presence of the tempter in the guise of a sympathetic artist. The artist is the respected guest in the home of Gustav Kiesel, a wealthy Berlin manufacturer, whose wife Marianne is one of those yearning souls who cannot learn where her true happiness lies until she has placed herself in a compromising position with another man.

In the new Broadway productions this season we have had, on an average of once a month the visit of the heroine to the room of the designing villain, with the husband's untimely appearance upon the scene. And it appears that even in Irving Place the situation cannot be avoided. When Herr Kiesel discovers his wife in the artist's studio there is a lively row, but a diplomatic friend of the family is ultimately able to set things right.

Mr. Schaffmeyer's play, as will be observed, does not depart very far from the beaten path, but it is an able piece of its kind, with a number of strong situations, several excellent comedy scenes, fluent, natural dialogue, and half a dozen excellently written characters. Friedrich Holthaus, a member of the company, was the beneficiary of last night's performance. The acting was generally competent.

BRADY TO THE RESCUE.

Manager Made a Brief Return to the Stage in "The Man of the Hour."

William A. Brady made an impromptu return to the stage last night at the Savoy Theatre. Some one had to be found in short order, and Mr. Brady elected himself to fill the vacancy.

Charles D. Mackay, who plays the rôle of the broker Gibbs in "The Man of the Hour," sent word to the theatre at about 7:30 o'clock that he was ill and would be unable to appear. Mr. Mackay's understudy, who is a man by the name of West, had recently moved, and no one knew his address. It was then that the manager himself came to the rescue.

Mr. Brady went before the curtain and announced that Mark J. Cody, the stage manager, would play the part of the broker. He did not announce that he would play the part of the butler in the first act, ordinarily intrusted to the stage manager. However, this is precisely what he did.

Mr. Brady enjoyed the fun immensely, and the house applauded every time he made an entrance or an exit. "Announcing is my specialty," he said, after the ordeal. "That is why I made the first announcement, and insisted on announcing every one that came on the stage."

The missing understudy appeared after the end of the second act, and Mr. Brady was saved from playing the rôle of a ward heeler in the final act, for which part he had already cast himself.

FABULOUS SALARY DREAM.

Truth of Stories Circulated in London Is Denied.

Special Cablegram.

Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—Abraham L. Jacobs of New York, the theatrical lawyer, who has been in London this week, says there is no foundation for the stories of fabulous salaries to be paid to English music hall artists by rival American syndicates.

"So long as theatrical people in the legitimate drama are willing to go into vaudeville for a substantial increase in salaries," he said, "there is no danger of a scarcity of music hall talent in America. However, the top vaudeville salaries in America are very large compared with English salaries, and that may account for the stories circulated here."

SUCCEEDS HERR CONRIED.

New Manager of Irving Place Theatre May Build Uptown.

Following Heinrich Conried's announcement that he would no longer be the lessee and manager of the Irving Place Theatre, it was learned yesterday that the house has been taken over by Dr. Maurice Baumfeld, who for eight years or more has been the New York correspondent of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse and is President of the Austrian Society.

Dr. Baumfeld is well known in the German community. It is understood that his present undertaking is a preliminary to the building of a new German theatre uptown, in which a number of prominent German citizens are interested.

For the next year, however, Dr. Baumfeld will devote himself to the theatre in Irving Place. He said yesterday that many changes would be made in the house and that the best talent available would be obtained for next season.

MISS HAHLO STAGE-STRUCK.

Conried's Secretary Is to Try a Part in "Cleo."

Miss Jet Hahlo, who has been Herr Conried's private secretary this year at the Metropolitan Opera House, is going on the stage. She is young and pretty and is well known to those who frequent the domain of the Herr Direktor.

Miss Hahlo said last night that she did not know just how serious the attack might be. She is going out in a small part with Nance O'Neil in "Cleo" under the direction of Charles Dillingham.

"I shall come back to the Opera House in the Fall," she said, "unless I make a very big hit in a very little rôle. Perhaps I shan't come back at all. I shall be satisfied if I really begin to do things in the dramatic line after four years of work."

PLAYS FOR THE ACTORS.

Burr McIntosh and the P. W. L. Take Leading Parts.

The third annual benefit of the Actors' Society of America took place yesterday afternoon at the Hudson Theatre before a large audience. Among the leading performers were Louise Gunning, Maude Raymond, Victor Herbert, Elsie Janis, Eddie Foy, Ethel Barrymore in "Carrots," and Adelé Ritchie.

Twelve members of the Professional Women's League, with the assistance of a single man, presented a piece by Arloe Bates entitled "A Gentle Jury." The jury consisted of the twelve, and the Sheriff was none other than Burr McIntosh, whose appearance once more behind the footlights created no little excitement.

The novelty of the afternoon was a new one-act piece by Paul Armstrong, author of "Salomy Jane," entitled "A Blaze of Glory." The only previous performance of the piece had been at a recent Gambol of the Lambs. The little play, which is realistic in the extreme, takes place in a private room at Bellevue, and describes the death of a poor Irishman who has been crushed in rescuing a rich child from a runaway. He dies, glad of what he has done, drinking champagne.

MR. HOEKKOEK HAS ARISEN.

Appears at the New Amsterdam Theatre to Assert the Constitution.

Strange things happened at the New Amsterdam Theatre yesterday. When the Treasurer peeked out of his box office window in the afternoon he discovered pasted on the lobby wall a large sheet of brown paper, in the middle of which was a dollar bill. This the economical Treasurer promptly cut out. About the bill were scrawled in blue pencil these mystic words:

To the wrong interpretere of the Constitution of the United States. This means you and Klaw & Erlanger and the rest of their ilk. Now take your medicine.

FREDERICK KOEKKOEK.

In the evening a well-dressed man thrust a printed manifesto into the hand of the Treasurer, declaring:

"There shall be no syndicate or non-syndicate, nor shall there be robbers of any kind. I have arisen and will assert the Constitution of the U. S. A."

It was Frederick Koekkoek again. He got away before the Treasurer recovered his breath.

Play by an Actress.

LONDON, April 10.—A play on the woman suffragist question by Elizabeth Robins, the actress, was produced at the Court Theatre last night. It is called "Votes for Women," and has the subtitle "A Dramatic Tract." Edith Wynne Matthison played the leading rôle.

Court Gives Dixey to Lawrence.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff signed an injunction yesterday restraining Henry E. Dixey from appearing under any other management than that of Walter N. Lawrence. Lawrence declared that Dixey's interpretation of the title rôle in the play "The Man on the Box" had made him important to the production, and that he had a contract with Dixey for the run of the play.

New Nazimova Play on Friday.

The opening of Alla Nazimova in "Comtesse Coquette" at the Bijou, announced for Monday and postponed to Thursday owing to the illness of the actress and a change in the cast, has again been put off. At the Bijou Theatre it was said last night that the opening would positively take place on Friday evening.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Among recent recruits for Richard Carle's new Summer show, "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl," are Mrs. Annie Yeamans, Jacque Kruger, Mae Botti, J. E. Hazard, and the Constantine sisters. The piece will be first presented at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, on June 3.

Bonci has autographed 200 copies of the story of his life, to be sold at the Actors' Fund Fair. David Warfield has autographed 500 of his photographs in "The Music Master." The motto booth will have sentiments penned and signed by "Mark Twain," Pol Plancon, William Gillette, Francis Wilson, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Sousa, and a score of others.

The week of April 22 at Keith & Proctor's Harlem Opera House will be devoted to the first production on any stage of an original play in four acts, "The Undertow." The play deals with the franchise manipulations of private corporations, and includes a love story, of course.

Arrangements have been completed by which the Van den Berg Opera Company will begin a Summer engagement at the West End Theatre on Monday, May 6, in grand and comic opera at popular prices. The organization, under the direction of Jose Van den Berg, will contain seventy-five people.

WELCHING GAMBLER GOT TWO BEATINGS

"Doc" Owens's Partner on Kaiserin Thrashed by Californian, Who Won from Him.

NEARLY GOT INTO IRONS

There Were Three Meetings and Two Knockdowns, Which Capt. Ruser Approved.

One of several professional gamblers who crossed the Atlantic on the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, in yesterday morning, must wish he had selected some other ship. This particular gambler, who is a partner of the notorious "Doc" Owens, had the bad judgment to make a side bet of $300 with Thomas W. O'Brien of San Francisco on the number of miles the Kaiserin would log last Sunday, and when Mr. O'Brien won failed to pay up.

On Monday night when the Kaiserin was nearing Sandy Hook Mr. O'Brien met the gambler in the smoking room and called him to task for failing to pay the bet. The gambler offered an excuse, and then Mr. O'Brien in the presence of the other passengers called him a "welcher." The gambler did not like the appellation, and showed it, so Mr. O'Brien sent him to the floor with a blow on the chest.

The other passengers and the stewards stepped in and prevented further trouble, and everybody was of the impression that the incident was closed. But everybody was wrong.

After breakfast yesterday morning one of the first of the saloon passengers to enter the smoking room was the gambler. A little later on Mr. O'Brien appeared. Mr. O'Brien approached the gambler and demanded that he make good on the bet. There were more angry words, but the timely appearance of the stewards prevented another battle.

The Kaiserin was leaving Quarantine when the final chapter in the episode was enacted. Mr. O'Brien found the gambler on the promenade deck, and without further ado proceeded to give him a good thrashing. This time the stewards took both men to the Captain's cabin. There they told Capt. Ruser their story, and Capt. Ruser decided that O'Brien was in the right. He told the gambler that further trouble on his part meant arrest and irons in a part of the ship where it would be impossible for him to bet with anybody but the rats.

As soon as the Kaiser docked Owens, who was a passenger, and his friend, were the first of the passengers to leave the ship. They had their baggage examined quickly, and were on their way across the ferry before the pier police learned what had happened.

O'Brien did not get his money.

WHOLE WEEK OF OPERA.

Manhattan Season Will Close with Eight Performances Next Week.

There will be a performance at the Manhattan Opera House every night next week, the last of the opera season. Emma Calvé will appear three times, in "Carmen" on Tuesday and at the Saturday matinée, and in "La Navarraise," which will be given in conjunction with "I Pagliacci," on Thursday.

Friday night will be called "Campanini's farewell," and will be a gala occasion. "I Puritani," which opened the Opera House, is the work chosen for this event. After the second act Mr. Arimondi will sing the prologue to Boito's "Mefistofele." The bill on Monday night is "Rigoletto"; "Martha" is the Wednesday opera, and the last performance, on Saturday evening, will be "Aida."

Next Sunday night the last concert of the season will be given at the Manhattan. In the first part Verdi's "Requiem Mass" will be sung, with Mmes. Russ and de Cisneros, and MM. Altchevsky and Arimondi as soloists. Mr. Campanini will conduct Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Liszt's Fourth Hungarian Rhapsody. The other soloists will be Mme. Lejeune and MM. Gilbert and Ancona.

"AIDA" FOR GARIBALDI FUND.

Much Enthusiasm at Special Performance at the Manhattan.

A special performance of "Aida" was given at the Manhattan Opera House last night in aid of the Garibaldi Memorial Fund, under the auspices of Count Massiglia, the Italian Consul General, and of the Italian colony of New York.

BROOKLYN HORSES WIN BLUE RIBBONS

Miss Emily and Miss Grace Bedford Capture Two Classes.

BIG ENTRY IN PONY CLASS

Donner and Blitzen Get Another Blue, Beating Judge Moore's Perfection and Sunshine.

The Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn opened its fifteenth annual horse show last night in the club's arena under conditions that tried to the last extreme the fidelity of the organization's patrons. In spite of the wretched weather the building was fairly well filled, however, and it helped out the general satisfaction of the crowd that the attendance was made up of dyed-in-the-wool ridihg and driving people.

The ring exhibitions were of high quality throughout, and though the rings in a number of cases were small, the competitors included horses that have been blue ribon winners in many of the big shows.

Chief of the winners of the night were the noted pair, Donner and Blitzen, winners for six seasons in all the big shows of America, which, shown and driven by Miss Emily H. Bedford, earned a pronounced victory over William H. Moore's pair, Perfection and Sunshine, with a smart new team, Spider and Fly, shown by M. L. and A. C. Schwartz, as the one other competitor.

Another notable competition was that for ponies, which brought out the biggest entry of the night, and because of the big entry was judged in two divisions, with prizes in each division. In the division for the larger ponies, the Avondale Farm's Lady Dilham won, while in the division for the lesser horses, the Avondale Farm's second entry also was retnrned winner, beating the great show pony Berkeley Bantam.

Miss Grace Bedford's saddle mare, Merely Mary, made a good beginning of the show season by winning in the class for maiden saddle horses, while in a second saddle class, in which most of the exhibits were ridden by women, Mrs. W. S. Elliott's Jude Cantrell, ridden by the owner, was from the noted show mare Corinne, ridden by Mrs. Belle Beach Bain, second, and Mrs. A. C. Doremus's Lady McDonald, ridden by the owner, third. The awards:

MILLER THREW RACE AWAY.

Bad Ride on Helen B. Lost Second Event at Benning.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The most ordinary card of the meeting was on at Benning to-day. The card was made up of over-night events, and, with the possible exception of the first race, there were no horses entered with any claims to class. Cold and threatening weather kept the attendance down to few besides the regulars.

Three maiden races, a selling affair, and a maiden steeplechase made up the programme. The feature of the card was the reappearance of Orphan Lad in the first event. David Dunlop's gelding had not started since his defeat by the selling plater Beldomo, but inasmuch as that race was considered a fluke the bettors did not hesitate about making the horse a favorite. Orphan Lad is not particularly partial to heavy going, but he was so much better than those opposed to him that he won in a romp.

The defeat of Helen B. in the second race and that of Lysistrata in the steeplechase were the biggest disapointments of the afternoon. Helen B. had been on tap for a week. Miller rode one of his ill-judged races, and Helen B. finished second to the long shot Black Mask.

In a closo finish Mooksie, a strong choice, won the maiden steeplechase from the favorite, Lysistrata, Setauket getting the short end of the purse. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; six and a half furlongs, Columbia course. Orphan Lad, 98 pounds, (Miller,) 15 to 20 and 1 to 4, won; Old Colony, 89, (Goldstein,) 12 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Belle of Jsseamine, 106, (McDaniel,) 5 to 2, third. Time—1:26. Parkville and Fusilade also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For fillies and geldings, maidens, two years old; half mile, old course. Black Mask, 104 pounds, (Hennessey,) 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, won; Helen B., 104, (Miller,) 6 to 5 and 1 to 2, second; Laudable, 104, (Alsop,) 7 to 1, third. Time—:51 1-5. Oreodon, Matches Mary, Cartwheel, Wedding, Easter Belle, Kste Carney, Miss Merjorie, Meno, Desideratum, and Gallant Lizzie also ran.

THIRD RACE.—For colts, maidens two years old; four and a half furlonge, old course. Bob Callahan, Jr., 107 pounds, (Mountain,) 8 to 1 and 3 to 2, won; Senator Barrett, 107, (Slander,) 8 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Marston, 107, (Miller,) 7 to 5, third. Time—0 59 2-5. Patrician also ran. Hartford Boy left standing at post.

FOURTH RACE.—Steeplechase, for maidens four years old and upward; about two miles. Mooksie, 135 pounds, (McClain,) 5 to 2 and 4 to 5, won; Lysistrata, 140, (Mclnerney,) 7 to 5 and 7 to 10, second; Will Do, 166, (McIntyre,) 7 to 1, third. Time—1:34. I Am Trying, Millstone, Titmouse, and Queen of Knight also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; one mile and 100 yards, old course. Lord Badge, 102, (Englander,) 11 to 5 and 4 to 5, won; Blue Buck, 107, (McDaniel,) 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Water Dog, 103, (J. Johnson,) 8 to 1, third. Time—1:54 4-5. Flexion, Sentry, Jobstown, Toscan, and Winchester also ran.

CLASS GAMES AT COLUMBIA.

Dr. Hammond Offers a Trophy for an Inter-Class Meet.

Dr. Graeme Hammond of the Class of '80 of the College of Physicians and Surgeons has offered a trophy to Columbia University for an interclass championship in track and field sports, an innovation at Columbia. The announcement was made yesterday at a mass meeting of candidates for the track team and provoked great enthusiasm. As a result an unprecedented number of candidates—135 in all—reported, prepared to begin training for the team. The stimulation of interest will, it is believed, give the Columbia team strength approaching that which won honors for it in the intercollegiate meets of two decades ago.

If Bull, the sprinter, becomes eligible there will be a good nucleus for a successful team. Marsh in the quarter, Zink in the half mile and Heyns in the mile are thought to be able to score in the intercolleglates. In the other events men of good possibilities are available, except for the hurdles and the pole vault.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

President William H. Hotchkiss of the American Automobile Association will be in this city to confer with several of the local members of Executive Committee on several matters of importance that will come before the regular meeting for action later in the month. Mr. Hotchkiss adressed the membership of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation at their annual meeting in Pittsburg last night.

Georges Dupuy will sail for Europe on Saturday to make a preliminary run over the entire 4,000 mile route that has been mapped out for the gold cup tour of American cars this Summer.

Jefferson De Mont Thompson, Chairman of the Racing Board of the American Automobile Association, who has been confined to his house for six weeks by illness, had a relapse this week, and as a result the proposed meeting of the Racing Board may be postponed for another week.

A novel method of demonstrating to legislators just how feat an automobile goes at different distances and the ease with which it can be controlled was given a few days ago by James T. Drought of the Milwaukeo Automobile Club to the Wisconsin Legislature. Mr. Drought had the speeds regulated for different distancee, so as to show a number of comparisons from six to forty miles. Some of the lawmakers had never been in a motor car before.

Three of the four Dragon touring cars for the A. A. A. tour have been entered respectively by H. T. Branstetter of the Chicago Automobile Club, John Kane Mills of the Quekser City Motor Club and President of the Dragon Automobile Company, and A. L. Kull of the New York Motor Club. These cars will probably be the lowest powered cars in the contest.

Miners, as well as farmers, are beginning to realize the value of the automobile. One of the latest sales of a motor car, constructed for uee in rough country, was made recently to O. B. Perry, who ordered a Peerless 16-horsepower Roadster, to be shipped to the Klondike and used in the vicinity of Dawson City.

AMERICAN YACHTS TO RACE IN SPAIN

King Alfonso Gives Cup for International Races of Sonderklasse Boats.

CONTESTS IN SEPTEMBER

The Competitors for Kaiser's Cup at Kiel Will Go to San Sebastian for Second Series.

BOSTON, April 9.—Henry Howard, the representative of the Eastern Yacht Club, who has been conducting the foreign negotiations with the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club, at Kiel, for the international races between Germany and America for the cup offered by Emperor William, to be held in August at Kiel, received to-day a cabled invitation from President Ybarra of the San Sebastian Royal Yacht Club for a similar series of races between three yachts representing America and three representing Spain. He announced that King Alfonso had offered a cup for such an international series, and proposed any date in September for the races that might be acceptable to the American club, the races to be held at San Sebastian.

"King Alfonso of Spain," declared President Ybarra, "is keenly desirous of bringing about international Spanish-American races, and has offered cups for a series of races between Spanish and American boats to be held at San Sebastian next September under the control of the Royal Yacht Club, representing Spain and the Eastern Yacht Club representing America. The general conditions of these races he desired shall be the same as those fixed for the cup given by Emperor William for the races of the German and American boats at Kiel."

Mr. Howard declared that the invitation would undoubtedly be accepted by the Eastern Yacht Club, and that the negotiations would be completed as speedily as the club could take action on the matter. He said it was probable that the same boats that raced at Kiel representing America would go from there to San Sebastian to race against the Spanish boats, and would be the three that made the best showing in the trial races off Marblehead, to be held on June 10 and succeeding days.

EXPECT BOXING TO STOP.

Sheriff Hayes Calls Police Attention to Breaches of Law.

The resumption of boxing in the various so-called athletic clubs throughout the city and the weekly accessions to the list of clubs holding bouts has aroused the police authorities to action again, and it is expected that the Thomas-Lewis fight, scheduled for the Gilford Athletic Club, at Grand Central Palace, to-night, will mark the first of another series of efforts to close up all of them.

A letter was written to Police Commissioner Bingham by Sheriff Hayes yesterday asking police aid in suppressing the bouts. In the absence of Commissioner Bingham from the city the Sheriff refused to discuss the contents of his letter or to make any statement of his plans, but in talking of the general boxing situation he is quoted as declaring that conditions now are worse than when Gov. Higgins last year issued his manifesto demanding the cessation of the practice.

Neither would any of the officials in the Police Department discuss the probable action of the Commissioner in the premises. It is expected that a declaration will be issued from headquarters forbidding the fights when the Commissioner returns to-day.

TEAM GOLF FOR WOMEN.

Local Association Divided Into Two Sections—Point-Scoring Cup Popular.

Twenty-one clubs will be represented in the series of sectional team matches to be conducted this year by the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. The apportionment of the clubs was made yesterday at the meeting of the Executive Committee at the home of Mrs. E. F. Sanford at the Hotel Hargrave, West Seventy-second Street. Section A will be composed of eleven clubs and Section B of ten clubs. Each section will pick teams of fifteen members each, and they will compete in five matches during the season, the first match to be held on May 14 at the Knollwood Country Club, near White Plains. The clubs will be divided as follows:

Section A—Montclair, Morris County, North Jersey, Essex County, Baltusrol, Hackensack, Plainfield, Ocean County, Richmond County, Century Country, and Dunwoodie.

Section B.—Apawamis, Nassau County, Siwanoy, Shinnecock Wee Burn, Powelton, Ardsley, Brooklawn, Dyker Meadow, and Fairfield County.

The local championship to be held on the Knollwood Club links, beginning May 22, will be conducted on the same plan as in former years, the medal play qualifying round being at eighteen holes, with sixteen to quality for the match play rounds.

New Automobile Show Committee.

The Board of Managers of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers appointed at its regular meeting yesterday a committee of three to arrange for the next show to be held under the association's auspices. Col. George Pope was chosen as Chairman, the position he has occupied for so long, and C. R. Mabley was re-elected to serve, but Marcus I. Brock, who has been identified with former shows, requested to be relieved of further duty in the capacity on account of his growing duties as assistant general manager of the association. Charles Clifton, President of the association, assumed the vacated place of Mr. Brock.

C. C. N. Y.'s New Team Managers.

Nathaniel Fleischer, 1908, has been elected manager of the City College basket ball team for next year. Abraham Barbaness, 1909 has been chosen assistant manager. Eugene Kruskal, 1908, has been elected football manager, and is arranging his schedule.

Future Major Leaguers.

The Powhatan Bassball Club, member of the Intercity Association, is desirous of arranging games with local or out-of-town clubs offering guarantees. Address John J. Egen, 228 West 132d Street.

A baseball league composed of teams representing the automobile establishments of Greater New York will be organized at the outing of the Riverside Social Club on May 2. Michael J. O'Connor, Secretary and Treasurer of the club, hes arranged a game for May 2 between teams rspresenting the Locomobile Company of America and the Empire State Motor Car Company.

The Bronx Club will open the season with Fort Broadhurst on April 21. The season's schedule includes games with Glenwood and Atlas Field Club. The club has open dates for Saturdays and Sundays in May, June, July, and August. The club is registered with the Intercity Baseball Association. Address W. A. Daw, 1,087 Hall Place, Bronx, N. Y.

In the opening game of the season the Village Baseball Club defeated the Athletic Field Club of East New York. Registered clubs in the Intercity Baseball Association can secure games for eighteen-year-old teams by addreseing Thomas King, 645 Greenwich Street, New York City.

The All-Mount Vernon Baseball Club, members of the Intercity Baseball Association, would like to arrange games with first-class teams offering suitable guarantees. Address George W. Love, Jr., 254 North Terrace Avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

A schedule of games with strong semi-professional clubs has been arranged by the Powhatan Club, including Waterbury, New London, New Brunswick, East Quogue, Southhampton, Easthampton, Nyack, Central Islip, Ceiral Valley, Butler, Glenwood, Cedarhurst, and Haverstraw.

aSturday and Sunday games can be secured by writing to R. A. Scanlon, secretary All Tremont B. B. C., 1872 Bathgate Avenue, Bronx, N. Y., and Edward Duffy, 21 East 115th Street.

The Stapleton A. A. will play its first game of the season at Stapleton Park, Stapleton, S. I., on Sunday, April 14, with the Crescent team of New Brighton. Manager Poggi will have the following team in the field: Bowen, pitcher; Brewer, catcher; Larkin, first base; Kehoe, second base; Pechtold, short stop; Reilly, second base; Robertson, left field; Brennan, centre field; Hofer, right field. Aideman "Dave" Rendt of Staten Island will start the game by throwing the ball over the plate.

The Central Islip, L. I., team will open its season Saturday, April 13, with the Avonia A. C. The Long Islanders, under Manager Cassidy, will put a strong team in the field.

This season the De La Salle Institute baseball nine will make many long jumps out of town. The itinerary includes games at Ellicott City, Md.; Washington, D. C.; Villanova, Penn., and at Baltimore.

SMATHERS NOT GUILTY.

Trotting Horseman Did Not Conspire to Drug Lou Dillon.

Elmer E. Smathers, the trotting horseman, will retain possession of the Memphis Gold Cup, which he won with Major Delmar when the horse trotted against Lou Dillon at Memphis on Oct. 18, 1904. The jury, which was out eleven hours, returned a sealed verdict in the case of the Memphis Trotting Association to replovin the cup on the charge that Mr. Smathers had caused the "doping" of Lou Dillon, previous to the race for the cup. Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court yesterday opened the verdict, which declared Mr. Smathers not guilty of the charge of conspiracy. The jury held that the charge made by the plaintiff that Lou Dillon was drugged as the result of a conspiracy was not proved, and the verdict was a vindication for Smathers.

The decision bears out the action of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association, which found that the evidence failed to disclose any attempt at drugging on the part of Mr. Smathers, and will finally dispose of the case, which has occupied the attention of the light harness folk during the past year.

The suit of the association to recover the Gold Cup had been in progress before Justice Greenbaum for more than a week. In the race in question Major Delmar won the first heat in 2:07, and Lou Dillon, which had been covering miles in 2:05 without any great exertion, finished in 2:18½ trembling and in great distress. In the second heat the mare stopped and Major Delmar had a walk-over. Lou Dillon revived the day following the race, and apparently was as good as ever.

C. K. G. Billings, the owner of Lou Dillon, has said all along that he had nothing to do with pushing the matter into the courts. The only evidence against Smathers was in the form of statements by George Spear and Edward Sanders, two trainers, to the effect that Smathers offered $5,000 to have the mare lose the race.

One of the peculiar features of the case was the fact that one of the jurors was withdrawn, on account of the illness of his wife and daughter, after the jury had received the Judge's charge. It is understood that the fury stood eleven to one for the defendant from the first, and that the dissenting juror was won over about 10 o'clock on Monday night.

BANASTAR A KNOWING HORSE.

Refused to Start Because His Owner Was a Harness Horseman.

That horses have almost human intelligence has been stated time and again, but it remained with Col. Franklin Bartlett to place the thoroughbred racer on a plane above the ordinary animal, when in arguing a case before the Supreme Court of Westchester he stated in positive terms that the famous Brooklyn Handicap winner Banastar refused to start in a race because he knew his owner was a trotting man and not a lover of the runners.

Col. Bartlett was retained as leading counsel for the State Racing Commission in the case against the Empire City Trotting Club, in which the latter organization applied to Justice Isaac N. Mills of Westchester County to issue a preemptory writ of mandamus to compel the State Racing Association to issue a license and award dates for a running race meeting to the Empire City Trotting Club for 1907.

The oratorical powers of Col. Bartlett are generally recognized by the New York State judiciary and bar. In arguing his case he laid particular stress on the fact that the Empire City track was built for trotting purposes and not for running races. He became eloquent and in the course of his argument he said:

"The Empire City Trotting Club was conceived by the late William H. Clark, at one time Corporation Counsel of the City of New York. The track was built by Mr. Clark as a trotting venture, and it was for trotting races and for trotting brushes and trials and for nothing else. Mr. Clark dearly loved a trotting or pacing horse. It is officially recorded in turf annals that about 1900 Mr. Clark purchased a celebrated running horse named Banastar. When the horse was sent to the post to run in his first race in the colors of his new owner, he stood stock still when the other horses started and refused to start himself because he knew he was owned by a trotting man and not a follower of the runners. Is it possible to produce more direct evidence as to the purposes intended by Mr. Clark when he built the Empire City track?"

The statement was made in all seriousness, nor was the distinguished lawyer in any way discomfited by the laugh which greeted the remark, a laugh in which Justice Mills joined heartily.

New Memphis Jockey Club Indicted.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 9—Charged with permitting betting at its matinee races April 6, thereby violating the Foust anti-race track betting law recently passed by the Tennessee Legislature, the New Memphis Jockey Club was indicted late to-day by the Shelby County Grand Jury. The claim is made that a handbook was operated, and that odds were offered on horses in each race.

The members of the Neptune Fishing Club have chartered a seagoing boat and will make the trips to the banks the same as in past seasons. The weekly meetings of the club are held on Tuesdays at 102 Clay Street, Newark, N. J. The annual May ride will be held Sunday, May 26.

The fishing boom is now on in Nantucket, and the industry shows more activity than has existed since the decline of the whale fishery two decades ago. The prohibitive law on scallops went on this week, but until May 15 the fishermen are allowed the privilege of taking shellfish for bait purposes only.

The pike hatchery established by the United States at Swanton, Vt., yields 100,000,000 fry yearly, of which 50,000,000 are sent to Connecticut, New York, and New Jersey.

The Ever Jolly Fishing Club, which was formed in 1872, has arranged the following schedule of trips to the banks: May 12, June 16, July 7, 28, Aug. 18, Sept. 8, Oct. 13, and Nov. 10. An important meeting of the club will be held to-morrow night.

A Manhattan branch of the recently organized Anglers' Association is being formed by the members of the Tornado Fishing Club, Mohican Fishing Club, and the Ernie Drescher Fishing Association. Headquarters have been engaged at 216 East Forty-first Street, with C. J. Mullen acting secretary.

La Lorraine Makes Fast Time.

MONACO, April 9.—La Lorraine, the French motor boat entered in the 40-foot class, won the principal event in the autoboat races here to-day, and made the best average speed that has yet been recorded in the carnival. She covered the 60 kilometere in 74 minutes and 21 seconds, an average of a trifle over 27 geographical miles an hour, which, for sustained speed, compares favorably with the records for hour trials all over the world. La Lorraine is expected to prove faster than the English crack boats in the coming international trials.

Archie Hahn to Coach Oregon A. C.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 9.—Archie Hahn, the famous former University of Michigan sprinter, who has held the National championship three times and who was the winner of the 110-meter championship as member of the American team that went to Athens to compete in the Olympic games, has announced his intention to leave the amateur ranks and accept the position of coach of the Oregon Athletic Club.

Big Athletic Meet in Jersey City.

A number of prominent New York athletes will compete in the indoor meet of the Fourth Regiment of the National Guard of New Jersey to be held this evening in the regimental armory in Jersey City. The feature will be a match race of 600 yards between Harry L. Hillman, Helvin Sheppard, Charles Bacon, Cohen, and Van Thum. Another important contest will be the mile race for the Military Athletic League, in which eleven teams have been entered. Over 500 entries have been scured for the various events.

USUAL OBJECTIONS AGAINST AUTO TOUR

Chairman Hower of A. A. A. Committee Says No Radical Changes Will Be Made.

WILL BE PRACTICAL TEST

Manufacturers Speak Well of Restrictions Against Carrying Unlimited Extra Parts.

Evidences of dissatisfaction have already cropped out against the rules for the American Automobile Association tour and the Glidden Cup competition. This is nothing unusual, for every Touring Committee that ever attempted to conduct one of these events always encountered more or less objections. It is not worrying Chairman Frank B. Hower in the least, and he intimated very clearly yesterday morning before leaving for Buffalo that no changes would be made in the conditions as announced two weeks ago for the trophy. So far as could be ascertained yesterday from the manufacturers and agents who will enter the cars, the majority are heartily in favor of supporting the rules.

"About fifteen cars are already entered for the competition," said Mr. Hower, "and from assurances I have had, I fully expect to see 100 cars or over ready for the trip. By this I mean regular stock touring cars. This does not look as though the objections were very strong, or that the success of the tour is seriously threatened. It is, however, barely possible that some modifications will be made, chiefly in the addition of a class for the popular high-powered runabouts. Many owners of these cars are anxious to take part in the run, but it was impossible to arrange the rules so that runabouts and touring cars might compete on equal terms for the trophy. The committee will meet this month, and if the Executive Board of the American Automobile Association deems the runabout feature feasible, a special cup will probably be offered and the smaller cars can cume in."

The opinions expressed by Edward Lozier yesterday represented very accurately the sentiments of the manufacturers who are now preparing their cars in a contest and taking their chances of success against all comers.

"There may be some details that might be improved," he said, "but in the main the rules are a vast improvement over the conditions of last year. These improvements are specially noteworthy in requiring contestants to carry with them in their respective cars all extra parts that may be needed, and also in the stipulation that only one mechanic may ride in each car. It is no test of a touring car to start out in a long run and actually finish with what is practically another car, having been rebuilt with new axles, springs, eyeblders, radiators, and portions of the frame, during the journey. It is also an injustice to have some cars absolutely in charge of mechanics from the factory, as has frequently been the case in the past. The test this year, therefore, should be productive of more satisfactory results in showing what stock touring cars can do in a long 1,400-mile run."

Two Lozier cars will be entered, one from this city and the other from Cincinnati, and they will represent different clubs, as the cup is to be awarded on the basis of individual team showing.

Surprise has been expressed by many agents and manufacturers that any objection should be found with the condition requiring all extra parts to be carried in the competing car. Without some stipulation of this sort, there is nothing to prevent the shipment of extra parts at different points along the route. If the tour is to be a contest at all, it should place some restriction upon the amount of new material to be added under the guise of repairs to a car, and the Touring Committee has endeavored in this case to place all cars upon an equality, giving the same opportunity to private owners as to manufacturers to make a creditable showing throughout the entire run.

AUTO CLUB'S NEW HOME.

Will Be Opened with Annual Meeting April 18—Big Membership Increase.

Members of the Automobile Club of America received word yesterday that the new home in West Fifty-fourth Street, near Broadway, will be opened for general use on Thursday, April 18. Although the executive officers of the club have been installed in the building since Jan. 1, no rooms have been available for the members owing to the incomplete condition of the clubhouse. Work on the interior has been progressing rapidly during the last two months, and although much yet remains to be done, enough rooms will be available for use during the Summer. The garage has already been opened and over twenty cars are stored there.

The present annual meeting is held in accordance with the resolution adopted at the annual meeting last November, when it was decided that hereafter the annual meeting should be held in April instead of November. No election of officers or changes in committees will occur the present officials holding over until one year from the present time, but a number of important amendments to the constitution and by-laws will be adopted. The present active membership is 1,000, the limit fixed last year, and there have been no vacancies for several months. With the improved facilities of the new clubhouse, it is proposed to raise the limit to 2,000, but the increase will be made gradually, at the discretion of the Board of Governors. It is probable, however, that at the coming meeting the limit will be made 1,500, as there is a long waiting list. The Board of Governors will also be increased to twelve members, in addition to the officers who are ex-officio members.

FOOTBALL AT COLUMBIA.

Students Arrange Conference Confident of Game's Resumption.

The football situation at Columbia, about which so many rumors have been circulated in the past week, has crystallized until the students believe the restoration of the game is assured. Announcement was made yesterday that the student committee which was appointed pursuant to the suggestion of Francis S. Bangs, Chairman of the University Committee on Athletics, proposed to announce its plans to the undergraduate body at a mass meeting to be held at noon to-day. They further stated that a conference had been arranged along the lines laid down by Chairman Banga with the University Athletic Committee, and that this would be held to-morrow afternoon. It is believed that at this conference a basis will be agreed upon whereby the game may be resumed next Fall at the Morningside University.

The gradual change of sentiment among the university authorities has been marked toward the game in the last few months. As evidence after evidence was given that the sentiment favorable to the game was general throughout the undergraduate body and the alumni, one after another of those who had opposed the game were won over to consent to the trial of it at Columbia along the lines laid by the Intercollegiate Football Committee in its reformation of the rules. All have admitted that the game as changed was acceptable and had obviated the objections to the sport as far as the conduct on the field was concerned. The authorities have, however, insisted that further assurance be given that kindred abuses, such as exaggeration of interest, would be eradicated. The students in conference decided that auch assurance could be given, and are prepared to make such concessions as are asked of them to revive the sport.

One of the objections raised was that participation in the game was too restricted. "Show us that there is a wide-spread demand for the game by actual participants and not for the game as a spectacle and we will consider means of resuming the sport," the authorities are said to have declared. To meet this requirement the undergraduates have prepared a list of more than forty students who have declared their wish to play the game and they declare that the instant permission to play is assured twice as many more declarations can be secured. The list prepared includes all those members of former football teams who are still in the university, as well as many promising players who are desirous of taking part. Those who signed the petition asking that they be allowed to play were:

NOTICE.

SUPREME COURT.—Trial Term.—Scudder, J.—Cause No. 2 on trial. No other cause will be taken up until Monday, April 15.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

BECHER & LANGER.—Nathan Becher and Leopold Langer, who composed the firm of Becher & Langer, formerly dealers in women's furnishing goods at 189 Eighth Avenue, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $5,258, contracted in 1904, and no assets. Becher went through bankruptcy once before five years ago.

OSCAR C. BRAUN.—Oscar C. Braun, residing at 1,317 Clinton Avenue, Bronx, formerly an electrical contractor at 140 East Twenty-second Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,623 and assets of $4 cash in bank.

TWENTY-FIRST STREET BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION CO.—Jemee G. Wallace has been appointed receiver of the Twenty-first Street Building and Construction Company of 18 and 20 West Twenty-first Street, by Judge Hough of the United States District Court at at the request of twelve creditors of the company, whose claims are $34,396, among whom are John C. Wallace, $10,170; Klee, Thomeon Company, $7,945; Samuel Thomasson, $5,822, and A. P. Bigelow Company, $3,452. He is President of the company and consented to serve as receiver without compensation. The assets consist of the eleven-story loft building, 18 and 20 West Twenty-first Street, practically completed, valued at $360,000 and mortgaged at $240,000, $5,000 to be received from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company when the building is completed, and a mortgage on property at Elberon, N. J. value not given. The company estimates the equity of the building at $100,000, against which the claims of creditors for work, materials, and money loaned are $40,000. An offering of $320,000 for the building was refused a few weeks ago.

LYNN & FREUND.—Judge Hough of the United States District Court has appointed Le Roy S. Gove receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Lynn & Freund, cafe, 44 East Forty-ninth Street, and restrained the Sheriff from selling the contents of the place, under an execution of $492.

THE AMERICAN FANCIER PRINTING AND PUBLISHING COMPANY of 106 Fulton Street, shows liabilities of $7,744 and nominal assets of $1,562, consisting of cash, $22; good will, $360; accounts for advertising, $965, and office furniture, $249.

GALASSO & GARGIULO.—Judge Hough denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Galasso & Gargiulo, grocers, of 387 Broome Street, against whom petition in bankruptcy was filed on Sept. 9, 1906, because they did not keep books of account and did not satisfactorily account for $15,000 worth of stock they purchased within four months of bankruptcy. Their liabilities were $15,281 and nominal assets $9,870.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise, Falling Later—Call Money Rates 2½@1½ Per Cent.

ERIE ISSUES AGAIN WEAK

Southern Railway Shares Also Break Sharply—Selling Apparently Professional—Money Easing.

A vigorous rise in prices, which carried active stocks two points or more above the levels of the previous night, came to an abrupt halt in the final hour of yesterday's stock market session upon the development of extreme weakness in the Erie shares and in Southern Railway preferred and common issues. The selling of these stocks was persistent, carrying their prices down several points in as many minutes, but the movement bore the appearance of a speculative raid, having for its object the bringing about of declines elsewhere to permit short covering. The needs of both the Erie and the Southern Railway have been known to the financial community for several months, and such accommodation as they have secured has been upon onerous terms, but neither road is in such shape as to justify the exaggerated stories which accompany each attack made upon the shares in the stock market by professional operators. A further cause for speculative anxiety was found in the final hour of the trading in indefinite reports from Washington that the Inter-State Commerce Commission had taken steps to compel the witnesses in their recent hearings in this city to testify to matters which they then refused to disouss. Why this, if true, should prove unsettling to financial markets is a puzzle. The fact that so much attention was devoted to reports of this nature upon the Stock Exchange proves, of course, the prominent part played in the markets of the moment by professional traders. The real developments of the day were apparently overlooked. They included the strike on one of the Amalgamated's subsidiary companies in Butte and the marked improvement in the money situation in London. The Butte trouble seems to be confined to the Poston and Montana plant, an agreement having recently been reached with the employes of other companies, and its early settlement there is now expected. In London bankers again reduced discount rates, so that quotations are now 1 3-16 per cent. below the minimum of the Bank of England. This indicates confidence in a reduction of the Bank rate at Thursday's meeting of the Directors, a step which would put a much more cheerful face upon all European money markets. At the moment sentiment is by no means so cheerful on the Continent as it is in London, but affairs are progressing favorably, nevertheless, as is attested by the excellent return of the Bank of Germany yesterday.

In the local money market ease in call money rates continued and lenders were forced to lower quotations in time funds. For practically all periods new low rates were established and thirty-day money was put out at 3½ per cent. The banks reduced their loss to the Sub-Treasury to nominal figures, but the general belief now is that the Treasury Department has gone as far for the time being, at least, as it thinks desirable. As had been expected, the easier position of the money markets has revived projects for corporation borrowing shelved, temporarily, during the recent disturbances in the markets. The demand from commercial houses continues strong, however, and if railroads and industrials press their demands the probability is that they will have to pay stiff interest charges, no matter how excellent their standing may be.

Experts in Government bonds point out a queer development from their point of view which has resulted from the two Treasury orders, one to purchase short 4s at 101 and the other to refund the short 4s into 2 per cents. Even since the promulgation of the refunding order, blocks of bonds have been prescnted for redemption at 101. But brokers are willing to pay at present for these bonds 101¼ or 101⅜, and possibly a little more. They are not philanthropists, however. Tho broker can afford to take short 4s at theso prices and refund them into 2 per cents at the present quotation for tho latter and make a profit. They figure closely on the parity of the two issues, and thus they can beat the Government figures of 101 for the short 4s. This condition exists now, although the refunding has brought about an easier tone in the market for the 2 per cent. bonds.

***

Bond houses are cheered by a better tone in New York City bonds. It is certain that big losscs have been made by individual holders of these bonds, and it is a fact that some houscs are carrying some of the old 3½ per cent. issues, which were delivered to them on the dissolution of the syndicates. These honds stand them at a price above par. The 3½ per cent. bonds sold recently at about two points off a 4 per cent. basis. They are now back to a 4 per cent. basis. The long 4s have rallied from 99½ to 101. This strength is due, apparently, to easier money, but no savings bank demand for bonds is manifest in the city issues.

***

Bankers of reputo in the financial district are slow, these days, to commit themselves on the future of the money market for tho next few months. They say that conditions have changed, developments come more rapidly, and the money market, both in its domestic and international aspect, is decidedly puzzling and very interesting. In the last few days sales of commercial paper have been very heavy. Reserves of country banks are very low, according to their city correspondence, and this fact is not relished. Local banks keep closely in touch with institutions in interior centres, and some of the very big ones assume a sort of National surveillance for their own and their friends' information and protection.

***

Apropos of business conditions, a man identified with the leather trade told a banker yesterday that retrenchment in that industry, so far as he could see, meant a healthier situation in that it eliminated speculation. Heretofore some manufacturers have shown a tendency to speculate heavily in raw material, but this has been stopped. Now they buy according to their needs, there is no surplus stock, no accumulation, and business is in good shape.

***

There is no unanimity among the leading financial lights on the question of an impending contraction in business, and the advice given by bankers to their brokerage clients ranges from optimism to conservatism. Here is a sample which gives one point of view: "There is no real decrease in business, no immediate effect of retrenchment. Statistics measuring business are right up to the high points. The ultimate result cannot be foreshadowed until more conclusive evidence of the nature of the leaven in the situation is known." The man who speaks is an international figure in finance, and incidentally a keen admirer of Mr. Hill.

***

Bankers are not agreed as to the precise cost of its loan to the Erie. Figures have been given purporting to show that the notes really cost the company 11 per cent. Insiders on the deal are not discussing the terms, but bankere who did not participate are inclined to take the ground that these figures are too high. If they are too high it might not be a bad idea, in the opinion of the speculative fraternity at least, to publish the exact data.

***

Recent developments in the market for copper metal have revealed the fact that at least two or three professional operators in the stock market were short of the metal. One in particular took a very positive position about three months ago, and he has combined his operations in stocks, that is, Amalgamated Copper and Anaconda, with trading on the short side in the metal market. He refuses to divulge the net result of his deal, but, apparently, he is satisfied. This particular professional is one of more than ordinary influence in the market, but he confessed a day or so ago that, while he might be right in a positive position on the market, he was unable to gauge the market from a scalping point of view.

***

Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Company will meet next week to consider the dividend on the preferred stock. Men who are closely identified with the management expect that the dividend will be passed. This is not in line with current gossip, but tho Directors know now that this proposal will be presented on Tuesday next. Charles M. Schwab, President of the corporation, will bo out of the city until Saturday. His friends intimate that while he holds 80 per cent. of the preferred stock, he will not allow that to interfere with the final decision on the dividend.

***

Rumor played a very effective part in yesterday's stock market, although perhaps it was utilitized as an excuse rather than as a factor in its own right. The sharp reversal of sentiment surprised many, but an analysis of the market since the panic will disclose the fact that almost every day bas shown a period of quick change and apparently reversed views from the opening. Mr. Harriman was made the subject of the rumor factory yesterday, and the report that Federal action either against him personally or against tho Union Pacific might be expected was circulated industriously. It is worthy of note that Southern Railway and the Erie issues were really the leaders in the decline, and Erie was particularly tho object of attack. The professional character of the operations in this stock was very obvious.

***

Once again American Smelters is taking its place as a speculative object lesson in wide fluctuations. This stock was the feature of the early trading in yesterday's market, and the operations according to the ticker watchers bore all the earmarks of old-time tactics. Smelters had a serious break, but it has not, of course, lost its popularity, and for that reason activity in the stock attracts a great deal of attention. Critical comment on the situation seems to agree that the presence of an uncovered bear account was really the stimulating influence in this security. The stock showed the most substantial net change for the day and Canadian Pacific was the next in point of change for the better. The Erie preferred stocks showed the heaviest decrease, and the rumor of the elimination of the dividend on second preferred was again in evidence.

***

Brokcrage houses are not disposed to take on very much time money. They consider offerings very carefully, and they are not likely to accept a profit loan unless it is attractive from their point of view. Many houses seek what are known as "all industrial" loans, and such loans are being placed at comparatively favorable figures, at least when compared with the quotations of a month ago. Some institutions in the district held their figures a little too high recently, and when the demand slackened they were confronted with the necessity of placing a block of money in a market which had ceased to be one-sided. Needless to say, they failed to obtain the 6 per cent. which was the superficial rate a day or so before.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 9.—The supplies of money exceeded the demand in the market to-day. Discounts were easy.

The Stock Exchange settlement showed a small account open, which was easily adjusted owing to the abundance of money. Business for the new account was of moderate dimensions, but prices hardened generally, cheap money bringing in renewed support for Consols, home rails, and Kaffirs.

Americans in their initial dealings showed irregularity, but they rose to over parity at noon, the smallness of the account and the light carry-over rate, 5½ per cent., inducing fresh support. Later New York bought moderately, prices advanced and then became erratic, especially Union Pacific, but closed firm.

Foreigns were firm. Japanese received the most attention. Japanese imperial sixes of 1904 closed at 101 ex dividend.

Bar silver uncertain, 30 3-16d per ounce. Money, 2½@2¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅞@4 per cent.; for three months' bills 3⅞@4 per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 19.65; Lisbon, 2.75.

Bullion amounting to £113,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

PARIS, April 9.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened dull, with trading inactive, and closed with an upward tendency. Russian imperial fours closed at 73.30 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 490.

The private rate of discount was 3 5-16 per cent.

Three per cent rentes, 94f 67½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 27c for checks.

BERLIN, April 9.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was quiet and prices were irregular. Canadian Pacific was 2 points higher, upon the covering of shorts.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 52 pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates—Short bills, 8½ per cent.; three months' bills, 5 per cent.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The special meeting of the United States Leather Company has been adjourned once more, this time until April 23.

The stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Company and the Juniata Iron Company, both subsidiaries of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, re-elected the retiring officers and Directors at the annual meeting in Philadelphia yesterday.

Great Northern Railway Company subscription certificates for new capital stock, four installments, 40 per cent. paid, have been admitted to quotation in the unlisted department of the New York Stock Exchange. Secretary Ely of the Exchange announces that in payment for these certificates the buyer shall deduct 60 per cent. being at the rate of $6,000 on each 100 shares, to cover the unpaid installments.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Snow and Slush Keep Trading at Low Ebb in Outside Stock Market.

MANHATTAN TRANSIT OFF

After Marking Time While Big Exchange Is Buoyant, Curb Market Becomes Active on Reaction.

The snow and slush thoroughly dampened the ardor of the curb traders yesterday and during the early hours when the Stock Exchange was buoyant the roped inclosure was deserted by half of its usual crowd, and buying and selling were practically at a standstill except in the active issues. Later, when the reaction set in on the big Exchange, there was a noticeable accession of activity in the outside market, under which prices declined and left the list generally lower at the close. Manhattan Transit, which took an upward shoot on Monday under transactions of 10,000 shares, sold only half that number yesterday at diminishing prices. The opening was at 5¼, and at one time the shares went down to 4⅞. The close was at 5. Among the coppers there were some substantial losses in the light trading. Butte Coalition sold down from 27¼ to 26¾. Davis-Daly, from 14 to 13¾; Greene-Cananea, from 17⅛ to 16¾; Nevada Consolidated, from 14½ to 14¼, and Newhouse, from 20 to 19⅜. Balaklala, British Columbia, Dominion Copper, and United Copper were firmly held.

HARAHAN ALSO SEES RED LIGHTS AHEAD

Illinois Central's President Says the Business Let-Up Is Unmistakable.

ECONOMY NOW IN FORCE

Improvement Work on His Road Postponed Despite the Immense Traffic.

President J. T. Harahan of the Illinois Central Railroad said yesterday that in his opinion the prediction of a let-up in general business was well founded, although it was impossible to say to what extent the slowing up would go. While indications point unmistakably in this direction, Mr. Harahan said that, so far as his own lines were concerned, there was as yet no sign of any reduction in traffic. Indeed, the business handled by the road in March exceeded that of a year ago, and the road was finding need of every freight car that it could bring into service.

The Illinois Central, like other roads, President Harahan said, was not at present doing any improvement work that could be postponed, for the reason that work of this kind, the management thinks, can be done on better terms later on. Everything, however, he said, was being done to expedite traffic, and maintenance charges were being fully kept up.

One of the difficulties confronting the Illinois Central in common with other roads that originate a very large proportion of the freight which they handle is the retention of its cars by other lines. The last report at hand showed, Mr. Harahan said, that 26,400 cars of the Illinois Central were on other lines, while the Illinois Central had fewer cars of other companies. This situation in the case of the Illinois Central is largely the result of the fact that the road turns over to other lines about 12,000 cars a month more than it receives from other lines, owing to the vast amount of freight originating on its lines. Many of these cars are sent to distant points, and it takes them a very long time to get back to the line owning them.

Commenting on the high cost of operation with which the railroads are now contending, Mr. Harahan said it was to be hoped that the high level of operating cost had been reached. He said, however, that there were several classes of railroad employes whose claims for higher wages will probably still have to be considered. All the men in the transportation departments have now come to an agreement with the railroads on scales of wages, but no general settlement has yet been reached between the railroads and the track and shop men and some other smaller groups of employes. It is expected in railroad circles that these employes will seek to have their wages increased in keeping with the increases already accorded to other classes of employes.

Asked to explain the contradictory reports that had reached this city of the attitude of the trainmen toward the proposed strike that was averted, Mr. Harahan said that, while it was true that in some sections the men were much opposed to declaring a strike, there were other sections in which the men were almost unanimously in favor of striking.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

First Sale Made of Foundry Iron for 1908—Prices Hold Well.

The first sale of foundry iron for 1908 delivery was reported in trade circles yesterday, though the price was not quoted. The order was for 500 tons to be delivered to a New England consumer in the first quarter of next year.

Iron at Buffalo, where the furnaces are reported to have sold out practically the entire output for the first three-quarters of the current year, is held firm at $22.50. Although there were no sales of second half iron reported yesterday, it is said that two large consumers are in the market for 75,000 tons. A number of steel rail inquiries for lots ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 tons are reported.

The Pittsburg office of Rodgers, Brown & Co. predicts the renewal of iron imports. They say:

> Predictions that prices had reached the top and were about to slump off have not materialized, as the pig iron market has a stronger tone than for several weeks past. Prices are very firm all along the line, with iron for steel-making purposes scarcer than for some time past. As a matter of fact, there is now a limited amount of any kind of iron that can be had at any price for anything like early delivery, with the exception of foreign Middlesborough foundry irons, which will no doubt again come to the rescue.

PEACE IN TRUST CO. FIGHT.

Irving and Atlas Trust Companies Merged as the Fidelity Trust Co.

Stockholders of the Irving Trust Company met yesterday and ratified the recent arrangement to merge the company with the Atlas Trust Company. A resolution was also adopted authorizing an increase in the capital of the Irving Trust Company from $500,000 to $750,000.

The name of the consolidated companies will be the Fidelity Trust Company, which will begin business about the middle of May with a capital stock of $750,000, fully paid in, and a surplus of the same amount.

At yesterday's meeting it was agreed that the original capital of the Irving Trust Company shall be subscribed at the rate of $205 a share, and that the Atlas Trust Company interests shall subscribe to the new stock at the same price.

This consolidation is the result of a threo months' fight between opposing interests in the two companies.

The officers of the Irving Trust Company who will remain as officers of the Fidelity Trust Company are: President—Samuel S. Conover; Vice Presidents—William H. Barnard and John W. Nix; Secretary and Treasurer—A. H. Mars. The new concern will occupy the old National Bank Building at Hudson and Chambers Streets.

FAILURES IN THREE MONTHS.

Dun's Review makes the following analysis of the failures reported to their agency during the first quarter of the current year:

> Taken as a whole, the liabilities of commercial failures in the first three months of this year might have been much larger than in recent preceding years without increasing the mercantile death rate, because the steady expansion in number of firms in business and amount of capital invested would naturally be expected to increase the total amount of defaulted indebtedness. But it is found that the total loss by bad debts during the three months, as indicated by liabilities of bankrupt concerns, would have averaged only $23.03 if divided among all firms engaged in business. That this amount would have provided no severe strain upon the business community is obvious, and it appears that in no year of the past generation was the average as low for the first quarter, with the single exception of 1880, when it fell to $18.19.
>
> Even more surprisingly favorable is the comparison of mercantile mortality as shown by taking the ratio of defaulted liabilities to solvent payments through the Clearing Houses, which shows the trifling sum of 77 cents to each $1,000. This is lower than in the same three months of any year during the previous generation, or since statistics were first compiled in this form in 1875. The present year's ratio of 77 cents compares with $3.87 ten years ago and $11.72 in 1879, when the death rate was highest.

LONG ISLAND R. R. DEFICIT.

Year's Increase in Earnings Offset by Interest and Other Charges.

The annual report of the Long Island Railroad Company for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31 shows an increase in gross earnings from $8,501,466 to $9,595,596, a gain of $1,094,129, or 12.9 per cent. The net income, however, shows a deficit of $28,358, against actual net income in the previous year of $22,520. Total gross income increased from $2,139,473 to $2,354,148, the deficit being accounted for by the growth of interest charges and the fact that the loss in the operation of the Montauk Steamboat Company amounted to $36,821.

One of the large increases in business was in the number of passengers carried, this item making a gain of 18.8 per cent. This growth is of special interest when it is remembered that in the previous year there was an actual decrease in passenger traffic. A large part of the gain is attributable to the real estate boom on Long Island, though a considerable factor has been the reduction in rates in commutation and excursion business, which brought the average return on passenger traffic down to 1.5 cents per mile. In connection with the electrification plans of the road, President Peters says in his report:

> Plans are being prepared for the electrification of your lines from Long Island City to Port Washington and to Whitestone Landing, and as soon as the tunnels under the East River are completed your lines will be electrified to Jamaica and to Woodhaven Junction, via the Glendale cut-off, a connection between the main line of your company, the Montauk Division, and the Rockaway Beach Division. Plans are also being made for an enlarged terminal at Jamaica, where the change from steam to electric locomotives will be made.

The Long Island Consolidated Electrical Companies, which was organized in 1905 to acquire suburban trolley lines, has completed the acquisition of a one-half interest in the New York and Long Island Traction Company and in the Long Island Electric Railway Company, and has also purchased, the report says, the Babylon Railroad, a small line in the village of Babylon. The company has also planned the construction of a cross-Island line from Huntington to Babylon through Farmingdale and Amityville, and the necessary franchises for this extension have been secured. It is proposed to obtain the funds for this purpose through the sale of the Electrical Companies' bonds, guaranteed by the parent company.

UNION BAG & PAPER CO.

Annual Report Shows Surplus Cut, but Company in Good Condition.

The annual report of the Union Bag and Paper Company shows additions to capital account of $2,235,983, the amount expended during the year for large acquisitions of timber lands and plants in the United States and Canada and for discount and expenses on issues of bonds and for expenses incidental to perfecting new machinery, &c. This addition, bringing the cost of property up to a total of $30,074,797, accounts for the cut in the dividend announced last year, since which two quarterly dividends have been paid at the rate of 7 per cent. and two at at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on the cumulative preferred stock.

As a result of an advance of 25 per cent. last Fall in the price of wood pulp, which President Fisher in his report says will probably never go back to the prices of 1905 and 1906, the company congratulates itself on the acquisition of additional Canadian timber land, which brings its holdings on the other side of the border up to 2,300 square miles. Besides the purchases in Canada last year, the company acquired the property of Allen Brothers of Sandy Hill, N. Y., which in addition to water power and land comprises paper mills with a capacity of sixty tons per day.

The net earnings last year were $934,487, compared with $833,352 in the previous year. An increase in bond interest from $29,721 to $145,625 reduced the balance compared with the previous year by $14,760, an amount more than offset, however, by the reduction in the dividends on the preferred stock from $770,000 to $605,000. The surplus for the year was $26,920, against $33,681 in 1905, and the total surplus was $1,075,490.

John S. Riegel of Philadelphia, Chauncey Marshall of New York, and Alexander MacLaurin of Montreal were elected to fill vacancies in the Directorate, and the retiring officers were returned to office.

TRUST COMPANY MERGER.

Plans Perfected for the Colonial and Trust Co. of America Alliance.

The plans for the projected merger of the Trust Company of America and the Colonial Trust Company have been agreed upon by the Directors, and a special meeting of the stockholders of both concerns has been called for April 25 to ratify the articles signed by the Directors.

Under the terms of the merger as announced some weeks ago the stockholders of the Colonial Trust Company received the option of selling their stock at $400 per share or of exchanging each two shares of their holdings for one share of the Trust Company of America.

LOOK FOR A CLASH BETWEEN EXCHANGES

One Stock Exchange House Takes Its Wire Out of the Produce Exchange.

MEMBERS MAY WITHDRAW

No Open War Yet, and Possibly the Big Exchange May Decide Not to Act.

When it became known in Wall Street yesterday that a large Stock Exchange house, with Produce Exchange connections, had removed its wire running to the Bowling Green exchange, brokers were ready to believe that the Stock Exchange had taken action finally in accordance with the provision of its constitution prohibiting its members from having any connection with any other organized body dealing in stocks. It was believed that the Produce Exchange would have to pay the penalty for introducing a stock-trading department in the withdrawal of all such Stock Exchange from membership in the lesser Exchange.

When the idea of trading in stocks on the Produce Exchange was first broached, Wall Street expected that the Board of Governors of the Stock Exchange would lose no time in calling attention to the section of the constitution prohibiting membership in other stock boards. This belief met with such general acceptance that curb brokers and others who have been desirous of joining the Produce Exchange for stock trading purposes, have put off buying memberships, hoping to pick up bargains when the seats of the Stock Exchange men came on the market. A canvass of Stock Exchange men in the Produce Exchange yesterday showed that they have no intention as yet what course the Governors of the Stock Exchange will pursue, and the belief is gaining ground that the fact that the Produce Exchange stock list contains none of the securities traded in on the big board will be made an excuse by the Stock Exchange officials to ignore the Produce Exchange's departure, or, at least, to allow the same connection between its houses and the stock traders on the Produce Exchange's is now permitted with the Curb market. The Produce Exchange stock list is almost identical with the stocks traded in on the Curb. It was said at the Stock Exchange yesterday that no order has been issued to its members to cut out their Produce Exchange wires and that, in fact, the stock-trading venture of the Produce Exchange has not come up for discussion in any way. The Produce Exchange's stock department, which will begin business next Monday, has already published its list of stocks, most of which are traded in on the Curb. Before trading begins, however, it is probable that the committee having the matter in charge will eliminate a number of these companies, whose properties are in the early stages of development.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Only Actual Quantity of Olive Oil Dutiable—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Judge Somerville, the Board of United States General Appraisers sustained yesterday a claim filed by the Acker, Merrall & Condit Company and many other importers of New York. It being held in assessing duty on olive oil in this the customs officers must liquidate the entries on the basis of the net weight of the oil as stated in the invoices, which should be converted into gallons on the basis of 7.50 pounds, or 3.43 kilos, to the gallon.

Under the method in vogue for some time the importers have claimed that the Custom House authorities assessed duty on an amount of the oil in excess of the actual importation.

In a decision by Judge Waite the board denies a contention raised by Charles Morningstar & Co., New York, regarding the classification of an article which has been long and generally known in trade as "white dextrine," the substance being used extensively for sizing fabrics. It is held that, while the article may not be dextrine in an exact scientific sense, it is nevertheless dutiable under the tariff provision for "dextrine." The importers claimed duty as starch. Other claims were also overruled.

CITY FUND DIVERTED.

Investigators of Ahearn's Office Find Practice He Says Is Old.

William M. Ivins and Special Assistant Corporation Counsel John Purroy Mitchell, who have been preparing for the public investigation of the affairs of Borough President Ahearn's office, have found records which they believe to be important as showing that money intended to be used for one purpose has been diverted to the payment of salaries and to meet other expenses, which otherwise would have had to come out of the budget.

The "special street restoring fund" was authorized by the Legislature in 1880, and consisted of fees paid by plumbers for the privilege of opening the streets. The amount received during a year aggregated about $175,000, and, as the cost of replacing the pavement was considerably less than the fee in nearly every case, the fund should have shown a large surplus. One estimate places the expenditures at not more than $75,000 a year, and on this basis there should have been an accumulated balance of nearly $1,000,000.

Mr. Ahearn said yesterday: "There was good profit for the city in this business, as the cost not much more than to replace each square yard of pavement. The plumbers paid $4 a yard for removal. The money from this fund was turned over to the Controller, as had been the case before I took office, and the payrolls were also turned over to him. If the fund money was used to meet the payrolls the Controller is surely as much to blame as I am."

THE D. & H. NOT TO BORROW.

Management Denies Reports of a $10,000,000 Note Issue.

Reports were revived yesterday that the Delaware & Hudson was considering the issuance of $10,000,000 of notes to provide funds with which to pay for equipment already ordered and to carry on work that the road has had under way. This report had appeared several times, and on each occasion has been denied by the road's management. Interests identified with the Delaware & Hudson said yesterday that the road was in no need of money just at this time, and that any financing that might be undertaken would be postponed until a later date, when probably better terms could be had than if an issue of notes were placed at this time.

The Delaware & Hudson some time ago placed $6,000,000 of Quebec Southern notes to complete the construction of this line, which is the Canadian extension of the Delaware & Hudson. The proceeds of the note issue, which was rumored yesterday, were said to be for the uses of the parent road.

$3,194,000 BANK ASSETS.

The Failed Corbin Company Has $200,000 Cash, Report Shows.

George C. Austin, assignee of the Corbin Banking Company of 192 Broadway, obtained yesterday from Justice MacLean of the Supreme Court leave to file a provisional bond of $225,000 until the schedules can be prepared, which will take at least a month longer, as the concern has accounts with many bankers in England, France, Italy, Germany, and Austria.

The assets are $3,194,000, consisting of all the capital stock of the Rockaway Park Improvement Company, $1,300,000; stock of the Manhattan Beach Securities Company, $1,200,000, to $1,500,000, if the company can sell the property at a fair value; cash in domestic banks, $134,000; cash in foreign banks, $60,000; equities in secured loans, $150,000, and bills receivable, $350,000. The cash assets likely to come into the assignee's hands before the schedules are filed will not exceed $200,000. The company has loans of $40,000 in five banks.

BIG TAX AT LITTLE COST.

City Collected $1,188,000 Under Mortgage Law at an Expense of $375.

A check for $594,184.49 has been forwarded from the City Chamberlain's office to the State Treasurer at Albany in payment of the State's half of the mortgage tax payments made to the City Chamberlain within the last three months in all the counties constituting New York City. The total receipts for each county for the three months were as follows:

New York County, $937,538.99; Kings, $203,060.08; Queens, $41,905.31; Richmond, $7,079.60. Total, $1,188,743.98. This total would indicate that the receipts from this tax for the full year will be close to $5,000,000.

The only items of disbursement to be charged against the receipts are the bank clerk's salary, $300 for three months, and the premium on the Chamberlain's bond amounting to $75, leaving a net amount of $1,188,368.98 to be divided between the city and the State.

RAILROADS CLASH ON RATE.

Chicago Great Western Cuts Under Union Pacific at Omaha.

OMAHA, April 9.—As an offset to the increase in grain rates by the Union Pacific between Omaha and Council Bluffs, the Chicago Great Western Railroad this morning began hauling grain free from Council Bluffs into Omaha, when destined to elevators on the tracks of the Chicago Great Western, and charging only $2 per car when destined to elevators on other tracks.

The Union Pacific charges $5 per car for the same service, the Inter-State Commerce Commission last week having declared that it had the right to do so.

The Great Western's action places the Omaha market on a parity with the Chicago market.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Estates Sell Old Holdings on Spring and Centre Streets—Large Plot on 143d Street Bought by Builders—Other Dealings and Auction Sales.

William A. White & Sons have sold for the Gardner estate to Lowenfeld & Prager 27 Spring Street and 212 and 214 Mott Street, being the northeast corner of Spring and Mott Streets, old three-story buildings. The property has been owned by the present sellers for over fifty years.

The Cruikshank Company has bought for a client from the Cruger estate, through the McVickar, Gaillard Realty Company, 213 and 215 Centre Street, running through to 149 and 151 Lafayette Street, a six-story loft building, on plot 50 by 100, between Grand and Howard Streets. The property, which is leased to one tenant, has not been transferred since 1840.

Bank Sells 135th Street Flats.

The State Bank has sold to the Salvage Realty Company the six new six-story apartment houses on plot 275 by 99.11, at 502 to 524 West 135th Street, 100 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue. The bank recently acquired the property under foreclosure, at which it was the plaintiff. The price at that sale was $196,750.

The Crystal Realty Construction Company has sold to an investor the six-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Broadway and 139th Street, 40 by 100. This completes the sale of a row of five houses recently completed by the company.

"HOW THEY GOT RICH,"

revised and improved. This booklet, the subtitle of which is "Real Estate Facts," is something every one who wants to get ahead on sound principles should read and study. Do not write for it if you are one of those that think to plant to-day and reap to-morrow; if you want to get rich as rapidly as that you can generally find a kindly poolroom to take your money and place it on a sure thing, or you can go to the tracks yourself shortly. But if you want to take advantage of a sound principle, a principle as sound as the growth of crops, I mean the increase in real estate values in Greater New York, send your name and address and let us show you what you can do for as little as $60 or $70 down and $12 or $15 monthly.

Marlborough-Blenheim

Atlantic City, N. J.

April

The ending of Lent this year coincides with the beginning of April, the gayest and most distinguished month in Atlantic City's famous Spring season. During this month more eminent visitors and "nice people" are to be found in the great hotels than in any other month of the year, and the absence of the Easter Sunday "INTERRUPTION" enables guests to completely enjoy all the attractions of climate and artificial entertainment of this festive season with entire satisfaction.

The hotel claims distinction for its location, its ample public space devoted to its guests, its high-class music every night throughout the year, but particularly attractive with solo singers at the week-ends during the Spring season and its ownership management.

All the four dining rooms (two American plan, with the excellent cooking heretofore as popular, and two a la carte, with separate kitchens and French cooks) have white service throughout, and in one of the American rooms, called the "American Palm Room," and in the a la carte rooms smoking is permitted. These are particularly attractive. Ocean and suites with large rooms 24 by 20 feet; and a private bath (supplied with both sea water and fresh water and with running ice water) is with every alternate room in the Marlborough and with every room in the Blenheim, which in construction is reputed to be the most completely fireproof hotel in the world. Golf privileges.

CHANCELLOR DAY ON COLLEGE MORALS

Tells Methodist Conference Here Heads of Universities Should Oversee Them.

APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE

Conference Closes After Hearing Names and Churches to Which Ministers Have Been Assigned.

That there is a tendency toward intemperance in the undergraduate life of the universitiea of this country, which ooulb be controlled, if not eradicated, by the united efforts of college Presidents and heads of universities, was the burden of the speech made before the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday by Chancellor James Roscoe Day of Syracuse University. Although the Chancellor mentioned no names of universities other than that of Syracuse, and attempted no comparisons, it was clear that he refrained from so doing through no fear that the Western New York university might suffer.

"Thank God!" exclaimed the Chancellor, "we place morals first at Syracuse. Before a student may matriculate ho must show that he is as well equipped morally as physically and mentally. And it is well that this should be so, for I believe that the college Presidents of this oountry have a moral responsibility as well as an intellectual responsibility toward their students."

Tbe Chancellor was evidently pleased with the manner in which he had handled the case of several students brought before him charged with having entered saloons and resorts in Syracuse, and he recounted the incident as an illustration of the methods employed at Syracuse.

"I said to them," declared the Chancellor, "'Gentlemen, I regret exceedingly to receive notice of your withdrawal from the univerelty.' 'But we have sent no such notice,' replied the surprised students. 'Oh, yes, you have,' said I, 'when you entered a saloon you gave me official notice of your intended withdrawal from the college.'"

Chancellor Day spoke of the habit prevalent among college men of smoking, and declared that on the evidence of the best medical authorities in the country he believed that the habit is one which is particularly damaging for a youth. Again choosing Syracuse for illustrative purposes, the Chancellor aaid:

"We have no law against smoking in the university, but I speak of it occasionally, and to those who receive help on their way through college I say, 'If you can spare money for cigars and pipes or for theatre tickets and such amusements, why we do not think that we should help you.'"

The Conference adopted resolutions approving the purpose of this Government to participathe in The Hague Conference, and urging that consideration be given to arresting the increase in armaments and to obtaining action providing that there shall be no declaration of war except after appeal to mediation or inquiry. The trouble which developed at the meeting on Monday over the appointment of the Rev. George C. Peck to succeed the Rev. A. Gillies in the pastorate of St. Andrew's Church resulted in the adoption yesterday of resolutions offered by the Rev. Arthur Thompson, which provided for the appointment of a committee of three t investigate and report at the next annual Conference as to what legislative or constitutional remedy can be recommended for the action of the Conference in regard to interconference transfers.

After the list of appointments had been read the conferrees adjourned.

A. S. Woodward and James Taylor were elected and ordained as Deacons by Bishop Berry.

The Board of Conference Stewards was elected as follows:

LOBBYISTS ACCUSED IN JERSEY SENATE

Gov. Stokes Also Charged with Helping to Pass a Harmless Railroad Bill.

COLBY QUITS REFORMERS

He Speaks In Favor of New Bill, but Doesn't Vote—It Passes, 11 to 6.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, April 9.—There was a lively debate in the Senate to-day when Senator Lee reported a substitute for the House Railroad Commission measure. During the discussion the Democrats made some ugly charges, even going so far as to declare the Governor was tied up with the railroads and had fathered the bill. The bill authorizes the Governor to appoint a Railroad Commission of three persons, to serve for six years each at an annual salary of $5,000 eacb. The substitute was passed.

The duties are purely ministerial, and the bill is a severe modification of the Wright and Colby bills, which the Democrats fought so hard for in the House, spurred on by the People's lobby. The bill is based on the Massachuaetts law, and was proposed by the railroad attorneys who appeared here yesterday.

Senator Silzer of Middlesex characterized the new measure as the most harmless thing that could be deviaed. "It is ludicrous in the extreme," he said, "and confers no power whatever on the board, which board would be purely ornamental."

Senator Frelinghuysen said there were only two subjects for the commission to consider, the suburbnn service and accidents. Mr. Silzer held that the bill did not even do that, and that unless some power was given to the commission the board would be absolutely useless. The railroads, he said, had no reason to fear attacks on the part of the commission vested with power and named by the present Governor.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Chairman Lee.

"I mean," retorted Mr. Silzer, "that a Governor who appoints as member of the State Board of Assessors the brother of a counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and who himself had been a Director in a subsidiary company of the same railroad, would not name a commission inimical to railroad interests."

Senator Colby defended the measure as a step in the right direction, and thereby surprised many, for the Senator has been hostile to railrond interests in the past. He said that better results would follow an appointive honrd than an elective one.

The substitute bill was adopted by the following votes:

Yeas—Ackerman, Avis, Bradley, Brown, Frelinghuysen, Hillery, Lee, Minch, Plummer, Robbins, Wakelee—11.

Nays—Hand, Cornish, Gebhardt, Hinchcliffe, Price, Silzer—6.

Senator Colby left the chamber before the vote, nnd he was not recorded on the roll, together with Senators Minturn and Hutchinson.

Hatmakers Strike for Beer.

Because the Orange Hat Manufacturers' Association has forhidden the drinking of beer in the hnt factories in business hours about 500 men employed in the backshops of E. V. Connett & Co. and F. Berg & Co. went out on strike this afternoon. So far none of the other departments in these shops have been involved, and there is no trouble in any of the other factories.

Steamer Sagamore on the Rocks.

The steamer Sagamore is on the rocks off Port Chester, and it is feared she will go to pieces. The Sagnmore is a 200-ton freight boat, and belongs to Capt. James Young of Hempstead, L. I. She left her pier, 30 East River, Monday night with a load of freight for Port Chester, Capt. Young mistook some shore lights for the range lights, and struck the rocks. The freight has been taken off.

Changes in City Counsel's Staff.

Corporation Counsel Ellison yesterday put George O'Reilly in place of Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank B. Pierce at the head of the Bureau for the Collection of Arrears of Personal Taxes, the place recently made vacant by the removal of James P. Keenan, who has been transferred to Queens to take charge of the Supreme Court cases there.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—One of the large buildings in the League Island Navy Yard, containing the sawmill, joiner shop and pattern shop, was almost destroyed by fire early to-day. Officers at the yard estimated the loss between $70,000 and $100,000. Many patterns for the equipment of vessels of the navy are burned.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 9.—The six-story Brickell-Mithoff building, on High Street, occupied by The Evening Dispatch, and the three-story building adjacent were practically destroyed by fire early to-day. The loss is estimated at $300,000. The Dispatch estimates its loss at $150,000. It is believed that some of the presses and machines can be repaired.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., April 9.—The plant of the Amsterdam Broom Company, the largest independent brush and broom concern in the country, was completely destroyed by fire early to-day, causing a loss of $100,000, partly insured. William Sullivan, a fireman, was killed by a falling wall.

RUMOR ABOUT MEN TEACHERS

Causes the Women Teachers to Tell Themselves to Stand Together.

The leaders in the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, which is responsible for the White bill in the Legislature, providing for women teachers the same salaries as men teachers receive in the same places, heard yesterday that the men were preparing to sow disaffection in the ranks of their association with the idea of defeating the bill, by spreading a report that teachers in grades of the first four years in the elementary schools would receive "only a scant million" from the proceeds of the extra mill tax.

Last night the women teachers were busy heading off in advance any such report. A statement they issued said:

"How can the men say that the teachers below the fourth year shall have a scant one million? The White bill provides a four-mill tax instead of the present three mills for teachers' salaries. It provides that 93 per cent. of the same shall be used for the teaching and supervising staff of the day schools. It also provides that two-thirds of said 93 per cent. of said four-mill tax shall be devoted to salaries of teachers of the first six years of the course. Why should any woman of the first four years think that the Board of Education will not give her justice when the funds are thue provided?"

FOUR RUNAWAYS HELD.

Youths Who Took Two Girls Away to Wed Arrested for Abduction.

The double runaway last Saturday of Henry Barlow of 422 East Sixty-sixth Street and William McDermott of 320 East Fifty-ninth Street with 16-year-old Edna Granet, who lives in the same tenement house, and 15-year-old Hanna Sheement house as Barlow, and 15-year-old Hanneh Sheehan of 226 East Fifty-ninth Street, ended yesterday in the Yorkville Court. The young men were held by Magistrate Sweetser for examination today on a charge of abduction.

According to Barlow, he and McDermott are in love with the girls and are determined to marry them, even if they have to wait until the girls are of age.

The two couples decided to get married last Saturday. They went by trolley to Stamford, Conn., and reached there with less than $3 all told. Their first night's lodging took all they had, and the second night they applied for shelter in a public lodging house. The keeper of the house thought there was something wrong, and telephoned to the Chief of Police. He took the whole party to the station house and locked them up for the night. The New York police were notified, and Detectives Mehrer and Green called on the mothers of the girls and persuaded them to swear out warrants against the young men.

Mrs. Granet appeared in court and declared that she would never permit her daughter to marry Barlow. Young Edna Granet declared in reply that she would rather go to an institution than return to her mother. Magistrate Sweetser turned both the girls over to Agent Jennings of the Children's Society until to-morrow.

Sheriff's Clerk Quits Bachelorhood.

John McCue, who has been a clerk in the Sheriff's office for the past ten years and was regarded as a confirmed bachelor, surprised the other men in the office yesterday by announcing that he was going to get married to-day to Miss Ella Kearns, the ceremony to be performed in Father Taylor's Church, Seventy-second Street. His fellow-employes presented to him a silver berry set, and the Sheriff gave him leave of absence for a week for a wedding trip to Washington.

Memorial to Mrs. Schermerhorn.

As a memorial to Mrs. William C. Schermerhorn, the well-known worker among the poor, who died not long ago, a fund has been given to the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, to provide for the salary of a trained nurse who will work among families too poor to get proper treatment.

Deadlocked Over Painters' Strike.

The trial of the Brotherhood of Painters before the General Arbitration Board of the unions and the Building Trades Employers' Association on the charge of violating an arbitration agreement in the strike they began on April 4 against the Master Painters' and Interior Decorators and Cabinet Makers' Associatione resulted in a deadlock last night on the question of suspending the brotherhood. The painters asserted that, whether suspended or not, they would continue the strike. A committee of three employers and three union men was appointed to make recommendations to the board to-day.

Gavel Given to Judge Crain.

The Amsterdam Democratic Club of the Fifteenth Assembly District, of which Judge Crain of the Court of General Sessions is a member, presented to the Judge yesterday a rosewood and ivory gavel. The presentation was made in court by a committee headed by Deputy Controller Phillips.

HARRIMAN RULE TO BE DIVIDED

Reorganization of the Union Pacific Executive Committee Contemplated.

NO MORE ONE-MAN POWER

Mr. Harriman Himself Said to Recognize the Need of Meeting Public Opinion.

TWO PLANS CONSIDERED

One Would Enlarge the Committee, the Other Would Substitute New Members for Some of the Old.

As a result of the developments in the affairs of the Union Pacific Railroad over the last six months, or from the time of the August dividend declarations through to the Inter-State Commerce hearing, it is the opinion of influential and powerful banking interests both here and in Europe that a change must be made and is, in fact, near at hand in the administration of the property.

This does not mean that Mr. Harriman will resign. Nor is there any evidence that he is wholly out of sympathy with the general conviction that the system is now so vast and ramified, and so prominently fixed in the public eye, that it is desirable from every point of view that the responsibility for such of its acts as affect the people generally be divided among as many strong men as possible. This will be accomplished through strengthening the road's Executive Committee.

Up to the present time Mr. Harriman has been the dictator of the Union Pacific. His prominent associates in the Board of Directors have felt, apparently, that there was little reason to seriously oppose the wishes of the man who in a few short years had lifted their road out of bankruptcy into the ranks of the foremost railways of the country. It was this marvelous success on the physical side of his administration of the road that little by little brought Mr. Harriman into a position of absolute power known in no other railroad administration. His associates were far wealthier and better known than himself, but the glamour of his swift successes brought from them ready acquiescence in his most ambitious plans, even when they felt dubious regarding the wisdom of those plans.

The far-reaching programme for controlling great roads, east and west, even after the Northern Securities decision had instilled caution elsewhere in the railroad world, was Mr. Harriman's own project. So in the case of the huge dividend declarations on Union Pacific and Southern Pacific stock in August last, the directors did little more than formally approve his decision, a fact which he practically admitted on the witness stand when he said it was the directors' fault if they didn't know what was coming, since he had intimated to them his plans.

From the time of the declaration of these dividends on to the opening of the Inter-State Commerce hearing it began to be plain to Wall Street and Europe, and undoubtedly to the Union Pacific directors, including Mr. Harriman himself, that however great had been his success in conducting the Union Pacific as a railroad pure and simple, his policy had had a bad effect upon the minds of the people.

There are two plans which commend themselves at the moment, and one or the other of these will unquestionably be put into effect very shortly.

The Union Pacific's Executive Committee consists of Mr. Harriman, Henry C. Frick, Marvin Hughitt, Robert S. Lovett, and James Stillman. This committee, which is presumed to rule, with Mr. Harriman, the whole system, is no longer considered adequate. Mr. Hughitt is the President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, with his office and work in Chicago, and Mr. Stillman has been compelled by poor health to spend almost all of the past two years in Europe. This reduces the working body to Mr. Harrison, Mr. Frick, and Judge Lovett. Judge Lovett is counsel to the road, and otherwise little known in the financial world, owing his position solely to Mr. Harriman. Mr. Frick is one of the best-known figures of finance to-day, but one man of this character, it is contended, is not enough to make with Mr. Harriman, the Chairman, an acceptable Executive Committee.

It is probable therefore that very shortly Mr. Harriman and his associates will announce the reorganization of the present committee, rearranging it to include men of the stamp of Henry H. Rogers, William G. Rockefeller, Mr. Frick, P. A. Valentine, or Mr. Stillman, if he recovers his health. Such a committee, the reorganizere believe, would recommend itself to investors the world over. If the present form of the committee is retained, that of five members, these strong men, representing great business interests, will undoubtedly take the place of certain of the present members.

Another suggestion which has been made is that the committee be enlarged to include the men desired. In any event, it is certain that steps will soon be taken to allay the feeling, which has become so widespread and so serious in its influence upon the public standing of the road, that the Union Pacific is a "one-man railroad," and that man Mr. Harriman.

COUNT TO WED POOR GIRL.

Wealthy Etienne de Fitz-James to Marry Miss Millet.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 10.—A Franco-American wedding of an unusually interesting and romantic character will shortly take place. Miss Millet, daughter of Jamee Millet of New York, is to marry Comte Etienne de Fitz-James. The engagement has not yet been formally announced, owing, it is said, to some opposition on the part of the family of the young man, but the friends of the couple are confident that the course of true love will ultimately run smooth.

This match is a reversal of the usual order of alliances, where American money regilds tarnished escutcheons, for Comte Etienne de Fitz-James is not only a scion of one of the best families of France, with the royal blood of the Stuarts in his veins, but is the son of wealthy parents, while Miss Millet is by no means an heiress.

She is a very handsome girl, who has been studying singing for some years past in Paris, for a period with Jean de Reszke, and she is said to have a remarkably fine dramatic soprano voice. She received offers of engagements to sing in Berlin and Munich, but at the instigation of Comte Etienne she decided to abandon her plans for going on the operatic stage.

Comte Etienne de Fitz-James is the second son of Comte and Comtesse Jacques de Fitz-James, who have a handsome private hotel in the Rue d'Aguesseau, near the Presidential Palace of the Elysée and the British Embassy, and a well-known country place, the Château de Cannes-Ecluse. The family have been spending the Winter at Arcachon, a resort on the southwest coast of France, where they have a villa.

The Fitz-James family is descended from James II. of England and Arabella Churchill, whose son was created Duke of Berwick in the peerage of England, and later received the French title of Duke of Fitz-James. The senior branch of the family is now headed by the Duke of Berwick and Alba, and the head of the junior branch of the family is the Duke of Fitz-James.

The ninth Duke of Berwick, father of the present Duke, died in New York in 1901, having gone there to witness the races for the America's Cup.

CARNEGIE AIDED MR. GROW.

Provided an Annuity After Ingrates Had Impoverished Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—That the comfortable fortune of Galusha A. Grow, for twenty years a Congressman from Pennsylvania, and Speaker of the House in the civil war, had been wheedled away from him by a band of sharpers was declared to-day by James T. Dubois of the State Department, his executor, and for years Mr. Grow's nearest friend.

Mr. Dubois declared that since the dissipation of Mr. Grow's estate he had been in receipt of an annuity of $2,000 from Andrew Carnegie, granted as a reward for Mr. Grow's services to the Nation.

"His resources were wheedled away from him by ingrates whom he had assisted in many ways, and to whom he had shown a kind-hearted and generous disposition for many years past," said Mr. Dubois.

It was in 1882 that Mr. Grow became acquainted with some of these persons. One of them was a young woman and the rest unscrupulous men. The schemers developed their plan of action and continued it until his death.

"In November, 1905, Mr. Grow wrote me to come to see him at Glenwood. He told me that through the ingratitude and deception of some acquaintances he had practically become impoverished. I then wrote to Andrew Carnegie, telling him that Mr. Grow had lost all his property and was in financial distress. Mr. Carnegie answered by saying he desired, owing to the distinguished services of Mr. Grow to this country, to see him live in comfort the rest of his life. When I told him the annuity was provided by Mr. Carnegie."

Virtually the only asset left of Mr. Grow's estate is his unfinished book, "Fifty Years in Congress," which he left to Mr. Dubois to edit and complete.

LA FOLLETTE FOR ROOSEVELT.

Senator Says Railroad Men Will Force Him to Run.

HELENA, Mon., April 10.—Senator R. M. La Follette of Wisconson to-day declared in an interview that if the railroads thought to defeat the policies of President Roosevelt by the nomination of some one antagonistic thereto they were going at it the wrong way.

"They will force President Roosevelt to be a candidate, if I am correctly informed as to the actions of Harriman and his associates," said the Senator. "Abusing the President will result in Theodore Roosevelt's renouncing his declaration not to run again and making the race by way of vindication. President Roosevelt is entitled to another term and the people are entitled to Roosevelt. We must have Roosevelt again."

SANDY HOOK BOATS TO RUN.

State Won't Press Suit Against Jersey Central Line Until Fall.

At a conference held yesterday between Attorney General McCarter of New Jersey and representatives of the Central Railroad of New Jersey an agreement was reached by which the running of the Central's Sandy Hook boat service will not be interfered with this Summer by the action recently instituted by the State of New Jersey to compel the railroad company to remove its trestle at Atlantic Highlands.

After the conference J. E. Reynolds, counsel for the railroad, said that Attorney General McCarter showed no disposition to inconvenience the railroad, and it had been agreed that the case should remain in statu quo over the Summer months.

The action will be resumed in the Fall.

SHOOTS HIMSELF IN A THEATRE BOX

Frick Banker's Nephew Likely to Die—"Pittsburg Paranoia," Says Uncle.

CLOSE FRIEND OF H. K. THAW

Miss Ethel Levey Frightened by Shooting, and Edeson Announces Their Engagement.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 10.—Standing in a box in the Grand Opera House in full view of a large audience, Robert M. Crow, 22 years old, shot himself this afternoon. His act caused a panic in the theatre, and many women fainted or became hysterical.

Young Crow, who is a nephew of President H. C. McEldowney of the Union Trust Company, H. C. Frick's bank, has been laboring under mental delusions for some time, and his uncle declared after the shooting that the act was the result of "Pittsburg paranoia."

For several months Crow has been morose, declaring that he should be able to make vast sums of money in the stock market. He had said that he wanted to make a "million a day." He did not show any signs of suicidal mania, however, until the beginning of the Thaw trial. He is a close personal friend of Harry Thaw, and as soon as the trial started he began to study works on insanity.

Two months ago he wrote a letter to his uncle, Lawyer W. C. McEldowney, in which he said that he intended to end his life. He was hurried away to a sanitarium, but was released a week ago, after showing signs of improvement. He went to the theatre this afternoon and obtained a seat in the lower right hand stage box. At the beginning of the performance he started write a long letter. When this was finished he called a messenger and sent it to his uncle.

Crow sat quietly through the first part of the act of Miss Ethel Levey. Then as she sang her "Unrequited Love" song, with only a spot light showing in the entire house, he stood up in the box and loaded his revolver. At the conclusion of a verse of the song the theatre was flooded with light, revealing Crow standing in the box with the weapon against his body.

Miss Levey saw him first, and, putting her hands before her face, ran from the stage just as the report of the pistol shot rang out. After firing the shot Crow fell half over the railing of the box. He was carried quickly back on the stage and an ambulance from the Homeopathic Hospital was summoned.

The young man's uncles reached the theatre at the same time as the ambulance. The letter which Crow had sent contained the statement that he was about to commit suicide, and they had started out at once in search of him. Crow was put in the ambulance and hurried to the hospital, where it was found that the bullet had passed through his intestines, causing several punctures, and had lodged at the base of the spine. The surgeons say that there is practically no chance for his recovery.

"It is just another case of Pittsburg paranoia," declared both of Crow's uncles later. "Robert has imagined for some time that he was a failure in life, because he had not already amassed a vast fortune in the two years he has been out of school. He seemed to think that he could become a Carnegie or a Frick in a day.

"The Thaw trial also has had a great deal to do with his mental derangement. At the beginning of the trial he began studying the different forms of insanity as they were mentioned at the trial, frequently sitting up all night reading books on the subject. It certainly was insane."

The young man lived with his widowed mother and his bride of a year at 826 Braddock Avenue. He did not have a care or worry, and was of excellent habits.

EDESON TO WED MISS LEVEY.

Actor Announces His Engagement to George M. Cohan's Former Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 10.—As soon as he heard of the attempted suicide in the theatre in Pittsburg in which Miss Ethel Levey was singing, Robert Edeson, who is playing at the Park Theatre here in "Strongheart," announced his engagement to Miss Levey.

It had been gossip since Miss Levey sued George M. Cohan for divorce that she was to wed Mr. Edeson.

ARTIST E. T. KERR A SUICIDE.

Ill Health Caused One of Admiral Dewey's Veterans to Shoot Himself.

Because he believed that he was suffering from an incurable illness, Edward T. Kerr, 45 years old, a portrait painter, committed suicide last night by shooting himself through the head in his room at 331 West Twenty-ninth Street. For some time the artist had threatened to kill himself, but relatives and friends did not pay any serious attention to his talk.

For several months Kerr had been suffering from throat troubles. Last week he went to the Roosevelt Hospital for treatment, and was discharged a few days ago greatly improved. On Tuesday night he went to the home of his cousin, Mrs. Mary Higgins, in Twenty-seventh Street, where he spent the night. She returned with him to his room in the home of George Manning in West Twenty-ninth Street early yesterday afternoon.

Shortly before 3 o'clock he asked Mrs. Higgins to get him some medicine and she left the room. Going to the first floor she told Mrs. Manning that Kerr had suffered from a relapse and she was going out for some tonic. When she returned about an hour later she found Kerr dead in bed. At his side was a navy revolver. A small mirror was near by, and Kerr must have held the mirror in his left hand when he fired a shot through his mouth.

MORE LATITUDE FOR RUEF.

Ellsor Biggy Ordered to Let Him Have Confidential Talks.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10.—The Supreme Court issued instructions to-day that hereafter Ellsor Biggy shall permit Abraham Ruef to have more latitude.

Ruef may see within reasonable hours any person whom he desires to see, and he may talk with his attorneys, witnesses, members of his family, and other persons with whom he has business, outside the hearing of his guards.

LINER ARAPAHOE DISABLED.

She Catches a Sister Ship by Wireless and is Taken in Tow.

A wireless report was received yesterday from the Clyde liner Arapahoe, incoming from Jacksonville, announcing that she had broken her propeller while coming up the coast. At the time of the accident the vessel was in the vicinity of Winter Quarter Shoals. The weather was thick, but the Captain figured that the steamer Apachs of the same line, hound south, must be in that neighborhood, so he began to call her by wireless. His calculation was right, for soon came back the answering signal. The Apache ran down to her disabled sister ship and succeeded in passing a hawser to her.

The Apache towed the Arapahoe to within thirty miles of Five Fathom Bank, off the Delaware coast, where the lines parted and both vessels anchored. It was from that point that a wireless message was sent to this city. As soon as the accident to the Arapahoe became known Capt. Cromwell, the Port Superintendent, started for her assistance on the tug Hollenbach. In the meantime the Apache is standing by her sister ship.

It was said last evening that the vessel would be towed in and that she would not be delayed more than twenty hours because of the breakdown.

Another vessel in trouble was reported coming up the coast yesterday. A steamer with a five-masted schooner in tow passed Monmouth Beach at noon. The schooner has her foremast carried away and it looked as though she had been in collision.

The life savers at the Island Beach station reported that early yesterday morning an unknown barge was sunk about two miles off shore. The barge was one of two in tow of a tug. In some way she sprang a leak and sank. The tug and remaining barge proceeded south. It is not known whether any one was drowned by the sinking of the barge.

YOUNG MUSICIAN STARVES.

Student from Ohio Spent All His Money for an Education.

Slowly starving himself so that he might have money to gratify his ambition for a musical training, John G. McFadden died early yesterday morning in the New York Hospital.

McFadden, who was 32 years old, came to New York last November from Oberlin, Ohio, where he had worked his way through college, devoting himself especially to music. He had a voice of great promise. Taking a room at 134 West Fifteenth Street, he entered a class in the Institute of Musical Art, 53 Fifth Avenue. He attracted the attention of Prof. W. Klamroth, but suddenly developed a catarrhal affection which threatened to wreck his prospects of becoming a singer. Through the friendship of Prof. Klamroth he went to Dr. Percy E. D. Malcolm of 35 West Fifty-fifth Street, as he refused to become a charity patient.

Every month McFadden went to Dr. Malcolm's for treatment. He had grown thinner and thinner, his hair had turned to a grizzly gray, and Dr. Malcolm warned him more than once that he was not nurturing his body properly. Last Monday Dr. Malcolm found him on the verge of collapse in a chair in his office and sent him to the New York Hospital, where Dr. Murray operated on him promptly for appendicitis. The poorly nurtured body could not stand the strain and early yesterday he succumbed. He had been eating, it is said, in the cheapest restaurants, with great infrequency, and depending on the scanty meals that he had in his cold hall bedroom.

MUST EXPLAIN BAD CHECK.

Combes Arrested at Fifth Avenue Hotel—Woman Companion Disappears.

Accused of being a fugitive from justice, David S. Combes of Washington, D. C., was arrested at the Fifth Avenue Hotel early last night and locked up in Police Headquarters. The prisoner is 22 years old.

Late yesterday afternoon a telegram was received from Marshal Farnum of Baltimore, asking that Combes be arrested. The telegram said, the police assert, that Combes was wanted for passing a bogus check.

At the Fifth Avenue Hotel the police learned that Combes registered there on last Sunday. With him was a young woman, the police and hotel authorities say. The couple registered under the name of "Mr. and Mrs. David S. Combes, Washington, D. C." According to the hotel authorities, Mrs. Combes left her room on Tuesday while the young man was out of the hotel, and has not been seen since.

When Detective Sergeants Bonvoll and Mahoney questioned the prisoner he said: "I was once on a revenue cutter. I have nothing else to say about myself."

AUTOPSY FREES LUND.

Slocum, Who Died Under Osteopath's Treatment, Had Several Ailments.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 10.—An autopsy made here to-day by Coroner Doten and Medical Examiner John A. Clarke on the body of Frederick Slocum, who died on Saturday night while under the treatment of O. C. Lund, who says he is a registered osteopath in New York City, relieved Lund of criminal responsibility in the case.

The examination discovered that Slocum was suffering from chronic endocarditis, Bright's disease, pleurisy, and oedema of the lungs. Lund had treated the man, he said, for pneumonia and had used powerful drugs. The report relieves him of a charge of manslaughter.

Lund was tried in the Borough Court to-day for practicing medicine without a license. He said he was doing it as an act of charity. Judge Tierney reserved his decision.

MONARCHS LEAVE CARTAGENA

Alfonso and Edward Confer Alone for an Hour Before Separating.

CARTAGENA, April 10.—The royal meeting terminated to-day. The British squadron, escorting the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward and Queen Alexandra on board, departed early this morning, and King Alfonso and the Dowager Queen Christina later left Cartagena for Madrid.

The Kings conferred absolutely alone for over an hour previous to separating and it is assumed that they went over the questions for the discussion of which the meeting was arranged.

COCKRELL REFUSES TO RETURN HOME

Commerce Commissioner's Son Ephraim in London, Seeking Employment.

MYSTERY ABOUT HIS WIFE

London Dispatch Says She is with Him in England, but His Brother Says She is in This Country.

Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 10.—American society in London is discussing with much interest the affairs of Ephraim Cockrell, son of Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri, formerly a United States Senator and now a Commerce Commissioner.

The young man came here with his wife several months ago, and they entered enthusiastically into the season's social gayeties. On their arrival in a motor car after a Continental tour they took the best apartment in a famous West End hotel, entertained at dinners and theatre parties on an expensive scale, and proved a most interesting acquisition to the American colony, both shining equally well in drawing rooms and outdoor sports. Mr. Cockrell is over six feet tall and Mrs. Cockrell is a very beautiful woman.

At several clubs to which Mr. Cockrell had visitors' cards he told cheerfully of recent luck on the Stock Exchange, which, he said, had netted him $50,000. His expenditures seemed consistent with this good fortune.

A few weeks ago Mr. Cockrell asked the American Embassy for aid, which was granted, and at the same time he moved into a boarding house in the West End. A fortnight ago he went to Paris to seek aid from the United States Consul General there. Then he returned to London, and about the time of his arrival one of ex-Senator Cockrell's friends received a cablegram from the ex-Senator asking the whereabouts of his son.

The friends of young Cockrell here have endeavored in vain to induce him to return to America. He refuses to do so, and says he will continue to reside in London, where he is now seeking employment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Ex-Senator Cockrell returned to Washington to-day from Florida, where he has been for some time for his health.

His son, Allen V. Cockrell, said the family had had no word from Ephraim Cockrell for some time, and had not been informed of his being in London.

He added that his brother was married, but that his wife was living in this country with her people.

STABLEMEN'S STRIKE OFF.

Some Get Their Old Places Back, Others Are Denied Work at Academies.

The Stablemen and Grooms' Protective Association, whose members have been on strike for nearly two weeks at three of the riding academies and several livery stables to enforce a demand for $14 a week, formally declared the strike off yesterday, and the strikers sought reinstatement in their old places.

A number of them were reinstated, but in some cases none of the strikers were taken back. Some of the strikers were taken back at Durland's Academy at $14 a week. Mr. Durland admitted last night. He said, however, that only a few were reinstated, as the places of most of the strikers had been filled.

James Daly, Treasurer of the union, said that the New York Cab Company had refused to take back any of the strikers. They would be provided with places by this union, he said, with other firms.

10-YEAR-OLD SAVES FATHER.

Cohen Wrote "Good-by, Babies; I Die," Then Took Gas, but He'll Live.

Maurice Cohen, 41, a restaurant waiter, living at 201 East 100th Street, lost his employment on Monday and failing to get work, yesterday attempted to kill himself with gas in his room. He left a note addressed to his six motherless children:

"Goodby, babies. I die of a broken heart."

He didn't die. He held a rubber tube connecting with a gas jet in his mouth and turned on the gas. His 10-year-old son Harry entered the house and found his father on the bed, senseless. The boy called a policeman and Dr. Schiff was summoned from the Harlem Hospital. Cohen was taken there, a prisoner, and will recover.

There are five children in the family being cared for by the oldest sister, Birdie, 18, who since her mother's death, seven years ago, has been the "little mother." The other children range from 16 to 7 years of age. Several times, the neighbors assert, when things have not gone smoothly, Cohen has threatened to kill himself.

NURSE CHOOSES POLICEMAN.

Gives Her Hand at Graduation Exercises—Another Suitor Was There.

After the graduation exercises of the Lebanon Hospital Training School for Nurses last night, Miss Annie Elizabeth Aiken of South Norwalk, Conn., one of the graduates, settled once and for all the struggle for her hand that has been waged for months past between Policeman George F. Fry and her childhood sweetheart, Haywood Davis of New Canaan, Conn.

Miss Aiken decided in favor of the policeman, and the first thing that the fiancé did was to place a diamond ring on her finger. The other thirteen graduates were present at the time, and the occasion was turned into a demonstration in honor of the newly engaged couple.

Mr. Davis was at the exercises, but when he found out that he had lost he put on his hat and disappeared.

$2,000,000 GIFT TO BRIDE.

Charles M. Schwab Bestows Valuable Securities on His Sister.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 10.—Immediately after the wedding this morning of Miss Gertrude Schwab to David Barry the bride received a wedding gift of $2,000,000 from her brother, Charles M. Schwab. This dot consisted of stocks and bonds.

The ceremony, which was performed in St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, at Loretto, the edifice erected by Mr. Schwab, was simple. Solemn high nuptial mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father John Barry of Pittsburg, brother of the bridegroom. Miss Schwab was given away by her father, Jacob Schwab. The only attendants were Miss McGorray of Cleveland, bridesmaid, and Dr. Peter A. McAneny of Johnstown, best man. Miss McGorray is soon to marry Edward Schwab, brother of the bride.

After a wedding breakfast at the Schwab home the couple left for New York, where they will spend several days at the home of Charles M. Schwab. They will make their home in Johnstown, where Mr. Barry is cashier of the First National Bank.

MISS EVA BOOTH ILL.

Salvation Army Leader Stricken After Addressing a Big Meeting.

CANTON, Ohio, April 10.—Miss Eva Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, who spoke at the Auditorium here last night to 4,000 persons, was attacked by a sudden illness after the address. Her condition was so serious that she is still in the hands of a physician at the McKinley Hotel.

Mrs. McKinley had arranged to receive her at her home to-day. She sent a message of sympathy.

RAIDERS USE SKYLIGHT.

Detectives Drop Into Alleged Poolroom and Make Two Arrests.

Unable to gain admission by the door, Detectives Ryan and Wren of the Tenderloin Station last night went to the roof of an alleged poolroom in East Seventeenth Street, just off Fifth Avenue, and dropped through the skylight into the room. Five men were in the place, two of whom were arrested. The detectives also confiscated two telephones and a number of racing charts.

The prisoners gave their names as Isidor and Adolph Auerhach, brothers, both 37 years old. The police say they do not look like brothers, and are far from looking like twins. Isidor said he lived at the Hotel Breslin and Adolph said he lived at the Continental Hotel.

Isidor Auerhach was charged with keeping and maintaining a poolroom, and Adolph was charged with aiding and abetting it. Both men were bailed later.

NO ROCKEFELLER BOULEVARD

Cleveland Takes His Name from the Driveway He Gave.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 10.—John D. Rockefeller's name is no longer borne by the boulevard he gave to the city. The administration has changed the name of the upper driveway in Rockefeller Park from Rockefeller Boulevard to East Boulevard.

Residents in houses and apartments along the driveway are indignant. The change was authorized some time ago, but those most affected knew nothing of it until signs bearing the new name were put up within the last few days.

No explanation has been offered by the city authorities.

NOT "J. O." SAYS LITTAUER.

Denies That He Warned Sherman Not to Talk Politics.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., April 10.—Representative Lucius N. Littauer was asked if he had warned Representative Sherman by wireless not to talk politics.

"I never sent a wireless message signed 'J. O.', and never sent a wireless or other message not signed with my own name," he said.

VAN DYCKS KEPT HIDDEN.

Minister Rava Tells Mr. Morgan About the Cattaneo Treasures.

ROME, April 10.—Minister of Education Rava, speaking to J. Pierpont Morgan yesterday, when the latter called to tell the Minister that he had nothing to do with the alleged removal from Italy of the paintings by Van Dyck, which have disappeared from Genoa, explained to his visitor that for a century the Cattaneo family had refused to allow any one to see the paintings, so they were not included in the Government catalogues of works of art, of which the sale or exportation is prohibited. A suit against the Cattaneos was instituted by the Government after the disappearance of the Van Dycks.

In regard to the secondary questions the Minister informed Mr. Morgan that the sale of the pictures had taken place without the authorization of the courts, which was necessary in view of the fact that several of the owners were under age, and pointed out that the export tax of 10 per cent. on the values of the pictures had not been paid.

TROOPS TO GUARD PARIS.

To be Posted at Forty Points Owing to the Threatened Strike.

PARIS, April 10.—A secret meeting of the Strike Committee of the grocers' employes was held to-day at the Labor Exchange. The members of the committee afterward declared that the public would learn the result to-morrow.

Government circles regard the strike agitation as being the result of the efforts of a few irresponsible revolutionists who are desirous of causing disturbances. Though it is thought that the movement is not likely to attain serious proportions, the authorities are determined vigorously to suppress it, and as a measure of precaution the troops of the garrison have been ordered to remain in their barracks, ready to deal with any eventualities.

Detachments of troops will be posted to-morrow morning at forty points in the city and the bicycle police and Republican Guards will patrol the streets.

MARSEILLES, April 10.—Military bakers have been placed at the disposition of the master bakers here. The strike of the bakers up to the present has caused only slight inconvenience. Policemen are guarding the town bakeries, and gendarmes are protecting the bakeries in the suburbs.

The authorities are determined to prevent the strikers from compelling the non-strikers to cease work.

THAW'S FATE WITH THE JURY

No Verdict Until the Court Convenes at 10:30 o'Clock This Morning.

WENT TO THE JURY AT 5:1

Jerome, in a Calm Addres Attacked Principally the Wife's Story.

SNEER AT DELMAS PLEA

"Dementia Americana" Is No Defense for the Killing of White.

PRISONER BREAKS DOWN

Thaw Collapses After Final Scene in Court—Disagreement Is Expected.

The jury which is to decide the fate of Harry K. Thaw, who shot and killed Stanford White on Madison Square Roof Garden on the night of last June 25 took his case into their hands at 5:12 o'clock last evening. At 11:20 o'clock last night, after being out for six hours, they had not reached a verdict, and were said to see no prospect of reaching one.

On this showing they were locked up for the night, Justice Fitzgerald went home, and it was announced that no verdict need be expected until the court convened at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

From the jury room fewer rumors got out than in most criminal trials. It was said on apparently good authority that up to the hour when Justice Fitzgerald declared that he would not receive any decision before morning no ballots had been taken.

At midnight Daniel O'Reilly of counsel for the defense, who has been credited with a successful guess as to the way the jury stood in the Nan Patterson case, said to a TIMES reporter:

"You can say, and quote me, that the jury now stands ten for acquittal and two for a verdict of murder in the first degree. I believe that the jury will reach an agreement by 10:30 o'clock in the morning."

While the jury deliberated, Thaw himself, on the other side of the Bridge of Sighs, waited vainly for the word which would bring him into the courtroom before Justice Fitzgerald and the jury upon whom had been put the task of administering the vengeance of the law for the crime committed or the justification of the man who wiped out the life of him he considered his greatest enemy.

Thaw Breaks Down.

Thaw had hoped that he would not be found guilty. When the jury filed out at 5:12 o'clock it was evident that he was on the verge of collapse. He had never realized before as he did while he listened to the Justice summing up the position in which he stands. The honeyed words of Mr. Delmas with their allusions to nobility of his motives had seemed to him the literal truth. The shafts of Mr. Jerome he could explain away as the paid argument of a professional prosecutor.

But as Justice Fitzgerald laid down the law in slow measured accents, as he dwelt on the fact that he must be presumed to be sane until the defense proved him otherwise, and urged that sentiment had no part in the deliberations of the jurors, he felt for the first time the grip of the law upon his throat.

As he rose to leave the court room his face was pale and drawn. His distress was apparent in the words he whispered to his wife and mother as he passed them.

"Come and see me," he bade them, and passed out of the door at the back of the court. His stride was hurried, and he seemed anxious to escape from the curious glances of the crowd in the court room.

In the corridor he broke down completely, and word was sent to his family. Special permission was given to them, and they went at once to the prisoner's pen on the mezanine floor of the Criminal Court Building. There they talked with him for some time and cheered him. They pointed out that the best could be hoped from the speech of Mr. Delmas, and that he must remember that the District Attorney was only setting forth one side of the case and that no one knew that better than the jury.

With the wonderful buoyancy which has kept him up during nine long months of imprisonment, Thaw responded the comfort of his family. He recovered his balance and realized that probably there would be a long wait before any verdict was reached. He asked his family to go home to dinner and declared that it would only be a few hours more before he was able to join them at the Hotel Lorraine.

Mrs. William Thaw and Thaw's two sisters consented to go uptown, and Josiah and Edward Thaw escorted them. But Evelyn Nesbit Thaw refused to go so far away from her husband. She wished to be as near him as possible in the hour of his need. She thought that the jury might come in at any moment, and she meant to be in court when the verdict was rendered at any cost to herself. So she stayed and the others went away.

Daniel O'Reilly escorted her up to Ponlin's restaurant, a block away, on Franklin Street, to get something to eat, and dinner was sent in to Thaw in the prison pen.

As Evelyn Nesbit Thaw did not go home with the other members of the family, the rumor went around that there had been another split in the family. It was indignantly denied by counsel for Thaw.

As Mr. Jerome referred sarcastically to the girlish costume which Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has always worn on the stand the Countess of Yarmouth bent over to Mrs. William Thaw and whispered a few words, but this was the only semblance of criticism which has been passed upon the defendant's wife for many days. It is declared that there is not the faintest reason to suppose thet there is any feeling against her on the part of her mother-in-law or sisters-in-law.

Jury's Silence.

No words came from the jury room. The men were locked up in their own room behind the court, and every approach to that was carefully guarded. Justice Fitzgerald, as soon as he had sent the jury out, retired to his chambers, and the courtroom was given over to the few spectators who had obtained seats at the last scene of the trial and were unwilling to give them up, in case they should not be able to get them back when the jury came in.

Soon after 6 o'clock it was evident that there was not to be a quick verdict, and the Justice decided to go home to dinner. He lives on the east side of Central Park, and he made arrangements that he should be telephoned to in case he was needed. The jurors were to go to the Broadway Central Hotel to get their dinner, and the court officers were sworn in as special officers to prevent any one approaching them.

It was 6:30 o'clock when they left and by that time the crowd had thinned out. Only a few persons were hanging around to see the little procession, and they did not attempt in any way to tamper with them. At the hotel the twelve men were taken up stairs to their private dining room. They returned to the Criminal Court at about 9 o'clock and were immediately taken back to their room.

Thaw Recovers His Nerve.

As the evening wore on Thaw recovered some of his nerve. He was beginning to consider that the long delay meant that the jury would not be unanimous in favor of conviction. However, he still thought of the possibilities before him and said to one of the Deputy Sheriffs:

"I am glad there are lots of exceptions."

But what was worrying him more than the chance of an actual conviction for murder in the first degree was the chance that he might be found guilty of some lesser amount of crime. For murder in the second degree he can be imprisoned for life and for manslaughter in the first degree for anything up to twenty years that the Justice thinks advisable. He wants to be declared guilty or innocent of murder without any qualification. Anything else would take away from the noble plane upon which he still sees himself.

"Thaw is standing the strain well," said Mr. Peabody after a visit to him. "After all, this suspense is not nearly as great to him as what he suffered last Thursday. He seems to care above all things that he shall be considered sane, and he really is not bothering as much now as he did then when he was waiting for the decision of the Lunacy Commission.

"He ate an excellent dinner. But he does not want a conviction in the second degree or for manslaughter. He thought that the charge of the Judge was distinctly in favor of conviction for some lesser degree than murder in the first degree, and that seems to be particularly upon his mind."

In the evening, besides Evelyn Neshit Thaw, who had come to him immediately after dinner, he was joined by his brothers, Edward and Josiah, and by Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie. They were visited by the Rev. John A. Wade, Episcopal Chaplain to the Tombs, and the Rev. Robert B. Kimber, Superintendent of the City Episcopal Mission.

Thaw was told that Cannon, the deputy sheriff who now has him in charge, had just heard that his hahy was very ill. He said to him: "You are in a worse fix than I."

Jury Locked Up.

As no news had come from the jury room hy 11 o'clock Justice Fitzgerald determined to make inquiries. He was informed that so far as could be learned the jurors had not even reported to a ballot upon the requit. He decided, therefore, that it was impossible to hring the trial to an end last night, and at 11:12 o'clock ordered Capt. Lynch of the Court Squad to lock the jury up for the night.

Mr. Hartridge conveyed the news to Thaw, and his family at once left for the Hotel Lorraine, while he himself was taken over the Bridge of Sighs to his cell in the Tombs.

The jurors will have to remain in the room adjoining the courtroom all night. They are not supplied with heds, and must make themselves as comfortahle as they can until morning. It is probable that they will be taken to the Broadway Central Hotel early this morning for breakfast, hut whatever decision they arrive at cannot be reported to the court before 10:30 o'clock.

THE DAY IN COURT.

Jerome Bitterly Attacks the Story of Prisoner's Wife.

Just as the District Attorney completed his scathing denunciation of Thaw and of his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and had depicted the crime as a "vulgar, sordid, common murder of the Tenderloin," the heavy skies of a capricious April broke and sent shifting and whisking against the many panes of the many great windows of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court sheet after sheet of snow, sleet, and hail. Through one of the windows could be seen a flag at half mast over the engine company building, on White Street. The gloom of the late afternoon was intensified. The many lights from the electroliere and massive chandeliers glowed feebly, casting a pale, orange light upon the heads and faces of the crowd which packed the room.

Thaw turned his pasty, prison-seared face upward. There was feilef mixed with doubt stamped upon it. The last word had been said for him and the last word said against him. He had spent a day of torture, for Mr. Jerome had not spared him a single word of hitter denunciation, nor had he paused in his tongue lashing of the little woman who stepped gradually from the model stand of the artists of the great city, the boards of the stage, and then to the little dais set aside for witnesses in murder trials.

Scene In the Courtroom.

It was a day of violent picturing of a tragedy filled with sordidness and things unprintable.

The day before had cheered the hearts of Thaw, his wife, his mother, his sisters, his brothers, and his lawyers. The Californian, Delmas, had pictured Thaw as a rescuer of maidens pursued by evil monsters. He painted him in meatphors filled with color, as a "Sir Gallahad" and again as "St. George." Stanford White was the dragon, slimy, horrible. He declared that God was in the act that ended the life of the great architect, and that Thaw had wrought, like Jonathan, with God on that night when the farce of "M'amselle Champagne" closed with the letting of human blood and the escape of a human soul from its tenement.

Thaw Family Back.

The Thaw family and the prisoner expected no quarter from Mr. Jerome when he began to close the case yesterday morning. The mother had covered her face with a black veil before the first word of the address to the jury on behalf of the People was uttered. She sat as far back in her chair as she could. She seemed to shrink any too near contact with the man prosecuting her son.

It was not so with Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, her daughter-in-law. The wife wore a wider collar of white linen than ever, and her blue dress in the cut of a schoolgirl's costume was as prettily set as when she sat in the witness chair and shocked the world with the story of her fall. She leaned over on the back of the chair in front of her in which sat the patient, solemn-looking Josiah Thaw. Her chin was in her hand, her brows were raised, and her soft, deep eyes watched every movement of the prosecutor.

Lady Yarmouth seemed particularly distressed. She has a babyish face, and the lines in it were so deep that the expression was in strange contrast to the contour. Mrs. Carnegie, the other sister of the prisoner, was almost as haggard as her brother. Her eyes were worn with anxiety. Josiah Thaw sat like a great, faithful Newfoundland dog, stolid, patient, but watchful.

Edward Thaw, nervous, like his brother Harry, flushed from time to time and glanced about him.

In the open door leading to the chambers of Justice Fitzgerald could be seen a splash of color against the gloom of the corridor. It was the green plumage of May MacKenzie, the whilom chorus girl companion of Evelyn Nesbit. She had been, evidently, debarred by the womon of the Thaw family. She was as near to her chum of the old days as she dared get—on the threshold of the courtroom.

The set faces of the jurors turned to one point—the place where Jerome was sitting. The District Attorney had his hand over his brow, as if pondering over his first sentence for the opening. No written address was on his table, only a few notes, and, balanced against the table, the blue-print of the floor plan of the roof garden.

Justice Fitzgerald asked the court attendants to keep order and Mr. Jerome stood up. He bowed to the Justice and to the jury. The court attendant at the door was pushed back from it as a belated newspaper reporter fought his way in. Then came a swarm of people breaking into the police lines, all eager, clamoring, clawing, kicking, and roughly using their elbows to fight for a chance of hearing the speech of the prosecutor.

The hum of many voices, some in anger, some in almost tearful petition floated into the room. A mob of thoueands had besieged the court. Many had letters from politicians; there were ex-Governors, Aldermen, ex-Senators, and Assemblymen, lawyers, near-alienists, and a great swarm of the idly curious rabble.

Mr. Jerome Starts.

Mr. Jerome paused a moment. He flicked up and down a little metal scale he carries in his right hand to work off his surplus nervous energy. The court attendant finally got the door jammed tight and his shoulder against it, his hand holding the knob.

"If it pleases your Honor," said Mr. Jerome to the court, "and gentlemen of the jury," bowing in an old-fashioned, almost stately manner to the jurors, "from all I can judge from the reports you have been wandering through a mere field of romance for two days. The life of a human being is not to be judged on any such premise. The issues here cannot be determined upon Biblical quotations.

"The attorneys for the defense have been carrying the responsibility of a human life upon them. There has been an equally grave responsibility upon the prosecution.

"The law is not a cruel law. It does not punish for the mere sake of punishment. It punishes to protect those who live under it and abide hy it. Important as it is that no human life should be put out unjustly, it is equally important that the law should be upheld in the community in which you and I dwell."

Mr. Jerome's voice was very clear and firm. He seemed in splendid physical condition. His eyes gleamed through his old-fashioned spectacles olear and hright. He showed none of his usual restlessness of body. He started his opening with his hands jammed far down in his trousers pockets.

"It is a time for all of us to lay aside our animosities," he said, slowly and coolly. "The issue here is not to be determined on the personality of myself or upon that of counsel for the defense. If in any infirmities of temper I have transcended that courtesy which should be due to the court and the counsel for the defense from me during the trial of this case, I regret that I have so transgressed."

Questions Delmas.

After his implied apology for any hasty word or action he may have been guilty of, Mr. Jerome drew his hands from his pockets, bringing with his right hand the inevitable little metal measure which he flicked in his fingers, and then he started on Mr. Delmas and his speech of the day before. He declared that the manner of the speech of the Californian was not in accord with the ideas of the East; that when jurors had been sworn to, allow no appeal to their passions to thwart their good judgment, no such appeal should be made hy counsel.

"Keep clear in your mind that this is no action of the executors and friends of Stanford White against the man who slew him. It is not an inquisition as to whether Evelyn Nesbit was ruined by White. This is not a trial for criminal assault. It is a trial to ascertain whether what Harry Thaw did was justifiahle or excusahle, or whether he should be punished for the act."

Mr. Jerome, his voice hardening and a touch of sarcasm pervading it, said that he did not propose to enter into a contest of oratory with Mr. Delmas, as he did not have the ahility to warrant him in doing so.

"I will assure you now that it is not on the words of counsel but on the evidence that this case is to be settled by you."

Mr. Jerome pointed out the demands and the restrictions of the law in the trial of a human who has taken the life of a fellow-human. He was dispassionate in his utterances, his voice at times sounding so cold and toneless that abundant hint was given the anxious and troubled Thaw women that he was going to sum up minus attempts at word pictures and with facts terribly, perhaps bitterly told.

Evelyn Nesbit Cold.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was the only member of the group whose face was placid and without trace of fear.

"Look at her!" whispered a woman reporter to an acquaintance. "She is as cold as a fish."

Thaw showed many signs of worry. He whispered to Mr. Delmas by his side and then to Daniel O'Reilly or to Mr. Peabody. He watched Mr. Jerome at times with a stare that was intense and that might have held hate in the mind behind it. The elbow of his wife never slipped from the back of the chair in front of her. She seemed filled with interest at the scene. She might have been leaning on the plush-covered railing of a box in a theatre following the last act in a skillfully-shaped drama.

Mr. Jerome showed his hope of eventually having Thaw put away among the insane when he said:

Answer on "Dementia Americana."

"If you find that this defendant was insane when he killed Stanford White, it is your duty to say so in your verdict. If you do not say so it is because you helieve this killing was justifiable. Justifiahle does not mean dementia Americana; it means self defense. But when a man sits with his head in his hand and is deliberately shot with a pistol held so close to him that after the shooting the victim's own brother-in-law did not recognize him, it can hardly be called self defense east of the Mississippi River.

"If we are going into the proposition of sympathy in this trial, it can be played upon by both sides. Have you thought of the widow in Cambridge and the fatherless boy in Harvard? I mention this, men, that you may see that the question of sympathy has naught to do with the issues here. There are sympathies, perhaps, which you cannot prevent from arising within you, but they must not influence your verdict.

"Dementia Americana!" exclaimed the District Attorney, leaning back on the edge of the desk of Clerk Penny. "Dementia Americana! That is not the kind of insanity you have sworn to take into consideration. That is the higher or the unwritten law that has been preached to you. In this case it is applied to a man who stretched out his arms to a girl who loved him so that she would not abandon her wandering life to marry him and gain a haven where would be rest and riches, a girl who euffered a sublime renunciation, who would not marry him because she had been wronged; it is applied to a man who took that angel child to his breast and then flaunted her through the capitals of Europe as his mistress. Such a law has no status on the Atlantic Coast.

Jerome's Sarcasm.

"It may apply on the other side of the Mississippi, but not here. Such a law is not applied to a man who realizes the sacrifice such as has been depicted, who offers his protecting arm to the woman who has immoiated herself on the altar of such a great love as history or romance has not related before, and who takes her from city to city as his mistress, and who hides behind her petticoats after he has waited three years to kill the man that he grew to hate and despise.

"Dementia Americana! Is that the law which puts a woman on the witness stand to tell of her shame and her misfortune that it may save a worthless life that is a people's just demand?"

The District Attorney rehearsed the evidence of his case on direct testimony.

"It is all here in this little book," he said, swinging a tiny volume of typewritten pages in his hand. "This tells the story."

He dropped the book on the table hefore him and picked up the sawed-off, blue-steel revolver with which Thaw had ended the life of Stanford White.

"He waited for a good dinner to spur him on to the stage of dementia Americana. He went to the theatre with his friends. He walked hither and yon ever keeping his eye upon this spot."

He had picked up the big blue print upon which a red cross showed the table where Stanford White was sitting when his life was suddenly snuffed out. Mr. Jerome tapped the cardboard with his little ruler. He tapped it for half a minute, the sound emphasizing his words.

"He walked deliberately across the room so that his enemy would have no chance to see him, no opportunity to defend himself. Then he turned, and holding the weapon close to his victim's head that when his own brother-in-law, the witness, James Clinoh Smith, looked on his dead face the powder marks had blackened it so that he did not recognize it—he fired three times."

Mr. Jerome had extended his right arm downward a hit and in front of him. He pressed his trigger twice in rapid succession, and a third time after a second's pause.

Deliberately Shot This Man.

The two quick clicks and the third sounded through the room. There was the stillness of death. After the weeks of testimony and the frequent witnesses who had told of the murder and the tumbling of the heavy form of the architect dead to the floor, it was easy to imagine the heavy sound of the body as it fell beside the table he had been sitting at and the tinkle of the broken glass that crashed beside it.

"Deliberately he shot the man who had blackballed him at his clubs," resumed Mr. Jerome, his voice harder than ever, "who had taken from him the woman he loved and who had threatened to take her away from him again, who had, in fact, won her back even after the sublime renunciation in Paris. And then, my learned opponent tells you, he stretched out his arms like a priest dismissing his congregation, but of that there was nothing in the evidence. He did not say that he was the apostle sent of God. He did not cry out that he had killed the ravishor of maidens. No, gentlemen, that apostle of God came after the prisoner had had the advice of Dr. Evans.

"Nothing in this case shows anything but deliberate, cold-blooded, premeditated murder. It seems to me that the voice of Stanford White is crying out from the grave: 'Can't you say a word for me against this thick blackening that the defense has put upon my memory! Must I be consigned to the everlasting fires of hell unheard and undefended?

Admits White's Faults.

"I admit his faults, his gross faults, perhaps, but it does not follow that a man who is unchaste is a devouring monster, a brute. For some reason, God only knows why, he sought the company of such people, such unfortunate creatures who find pleasure in the life of chorus girls and their kind."

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw smiled, her eyes crinkling prettily. There was a flutter of the green plumage of May MacKenzie in the dark of the corridor leading to the chambers of Justice Fitsgerald.

Attacks Wife's Story.

"Did he commit this crime that Evelyn Nesbit swears he oommitted, or was she sitting here perjuring herself?" asked Mr. Jerome. "She, the girl from the 'Florodora' chorus, tells of the kindness of White to her, how he had kept her from drinking more than one glass of champagne, how he had given only the little things of comfort, and how he had treated her kindly and considerately—he, a man already gray of hairs. She told you of the visit to the studio in Twenty-fourth Street and how the wine had not been plied to her when they sat down and had dinner. She told of the strange chintz-covered room and of the opening of the small bottle of wine and the bitter taste of it. She had said before that wine always tasted hitter to her. Then the drugging and the rest of the story that it is not necessary for me to repeat.

"What drug would do that? Mr. Delmas flung the doore open to me to deny that story, but he closed them again when I tried to get in the evidence of an expert to show that there was no drug that could have produced this result, for you must remember that she was not long in recovering, in dressing herself, and in going home, there to sit and weep through the night.

"And yet the next day when she says White came to her and kissed her garment's hem and convinced her that all women were bad and that the only thing was not to be found out she sat and listened to him.

"She does not remember within three months of the time that this terrible thing happened. Is there any young girl of purity who could have passed through such an experience and have ever forgotten the day, the year, the hour? Think of that. You know how women recall the anniversary of every event, sad, tragic and otherwise. She could not place the time of this terrible tragedy and change in her life within three months, and yet she could remember the little kitten she carried on the train on her way to Philadelphia and place other dates."

Mr. Jerome pointed out that with the pictures taken of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, which she said were taken on the day before the alleged crime, he could have fixed that date and proved an alibi for the man who had been killed. But Mr. Delmas had again closed the doors. This evidence was not admitted.

"Angel Child's" Story.

"Ah! gentlemen, the angel child's story does not stand the test. She tells of going back to that studio again, again, again, again, again, again, eight or nine times to suffer the same terrible outrage, and she tells of some one coming in when she was in a room disrobing in preparation for another such terrible experience.

"The defense filed for identification a lot of the letters of Stanford White. They were not put in evidence. Shall I tell you why? Because in none of them was there a suggestion of evil.

"It seems to me that the most remarkable defense of the dead has been made by this angel child. When she was on the witness stand she told of her kind treatment by him, she told of thinking of him as her only friend when she called from Boulogne, and when she started back to this country. She went to see him within two days after leaving Thaw abroad. She went to see him and to make affidavit against the treatment she had received from his Sir Gallahad that had rescued her. She came back after having suffered from the lashings of a pervert. She said that except for this one terrible thing, the crime upon her in the Twenty-fourth Street studio. White was gentle and kind—her friend.

"With such words she destroyed her story. She proved that she did not tell the truth. She proved that her story was all a lie."

Thaw Sullen at Recess.

Evelyn Neshit Thaw was still intensely interested. She smiled. The hour of 1 had come, and the recess was ordered.

Thaw pulled his yellow, staring eyes from the form of Jerome. He was not only haggard, he was sullen and a look of hate was upon his countenance.

Prisoner's Wife Bright.

After the recess hour a still greater mob clamored for admission to the court room. Police Sergeant Kellerer, one of the biggest men on the force, had to push forth squads of men time and again into the crowds to break them up. So well did he handle his men that there was not a single case of violence, and not an arrest.

Mr.Jerome smoked in the corridors after his lunch until the last moment. When the jurors filed in to take their seats he went slowly to his seat within the railing in front of the bench and began looking over a little mass of notes.

Evelyn Nesbit and the rest of the family of the prisoner took their same seats. The wife of the man whose life was at stake was still cheerful and bright. She exchanged a word or two with a newspaper acquaintance. She seemed to know that the last scene of the last act of the tragedy was at hand, and she was ready to enjoy every word and every movement of it. She again put her elbows on the back of the chair in front of her as Mr. Jerome arose to continue his attack upon her and upon her husband.

It looked like easy sailing for the sallow man at the head of the table for the defense when Mr. Jerome began his afternoon discussion by treating of the forms of insanity and the evidence of experts, but this grain of comfort was soon swept away.

The Deliberate Killing.

"He walked up to his enemy," said Mr. Jerome, "and carefully taking aim so that he would not miss his man or hit any other person, he kills him. He was a man who had nursed an enmity for three years. He had glared at White until, after a good dinner and hearing the story of two men and a woman in which his friend Truxton Beale had figured, he went and killed White. The witnesses for the defense say that Thaw was pale and his eyes staring. Is the killing of a human being so common here that a man can kill without turning pale?"

"You say," cried Mr. Jerome, lifting his voice until it was almost shrill, "that it was 'dementia Americana.' It is absurd. The crime bristles with premeditation. A man has been shot down by his enemy, and no matter how bad he may have been, he was entitled to the protection of the law. Let him be blacker than the cloak of midnight which counsel threw over his memory yesterday, and I say that he still had the right to sit there that night watching the play and the law protecting him."

Jerome Impressive.

Mr. Jerome's voice was in splendid condition when he again reverted to Evelyn Nesbit's career. Juror Dennee smiled at several of his passages which ridiculed the former chorus girl as the angel child, and Juror Harney glanced occasionally toward her to see how she was standing it. She showed no emotion, either of fear, distrust, or dislike for the District Attorney. She appeared to be interested in the entire scene and not conscious of any sense of shame.

"We were not born yesterday," said Mr. Jerome. "We have an idea of what the life of the stage is. We have had passing glimpses of it on the Great White Way. We know what the life was this girl was leading as she knocked about at 16 years from studio to studio and then from chorus to chorus. Why was Thaw pursuing her then and sending her American Beauty roses with fifty-dollar bills around the stems? She said that her mother approved of the attentions of Garland to her when Garland was a married man and invited her to his yacht for trips. She has told of her regard for Jack Barrymore, who wanted to marry her, and who was objected to by her mother and by White. Her diary as a school girl at Pompton shows a powerful key to her character. Before she reached the school building she heheld the son of the proprietress of the place and sized him up, entering in her diary that he was a 'pie-faced mutt.' If I have used the term 'sublime denunciation' with a sneer, certainly the angel child used a sneer when she described her bed at the school as a virtuous couch and put quotation marks around the word virtuous. Then she told of her longing for Rector's and the bunch, and of all of this diary the most significant passage is the last, in which she describes how the young women in the school are good and virtuous, and have not met the temptations of life; that they will never he 'anything except, perhaps, good wives and mothers.' She writes that, whatever it may be, ambition or anything else, she prefers to be a great actress.

"This child, with no desire for virtue, with no wish to be a good wife and mother, played two men, one against the other, and brought one of them to his death. She went to Paris with Thaw at his expense, and carried the letter of credit given her by Stanford White."

The "Angel Child."

Mr. Jerome gave a moment or two to Mr. Hartridge and Mr. Delmas. He replied to the argument of the latter that he had obtained from an "unnatural mother" the diary in which was written the simple and idle babblings of a school girl.

"I would tell Mr. Hartridge," said Mr. Jerome, "that the next time he searches the belongings of a client for papers of interest to his case that he pause not at letters but that he take other things that may have been in book form as was this." He waved the soft leather covered diary in his hand. "It was found a few minutes before I put it in evidence, and it was found by the police and turned over to me."

"This is the 'angel' child hulit up by Mr. Delmas and upon whose testimony he has constructed his whole case. He tells you this child so loved Thaw that she renounced his offer of marriage—renounced him to go back to the $18 a week of the studio and the $18 of the stage.

"This is the child who traveled through all Europe with St. George—St. George who told her there was chastity among women—St. George who gave her her first moral horizon. What does she do when she leaves him? She comes back to America, landing on Saturday, comes back on Thaw's money. She does not see Stanford White on Sunday, but on Tuesday we find her at Abe Hummel's office with him. There she made an affidavit.

The Hummel Affidavit.

"If you don't believe anything else in that affidavit, the date is significant. It shows that within twenty-four hours after she had seen Stanford White, the ogre who had piled her with wine and ruined her had completely undermined her great love for Thaw—the love which led to her renunciation of the man.

"'Poor little Evelyn!' Poor, indeed, the woman whose great love was undermined in twenty-four hours."

Mr. Jerome aimed his fire at the prisoner, who sat, sullen, but not cowed, a few feet from him.

"We find him offering a weak mother a competence to help him win the daughter," he declared. "He was paying 'honorable court' to her, says Mr. Delmas. Are men who are paying honorable court to women in the habit of wrapping $50 bills around the roses they send them? He kisses her hand in the hospital, and then furnishes the money to take her abroad. Then in Paris he asked her to marry him. When she said no he asked her: Is it because of Stanford White? Did it take some time for the shock? Had he heard gossip in the Tenderloin which led him to suspect her relations with White?

Her Story Attacked.

"I said, and said in no sneering way, that if the story of her supreme renunciation was true there was nothing like it in history or literature. She had nothing before her but a life of hard work. Here was a man she loved, here was a haven of rest, and because she loved him so well she cast it all aside.

"Here this girl had done an act that was really one of sublime renunciation. There she was, a poor, innocent child, whom this Sir Galahad would take to his arms, cherish her, and protect her against the infamy of White. And what did this Sir Galahad do but take this 'angel child' and flaunt her through nearly every capital of Europe as his mistress. If Stanford White is to be painted black for what he did to Evelyn Nesbit, then there is no color black enough to paint this Sir Galahad that took this angel child and despoiled her.

"Fine specimen of the unwritten!" cried Mr. Jerome, uplifting his right arm. "And they call it Dementia Americana!"

Turning his attention to the Hummel affidavit, Mr. Jerome said: "I don't believe that Hummel is an upright man. I was after him for years, and I have him where I want him. I will put him in jail and keep him there as long as I can. But there were two reputable clerks, one of them saw her read the affidavit and sign it. The other could have been called by the defense to refute it, but he was not called. The affidavit tells of the wanderings of Sir Galahad and the angel child through Europe. As Mr. Delmas says, you may watch a stage magician wave a wand and bring from under a handkerchief a bowl of gold fish. You know that it is done by a trick, but you do not know how the trick was performed. Yet you may easily see that whatever trick brought the bowl of fish before your eyes the bowl of fish really exists and the fish are genuine.

Thaw as "Sir Galahad."

"You heard the story of that Christmas eve when this Sir Galahad again rescued the maiden from the brute," said Mr. Jerome. "You have heard how they remained in Rector's until 4 o'clock in the morning, and then went to Thaw's apartments. Again he had made up with her; again he had told her that he would put his stalwart arm about her and they would go through life side by side. So Sir Galahad lived with her as his mistress at the Grand Hotel on the second trip to Europe, went with her to the Dead Rat and the Café de Paris to witness cake walks at 2 o'clock in the morning. This is the Sir Galahad who almost within the sound of his wife's voice asked James Clinch Smith if he was 'very much married,' and if he did not want to meet a 'buxom brunette.' If he did he would be glad to 'put him next.' This gentleman was the St. George who was going out into the world and rescuing American maidenhood.

Everyday Tenderloin Homicide.

"Men of this jury, there is in this case every element of the simple, vulgar, every day Tenderloin homicide.

"If the defendant were any person but Harry Thaw of Pittsburg, the rich Harry Thaw of Pittsburg; if he were the son of a padrone in Elizaheth Strcet; if Stanford White were not a leading architect but a small manufacturer in Mott Street; if this girl were a chorus girl in 'The London Theatre' on the Bowery—how long would the brain storm or the paranoia theory be listened to?

"There wers two ordinary men in this case, and between them was a tigress urging them on. With Thaw she was ruined hy White; with Whito she was the victim of Thaw's perversion. Why, men, there are the same old elements here that heve made criminal history ever since the world began.

"This 'angel child' comes here and weaves a web of lies like this to fool you, to induce you to acquit a cold-blooded, cowardly murder on a defense of 'Dementia Americana.'

"She herself tells you she was constantly egging him on. She told him Stanford White was trying to get her back, that he had followed her, that May Mackenzie had told her things Stanford White had said. In Paris she received letters from Stanford White. After she returned from Europe Thaw himself accused her of having resumed relations with White.

"Why shouldn't he hate Stanford White? Why shouldn't he fear him? Why shouldn't he be angry when he talked about him? He would glare at his enemy in the theatre, but smile on others. He would even sit at the table with Dillingham, who told Evelyn the stories of his perversion.

"Is there anything in all this evidence to show that when Harry Thaw shot and killed Stanford White he did not know the nature and quality of his act or that the act was wrong?"

Mr. Jerome took up the letters and the will and codicil and pointed out the reasoning, cautious mind that had conceived and framed them. He gave Dr. Wiley of Pittsburg, the first of the Thaw alienists to testify, a comparatively light touch of his lash. He only asked why Mr. Delmas had not included him in his array of alienists brought up in the address for the defense. He referred to Thaw's delusion that his counsel were in league with the friends of White and the District Attorney to have him sent to the madhouse and pointed out that Thaw had dismissed his first set of lawyers.

Answer To "Dementia Americana."

"Perfectly rational," said Mr. Jerome, "if he wanted to take his chances for an acquittal. Dr. Evans told you Thaw suffered from a brainstorm when he killed White. A better name would be the paranoia of the millionaire.

"Mr. Delmas said he would not appeal to such a shadowy thing as the unwritten law. But he ended by an appeal to 'dementia Americana,' which, he said, afflicted the whole Nation. He might hetter have adhered to his original purpose, because if this man were insane you might acquit him.

"But when this defendant is presented to you as the supposed avenger of American womanhood—of American virtue—a champion who has lain dormant for three years until he becomes in some way exalled—he does not come within the classification of 'Dementia Americana.' He killed for a motive, and when you are asked to acquit such a man you are asked to give something which you have not the power to bestow.

The Real Issue.

"The real question here is whether New York City is to become a mining camp.

"If this sort of thing can go on—if the only thing between a citizen and his enemy is a brainstorm, then every man had better pack a gun and have the first brainstorm.

"Mr. Delmas appealed to the Scriptures. Let me, too, direct your attention to them—to what the Lord said, 'Vengeance is mine, and I shall repay.'

"Let me also remind you of the great fundamental law sounded down the ages—the commandment of God—'Thou shalt not kill.'"

Mr. Jerome sat down so suddenly that those who were watching him closely thought that perhaps he had dropped his little metal measure or was reaching for a paper that had slipped from the table to the floor. His last words were said very quietly and without gesture, but there was tremendous earnestness expressed in them.

The Final Scene.

Thaw turned to one of his counsel as if to ask whether the agony was really over. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw pulled her elbow from the chair in front of her and smiled as if in half sorrow that the play was done, and only the epilogue remained. The crowd swarmed from the room, Thaw filing ahead of the jury with his keeper on his heels. Save for the verdict, the greatest murder trial that has been held in New York in many years was finished. Every one drew a breath of relief and hastened from the evil atmosphere of the room.

After starting their discussion of the case in the jury room the time came for dinner, and Justice Fitzgerald ordered a recess between 8 and 9 o'clock. The jury was again locked up in the jury room at the latter hour.

THE CHARGE TO THE JURY.

A Plain Deliverance of the Law, Not Overfavorable to Thaw.

When Mr. Jerome closed his address to the jury Justice Fitzgerald ordered a recess of fifteen minutes. Thaw went hack to the prison pen just outside of the courtroom, and the members of his family rotired to the little waiting rooms beside the Justice's chambers.

When court reconvened Justice Fitzgerald read his instructions. Thaw held a hand to his ear to catch every word. He and his counsel did not seem any too well pleased. The Justice read slowly and in a loud tone. Every word was clearly heard. Here is the charge:

"Gentlemen of the Jury: It now becomes my duty to give you such instructions upon the law as are necessary to enable you to perform your duties as jurors and to defino for your information the legal propositions by which you are to be governed in considering the evidence and in reaching your conclusion upon the facts. The care with which you were severally selected to ascertain the condition of mind of each one of you as an impartial juror, before you were permitted to be sworn, must have impressed you with the spirit of justice upon which are founded the statutes regulating the institution of the jury.

"It is particularly gratifying to me to realize that you were selected hy the people and by the defendant as fair-minded men, after the examination of 337 talesmen, and before the peremptory challenges upon either side had been exhausted. The admonitions so frequently given you at the close of the many sessions of this protracted trial were given in obedience to the law, the object of which is that your minds may be kept in the same condition of impartiality to the close.

"Let me impress upon you the importance of the issue you are to decide. The life of a citizen in the protection of the law has, it is charged, been taken by the defendant, and the defendant is here to answer to the law. You must take the law absolutely from the court. Of the facts you are the sole judges.

The Law on Homicide.

"A defendant in a criminal action is presumed to he innocent until the contrary be proved, and in case of a reasonable doubt as to whether his guilt is satisfactorily shown, he is entitled to an acquittal. Let me begin by instructing you generally upon the law of homicide.

"The statutes on homicide are divided into two general divisions, which in turn are subdivided, as I will later explain. The two chief divisions are homicide that is criminal and homicide that is not. Criminal homicides are classed as murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, and manslaughter in the first and second degrees. Such homicide, unless it is excusable or justifiable, is murder in the first degree when committed with a deliberate and premeditated design to effect the death of the person killed. If committed with the design to effect the death of the person killed, but without deliberation and premeditation, the act would not constitute murder in the first degree, but would constitute murder in the second degree; if committed without a design to effect death, in the heat of passion and by using a dangerous weapon, it would not constitute murder in either degree, but would constitute manslaughter in the first degree.

"The lesser criminal homicides are embraced in the division of manslaughter in the second degree. Homicides which are not criminal are classed as justifiable homicide and excusable homicide. Homicide is justifiable when committed in the legal defense of the slayer or his or her husband, wife, parent, child, brother, sister, master, or servant, or any person in his presence when there is reasonable ground to apprehend a design on the part of the person slain to commit a felony or to do some great personal injury to the slayer or to any such person, and there is imminent danger of such design being accomplished. Homicide is excusahle when committed by accident or misfortune in lawfully correcting a child or a servant, or in doing any other lawful act by lawful means with ordinary caution and without unlawful intent.

As to Insanity.

"The defense here is that the defendant was insane at the time of the commission of the act, and the law applicable to the defense of insanity is found in Sections 20 and 21 of the Penal Code. Section 20 provides that if an act be done by a person who is an idiot, imbecile, lunatic, or insane it is not a crime. This language, you will perceive, is very broad, and would appear to apply to all persons of insane mind without regard to the degree of insanity. But the words of Section 21, to which I now direct your particular attention, limits the general wording in Section 20 as follows:

"'A person is not excused from criminal liability as an idiot, an imbecile, lunatic, or insane person except upon proof that at the time of doing the alleged criminal act he was laboring under such a defect of reason as either not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing or not to know that the act was wrong.

"I will define later how a defense of this character is to be construed by the jury in the light of the law, but before doing so, for the purpose of presenting the legal propositions in an orderly manner, I will instruct you more fully on the general questions of criminal homicide.

Premeditation Essential.

"Before murder in the first degree can be established, a distinguished jurist has said, it is essential that it should appear that there was some actual deliberation and premeditation operating in and upon the mind of the accused in respect to the subject matter of the offense before the actual occurrence of the act which is alleged to be committed. The alleged deliberate and premeditated design is of necessity in each case left open as a question of fact, always for the consideration of the jury; for what would be deliberation and premeditation in one man, might fall far short of being such in another. The human mind is not built according to the strict plan of any prescribed pattern. Men differ physically and mentally; nor can any strict rule be laid down by the court as to the character or amount of evidence necessary to show the existence of a deliberate and premeditated design to effect death. Each case must depend upon its own facts and circumstances. One case may be proved by a long train of circumstances and facts; another by a few sharp and startling facts, and in still another a jury may find in the very act, in the manner in which it was done, the weapon used, the number of blows and wounds, the time and place where it happened, the disposition of the victim, and the objects accomplished—everything requisite to satisfy them of the presence of deliberation and premeditation as component parts of the crime.

"As I have above instructed you, if from the evidence you are satisfied that the act was committed with the design to effect the death of the person killed, but without deliberation and premeditation, the crime established would be murder in the second degree.

"The defendant under this indictment may be convicted of murder in either of these degrees, or he may be convicted of manslaughter in the first degree, provided you are satisfied that he committed the act without the design to take life, but in the heat of passion and by means of a dangerous weapon. When it appears that the defendant has committed a crime and there is reasonable ground to doubt of which of two or more degrees he is guilty, he can be convicted of the lowest of those degrees only. As I have tried to impress upon you throughout all of these proceedings, the character of the victim furnishes neither excuse nor justification, for the general character of the victim is not in issue. He was entitled to the protection of the law, no matter whether the character was good or bad.

No Personal Vengeance in Law.

"A personal avenger of private wrongs or public wrongs is not recognized by our jurisprudence. In a Government of law, as is ours, no other rule is safe; no other rule is just. Every individual in the community is under the protection of the law. The good and the bad, the exalted and the humble, are alike covered by the shield of its guardianship. As was stated by an eminent judge, the general bad character of a person slain can neither tend to show that the defendant is not guilty of homicide or in any other sense. Equality before the law is a maxim of universal justice.

"The life of the humble and the most exalted is equal in the general protection of the law; and it is not for man to say which life may be taken and which spared.

"The evidence of a communication claimed to have been made to the defendant was not admitted upon any such reason; it is before you for entirely different reasons. The plea of not guilty is a denial of every material allegation in the indictment, and under such general denial evidence of insanity may be presented. The law presumes sanity, as that is the normal condition of mankind generally. Where the defense of insanity is presented the condition of the defendant's mind at the time of the perpetration of the act becomes the crucial point at issue, and I will give you some general instructions as to how such a defense is established.

"An irresistible impulse to commit a crime, where the offender has the ability to discover his legal and moral duty, has no place in the law, nor is it a weak and disordered mind that can be excused from the consequence of his crime.

Mere Delusion No Defense.

"If there existed in the mind of the defendant an insane delusion with reference to the conduct of the deceased, it will not excuse the homicide unless the delusion was of such a character that if it had been true it would have rendered the act excusable and justifiable. Proof of partial or incipient insanity is not sufficient, if there was still present the ability to form a correct conception of the quality of the act, and to know that it was wrong.

"The settled law of the State is that if A deliberately drawe a pistol and cocks it and points it at you and discharges its contents into your body and alleges his insanity as a defense, he inquiry is if A knows, when he cocked and fired that pistol and discharged its contents into your body, that the act is such as would probably destroy your life, and did he know that the act was forbidden by law.

"The settled law of the State in the test of responsibility for criminal acts, where unsoundness of mind is a defense, is the capacity of the defendant to distinguish between right and wrong at the time of and in respect to the act which is the subject of the inquiry.

Bearing of the Wife's Story.

"The rule of evidence upon which the story claimed by defendant's wife to have been told to the defendant was admitted, was not that you might pass upon the truth or falsity of any accusation affecting the character of the deceased, but that you might consider it solely upon the question as to what effect such story, if told, might have produced upon the defendant's mind. This doctrine is expounded fully in the opinion of the Court of Appeals in the case of the People vs. Wood, (126 N. Y., 249.)

"'It should be admitted for the purpose of showing an adequate cause for the state of mind existing subsequent to the communication. The subsequent conduct, appearance, and conversation of the person to whom the communication is made are the proper subjects of proof for the one purpose of showing what effect upon him such communications had, and that it rendered him insane within the legal definition of the term at the very time of the commission of the deed.

"'It is competent for the reason that all the facts are material for the purpose of enabling the jury to say what was the condition of the mind of the defendant when the deed was perpetrated. The defense is entitled to prove more than the facts that after a certain time when something was told defendant, he exhibited certain changes of deportment or appearance. He is entitled to have the jury see that there was a cause sufficient to account for and to create such alteration in conduct and appearance. It greatly tends to strengthen the proof of such alteration. It is admissible for the same reason that evidence is competent to show that the party had a fall on his head, or had been a sufferer for years from some kind of physical ailment which had naturally a depressing influence on the mind. It is admissible, continues the court, on the ground that it is corroborative more or less strongly of the mental condition which the other and separate evidence in the case tends to prove. It must be admitted for the purpose of showing that the defendant was at the time of the commission of the offense insane within the legal definition of the word.'

Consider All the Facts.

"While a great deal of time has been consumed by this trial, the evidence outside of the testimony of the experts may be grouped within a very narrow compass. The evidence of the defendant's wife: Did she tell the defendant the several stories which were testified as having been told him at the several times and under the several circumstances, the admissions regarding the illicit relations said to exist between herself and the defendant, and prior and subsequent to the alleged disclosure and performance, their marriage, and the other circumstances arising from the evidence. You should weigh her story in its entirety.

"Regarding the character of the witness Hummel, which has been gone into by counsel on opposite sides—all these matters should be sifted by the jury as to what credibility you will give to it. If is claimed that the credibility of the witness Hummel is impeached by the fact of his conviction of a crime—that of conspiracy—and that he may have some motive in testifying for the prosecution, and from the further fact that there are indictments against him for felonies.

Presumption of Insanity.

"The circumstances attending the commission of the act charged in the indictment have been testified to by a number of witnesses, and there is no denial of the fact that the death of the victim resulted from the pistol shots fired by the defendant at the Madison Square Roof Garden on the night in June, 1906, testified to. The legal presumption is that the defendant was sane when he committed the act, and it was not necessary for the prosecution in the first instance to offer any evidence that he was sane. The rule applicable to the defense of insanity, as stated by the late Chief Justice Church, is as follows:

"'Crimes can only be committed by human beings, and upon the general proposition the prosecutor holds the affirmative and the burden of proof is upon him. Sanity being the normal and usual condition of mankind the law presumes that every individual is in that state, hence the prosecutor may rely upon that presumption without evidence. Whoever denies this or interposes a defense based upon its untruth must prove it. The burden of showing insanity is upon the person who alleges it, and if evidence is given tending to show insanity then the general question is presented to the court and the jury, whether the crime, if committed, was committed by a person responsible for his act, and upon this question of presumption of sanity, which is presumed, where there is a doubt as to whether he was insane or not, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of the doubt.'

The Expert Evidence.

"Medical experts were called by both sides, some of whom testified, and it is in evidence, that the defendant's actions appeared to some as irrational and to others as rational. The two experts called by the defense testified to a physical examination made of the defendant. The dates of these examinations were Aug. 4 and 21 and Sept. 10, one of these experts having been present on all three occasions and the other being present only upon the last two examinations.

"Declarations made by the defendant to an insanity expert upon an examination made subsequent to the homicide, to test the defendant's mental condition at the time of such examination, was competent as showing his condition at that time, and may be stated by the expert when such matter enters into the opinion of the expert. In the case of the people against Nino, 149 New York 826, the Court of Appeals said:

"'All that this defendant said and did during these several examinations by the experts was competent as bearing upon his mental condition at the time he was examined. The examination of the experts was directed to his mental condition at the time they saw him, and from the conclusion they then reached, and the medical and other facts proved which would be competent to give on the trial an opinion as to his sanity or insanity at the time of the homicide. The jury are entitled to the facts upon which a sanity expert bases his opinion, and when those facts are the result of his own interview with the defendant, it is not only competent, but it is necessary, that they should be laid before the jury.'

If Defendant Knew, He Was Guilty.

"The opinions of experts are presented as an aid to the jury, and are to be considered by the jury with all the evidence in the case. The standing, learning, ability, and experience of the experts should be considered by you. The quality and not the quantity, of such evidence is to be considered. The jury are the judges of the facts. They are not to be received as evidence unless predicated upon the facts testified to either by them or by others. The opinions of medical experts are to be considered by you in connection with all the evidence in the case. You will so take them into consideration and give them just weight, and you will determine upon the whole fact whether the accused was or was not of insane mind.

"You are not to take for granted that the statements contained in the hypothetical questions which have been propounded to the witnesses are true. On the contrary, you will carefully scrutinize the evidence, and from that determine what, if any, averments are true, and what, if any, are not. If the defendant knew the nature and quality of the act he was doing, and knew that it was wrong, he committed a crime. In determining its degree, let me call your attention to the language of the learned jurist whom I cited earlier in my charge:

"'The human mind is not built according to the strict plan of any pattern. Men differ physically and mentally. Nor can any strict rule be laid down as to the character or amount of evidence necessary to show the existence of a deliberate and premeditated design.'

What Is "Reasonable Doubt."

"Upon the examination of each one of you, you were questioned by the respective counsel very fully upon the subject of reasonable doubt, and the distinction between reasonable doubt and possible doubt. Upon learning the condition of your minds on this and other subjects you were finally accepted. The prosecution is not required to prove this case beyond all possible doubt—only beyond reasonable doubt. I give you an excellent definition of a reasonable doubt by the late Justice Smyth, former Recorder of this city:

"'The defendant is entitled, as are all defendants in criminal cases, to have his guilt established to the satisfaction of the jury by competent evidence and beyond a reasonable doubt, and it is hardly necessary to say your intelligence tells you that the law does not require that the case must be proved beyond all doubt because that would be impossible. There is nothing proved beyond all doubt. A reasonable doubt, as the term indicates, is such a doubt as a man of reasonable intelligence can give some good reason for entertaining, if he is called upon to express it. It is not a doubt for which a man, when he is called upon to give his reasons for entertaining, can give no reason. It is a doubt arising out of the evidence in the case submitted to the jury, and it is a doubt which honest, painstaking men may entertain after a full, fair, and impartial examination of the evidence. If you have such a doubt as that as to the guilt of the accused, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of that doubt.

Recorder Smyth's Definition.

"Another definition of reasonable doubt given in the same charge by the same Judge was as follows: 'That state of being which, after an entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the mind of the jurors in that condition that they cannot say that they feel an abiding conviction amounting to a moral certainty of the truth of the charge.'

"I shall have to add in reference to reasonable doubt, and do add now, that if the jury entertain a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt of murder in the first degree, and no reasonable doubt of murder in the second degree, he is entitled to the benefit of a reasonable doubt and may be convicted of a lesser degree of murder only. So, if the jury entertain a reasonable doubt of his guilt of murder in either degree, and not any reasonable doubt that he is guilty of manslaughter in the first degree, as I have defined it, the law says you must give the defendant the benefit of that doubt and convict him of manslaughter in the first degree.

Sympathy Must Not Weigh.

"You must decide the case entirely upon the evidence. By that I mean the sworn testimony of the witnesses examined and such documentary evidence as is before you, and you must conscientiously search for the truth. Glamour, prejudice, or sympathy must not weight with you. You are to be guided by the evidence. The facts on both sides have been presented by respective counsel representing the State and defendant. The case has been fully argued, and I have not attempted to make any résumé of the evidence, nor have I spoken of it only in the most general manner and solely for the purpose of directing your attention to the evidence. If in any allusions I have made to the facts my statements do not agree with your recollection, substitute your recollection of what is the evidence.

"You should carefully consider all the evidence, scrutinizing the motives of the different witnesses, and the testimony should be weighed in the light of all the facts presented, and if any witness has testified wilfully and knowingly falsely upon a material matter, or, in other words, has committed perjury, you are authorized to disregard such testimony. It is the duty of each juror to consider the evidence, all pertinent remarks of counsel, and all suggestions of fellow-jurors; but in this regard all statements and declarations of counsel, except such as are founded upon the evidence, should be disregarded.

You Must Judge the Facts.

"I have endeavored, as far as possible, to do my duty, to faithfully guard the interests of the defendant, and to scrupulously protect the rights of the People in the very many rulings I have been called upon to make throughout the progress of this case, and I hope I have succeeded with impartiality to instruct you on the law. The facts in controversy are to be determined by you. They should be carefully and patiently weighed in the light of reason and judgment. This must be your only guide. Remember the oaths that each one of you has taken to well and truly try the case according to the evidence; that is the duty which now devolves upon you. Consider that evidence carefully. Reach your conclusions by reason and argument, and decide it according to your judgment upon the facts and in the light of the law.

"The defendant may be convicted of murder in the first degree. He may be convicted of murder in the second degree. He may be convicted of manslaughter in the first degree. He may be acquitted. If acquitted upon the ground of insanity you will state that fact in your verdict."

As to Conscientious Doubt.

Later, at the request of District Attorney Jerome, the Justice charged as follows:

"You have a right to discuss the evidence among yourselves, consider it, reason it among yourselves, and, if after all that a reasonable doubt still remains in the mind of a juror as to the guilt of the defendant, he should not vote for a conviction or an acquittal except that he is convinced by argument and reason that his original impression is wrong. The same is true as to an acquittal as long as a doubt remains, a conscientious doubt remains in the mind of the jury."

FIRE FRIGHTENS PRISONERS.

Thaw Anxious Over a Blaze Across Street from the Tombs.

Fire opposite the Tombs Prison, at 85 Centre Street, at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, alarmed the prisoners. The clamor of fire apparatus in the street directly caused some of them to believe that the prison was afire.

Warden Flynn, Deputy Warden John Hanley, and the keepers went through the tiers calming the men and assuring them that the blaze was across the street and that there was no danger.

Deputy Hanley went to the cell of Harry K. Thaw and found him anxious to learn where the fire was. Thaw seemed relieved when told that the fire was not in the prison.

The blaze was in the suspender factory of M. Harvey, and was soon extinguished.

NURSE SUES HENRY BERGH.

Says ex-President of the S. P. C. A. Was Cruel to Her—Asks $3,000.

An action to recover $3,000 from Henry Bergh, Treasurer, and at one time President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was begun yesterday by Susan Rooney, a trained nurse, before Supreme Court Justice Garretson in Brooklyn. In her complaint Miss Rooney charged Mr. Bergh with having choked her and dragged her violently down three flights of stairs.

Miss Rooney says the attack on her took place in the Fall of 1904, while she was employed to look after the infant son of the defendant, at the Bergh home, 109 West Seventy-fifth Street, Manhattan. She said on the stand that Mr. Bergh became enraged at her, grabbed her by the neck and left arm, and pulled her from the third story down stairs to the dining room.

When Mr. Bergh took the stand he admitted ejecting the nurse from his house, but denied that he used any unnecessary force or that he had used profane language. He said that when Miss Rooney was in his employ only a few days she became impertinent and refused to do as she was told. According to him, one day when Mrs. Bergh was in a highly nervous state, the nurse, who was in an adjoining room, began to scream at Mr. Bergh's child.

Mr. Bergh said he tried to stop her. She continued to annoy his wife, he said, and then he told her she would have to leave the house. When she refused to go the defendant told the court that he led her downstairs to the door. He said he used just sufficient force to get her to the door. The case will be continued to-day.

NO BRAIN STORM, WIFE SAYS.

Mrs. Bowe Has Her Husband Summoned to Court on Assault Charge.

Mrs. Stella Bowe of 16 Beekman Avenue, the Bronx, had her husband, Michael Bowe, who has a store at 1,294 Broadway, summoned before Magistrate Whitman, in the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday, on the charge of assaulting her and putting her out of his store. Mr. and Mrs. Bowe are now separated and an action for divorce is pending.

Bowe has possession of their daughter and keeps her in his home at East Orange, N. J. Last Saturday, according to Mrs. Bowe, she visited her husband's store to see her daughter. As soon as she entered the door, she said, her husband struck her and forcibly ejected her.

"You were suffering from what might be termed a brain storm, were you not?" asked Mr. Bowe's lawyer.

"Indeed I was not," answered Mrs. Bowe.

Mr. Bowe denied that he had struck his wife, and said that he had simply led her from the store. After the lawyers had agreed that Mrs. Bowe could see her daughter as often as she desired, the Magistrate dismissed the case.

SIMPLE SPELLERS' OFFICERS.

Executive Committee Elects Prof. Calvin Thomas as New Chairman.

The Executive Committee of the Simplified Spelling Board met at 1 Madison Avenue yesterday afternoon for the first time since its election at the annual meeting of the whole board last week and organized. Prof. Calvin Thomas of Columbia University was elected Chairman, succeeding Prof. Brander Matthews; Dr. C. P. G. Scott was re-elected Secretary, and Col. Charles E. Sprague Treasurer.

It was announced that the Executive Committee is considering the advisability of electing to membership on the board representatives from Australasia. The board already has two Canadian members and half a dozen of the leading linguistic scholars of Great Britain.

Fined for Laughing in the Theatre.

Charles Dorn of 17 East Sixty-fourth Street, who was arrested on Tuesday, charged with breaking up a matinee at the Yorkville Theatre by laughing at the wrong time, was fined in the Harlem Court yesterday after it had been explained to the Magistrate that the laughter had produced hysterics among the matinee goers and almost caused a riot.

Fail to Block Condemnation of Land.

Supreme Court Justice Crane, in Brooklyn, denied yesterday the application of the South Brooklyn Railroad Company to reopen the condemnation proceedings for the acquisition by the city of land at the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry in South Brooklyn. The application was brought on the ground that the acquisition of the land is not a public necessity, and that the appointment of the Commissioners was irregular.

No State Favoritism to Jersey Banks.

TRENTON, N. J., April 10.—The Senate disposed finally to-day of the charges of Senator Silzer that favoritism had been shown in the State deposits of funds toward certain banks. The committee said that the State deposits are in twelve banks, and no favoritism has been shown.

CARNEGIE VIEWS HIS PITTSBURG GIFT

Steps Into the City Twenty-four Hours Before He Is Expected.

PLEASED WITH INSTITUTE

Also Pays His First Visit to the Technical Schools — Foreign Guests Arrive.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 10.—Completely surprising everybody except his cousin, George Lauder, Andrew Carnegie came into Pittsburg unheralded last night, just twenty-four hours ahead of time, to be present at the dedication to-morrow of the Carnegie Institute.

Mr. Carnegie was accompanied by his wife and daughter, and his secretary and Mrs. Bertram. They went to the home of Mr. Lauder. This morning the Carnegie party was taken to the institute by the members of the Board of Trustees, and Mr. Carnegie had his first view of his present to Pittsburg.

"It is magnificent—splendid!" he declared. "I congratulate you on your work, and I congratulate the people of Pittsburg upon posseseing such a great educational institution."

Mr. Carnegie spent all of the day going through the new institute, examining it thoroughly. He expressed his pleasure at everything he saw, and there was nothing of which he did not approve.

This evening after dinner Mr. Carnegie paid his first visit to the Carnegie Technical Schools, which were opened a year and a half ago. The night classes were at work. The students accorded him a great ovation, and he was serenaded by the Glee Club.

The special car containing the distinguished foreigners and Americans who are to be honor guests at the dedication arrived in Pittsburg this evening. The members of the Board of Trustees and other officials of the institute were on hand to escort them to the Fort Pitt and Schenley Hotels.

There was a general mix-up, however. Some of the visitors were expected to alight at the East Liberty Station, while others were expected to go to Union Station.

Only six carriages were sent to the East Liberty station, and most of the guests got off the train there. In consequence there were not enough conveyances to accommodate them. A hurry call was sent out for automobiles and carriages, but many of the distinguished foreigners were compelled to stand about in the cold and rain for half an hour before they could be taken to the hotel.

Mr. Carnegie went to the Schenley during the evening and welcomed his guests. He remained only a short time, however.

Theodore von Moeller, Minister of State of Germany, immediately after his arrival at the hotel, sent the following cablegram to the Kaiser:

Have arrived in Pittsburg after a most eventful journey over the Alleghany Mountains, where our engine plowed through three feet of snow. Have met President Theodore Roosevelt, and I consider him one of the greatest men of the age. Will wire further particulars as developments of this great institute occur.

Gen. Count Spiridovitch of St. Petersburg spoke enthusiastically of Mr. Roosevelt.

"I have just met your President," said the General. "Little wonder is it that yours is the greatest country in the world with such a man at the head of it. I consider Theodore Roosevelt one of the brainiest men that ever lived."

STANTON ESTATE, $1,135,046.

Mrs. Stanton Receives $364,899, and the Children $243,266 Each.

The report of the appraiser of the estate of John Stanton, who died on Feb. 23, 1906, was filed in the office of the Surrogate yesterday. It shows that the estate consists of $1,135,046 in personal property. Except for some small bequests, the estate is left to the widow and three children. Mrs. Stanton's share in the estate is $364,899. Each of the children receives $243,266.

Mr. Stanton owned 5,000 shares of Ohio & Kentucky Railway Company bonds, worth $45,000; 750 shares of the Wolverine Copper Mining Company, worth $90,000; 500 shares of Copper Range, worth $40,125; 3,517 shares of the Mohawk Mining Company, worth $198,710, and $225,000 deposited with the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company.

DE CORDOVA ESTATE $100,000

Will Filed Leaves Banker's Property to His Widow and a Brother.

The will of Alfred de Cordova, the banker, who died on April 3, was filed in the office of the Surrogate yesterday. The petition shows that the estate is worth about $100,000.

A specific bequest of $50,000 is made to Eustace de Cordova, brother of the testator, and the rest of the estate is left to the widow, Helene de Cordova, who, with his brother, is named an executor of the will.

Safe in W. K. Taylor's Home Robbed.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 10.—William K. Taylor, a wealthy resident of Lawrence, L. I., this morning discovered that he had been robbed of diamonds and jewelry worth more than $3,000. The property was taken from a small safe in Mr. Taylor's library. County Detective Hulst, who questioned the servants and found them all right, is looking for a man who had been painting in the house.

Still Probing Central Wreck.

The State Railroad Commission continued yesterday its investigation of the wreck of the New York Central's White Plains express on Feb. 16, examining Joseph Steelman, an operating inspector; W. C. Meyers, an employe of the General Electric Company; Peter Mazzara, a section man, and John W. Smith, a clerk.

An Important Sale of Women's Untrimmed Hats

☞ Second Floor.

Paris Made, by the Most Noted Untrimmed Hat Manufacturers.

THE makers are J. B. Daniel and Emile Liez. In the Paris Untrimmed Hat Centre their names have the same standing that the names of Mme. Reboux, Esther Mayer and Mme. Carlier do in the Trimmed Hat world.

Every American woman who visits Paris will surely stop at one of the above shops when she wants a Hat, and if she does not purchase, will at least feel satisfied she has seen the correct styles.

This season French shapes are more in demand than ever before; first and foremost, because there are no fine braids in this market to make them from, and the French colors are more beautiful; then the extremely large shapes have not been produced by the home manufacturers—those very large "mushrooms" are what the smart dressers want to-day, and they can only be obtained from France.

We have them at half import price—

$1.95, $2.95 and $3.95

Saks & Company

Herald Square

J. GORDON BENNETT IS FINED $25,000

His Advertising Man $1,000 and The Herald $5,000 for Improper Advertising.

COMES HERE FOR SENTENCE

Court Lenient on That Account, but Calls the Herald Personals a "Public Stench."

James Gordon Bennett, owner of The New York Herald, appeared before Judge Hough in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court yesterday and was fined $25,000 on the charge of using the mails for the circulation of improper reading matter. At the same time The Herald corporation was fined an additional $5,000 and Manley M. Gillam, the advertising manager, was fined $1,000. These fines, aggregating $31,000, grew out of the publication of The Herald's column of "personal" advertisements.

The affidavit on which the warrants of arrest for The Herald men was issued was sworn to by Walter S. Mayer, a Post Office Inspector. He cited a number of "personals" in The Herald of July 15, a copy of which had been sent by The Herald Company through the mails to the "Marvin Towing Company," a mythical concern, which held Post Office Box No. 484.

The fines were imposed after pleas of guilty had been interposed to indictments charging employment of the United States mails for improper purposes.

Mr. Bennett's appearance in New York yesterday was unheralded. He came from Havana, where it is understood he left his yacht, traveling to town by rail from Tampa.

When he and Mr. Gillam entered Judge Hough's court yesterday afternoon they were accompanied by ex-Assistant United States District Attorney Joel M. Marx and ex-Assistant District Attorney William Rand, Jr., their counsel. The proceedings were brief, lasting not more than ten minutes.

Before imposing the fines Judge Hough said that Mr. Bennett had of his own volition come from Paris to plead guilty to an offense which was not extraditable under the existing treaties between the United States and France, and because of this he was entitled to some consideration at the hands of the court.

So far as Mr. Gillam was concerned, the Judge continued, he was but the advertising manager of The Herald, and had to carry out its policy of publication. Any offense that he might have committeed was not one that he primarily could be held accountable for.

But as for The Herald Corporation the Judge was not so forgiving. He said that it had continued to print objectionable advertisements long after certain other papers had ceased to do so. The objectionable "personals" he characterized as "a stench in the public's nostrils." Then he imposed the fines.

Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gillam, in the custody of United States Marshal Henkel and accompanied by their lawyers, then went before United States Commissioner Shields. There they were met by a Herald employe, who produced a large roll of bills, and stripped from it six of the $5,000 denomination and one of $1,000.

These were turned over to the Commissioner, and except for certain formalities the case of the United States Government against Bennett and others was at an end.

Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gillam immediately hurried out of the building, and entering an automobile went uptown.

HOTEL COMPANY ASSIGNS.

Concern That Ran the Gilsey House Owes $25,000.

The Broadway Hotel Company, which until recently conducted the Gilsey House at Broadway and Twenty-ninth Street, made an assignment yesterday to B. Gerson Oppenheim, a lawyer, of 265 Broadway, the deed bearing the signature of Frederick C. Simons, Secretary of the company.

The assignment was precipitated by several judgments which were obtained on Tuesday and yesterday as follows: Acker, Merrall & Condit Company, $1,998; A. H. Meyer Company, $422; Charles A. Bruhns, $330; C. Perceval, Incorporated, $769, and M. O'Brien & Son, $1,270. Executions were issued on all the judgments except the last-named one, to Deputy Sheriff Burns, who went to the hotel yesterday morning to make a levy, but found nothing to levy upon, as he was informed that the company had sold out about April 1 to Louis Frenkel. It is said that Mr. Frenkel paid $3,000 for the supplies and liquors on hand and obtained a new lease of the hotel, fully equipped, from the Gilsey estate, as he is now conducting the business.

Mr. Oppenheim said yesterday that the assignment was made to protect the creditors who had not taken out judgments, so that no one should get a preference. The liabilities are about $25,000, and he expected that the assets would be nearly equal if all the outstanding accounts were collected.

WHY TOM ENVIED HIS HORSE.

The Steed Went Into a Candy Store and Helped Himself.

When Tom Riley, son of John Riley of Belleville, N. J., went into the confectionery store of Martin Flannagan, in William Street, Belleville, yesterday, and continued through to a back room where the proprietor was unboxing some licorice sticks, he heard a noise behind him. Turning, he was surprised to see "Ted," the big bay horse which he had left standing outside, eating sweets from the top of a candy-case. Young Riley was afraid to shout at the animal for fear that it might stampede and do some damage.

Ted seemed to be having a fine time. Imitation rabbits and chickens, left over from Easter, and other things disappeared rapidly. When he had had enough, the horse left the store, walked down to the village watering trough, and took a long drink. As young Tom mounted him again he said to Flannagan, who had followed the thief:

"Gee, I wish I was a horse!"

Dr. Pontius Puhn, a veterinary who recently hung out his shingle in the town, hearing of the incident last night, said:

"Something wrong with that horse, sure. No perfectly well horse would do such a thing. Guess I'll go 'round to Riley's in the morning and examine him."

"Better pull his sweet tooth," said Flannagan.

THE INTERBORUOGH ENJOINED

Its Nineteenth Street Power House Alleged to Be a Nuisance.

Supreme Court Justice MacLean issued an order yesterday requiring the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to show cause why it should not be restrained from operating its power house in East Nineteenth Street, between Fourth Avenue and Irving Place, in such a way as to be a nuisance to people living in the neighborhood. A temporary injunction accompanies the order.

James Procter is the applicant for the order. He says that the power house is a nuisance and should be stopped. He says that when warm weather comes and doors and windows in the neighborhood are opened the noise is unbearable. He asks $500 damages.

Publishers to Meet in Richmond.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 10.—President F. P. Glass announced yesterday that the fifth annual meeting of the Newspapers and Publishers' Association will be held in Richmond, Va., on May 21 and 22.

TEACHERS TELL OF PROGRESS

Great Advances Along Educational Lines in a Brief Period.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 10.—A story of amazing progress in the educational awakening of the Southern States was told here to-day. It was not so much a matter of figures or details as of the sentiments of 250 educators gathered for the tenth annual meeting of the conference for education in the South. The atory was summed up to-night in the enthusiasm with which the delegates listened to accounts of the work. This has all been done by the people of the South, urged on by a few enthusiasts hardly known outside of educational circles.

The speeches to-night dealt with the movement for improved secondary or high schools. The General Education Board gave money about eighteen months ago to establish six full professorships in the colleges of Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama.

Three of the professors reported to-night. They were Dr. Bruce R. Payne of the University of Virginia, Prof. P. P. Claxton of the University of Tennessee, and Prof. W. H. Hand of the University of South Carolina. Dr. J. H. Kirkland, Chancellor of Vanderhilt University, Nashville, Tenn., also discussed the general problem of high school and university.

Speaking of the progress made in Virginia, Prof. Payne said that $483,000 had been provided for 168 school building improvements and teachers' salaries in the last year. In North and South Carolina the Legislatures have appropriated, since the first of the year, $50,000. In each case for school buildings, provided the people obtain an equal amount by local taxation. In the last few months the people of Georgia have donated grounds and buildings valued at $500,000 for high schools in twelve Congressional Districts. The Legislatures of Alabama and Tennessee are considering permissive legislation on the school system. In the latter State mass meetings have been held in every county, and petitions for school laws with 100,000 signatures have been sent to the Legislature. The money provided for new schools amounts to $700,000, and the school tax has been raised from 32 to 50 cents per capita.

In Georgia the campaign is being waged with the camera, the photographs showing the wretched schools in the country districts. The heighted conditions in one of these schools was illustrated by the fact that a picture of President Roosevelt was labeled "Hoke Smith." In George 222 country school buildings to cost $180,000 and twenty-two town schools costing $255,000 were provided for, and the enrollment in the public schools was increased by 20,000 in 1906. School legislation is pending in Florida.

In the last twelve months 1,000 school libraries costing $40,000 and 200 schoolhouses at a cost of $1,500,000 have been provided in South Carolina, and the attendance has increased 18,000.

After a meeting of the Committee of Nomination to-day, it became evident that Robert C. Ogden of New York would surely be re-elected President of the conference. The opinion to that effect seems to be unanimous among the delegates. They say Mr. Ogden's enthusiasm and spirit are indispensable, and that he will be honored with the presidency, even though it is coupled with the condition that he be relieved of active executive work.

Capt. R. P. Hobson of Santiago fame, and newly elected Congressman from Alabama, arrived to-day. He is to address the conference at its closing session to-morrow evening.

The services of Robert C. Ogden were recognized in the following resolution:

That the conference record its grateful recognition of the distinguished services of Mr. Robert C. Ogden, to whose wisdom and broad-minded patriotism the success of these conferences is largely due.

The following telegram from Mr. Ogden was received:

Please convey my earnest thanks to the conference for greetings and good wishes. I rejoice in prospect of great progressive work at the present meeting.

MERRILL'S ASSAILANT KNOWN.

Ex-District Attorney Says He Can't Be Caught, and Won't Tell His Name.

Former District Attorney John B. Merrill of Queens told a reporter yesterday that he knows who tried to assassinate him Sunday evening, but that it is hopeless to attempt to find the man. For that reason, he said, he will not divulge his name. Capt. Darcy and Detective Ring are still looking for Merrill's assailant.

"Extraordinary efforts have been made to prevent the pushing of the case against John Crispi, the barber," said the former District Attorney. "The threats made against me because I was connected with the case were but one part of the attempts made to frighten the girl, Rosie Giglio, from pressing her claim against Crispi.

"An attempt was even made to kidnap Rosie's baby, but that was frustrated. I know who made the attempt upon my life, but as it would be futile to try to find him I will not give his name."

Mr. Merrill's voice has its accustomed strength, but he walks a trifle feebly. He thinks a heavy overcoat which was slashed at the collar by his assailant undoubtedly saved his life.

TAKE CONSTANTINO WEST.

Five Guards for Man Accused of Killing Mrs. Gentry in Chicago.

Handcuffed to a Chicago detective and guarded by four other policemen, including two from Brooklyn, Frank Constantino, who is charged with having murdered Mrs. Arthur W. Gentry, in Chicago on Jan. 6, started West yesterday afternoon. The party is occupying the drawing room of a Pullman.

Constantino was arrested a week ago as he was about to board the steamship Roma, in Brooklyn. He then gave the name of Pasquale Gelorma, but later confessed that he was the man who was wanted for the murder of Mrs. Gentry, but denied that he murdered her. He told the Brooklyn police that Mrs. Gentry cut her own throat with a razor.

GORDON T. HUGHES DEAD.

Noted Football Player and Crack Oarsman Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Gordon Taylor Hughes, a noted football player in his career at Harvard twelve years ago, and a well-known athlete, died yesterday morning at his home, at 65 Central Park West, of heart disease, believed to have been induced by the violent exercise in which the young man has always indulged. Hughes felt the first warning pangs of the disease which carried him off last December, and at that time his physicians united in warning him against all violent forms of exertion.

At college, however, Hughes had been a crack oarsman, as well as football player, and besides had taken a prominent part in other athletics. Therefore he laughed at the advice, it is said, and continued to indulge his athletic proclivities until he was brought to his bed. Dr. Beeman Douglas of 40 East Fifty-first Street attended Hughes in his illyness, and the physician said last night that Mr. Hughes had died of enlargement of the heart. He admitted that the trouble may very probably have been brought about by too violent and continued physical exercise.

Young Hughes was a member of the law firm of Lawrence & Hughes, at 120 Broadway, and was married. The widow is a daughter of ex-Gov. Frank Brown of Maryland. She has been prostrated by the shock of her husband's death.

ASKS THAT BRYAN NAME ROOSEVELT

Proposal of John Temple Graves That Democrats Nominate the President.

MAY DO IT, SAYS BRYAN

At Present He Is Not Disposed to Accept Suggestion, But Might After Reflection.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 10.—John Temple Graves, editor of The Atlanta Georgian, was invited to speak to-night at a banquet to William J. Bryan. The toastmaster, John Tomlinson of Birmingham, met him at the railroad station and requested him not to deliver a speech he had prepared proposing that Bryan should nominate Roosevelt for re-election.

Mr. Graves declined to alter his views or to submit the speech to censorship. He put in an appearance at the banquet, but soon left. At 11 o'clock to-night, however, he was induced to return to the banquet hall, where he delivered his speech, in which he said:

"Speaking here deliberately for myself, and in my fair judgment of the great majority of the plain and honest Democrats of the Empire Southern State, from which I came, I believe that we should put the party below the people, the principle above the man. We should rebuke the spirit of spoils and the hunger of faction. We should affirm our principles, confess our faith, recite the necessity of the reform of corporate capital as the supreme and transcendent issue of the times, pay tribute to the great and typical American who has proved himself the dauntless and conquering captain of the people's cause, and then in that great convention of our own, William J. Bryan, speaking for a pure Democracy, and speaking for the whole plain people of the Republic, should put in nomination Theodore Roosevelt for one more undisputed term of power to finish the work that he has so gloriously begun."

After his speech Mr. Graves left the hall. Mr. Bryan spoke next. In beginning his address Mr. Bryan paid his respects to Mr. Graves and what he said. He complimented Mr. Graves in the highest manner for his honesty and his boldness, and said if there was any place in the world where absolute freedom of speech should prevail it ought to be in a Democratic gathering. He added that when he had heard that Mr. Graves had retired from the hall because there might be doubts about the wisdom of what he had to say, he sent for the Georgian editor to return and insisted that the speech should be delivered. Turning directly to the subject of Mr. Graves's recommendation, Mr. Bryan said:

"As at present advised, I shall not present the name of Theodore Roosevelt to the National Democratic Convention. Bear in mind, I say 'As at present advised.'"

Mr. Bryan contended that if, after mature conideration and reflection and the presentation of the arguments in the case, he should feel that his duty lay in that direction, he would present Mr. Roosevelt's name, even though it should prove to be the last act of his life.

He then went on to say that if any Republican was to be selected by the Democrats to head their National ticket, the man should Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Mr. Bryan then proceeded with his speech, presenting reasons why, in his opinion, Mr. Roosevelt was not the proper man for the Presidency.

HAGERMANN IS FOR PEACE.

New Mexico's Governor Writes, Indorsing Peace Congress.

Hayne Davis, Secretary of the Legislative Committee of the National Peace Congress to be held here next week, has received a letter from Gov. Herbert J. Hagermann of New Mexico, acknowledging the receipt of a communication suggesting that the Territorial Legislature pass resolutions relating to international arbitration.

Gov. Hagermann called attention to the fact that he was Secretary of the St. Petersburg Embassy at the time the first Hague conference was called by the Czar and he was one of the first men to know of the Czar's intentions. He declared that since that time he had taken a deep interest in the progress of the movement.

Jersey to Investigate High Prices.

TRENTON, April 10.—The House to-day passed Senator Minturn's resolution for the appointment of three Senators and three Assemblymen to sit during the recess of the Legislature as a commission to investigate the trusts and their relation to high prices of necessities. The House also passed Senator Robbins's resolution for a commission of three Senators and three Assemblymen to investigate the increased cost of the building of stone roads, to ascertain if a stone trust is extorting money from the State and county authorities.

Hornback ALLIGATOR Novelties That Are Almost Startling.

ANYBODY WHO HAS EVER SEEN the dusty and sleepy alligators on "Alligator Joe's" farm at Palm Beach would think it impossible that out of the heads and skins of 'gators such distinctly unusual, yet exceedingly stylish novelties could be produced.

Some of the new things are in a window, and more of them are in the Leather Goods Store. Heads, feet and claws have all been polished and mounted with the rest of the skins in ways that are totally different from anything ever before shown.

There are Hand Bags, Pocketbooks, Ink Wells, Whisk Broom Holders, Thermometers and other things. The fine workmanship is a feature of every piece. Prices all the way from.....50c. to $25

Mercerized Panama—Leather Shades For Coat-and-Skirt Suits, 25c.

FLYING OUT—partly because of the good weight and texture for tailored suits for warm weather and outing wear; partly because it is very unusual, this brown season, to find the smart russet and leather shades in a fabric so low-priced.

It will launder satisfactorily and is very desirable for women's suits, or for children's coats or plaited and belted frocks. One of the "going" fabrics; but now 25c. a yard.

Remarkable PICTURE VALUES.

THE BURROWES HAND COLORED PRINTS that the Picture Store is showing now at 25c. and 50c. are hard to tell from watercolor paintings that, of course, would cost many times the price.

Great variety of subjects—historical places, landscapes and copies of celebrated paintings.

We can sell them framed for 60c. to $1.50—but the small prices are no indication of their attractiveness and real excellence. Summer home furnishers especially ought to see them.

Save $150 to $300 On PIANOS of Highest Grade

THE LOESER, HELLER AND REIMAN PLAYER-PIANOS have secured a double benefit to the clientele of the Loeser Store.

They have made it possible for EVERYBODY to play the Piano—if not by hand then by aid of the perforated music roll.

They have warranted many people in exchanging first rate Pianos in splendid condition for a Player-Piano—and these exchanged Pianos are offered here from time to time at prices far below their worth.

The Sale in progress now offers, therefore, a chance which is extraordinary. Many of the Pianos concerned in it are PRACTICALLY AS GOOD AS NEW. It is hard to realize how good they are until you see them and test them and note their splendid condition.

The list that follows is given merely as an indication of the scope of the Sale. Come in and see for yourself how different this is from the ordinary sale of Pianos under price.

FORAKER RESENTS TALK BY ROOSEVELT

Declares He Will Not Submit to Dictation of Any Boss, Big or Little.

NO CONSPIRACY, HE SAYS

Enumerates Only Issues on Which He Has Differed with the President, and Tells Why.

CANTON, Ohio, April 10.—In the presence of 1,200 persons, Senator Joseph B. Foraker at the Auditorium to-night discussed published statements regarding the President's attitude toward the Senator's speeches at this time. He declared that the representatives of the people in Congress were accountable only to the people and not "properly subject to any other influence," and denied the right of any one except his constituents to call him to account. Finally he defended the business men of the country, saying what they most needed was not increased surveillance, but to be let alone.

He quoted a published report that "President Roosevelt has drawn a dead line for Senator Foraker," and that "if he attacks President Roosevelt President Roosevelt will be heard from in no uncertain tones."

Senator Foraker said:

"The wicked flee when no man pursueth. I have not forecast the character of any speeches I am intending to make, and if I had it would seem incredible to the average mind that such a story could be anything more than a mischief-making pipe dream of an overambitious correspondent.

"That the President of the United States should become personally engaged in a political contest to determine his successor is without precedent, unless it be the bad precedent set by Andrew Jackson as to Martin Van Buren.

"That he would enter upon such a struggle with a declaration that he is to set limitations upon the freedom of speech of those who may differ from him, and that they are to disregard those limitations at their peril, is without precedent even in the case of Jackson, and is so inconsistent with the dignity of his high office and the proprieties always to be observed, that I feel it a duty toward the President himself to enter for him, on my own motion, a disclaimer of all responsibility for such a publication.

"The time has not yet come, and nobody knows that better than the President himself, when 'dead lines' can be drawn in debate for anybody to observe; nor has the time come when any real man would respect them if they were drawn.

"So far as I am personally concerned, I shall always speak with malice toward none, but according to my convictions whenever and wherever I may have occasion to speak at all."

Mr. Foraker characterized as a "sort of companion piece" a published statement that the President to his friends has named as members of the combination to do him up for his attitude toward Wall Street, E. H. Harriman, J. B. Forakar, and John D. Rockefeller.

Knows of No Combination.

"In view of this publication," said Mr. Foraker, "I trust I may without impropriety say that until it was given out at Washington a few days ago I never heard tell of any combination, or trust, or conspiracy to oppose the President in anything; much less did I ever hear of the so-called 'five-million-dollar conspiracy' of which I have heard so much of during the last week.

"I trust I may be pardoned for going further and saying I never saw John D. Rockefeller but once in my life, and that was twenty years ago or more, while I was Governor of Ohio. I then had the pleasure of meeting him in connection with the ceremonies connected with the laying of the cornerstone of the Young Men's Christian Association Building at Cleveland, Ohio. With that single exception I never saw him, never spoke to him, and never communicated with him in any way, directly or indirectly.

"Mr. Harriman I have seen oftener. I have seen him three times—twice at the White House; the last time as an honored guest at the wedding ceremonies of the President's daughter. On neither of these occasions did I have any conversation with him. The only other time I ever saw him was to meet him at a dinner party given by Senator and Mrs. Depew, where Speaker Cannon and his daughter, Senator Spooner and his wife, Senator Elkins and his wife, and many others were present. Except only the brief conversation of the evening in the presence of all this company, I never communicated with him directly or indirectly on any subject whatever.

"I call attention to all this with particularity so that at the outset such wild, reckless, crazy stories may be put into the class of campaign literature where they properly belong.

"But these stories are but samples of many others, all of which taken together seem to have for their object the dissemination of the idea that I am at war with the policies of President Roosevelt. No man ever occupied the White House who has been identified with so many legislative measures as President Roosevelt. He is a tireless worker. He is constantly doing, or causing to be done, something of great importance. This is true, not only as to domestic, but also as to foreign affairs. He has been President since September, 1901, almost six years. During all that time I have supported all measures that have come before the Senate of the United States for consideration with which he was in any way identified, except only three.

"I differed from him as to joint Statehood for New Mexico and Arizona, insisting that they should not be forced into the Union as one State, unless a majority of the citizens of each Territory might so vote. The proposition I favored was adopted by Congress, and the people of the Territories voted against joint Statehood. That was a proposition about which men might well differ. There was no occasion for any bitterness of feeling in connection with its consideration; and there was none on my part, and I never heard that there was any on the part of the President.

"I was unable also to agree with the President as to conferring the rate-making power upon the Inter-State Commerce Commission, as provided in the Hepburn law, passed at the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress. I was not opposed to that proposition, however, because I did not want Governmental control and supervision of railroads engaged in inter-State Commerce, for I was among the first to advocate such a measure, but because I thought the Hepburn law in that particular was both unconstitutional and unnecessary, and that it was a long and serious step in the wrong direction as a matter of public policy.

"I did not believe, either, if Congress had the power to make rates, it had the right to delegate that power to an administrative board. Whether I was right in entertaining this opinion will be determined when the Supreme Court of the United States passes on the question, as, sooner or later, it must."

Mr. Foraker said that all the prosecutions against the railroads, the Sugar and Beef Trusts and the Standard Oil and other corporations had been brought under the Elkins law, and the Government obtained convictions speedily in all cases except where its own testimony failed, but that no suit of the kind had been brought under the Hepburn law. Continuing, the Senator said:

The Brownsville Affair.

"Another session of Congress has just closed. There were numerous measures pending and acted upon with which the President was prominently identified. So far as I can recall, I supported every one of them. There was one matter, however, about which I have taken a different stand from him. I refer to the discharge, without honor, of the members of Companies B, C, and D of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry, on account of the shooting affray at Brownsville, Texas. This was an incident, not a policy. But it was an incident of such character that I felt it my duty as a representative of the people of Ohio to do with reapect to it what I have done.

"It was charged—and the President was made to believe—that certain men of the Twenty-fifth Infantry had made a murderous midnight assault upon the sleeping men, women, and children of Brownsville; that they had 'shot up' the town, as the expression goes, and that they had killed one man and wounded another, and put in jeopardy the lives of many. He believed that this was done by a few, but that others of the battalion knew and refused to disclose the identity of the men who did it. As a result, he ordered that the whole battalion should be dismissed without honor, the innocent and the guilty alike; the guilty because they were guilty, the innocent because they could not be distinguished from the guilty.

"Among these men were old soldiers who had seen many years of service. Their services had been honest, faithful, gallant, and distinguished. One of them had served continuously for twenty-six years. In fifteen months more he could have retired on a pension for life. His service had been rendered not only on the frontiers of this country, but in Cuba, and in the Philippines. It had covered both war and peace. In all that long period not one single black mark had been registered against him. He had never been court-martialed; he had never been punished; he had never been even reprimanded. On every one of his numerous discharges it was recorded that his character was excellent, and that his services had been efficient.

Their Rights Swept Away.

"His case is but an illustration, in a little stronger degree, of many others. A number had served more than twenty years; many of them almost twenty years; all had acquired distinct and valuable rights, and all these rights were swept away from them in an instant by an Executive order, which put them all alike in common disgrace, and sent them adrift among their countrymen, whom they had done so much to defend, branded as criminals who had either participated in the shooting, or who had become accessories after the fact, by protecting criminals who had.

"No opportunity had been given to these men to be heard. It seemed to me that no man in this country was so humble that he should not have a day in court somewhere, or some time, or some place, to make his defense, confront his accusers, and refute their testimony against him, and especially should soldiers have the benefit of such a hearing. I believed that this was their right under the Constitution. I did not believe that even the President, as Commander in Chief of the army, had power to deprive them of this right. But without regard to that question I felt that they should have this opportunity.

"I secured it for them. It was a long, hard contest in the Senate, which resulted in the adoption of a resolution ordering an investigation. I spoke repeatedly in favor of the proposition, but the record will be searched in vain to find one word of disrespect toward anybody from the President down to the humblest man figuring in any way in connection with the matter. It was with me a simple, great, broad question of constitutional power on one hand and constitutional right on the other.

"It has been said that it was an effort to secure the negro vote. It tries the patience to answer such charges, but that claim might be disposed of, one would think, by the simple statement that for more than thirty years I have been honored with that vote almost to a man, and simply because, as in this case, I have always upheld their rights under the Constitution and the laws.

Thinks Investigation Justified.

"The investigation has been in progress. It is not yet completed. I would prefer not to speak of the results until they have been fully determined; but challenged as I am I do not hesitate to say that the testimony so far taken justifies the investigation. I cannot here and now analyze the testimony, but it is enough to say that the evidence already taken warrants the belief that not a man in that battalion fired a gun. I do not believe any testimony can be secured that will refute anything that has been established. I am not alone in this belief. All the officers of that command who, at the beginning were by circumstantial evidence made to believe some of their men had been participatore in the shooting, are now of the opinion—and have so testified—that all were innocent.

"But running through all this contention there is found another broad and important question. What is the office of a Senator? Is he a mere agent to register the will of somebody else, or is he supposed to have opinions of his own with liberty to stand for them in debate and when he votes?

"If he be a mere agent, why have we always tried to select for this great office men of ability and high character? Anybody could follow somebody else. And why, if a Senator have no liberty of action, should he be held accountable for the record he makes; and, if there is to be no difference of opinion, why have any discussion—or, in fact, why have any Senate or House?

"I have always understood and believed that the representatives of the people are accountable only to the people; that they are not properly subject to any other influence. For that reason I stand ever ready to render to my constituents an account of my stewardship. It is their right to have it—it is my duty to give it; and if they are diseatisfied they have a remedy for that dissatisfaction in their own hands: They can select another man.

"But while conceding the right of everybody else to differ from me, I deny the right of anybody except my constituents to call me to account. I have never held any office except by election. I have always been proud of the confidence in me so frequently manifested by the intelligent people of this great Commonwealth. I am always ready to abide by their judgment—I would not avoid or evade it if I could. Therefore it is that I propose to carry my cause directly to them whenever issues may arise in which I am interested. If they agree with me I shall be rejoiced; if not, I shall be satisfied.

Will Obey No Boss.

"But while I will thus submit my cause to the people and abide by their judgment I will not submit to the dictation or threats or menaces of any kind of a boss, big or little, inside the State or outside of it. Neither will I acquiesce without protest in what I do not approve, no matter by whom it may be proposed.

"I believe in our dual system of Government, one State and the other National; one to deal with local affairs, the other with those that are National and international. I believe that, as the business of the Government, and the duties of the Government multiply it will become more and more strikingly manifest that our fathers were wise in providing such a system, and that, instead of talking about the obliterations of State lines, we should now more than ever be careful to preserve to the States their proper rights and functions, just as we have always been zealous to protect the Federal Government in the exercise of all the powers delegated to it, either expressly or by implication.

"I believe, also, that our fathers were wise when they created three departments of Government and made them separate, independent, and co-ordinate, and that the rights of each should be jealously protected against infringement by either of the others.

"This provision is of such vital character, and has such direct relation to the public welfare and the rights and liberties of individual citizens, that no public clamor, no alleged exigency, no party considerations, no personal advantage of any kind, can justify or excuse any man who, in the discharge of a public duty, consciously disregards or violates it."

Liberty for Business Men.

Concluding, the Senator said:

"We can be proud, also, of the honor and integrity of the business men of this country. What they most need to-day is not so much an increased surveillance and guardianship of law as that liberty of action and trust and confidence in protection under the law which they have always heretofore enjoyed.

"Bad men and bad corporations and trusts there are, and always have been, and always will be, but there is also a law for their prevention and punishment, and with respect to all such let the law take its course.

"We are now enjoying the greatest prosperity we have ever known. That it is a sound and genuine prosperity is evidenced by the fact that the recent panics and heavy losses in stocks and securities have not caused the failure of a single banking or mercantile house in the whole country."

UNPOPULARITY OF FORAKER.

Cincinnati Holds Him Responsible for Street Car Conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 10.—It looks as if there would have to be a show-down by the organization by the end of next week. The only reason why Charles P. Taft has not pushed hisian for a meeting of the Executive Committee and the adoption oy it of a resolution indorsing William H. Taft, is that he has been awaiting the return of Hynicka. The party chief will be here by the beginning of next week, according to information received to-day, and Charles P. Taft will at once bring up his proposition.

It is understood that the demand will be for a meeting on Saturday of next week. Herrmann does not want it, but it is unlikely that if Taft insists Herrmann will hold out.

One of the reasons why it is hopeless to expect a Republican victory in Cincinnati under Foraker's banner is because of the street car situation. Traction here is a good deal like it is in the realm of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and the local street car trust is regarded with exactly those feelings of love and veneration which fill the breast of the Brooklynite when he thinks of the B. R. T. The "bridge jam" finds its parallel here. Foraker is held responsible for this situation, because it was he who created the street car trust in Cincinnati, which is an Elkins-Widener affair. He brought about the merger.

But, after all, it comes down, as it always does, to Roosevelt. The President carried the county in 1904 by a majority never seen here before and never likely to be seen again unless Roosevelt is a candidate.

"You are from Washington," said a member of the machine to a visitor today. "Then I take it you do not believe the White House story of a $5,000,000 conspiracy of rich men."

The visitor replied that there was nothing essentially improbable about the President's enemies having talked over a plan to beat his policies, but that the $5,000,000 part of it was a little steep.

"I thought so," said the machine man. "Well, here in Cincinnati everybody believes it, $5,000,000 and all, and Roosevelt said so they would believe it was $25,000,000.

SCOTT'S CHANGE OF VIEWS.

Assures West Virginians Taft Is Not After the Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Fresh from his visit to the President on Monday, when he renewed his vows of allegiance to Roosevelt and Rooseveltism, Senator Scott traveled straight back to his home in Wheeling, West Va., and unbosomed himself of his real sentiments on the situation in the Republican Party. In Washington Senator Scott declared he was the best kind of a friend of Roosevelt. In Wheeling he made the solemn announcement that Secretary Taft was not a candidate for the Presidency, and posed as making that declaration on the authority of Mr. Taft himself.

"Secretary Taft and I understand each other perfectly," he said. "There are no two men in the United Statcs who are socially more friendly than Secretary Taft and myself. Taft has told me for the last two years that he was not a candidate, and would not be a candidate for the nomination for the Presidency.

"I believe the best interests of the country at the present demand the nomination of a man whom everybody thinks to be conservative in the extreme. I think all will admit that we have been radical in a great deal of our legislation, and in order to establish confidence in the business world I have felt that we ought to have a candidate whom everybody would recognize as being safe."

With that Senator Scott proceeded to mention the names of a few of his friends whom he thinks "safe." He heads the list with Taft, and then follows with Fairbanks, Foraker, Shaw, and Cannon, winding up with Knox and Root.

PRESIDENT APPOINTS A NEGRO.

Tyler, Opposed by Ohio Machine, Gets a $4,000 Federal Job.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—President Roosevelt appointed Ralph Tyler, colored, of Columbus, Ohio, to a $4,000 job in time to have the announcement appear in the same columns with Senator Foraker's remarks in Canton on the Brownsville case. Tyler's appointment as Auditor for the Navy Department was announced at the White House late this afternoon. Incidentally President Roosevelt shifted W. W. Brown of McKean County, Penn., friend and lieutenant of Senator Penrose, to make a place for Tyler. Mr. Brown is transferred to an uncertain position as a special attorney for the Department of Justice at $3,000 a year. Mr. Brown was placed in the Government service by the late Senator Quay of Pennsylvania.

Tyler was selected by President Roosevelt for a fat Federal office in Cincinnati just at the time when Senator Foraker was pressing the Brownsville controversy most hotly. Vigorous protests came from Ohio and the President finally apparently abandoned his intention of giving Tyler an appointment, letting it be widely understood that the Ohio Republican organization had made it impossible for him to give any qualified colored Republican any good office in that State.

LONGWORTH FOR TAFT.

Favors His Nomination to Succeed President Roosevelt.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 10.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth returned from Washington to-day. In an interview he declared himself in favor of the nomination of Secretary Taft as the Republican candidate for President.

He said that his opinion was personal and that he spoke only for himself, but that he believed that Taft, in the eyes of the people, typified the Roosevelt administration.

"The great question before the people in the next Presidential election," he said, "will be, in my opinion, the approval or disapproval of Republican policies as registered by the legislative and executive branches of this Government for the past eight years under the Administration of President Roosevelt.

"It seems to me that after the President himself there is no living man who so thoroughly typifies in the eyes of the people the spirit of the Roosevelt Administration as William H. Taft. There is no one who can be better trusted to carry out many of the great reforms which will be necessarily incomplete upon the retirement of President Roosevelt, March 4, 1909, than William H. Taft."

LEGISLATORS FOR ROOSEVELT.

Minnesota House Condemns Attack of Harriman and His "Crowd."

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 10.—The Minnesota House of Representatives adopted another concurrent resolution to-day condemning the violent attacks made by E. H. Harriman and his "crowd" upon the President and commending the President in his heroic efforts to regulate railroad traffic and "suppress the lawlessness with which it abounds."

HARTFORD, Conn., April 10.—President Roosevelt's Administration was indorsed by a rising vote in the House of Representatives to-day, on a resolution introduced by Representative Gardiner of Southington.

BONAPARTE DEFINES WHISKY'S STATUS

Imitations Must Be Labeled as Such, and Mixtures as Compounds.

PURE FOOD LAW OPINION

Attorney General Facetiously Frames Ideal Labels for Pure and Adulterated Goods.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The long-expected opinion of Attorney General Bonaparte concerning the proper labeling of whisky under the pure food law, approved June 30, 1906, was made public at the White House to-day. Its purport is briefly told in the following letter addressed by the President to-day to the Secretary of Agriculture:

My Dear Mr. Secretary: In accordance with your suggestion, I have submitted the matter concerning the proper labeling of whisky under the pure food law to the Department of Justice. I inclose the Attorney General's opinion. I agree with this opinion, and direct that action be taken in accordance with it.

Straight whisky will be labeled as such.

A mixture of two or more straight whiskys will be labeled blended whisky or whiskys.

A mixture of straight whisky and ethyle alcohol, provided that there is a sufficient amount of straight whisky to make it genuinely a "mixture," will be labeled as compound, or compounded with pure grain distillate.

Imitation whisky will be labeled as such.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Referring to sherry, port, and Madeira, whose flavors, the Attorney General says, are distinct from each other, he points out there is an evident distinction to be drawn between them and champagne, and adds:

In the view of a chemist or physicist, champagne would doubtless be described as a "compound," for it consists essentially of a wine, of sugar, and of an aerating gas, three substances obviously "unlike." The law, however, in my opinion, does not contemplate that an article should be marked as a "blend," "compound," or "imitation" unless its designation would be otherwise "false or misleading" to the consumer; and the name "champagne" would indicate to any would-be purchaser who was ordinarily intelligent and well informed a wine artificially sweetened and aerated, or, in other words, a composite substance.

"Compound" and "blend" are substantially synonomous, the Attorney General says, when applied to mixtures of liquids, in ordinary speech, but the pure food law establishes a distinction between them, based upon the character of the ingredients.

It is my opinion, he adds, that effect will be most surely given to the evident intent of this provision of the law if it be held that "blend" as a substantive, or "blended" as an adjective, can be properly and legally used in brands or labels under the Act of 1906, only when a single substantive, either in the singular or in the plural, need follow to appropriately and adequately designats the combination. Thus we can speak of a "blend of teas" or a "blended tea," but not of a "blend of tea and coffee."

The Attorney General declares that according to the true intent of the pure food law, a mixture of whisky with a neutral spirit must be deemed a "compound" and not a "blend," although the spirit may be a distillate from the same substance used to furnish the whisky, and that such a mixture stands on the same footing as a mixture of whisky and brandy or of whisky and rum.

"The following," says the Attorney General, "seem to me appropriate specimen brands or labels for (1) 'straight' whiskey, (2) a mixture of two or more 'straight' whiskies, (3) a mixture of 'straight' whiskey and ethyl alcohol, and (4) ethyl alcohol flavored and colored so as to taste, emell, and look like whiskey:

"(1) Semper idem whiskey: A pure, straight whiskey mellowed by age.

"(2) E Pluribus Unum whiskey: A blend of pure, straight whiskys, with all the merits of each.

"(3) Modern improved whisky: A compound of pure grain distillates, mellow, and free from harmful impuritisa.

"(4) Something better than whisky: An imitation under the pure food law, free from fusil oil and other impuritiea.

"In the third specimen, it is assumed that both the whiskey and the alcohol are distilled from grain."

Edmund W. Taylor of Frankfort, the well-known Kentucky distiller, who has conducted the campaign which the straight whisky men have been making for the last five years, said:

"The decision of Attorney General Bonaparte means that 60,000,000 gallons of neutral spirits, technically known as ethyl alcohol, which each year have been used to sophisticate straight whisky by the use of chemical essences and artificial coloring matter, can no longer be sold in inter-State commerce under labels calling it 'whisky' unless that word be accompanied by the warning words 'compound' or 'imitation.'"

DEMANDS SUBWAY EXTENSION

J. R. Butler, of Merchants' Committee, Opposes Saxe's Bill.

John R. Butler of the Simpson-Crawford Company, who is a member of the Retail Dry Goods Association Committee which has been active in urging the extension of the Subway, said yesterday:

"The Retail Dry Goods Association desires the improvement of transportation in New York. Better transit means more business for merchants of all grades and and of all classes. Our progress in trade and the convenience of the public are collateral. The proposal of Senator Saxe that bids for the completion of the two legs of the Subway shall remain open for two months means, in plain words, the sheiving of the whole question until the next session of the Legislature, and this defeats the plan of the Rapid Transit Commission.

"It was originally proposed that bids be open for only two weeks, and at the end of that time the contract for construction awarded. As I have said, the postponement of acceptance of the bids defers all consideration of the subject. And who knows what the Legislature may think and do later on? It is impossible for a great city like New York to carry on its business with any decency with present transportation facilities. The public grumbles and the merchante are indignant. We had thought that all was fair sailing and the Subway problem in good shape for solution. Then comes Senator Saxe's proposition, and our hopee vanish. It is too bad."

PULITZER'S 60TH BIRTHDAY.

Staffs of His New York and St. Louis Newspapers Dine in Honor of It.

The long-distance telephone was used last night between New York and St. Louis to exchange greetings between two parties of friends of Joseph Pulitzer, whose birthday was celebrated both here and in St. Louis with dinners held at the same hour. Mr. Pulitzer, who was sixty years old yesterday, was unable to be present at either banquet, as he is now in the south of France. He had arranged the treat to his newspaper staffs. His son, Ralph Pulitzer, occupied the seat of honor at the banquet table here, at Delmonico's, while Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., sat at the head of the table at the St. Louis dinner.

Mr. Pulitzer's personal representative, Florence D. White, former city editor of The Post-Dispatch, assisted in receiving the guests at the dinner tendered to the staff of Mr. Pulitzer's St. Louis newspaper, while Don Seitz, business manager of The New York World, assisted in receiving the guests at the new York dinner.

As the list of guests had been limited to sixty at each of the dinners, only the heads of departments of Mr. Pulitzer's newspapers were present. Among those who attended the banquet at Delmonico's were Caleb A. Van Hamm, managing editor of The World; John H. Tennant, managing editor of The Evening World; William A. Thayer, night editor of The World; Charles Chapin, city editor of The Evening World; Robert Hunt Lyman, newa editor of The World, and John J. Spurgeon, city editor of The World.

The dinners were practically family affairs, the only outsider being Dumont Clarke, president of the American Exchange National Bank, who is an officer of The World Publishing Company.

Mr. Pulitzer was warmly praised in the addresses made at the dinners. The members of his newspaper staffs recalled the fact that he had taken hold of two St. Louis newspapers, The Post and Dispatch, when each was on its last legs, and, consolidating them, had produced one of the greatest newspapers of the West, and also that he had taken hold of the New York World when it was practically in the hands of a receiver and had made it a prosperous newspaper.

Each assembly of diners sent congratulatory telegrams to "J. P." as they call their chief, and each drank toasts to Mr. Pulitzer's health.

ROOSEVELT NOT NOTIFIED.

Knows Nothing of the Report That He is Expected to Visit Norway.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—"We know absolutely nothing of the matter here," said Secretary Loeb to-day, when his attention was called to the telegram from Christiania saying a newspaper there had announced that President Roosevelt, to whom the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded last year, would have to deliver a lecture in Christiania in March, 1909, in order to comply with the rulee affecting the holders of the Nobel Prizes.

United States Minister Peirce accepted the prize from the Norwegian Parliament on behalf of President Roosevelt, and forwarded it to the United States at the time it was bestowed on the President.

Melancholy Girl Kills Herself.

Melancholy over illness and over differences with her stepmother which caused her to live with her uncle, Dorothy Watson, 24 years old, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas late yesterday afternoon at 684 East 157th Street. Her uncle, Gustave Miller, and his wife returned at evening and found her dead. The police of the Morrisania Station did not learn of the suicide until late last night, when Dr. Foley of 600 East 156th Street, who was called in, reported it.

VICTORY FOR OIL TRUST.

Court Holds Shippers Need Not Go to Washington for Rates.

CHICAGO, April 10.—In the rebate case before Judge Landis to-day, the court, as he intimated yesterday he would do, announced that the Standard Oil Company would be allowed to produce evidence showing that the company did not intend to violate the law in the acceptance of unlawful rates.

"The question as presented to my mind," said Judge Landis, "shows that the defense may make any showing of facts to excuse the shipper, it being shown that the defendant applied to the carrier for rates, and was induced to believe that the 6-cent rate was lawful.

"The question is where the shipper must go to procure rates. Bearing in mind that the Inter-State Commerce law was not passed to obstruct the commerce of the country, but to emancipate it, I hold that the shipper need not go to the Inter-State Commerce Commission for rates, but may do business with the carrier. There is no escape from that conclusion unless commerce is to be tied up and shippers driven to Washington for the lawful rates."

When the taking of testimony was resumed Attorney Rosenthal, for the defense, said to the court:

"We propose to show by Mr. Bogardus, traffic manager of the Standard Oil Company, that many thousands of cars of oil were shipped from Whiting to East St. Louis by the Standard Oil Company over the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway under the 6¼-cent rate and that it could have shipped all its oil over the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Road."

These latter facts, the defendant's counsel said, were conclusive proof that the Standard Oil Company could have no motive for asking special rates from the Chicago & Alton Railway Company when it might avail itself of a lawful rate over another line at no greater cost.

In reply to a question put to him by Attorney Miller of the defense Judge Landis said:

"I am going to charge the jury, if we ever come to the point of charging the jury, that Bogardus is chargeable with the knowledge that he could have got at the Alton offices. This is the view at which I have arrived after a great deal of time, if not after a great deal of diligence. If I am wrong, I am hopelessly wrong. It remains to be shown what Bogardus could have got if he had gone to the Chicago & Alton offices."

TAFT DISAPPOINTS CUBAN LIBERALS

Issues a Statement, in Which He Refuses to Suggest Date for Elections.

SECRETARY LEAVES CUBA

Says He Has Spent the Four Busiest Days of His Life and Is Worn Out —Serious Drought in the Island.

HAVANA, April 10.—Secretary Taft gave out the following statement, addressed to Gov. Magoon, to-night:

"After having conferred with committees of the Liberal, Conservative, and Republican Parties and leading men of the community, including lawyers, bankers, and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and others, and after full discussion of the situation with you, Gen. Barry, and Consul General Steinhart, I make the following recommendations, having in view the circumstances making intervention necessary:

"The question now arises: When shall the elections be held? The Advisory Commission appointed to draft electoral, municipal, judiciary, and civil service laws, composed of three Americans, four Liberals, and four Conservatives, declared to me that it was impossible to hold fair elections until a census had been taken, and this view has been strengthened by assurances from all political parties. All the parties, through the committees, have expressed the view that the wisest course will be to hold a preliminary election to test the electoral law and the tranquillity of the country.

"The Liberals urge that this be for municipal and provincial officers, while the Conservatives insist that it ought to be limited to municipal officers, but they agree in holding a preliminary election. The Liberal Party expresses the view that a census can be completed in four months, and that provincial and municipal elections may, therefore, be held in September.

"The Conservative Party expresses no opinion as to the time required for the taking of a census, but it insists upon great care, and that the registration lists founded upon the census should be subjected to a severe and impartial judicial scrutiny, as proposed by the advisory commission, and that the preliminary election shall be held a reasonable time after the completion of the census. The Liberal Party, holding that the preliminary election should take place in September, recommends that the Presidential and Congressional elections be held the 31st of next December, and that the regular constitutional period shall elapse thereafter before the reassembling of the Electoral College to name Senators and the President. The members of this college will be elected at the general elections. According to the Constitution this electoral college will not convene until 100 days after the general election.

"The Liberal Party suggests that the new Congress shall meet to receive the vote of the election for President in time to permit of his inauguration on May 20, 1908, the anniversary of the inauguration of the first Cuban President.

"The Conservatives insist that this preliminary election is in the nature of an experiment and that three months is not a sufficient interval to determine whether this experiment has been a success, and they recommend that not less than six months elapse between the preliminary and the Presidential and Congressional elections.

"1. It is hardly necessary to reiterate that the position of President Roosevelt is exactly what it was when the first proclamation was issued establishing a provisional government under the Platt law in this island, to wit: That Cuba must be turned over to a Cuban Government, fairly elected, so soon as the conditions of tranquility in the country permit and the stability of the Government established shall be assured.

"2.—I do not think four months a sufficient time for the taking of a census necessary for an election. It would be most unwise, therefore, to fix a definite date for the holding of a preliminary election. All that can be done and all that ought to be done is to declare that the census be taken in as short a time as possible, making the census thorough, fair, and complete for electoral purposes, and an announcement that the preliminary election shall be held within such period thereafter as may afford a reasonable time for complying with all the requirements of the new electoral law.

"3. The municipal and provincial elections, which, in a sense, are local, should be held at the same time. I have already expressed the opinion that the elections by which the present provincial authorities were brought into power were attended with such irregularity that the resignations of these officials should be at the service of the Government, although the present conditions justify the maintenance of the de facto status of these officials so long as they conduct themselves properly, rather than an indiscriminate removal of them, with the possible excitement and controversy likely to attend the election of their successors. Still, the question of the proper policy to pursue in regard to the present provincial officers is a matter which is in your hands for decision, but it is certain that so soon as the present conditions as to provincial officials can be cured by election, that election should be held, and, therefore, both municipal and provincial elections should be held as preliminary elections.

"It is true that at the provincial elections provincials will be elected constituting one-third of the Electoral College to vote for Senators, but at the national elections there will be elected two-thirds of the members of this same college, and, therefore, the selection of a provincial council will have comparatively little bearing on the national elections.

"4. Three months may not be sufficient time in which to test the questions of tranquility and the success of the experimental preliminary election, therefore, our declaration should not be more limited than that the national election shall be held within six months after the preliminary election.

"5. It is of course proper to comply with the constitutional requirement regarding an interval of 100 days between the Congressional and Presidential elections and the voting by the Electoral College, the assembling of Congress, and the inauguration of the new President. The Government will then devolve upon the newly elected President and Congress.

"6. The carrying out of this plan, of course, is strictly dependent on the tranquility of the country, which must continue through two elections, and which must given assurance of the stability of the new Government, because without this the United States would not be discharging the obligation devolving upon it by reason of the intervention.

"7. It is in the interest of the business prosperity of the island that this plan be made public. I have submitted the substance of this letter to President Roosevelt. He approves it and he has instructed me to direct this communication to you. WILLIAM H. TAFT."

Immediately after the giving out of this communication Mr. Taft went on board the Mayflower, accompanied by Gov. Magoon, Minister Morgan, and Consul General Steinhart. As soon as the Governor and his party left the Mayflower that vessel steamed out of the harbor, bound for Porto Rico.

Secretary Taft this afternoon said that he had been through four of the busiest days of his life, and that he was completely worn out. He spent a busy morning receiving committees which he summoned and others which asked for appointments.

Gen. Rodriguez, Chief of the Cuban armed forces, was closeted with Mr. Taft for an hour, discussing the advisability of an increase of the strength of the Rural Guard to 10,000.

S. P. McGivney, a contractor of New Jersey, who for several years has had a $13,000,000 contract for sewering and paving Havana, was received by Mr. Taft and asked that the matter be settled. Mr. McGivney refused to make any statement to the press, but those who accompanied him said Mr. Taft took the ground that the matter was one for the future Cuban Government to settle.

Secretary Taft sent for the chiefs of the American departments and congratulated them on the manner in which they were conducting their offices.

Mr. Taft spent this afternoon in consultation with private individuals. He was closeted for half an hour with the Presidential candidate of the Liberal Party, José Miguel Gomez. Señor Gomez declined to speak of the matters discussed at this conference.

Secretary Taft this evening conferred with President Roosevelt by means of a special wire.

AMERICANS IN ENGLAND.

More of Them Patronizing the London Shops Than Formerly.

Special Cablegram.

Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 10.—Another batch of Americans from the Continent reached London to-day, and, mingling with those who arrived earlier in the week, made a good American showing in West End shops. There is an impression here that Americans are reserving more of their shopping for London than was formerly the case.

To-day's arrivals include E. de P. Livingston of New York and W. H. Holbrook of Boston, at the Savoy, and E. Martin Philippi, Mrs. Gibbs and the Misses Louise and Sara C. Gibbs, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Quigley of New York, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Phelps, Mrs. Howard Edwards, Mrs. Alexander McGregor of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ferrine of Cincinnati, at the Cecil.

There sailed on the Oceanic to-day the Misses Hannah and Dorothy Randolph, Miss Juliana Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scribner of New York, Mrs. W. H. Slater and R. A. Beal of Boston.

Mrs. Marshall Field and her family have gone to the Isle of Wight, where young Marshall Field, who is not very well, will rest for several weeks.

Child of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Ill.

PARIS, April 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mortimer and their family of New York, who were to sail from Cherbourg to-day, postponed their departure from Paris at the last moment owing to the illness of their nine-year-old child.

TANGIER, April 10.—After three months' strenuous labor at a cost of $2,500 a day, the Shereefian troops have succeeded in capturing Rais Uli's two negro scullery maids.

The prisoners were brought to Tangier to-day with a strong escort of cavalry and infantry, the procession resembling a Roman triumph.

The Minister of War is elated by this conspicuous and unexpected success.

SUPPRESS PEACE PLACARD.

Action of Prussian Police—Turkey Removes One Hague Hitch.

ALTONA, Prussia, April 10.—The local police to-day suppressed a placard of the German Peace Society, the contents of which were favorable to the purposes of The Hague Conference.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 10.—An imperial iradé was issued to-day authorizing the ratification of the convention drawn up by the First Peace Conference at The Hague.

Although Turkey attended, through delegates, the first Peace Conference, the Ottoman Government had never ratified the treaty that followed.

The question arose as to whether Turkey's assent was necessary to the admission of the South American States to the Second Conference, as the first convention can only be adhered to by newcomers with the assent of every one of the powers that signed the original treaty. As Turkey had never ratified the treaty it was not certain whether she could be regarded as a signatory power. All doubts are now set at rest by the action just taken at Constantinople.

NEW JERUSALEM RABBI.

Sultan Deposes Jacob Meir—Great Excitement in Palestine.

LONDON, April 10.—The Jewish World says that Jacob Meir, the Chief Rabbi at Jerusalem, has been deposed, and that Elyahu Panisel has been appointed by the Sultan to succeed him.

The reason for the deposition of Meir is that he was supported by the Reformers at Jerusalem, and consequently his election offended the extreme Orthodox sections. The new Chief Rabbi was escorted into Jerusalem by soldiers and police.

The occurrence has caused great excitement in Jerusalem and throughout Palestine.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PEKING, April 10.—M. Hayashi, the Japanese Minister, has officially informed the Chinese Foreign Office that all the Japanese troops, with the exception of the railroad guards, have been withdrawn from Manchuria.

BRUSSELS, April 10.—It is now believed that the threatened Ministerial crisis has been definitely averted, the Right Party, at a meeting held to-day, having come to an agreement upon the question of the limitation of hours of labor in the mines.

PARIS, April 10.—Ambassador Whitelaw Reid is passing through Paris on his way to London. His health greatly improved during his sojourn at Biarritz.

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 10.—The American Minister, John Hicks, will leave Santiago for his home in Oshkosh, Wis., next month.

SHANGHAI, April 10.—It is said that the reorganized navy of China is to have four bases, one on Chang-Chew Island, another in the Mia-Tao Group, a third in the Chu-San Archipelago, and a fourth on Hainan Island. The scheme involves an appropriation of 12,000,000 taels (about $8,000,000) annually for the construction of new, moderate-sized armored cruisers, a number of torpedo boats, and a dozen submarines.

COUSIN OF CZAR ESCAPES AGAIN

Attempt to Kill Grand Duke Nicholas on a Railway Journey Fails.

DUMA DEFIES STOLYPIN

Golovin Sends a Letter to the Premier Asking by What Law He Makes Demands on Parliament.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 10.—It was announced to-day that another attempt on the life of the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, President of the Council of National Defense and a second cousin of Emperor Nicholas, had been foiled.

The Grand Duke, accompanied by his brother, the Grand Duke Peter Nicholaievitch, was returning from Tsarskoe-Selo by train at 2 o'clock this morning. When the train reached Kuzmino, thirteen miles from St. Petersburg, it was brought to a sudden stop by a fusillade of shots from the track side. A sentry was interrogated, and said he had seen four men hiding behind an embankment and evidently awaiting the coming of the train. He at once began shooting, firing in all twelve shots. The four men succeeded in getting away uninjured.

Every foot of the remainder of the track into St. Petersburg was carefully searched before the two Grand Dukes ventured to complete their journey.

The attempt on the life of the Grand Duke Nicholas, who is under sentence of death by the Terrorists, bears a striking resemblance to the attempt made to kill him on Feb. 27. On this occasion also the scene was the railroad between Tsarskoe-Selo and St. Petersburg. A guard patrolling the track near the station at this end of the line caught a man dressed as a workman in the act of placing a wooden box in the middle of the track. When he saw the guard the man fled, and, jumping into a cab, made his escape. The box on the track was found to contain an infernal machine of great power.

A train bearing 340 political exiles left here to-day for Siberia. This is the largest consignment of political prisoners sent to the East for several months, and is a result of the efforts to clear the prisons in view of the expected raising of martial law.

Premier Stolypin's attempt to limit the competence of the lower house of Parliament by forbidding its committees to obtain statistics from the Zemstvos and avail themselves of outside expert advice has been defied by the House. President Golovin has written a curt letter to the Premier asking him on what ground and under what law he is entitled to address such demands to the Imperial Parliament. The law, says M. Golovin, contains a paragraph authorizing the lower house of Parliament to interpellate the Ministers, but nowhere is there a statement of a reciprocal right on the part of the Ministers toward the House.

The Budget Committee decided with only two adverse votes to defy the Premier's order and to invite experts to assist in the consideration of the budget.

The actions of the President Golovin and the Budget Committee were taken after a long conference between the President and the leaders of all the parties in Parliament except the Extreme Right. They bring the issue squarely before the Cabinet.

MORE RUMORS OF POGROMS.

Stories of the Sacrifice of Christian Children Revived.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 10.—The reactionary papers have revived the old stories of the disappearance of Christian children for use in sacrifices at the time of the Jewish Passover.

This has started rumors of anti-Jewish outbreaks at the Russian Easter, April 28.

MOSCOW, April 10.—The Governor General has expelled from Moscow the editor of the Veche, a reactionary organ, and has suspended the paper for attempts to incite the lower classes against the Jews, students, and Liberals.

M. Tchetverkoff, the son of a local millionaire, has been sentenced to eight months' imprisonment for concealing mutinous proclamations.

LODZ, April 10.—A panic was started among the Jewish population here this morning by a man who commenced indiscriminate shooting at young Jews who were passing in the street.

Two of them were killed and three were wounded before the shooter disappeared. He has not been identified.

EKATERINOSLAFF, April 10.—The well known Briansk Iron and Steel Works have been closed, owing to turbulence among the workmen, which culminated recently in the murder of the Assistant Manager of the works.

The buildings are now surrounded by troops. Most of the capital invested in this establishment is foreign.

20,000,000 FAMINE-STRICKEN.

Dr. Kennard Finds a Frightful Situation in Russia.

LONDON, April 10.—Dr. Kennard, Commissioner of the Society of Friends, who was sent to investigate the Russian famine, writing from Samara, in the heart of the famine district, under date of April 3, appeals to the United States and Great Britain promptly to send help. He said: "There are 20,000,000 people distributed in the southeastern provinces of Russia who cannot live to see another harvest without aid."

In Samara alone, the Commissioner adds, thousands are dying and 750,000 are starving. Of the latter only 372,700 are getting relief, a dole of one meal in twenty-four hours. As a meal is only two pounds of bread and a bowl of soup, this, according to the Commissioner, means dying by degrees. Even this meagre dole in countless instances is divided among many mouths. There are only sufficient funds on hand to last until May 1, whereas money will be needed until the end of July, when the harvest will bring relief.

The Commissioner especially appeals for canned milk. He says there are 300,000 children in Samara Province who have no milk and are forced to eat coarse bread made of acorns, powdered wood and cucumbers, resulting in thousands of deaths and much disease.

In conclusion, the Commissioner appeals to the Anglo-Saxons for $2,500,000 to save "twenty millions of human beings who are dying lingering deaths from starvation."

JAPAN WILL AID TURKEY.

Embassy at Constantinople Will Prevent Russian Aggression.

LONDON, April 10.—The establishment of a Japanese Embassy at Constantinople is assured, according to The Pall Mall Gazette, although Russia is understood to be doing her utmost to prevent it.

It is pointed out that the advent of a Japanese Embassy on the Bosphorus will give Turkey a new lease of life and practically dispose of all notions of the partition of the Ottoman territory, as it will be to the common interest of Turkey and Japan to support each other in the event of any attempt on the part of Russia to overstep her present frontiers, either southward or eastward.

SILENT ABOUT SWETTENHAM.

British Government Refuses to Give Details of His Resignation.

LONDON, April 10.—The Unionists in the House of Commons made a further attempt to-day to obtain information from the Colonial Office relative to Sir Alexander Swettenham's resignation of the Governorship of Jamaica and the connection of the incident involving Rear Admiral Davis with the Governor's resignation.

The Under Secretary for the Colonies, Mr. Churchill, said he thought that no advantage would be gained by entering into details at present.

GEN. CHRISTMAS SLAIN IN BATTLE

Daredevil American Cut to Pieces by Nicaraguan Soldiers.

WAS A RAILWAY ENGINEER

Caused Several Wrecks by His Recklessness and Then Went to Honduras—Trusted by Bonilla.

MOBILE, Ala., April 10.—Octavius Gallardo, Collector of Customs and Postmaster at the captured town of Trujillo, Honduras, arrived here last night on the steamer Belize from Belize, British Honduras.

Just as the steamer left Belize four days ago a letter was handed to Señor Gallardo stating that Gen. Lee Christmas, the American army officer in the service of Honduras, had been cut to pieces by Nicaraguan soldiers. The letter gave no details of the fight in which Christmas was killed.

The letter stated that there was no hope for the Bonilla Government, and Bonilla was doomed to death if he did not get out of the country.

News was brought here by passengers on the steamer that Bonilla was not at Amapala, but was hiding in Salvador. This report is said to be authentic.

Gallardo was accompanied by his secretary, Roman Gonzales. They effected their escape from Trujillo two days before the place was captured by the Nicaraguans. They succeeded in carrying away $14,000 of the Government's money, which was placed in safe keeping at Belize.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 10.—Gen. Christmas was a resident of this place for a number of years before going to Central America. His divorced wife and two children reside here.

He was an engineer on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroad, and in the words of one who formerly worked by his side, he "was the daredevilest, fearest, and bravest man that ever pulled a throttle." This spirit cost him his job with the railroad. Christmas had orders to meet another train on a siding and took a chance to make the next station beyond. When he saw the other train coming he whistled a distress signal and "pulled her wide open," racing at full speed right into the head of the other train. Both engines and every car were reduced to splinters, but all the hands jumped and none was hurt.

Coming to Memphis, he got another job with the Illinois Central and was sent to have his eyest tested. The oculist found a vital defect in his vision and told him he would eventually go blind. Christmas returned to his room and tried to kill himself. Recovering from his wounds, he found that his wife had entered suit for divorce. Crushed by his grief, he left for Mexico, and was next heard of as an engineer on the Mexican Central. He was in several wrecks caused by his own recklessness and, being discharged, went to Honduras, where he was again an engineer. When a revolution arose he served in the army.

FIFTEEN BURNED IN LISBON.

Destruction of Apartment House Said to be Due to Incendiaries.

LISBON, April 10.—Fire started to-day in an apartment house near the Central Market, occupied by eighteen families. Fifteen persons lost their lives. Several firemen were badly burned while looking for bodies. Among the corpses brought out from the ruins were those of a mother with her two children clasped tightly in her arms.

The police believe it to be a case of arson and they have arrested three persons on suspicion. It is said that several tenants of the house recently took out insurance policies for sums largely in excess of the value of their goods.

The King and Queen visited the scene of the disaster.

HUGHES TO INSPECT STATE INSTITUTIONS

Moreland Bill Expected to Furnish a Powerful Aid to Housecleaning.

MACHINE MEN IN A PANIC

Measure, If Passed, Will Empower a Commissioners to Investigate State Departments.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—With the announcement to-day that Assemblyman Sherman Moreland, majority leader in the lower house, will introduce a bill within a couple of days empowering the Governor to appoint a Commissioner to undertake a thorough investigation of all the State departments, and that the Governor has planned to make a personal tour of inspection of all the State institutions after the Legisleture has adjourned, the full scope of Mr. Hughes's housecleaning programme, which began with the recommendation that State Superintendent of Insurance Kelsey be removed, has become known.

The proposed wholesale investigation has thrown the machine leaders here into a state of panic. They realize that with men of the Governor's own choice to man the commission light will be let into places which the underworld of State politics has had undisturbed possession of for twenty years or more. There are half a dozen State departments, according to information from trustworthy sources, where an investigation would reveal a condition of affairs that would involve in a scandal of the first magnitude some of the most powerful machine leaders in this State.

The Moreland bill will vest the proposed commission with powers so ample that there must be a complete "opening of the books." The commission which, under the proposed measure, the Chief Executive will have power to appoint at periods of three-year intervals, will have full authority to look into the handling of State funds in the various departments, working methods, bookkeeping, the fitness of employes, and whether the departments in a general way are administered with economy and regard for the interests of the people.

With the commission's report, the Governor expects to have in his hands material not only for the correction of abuses that now exist, but also for the inauguration of a policy of constructive reform. It is known that particularly in regard to the financial policy of the State, which in the past has involved methods in many respects so slipshod that it would have brought any financial institution to utter ruin in short order, the Governor has had many conferences with Senator Armstrong, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and that as a result the work of reform in that department can be said already to be under way.

That the reorganization which would follow an investigation would play havoc with the patronage now enjoyed by many of the Republican bosses in the State is generally admitted. Half a dozen heads of the State Departments are providing soft snaps for their retainers, and it is largely through this patronage that they have been able to retain the hold on their districts.

Another thing that it would not take the committee long to bring to light is the fruitful source of graft furnished to some of the leaders in connection with contracts for supplies. In the State Charts Department and the Department of State Prisons conditions are likely to come to light which will call for radical reforms. The same is true, though perhaps in a lesser degree, in regard to other State departments, with possibly a few exceptions.

Gov. Hughes declined this evening to discuss for publication his plans either for the investigation of the State departments or his tour of inspection of the State institutions. He has discussed both freely with his friends, however.

The Kelsey case will be taken up again to-morrow, with the Senate Judiciary Committee. The witnesses to-morrow will be ex-Attorney General Mayer and Henry D. Appleton. Mr. Kelsey's First Deputy, and John S. Paterson, the Insurance Department Actuary. On Friday, some insurance officials from New York will be heard. At Friday's session, ex-Judge Edward W. Hatch, Mr. Kelsey's chief attorney, will make his final summing up. The testimony will be printed and distributed among the Senators at the session on Monday night.

Chairman Davis of the Senate Judiciary Committee said to-night that the committee would take up discussion of the testimony at its executive session on Tuesday, and that the final report would be made to the Senate in the coming week.

POLLUTION OF THE HUDSON.

Health Board Reports on the Section Between Glens Falls and Waterford.

ALBANY, April 10.—Pollution of the waters of the upper Hudson River is the subject of a partial report by the State Health Department, included in its monthly bulletin, just published. It considers the section of the river between the upper limits of the village of Glens Falls and Waterford, at the mouth of the Mohawk River.

Summarizing the results of its investigation thus far, the department says:

"At a point just above Waterford the drainage area of the Hudson is 4,021 square miles and the population on the drainage area is 216,885, giving a population per square mile of 47. The population connected with sewers discharging into streams is 45,270, which, if 2 per cent. of the residential population (a conservative estimate) are considered to directly pollute the streams, gives a total population polluting the river and tributaries of 48,700, or 22.5 per cent. of the total population on the watershed.

"In respect to manufacturing wastes, it was found that at least 185,430 pounds of chemicals and dyestuffs are used daily in manufacturing establishments along the river and tributaries above Waterford, wastes from which are discharged into streams."

TRANSFER BILL HELD UP.

Railway Company Gets a Hearing from the Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—The Francis bill, compelling the issue of transfers from the elevated road to the Subway at Sixty-sixth Street, New York, was sent back to the Railroads Committee to-day for a hearing, following a reconsideration of the vote by which it was passed Monday night.

This unusual procedure was taken at the request of George W. Morgan, attorney for the Interborough interests at Albany, who wished for a hearing. Following the hearing of his objections the bill was reported out again, and will probably be passed again.

INSURANCE BILLS DRAWN.

Armstrong Committee Members to Press Two—One Affects Elections.

ALBANY, April 10.—As the result of several conferences held by the remaining members of the Armstrong Insurance Investigating Committee of 1905, two bills were decided upon to-night to be introduced to-morrow by Senator Fancher and Assemblyman Rogers, designed to strengthen and perfect the Armstrong insurance law.

The principal bill would empower the Superintendent of Insurance to prepare an official ballot, prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct of elections in mutual companies, abolish voting by proxy, and prohibit the use of the company's money except for purposes prescribed.

The second bill repeals the rebating provision and substitutes an immunity section to compel witnesses to testify, but granting them immunity from subsequent use of their testimony against themselves.

Suggestions as to needed amendments were submitted by Gov. Hughes.

DUELL BILL REPORTED.

Measure Provides That Owners' Names Must Appear in Newspapers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—The Assembly General Laws Committee reported out the Duell bill to-day, which provides that after July 1, "every newspaper, magazine, or other periodical printed in this State shall publish in every copy of every issue upon the outer cover at the head of the editorial page, the full name and address of the owner or owners of the publication, and if the owner be a corporation, then the names of the corporation and the address of its principal place of business, together with the full name and address of the President, Secretary, and Treasurer thereof."

Bill for 5-Cent Fares Reported.

ALBANY, April 10.—Assemblyman Wagner's bill calling for 5-cent fares generally, which it is believed would compel a 5-cent fare to Coney Island, was reported out by the Railroad Committee of the Assembly to-day.

ALBANY INSURGENTS SCORE.

Rebellious Senators Have Their Way with Two Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—The insurgent element in the Senate asserted itself again to-day, and, as on previous occasions when the insurgents have gone to the front, carried off the victory. At to-day's session their fire was divided between Senator Armstrong, Chairman of the Finance Committee, who has managed to incur their particular dislike, and Senator Raines, majority leader in the Upper House.

Chairman Armstrong reported out the Hooker bill providing for a commission to inquire into good roads during the Summer, but it was sent back to committee to be considered with a bill of Senator Cobb, one of the leaders of the rebels.

The other fight came over Senator Agnew's bill providing for a commission of three to lay out the proposed Bronx River Boulevard.

Senator Owens, who represents the district of Percy Negle in the Upper House, asked Senator Agnew, as sponsor of the bill, to consent to an amendment by which Harold E. Nagle, the son of his leader, would be named as the Manhattan Commissioner on the proposed enterprise. Three Commissioners are named in the bill—James G. Cannon, David Hennen Morris, and Madison Grant. Agnew would not consent and Senator Raines went to the front for him. After a debate the amendment proposed by Owens was carried by a vote of 23 to 11.

Already the insurgent element, made up of Republicans and Democrats alike, is assuming the proportions of a third party in the Upper House, which may become a powerful factor against the Old Guard should they be brought to take a stand on the Hughes reform programme.

HUGHES DENIES A STORY.

Did Not Refuse to See Clergymen Having Affidavits to Present.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—The newspapers of William R. Hearst this morning printed a story about the gambling evil in Albany, which is considered here to have been published for the purpose of showing that some clergymen, who had affidavits to present to Gov. Hughes, charging neglect on the part of the local officials to enforce the anti-gambling law, had been turned away from the Executive Chamber.

The clergyman who figured as the central figure in the story was the Rev. Edward S. Gregg, Field Secretary of the International Reform Bureau, who at the last session of the Legislature was identified with the agitation in favor of the Cassidy-Lansing Anti-Race Track bill, which was defeated after it had been denounced by the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer and others in New York.

Gov. Hughes, when questioned about the story, said:

"No affidavit has been presented to me, nor as far as I know has any attempt been made to present any. My attitude in this and similar matters should be perfectly well known by this time. I stand ready at any hour, night or day, to receive evidence of official wrongdoing.

"If affidavits are presented charging violation of the law, I will transmit them to the proper official whose duty it is to enforce the law. If any citizen afterward should present evidence to me of a nature enabling me to proceed on it under the Constitution to show that he has not enforced the law, I will deal with him according to my sworn duty."

RECOGNIZES OSTEOPATHS.

Medical Unification Bill Is Passed by the Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—The Assembly passed the Medical Unification bill to-day. Not a word was spoken against it. By this bill the Board of Medical Examiners will consist of nine members. Three homeopaths, three allopaths, and three of the eclectic school will be chosen if the agreement between the three schools holds good.

Osteopathy is officially recognized by the State in the bill, something osteopaths have been fighting for for years. By the terms of the measure, about 350 osteopaths become eligible to apply for licenses, but those who enter osteopathy following the enactment of the bill will have to undergo rigid tests and produce evidence of a certain amount of study.

After 1910 the applicant for an osteopath's license must show that he has studied not less than four years, including four satisfactory courses of not less than seven months each "in a college maintaining at the time a standard satisfactory to the Regents."

ROAD THROUGH CEMETERY.

Assembly Passes a Bill Permitting Invasion of Cypress Hills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—After a hot fight in the Assembly to-day the Degroot bill permitting the cutting of a street through a section of Cypress Hills Cemetery was passed.

It was charged that it was a real estate scheme. Degroot of Queens declared this false, and said that the road was needed for the development of Queens commercial interests.

Assemblyman Goldberg of New York objected on the ground that the graves of Jewish people would be disturbed.

Power Over Deputies for Leary.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 10.—Superintendent of Election Leary will have power to grade the salaries of his 100 deputies if the Robinson bill, passed in the Assembly to-day, gets through the Senate and is approved by the Governor. The measure provides that the Superintendent may pay his deputies from the minimum $900 to the maximum $1,200 as the annual salary.

PEACE CONFERENCE WITH TEACHERS OFF

Board Kills Plan to Stop Flood of Suits Brought by Teachers.

MILLION LOST LAST YEAR

Charity Societies Protest That Giving Eyeglasses to Pupils Pauperizes Them.

Commissioner Wilmer tried to induce the Board of Education yesterday to hold a peace conference with the school teachers, but the board balked. Mr. Wilmer argued that the only way to put a stop to the litigation that is overwhelming the board is to take teachers with grievances into its confidence. Then he asked for the appointment of a committee of five to confer with the teachers' organizations on the advisability of establishing an arbitration commission. The matter was referred to the By-laws Committee, where it will probably sleep.

Mr. Wilmer several weeks ago presented a plan to the board for the establishment of an arbitration commission. But the board didn't take it seriously and it was defeated by a heavy vote. Nothing daunted, Mr. Wilmer told the Commissioners that he would have peace, and so yesterday he asked for the Conference Committee as an initial step.

"My mind has changed recently," said Mr. Wilmer. "I used to feel harshly toward teachers who were pursuing the board. I still feel that way toward those who are pursuing us unjustly, but for the others I have more regard. It is terrible to think that we must be fighting the teachers. The teachers lose heart and the children lose heart.

"Last year we lost over $1,000,000 in law suits, and we are suits amounting to $1,500,000 that are now pending. Many of the women who are bringing these suits are urged to do so by former members of the board. Let us confer with these teachers. Many of them are better than we; certainly better than I. I merely want a Conference Committee. I think 99 per cent. of the teachers will favor this."

"Mr. Wilmer's ideas are good enough but they can't be worked out," declared majority leader Stern. "They would be all right for a private institution, but we are a legislative body bound hand and foot by the charter. The teachers are amply protected. They have no just grievance against us. There are other claims than money claims that teachers fight for."

Commissioner Man indorsed Mr. Wilmer's proposal. "Such a commission could also handle such a question as making a new salary schedule," said Commissioner Dresser. "This would save the necessity of the teachers going to Albany to get legislation over our heads."

Commissioner Guggenheimer moved that the matter be referred to the By-laws Committee. This was done by a vote of 17 to 13.

The Board was to have voted yesterday on a plan of its Elementary Schools Committee of furnishing eyeglasses to school children with defective vision, but the matter was laid over. Many charitable institutions have requested the Board to hold a general hearing on the subject. The hearing was set for April 19.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor sent a communication declaring that the proposition would have a "demoralizing and pauperizing effect." The Children's Aid Society wrote that from experience it had had in distributing eyeglasses among its pupils it knew that the educational authorities would have great difficulty in compelling the pupils to wear the glasses.

The Board decided to request the Secretary of the Navy to lend the gunboat Newport to the city for the use of the New York Nautical School, the present school ship St. Mary's being obsolete.

JEFFERSON DINNER SPEAKERS

Democratic Club's Chief Orator Will Be Senator Rayner.

At the dinner of the Democratic Club in celebration of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson at the Waldorf-Astoria on next Saturday evening Senator Isidor Rayner of Maryland will be the principal speaker. His subject will be, "What should be the proper policy of the Democratic Party, and What is True Democracy?" Col. George Harvey will speak on "A Lesson from the Scripture," in which he will make some reference to President Roosevelt and recent sensational incidents. Martin W. Littleton's topic will be "Looking Backward and Forward at Democracy."

The keynote of the dinner will be conservative. John Fox will preside. There has already been a large demand for seats, and it is expected that 400 will be present. Andrew Freedman is in charge of the arrangements for the dinner.

No Jefferson Dinners for Chanler.

ALBANY, April 10.—Lieut. Gov. Chanler stated to-day that on account of a previous engagement he had declined the invitation to attend the Jefferson dinner of the National Democratic Club at New York on April 13 and that for the same reason he had also declined the invitation to attend the Independence League dinner on the same date.

PRISONER'S UNIQUE APPEAL.

German's Wonderful English Will Probably Get Him Out.

Moved by a picturesque appeal made to him through the mails, Magistrate Tighe of the Butler treet Court, Brooklyn, yesterday set about to obtain the release from Blackwell's Island of a man he recently sent there on a charge of vagrancy. The prisoner is Joseph Rean, a German gardener, who was arrested for begging five cents for car fare. Rean's appeal, written in lead pencil, is as follows:

JOSEPH REAN.

Rean's appeal will probably obtain his release.

THE CAMPS SEPARATED.

J. Edward Must Pay His Wife and Former Landlady $40 a Month.

Supreme Court Justice Leventritt granted a separation yesterday to Mrs. Alice Camp from J. Edward Camp, a salesman, with alimony at $40 a month. Mr. and Mrs. Camp were married after Mr. Camp had boarded with her for a short while. She had two husbands before she met him. They were not happy,—even quarreling over the color of a bedquilt. Mr. Camp wanting a light blue coverlet and his wife demanding a yellow one.

Camp testified that his wife had repeatedly threatened to put him out of the way.

"Why, she used to say that she would yet dance on my coffin," said the witness, "and that she would sing her favorite hymn while she was at it."

The wife in her testimony indignantly denied this.

MURDERER KILLS HIMSELF.

Dinkelia, Whom President Roosevelt Pardoned, a Suicide.

William Dinkelia, once sentenced to be hanged for a murder, and who afterward had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment and was finally pardoned by President Roosevelt, shot and instantly killed himself yesterday in the Salvation Army Hotel, 18 Chatham Square, where he was employed as a porter.

SISTER SAYS HE IS INSANE.

Commissioners Appointed to Examine Joseph B. Lockwood.

Ex-Supreme Court Justice Bookstaver and Dr. Frank L. Ives and Dr. Satterlee Swartwort were appointed Commissioners yesterday by Justice MacLean to inquire into the sanity of Joseph B. Lockwood, an inmate of a sanitarium at Spring Hill, Litchfield, Conn.

The Commissioners were appointed on the application of Cornelia L. Manierre, Lockwood's sister, who lives at 330 West Seventy-sixth Street. She says that her brother is now 48 years old, and that for twenty-five years he has been unable to care for himself or manage his property. He now is entitled, to one-half of the principal of a trust fund created by the late Tarrant Putnam, which is in the hands of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. This fund amounts to $161,242.64.

It is stated in an affidavit of a physician that Mr. Lockwood is suffering from dementia precox; that his memory and judgment are much impaired; that he becomes excited in the presence of strangers, and that it would be impossible to bring him before the commission without danger to him.

Another commission was created to inquire into the mental condition of Diedrick Woltman, who lives with his niece, Anna M. Alstadt, at 315 East Eightieth Street. Under the order she is restrained from disposing of the property in East Eightieth Street, which it is alleged she induced her uncle to transfer to her two years ago without any compensation. This property is said to be worth $20,000, and Mr. Woltman has in addition about $12,000 in personal property.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich signed an order to show cause why a commission should not be appointed to inquire into the sanity of Edward Lawson. He is 74 years old, and was in good health until he was run over by an express wagon last June.

W. L. DOUGLAS

BEST IN THE WORLD. $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

Do you wear W.L.Douglas shoes? If not, I believe I can give you good and sufficient reasons why it will pay you to wear them.

I give the wearer the benefit of my thorough and practical knowledge of shoemaking, which has extended over fifty years.

I give the wearer the benefit of my exclusive method of tanning the bottom soles, which makes them more flexible and gives longer wear than any other sole leather produced in this country.

As I am the largest manufacturer of men's fine Hand-Sewed Process shoes in the world, it is necessary for me to purchase leather and other materials in enormous quantities; the benefit of the very low prices I obtain I give to the wearer in superior quality over other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.:—I have worn Custom made shoes for about 25 years, paying very high prices. Recently I purchased a pair of W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes, and have worn them ever since with more satisfaction in every way.

SLOW REFORM BEST, SAYS SPOONER

Gives Warning in Speech Against Danger of Radical Corporation Laws.

DEFENSE OF THE SENATE

Tells Wisconsin Society People Will Abolish Abuses, but Are Not Revengeful.

A note of warning against overzealous reform was sounded last night by Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin in a speech on "The United States Senate," delivered at a dinner given in his honor at the Waldorf by the Wisconsin Society of New York. The Senate, he said, was the body intended by the framers of the Constitution to revise and restrain ill-considered legislation.

In the opinion of the Senator, the upper house comes nearer performing its Constitutional functions than any other part of the Federal Governmental machinery. He declared, however, that there were many reforms needed, and that the people were determined to have them. Especially were they set, he said, on abolishing all forms of railroad rebates and other unjust privileges.

Over 200 members and guests of the Wisconsin Society were gathered in the Astor Gallery. Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw spoke on "Modern Finance," Senator Thomas Carter of Montana toasted the guest of honor, Senator Spooner, and Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessey, President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, responded to the "Badger Boys." Other speakers were John R. Van Wormer, Prof. Frederick J. Turner, and Dr. Horace Manchester Brown.

Senator Spooner's Speech.

Senator Spooner spoke at some length of the honors the State of Wisconsin had heaped upon him and paid a tribute to the greatness of his State and her vast resources. He then took up the present unrest in the public mind against corporate abuses and defended the Senate as a body that had many times checked the enactment of ill-considered and unwise legislation. He said:

"We are in the midst of a period of unrest. It may be truthfully said to have had its origin in the local disclosures of intolerable evils which everywhere shocked the public conscience, which, to be aroused, needs only to be informed.

"Frequent allusion is made in the public press and in the speech of people to the prevalence of very general public suspicion as to the integrity of corporate methods and management. That it exists is undoubtedly true. That it is attributable mainly to agitation I think is not true. The discovery of evils and wrong methods which had not been suspected begets suspicion that evil methods exist where they may not exist, and that there may be still many undisclosed violations of law and many concealed practices unjust and detrimental to the public interests. The people, without doubt, demand a greater measure of publicity in the details of corporate management and a larger exercise of supervisory power to prevent illegal and dishonest administration and corporate injustices to the public. There is a determined and widespread demand for reform wherever reform is needed. All good citizens are united without regard to party affiliations in the demand for the extirpation of graft.

Rebates Must Cease.

"No one is opposed to this but the grafters.

"The people demand that the obligations of trusteeship, public and corporate, shall be religiously observed, and if violated shall be adequately punished. They demand that railway rebates and other unjust discriminations shall absolutely and permanently cease.

"It is intolerable that corporations created by the State, primarily for the public benefit and service, clothed with the power of eminent domain, shall carry the same kind of freight between the same terminals for one person or corporation at a secret and lesser rate than it exacts at the same time from a competitor for the same service. There is no possible defense for such discrimination, and its inevitable effect is to build up one to the ruin of another, and especially to establish and nourish industrial or other business monopolies.

"But the noisy activity of the demagogue must be distinguished from the work of the real reformer, even where he is too radical and goes too far afield. During the last five years more has been accomplished on lines of important reform in the general public interest than one looking forward could have conceived to be possible. We have moved with great efficiency and rapidity.

"But the sanity and reasonableness of the American people must not be underestimated. They want justice, not vengeance. They realize the large dependence of our prosperity upon the great transportation corporations, and the latter must realize that they are dependent upon the people for their existence, as well as their prosperity. The people will remember that no real public interest ever requires injustice to law observing private or quasi-public interests. They will distinguish between men who give the best thought and effort which is in them to the work of reform for reform's sake and the demagogues who give the utmost of their thought and energy in working reform for their own sakes.

Warning Against Undue Haste.

"It is a time in which patriotic and thoughtful men may well beware lest they forget that, while all reform involves change, all change does not involve reform. One thing which experience in public life has taught me is that in the public service there is no place for passion, prejudice, or overspeed. It is not always easy to diagnose correctly an evil, or to find and apply at once the real remedy. The safe eradication of evils which have long continued and which permeate the great and complicated business of the people requires much of time and of patience and of perspective and of sense of proportion. It often happens that a much-needed reform fails because between those who will not go forward at all and those who insist upon going forward too swiftly and too far, there is left no power of accomplishment in those wise reformers who wish to move forward to a plain line of safety and wait for further development.

"To criticise such as reactionaries is, in these days, fashionable and obviously unjust. There are reactionaries. Who are they? They are the men who are blinded to everything but the past and look upon methods and practices as sanctified by age, even though evil in themselves, and continually throw themselves across the pathway of progress, and who, if they had the power, would undo what has been wisely and well done, simply because it is a new order of things. They are 'hack luggers.'

"Far different from these are the men who clearly perceive the evil, patiently toil to discover the remedy, and work steadily and deliberately forward to what they can see is the line of safety, stubbornly refusing, however, to follow the honest radical who in seven-league boots presses forward quickly out of their sight. It often happens that the radical is absolutely the reactionary. It takes time and patience to reorganize the business methods of eighty millions of people. It does not follow because it is done with patience and deliberateness that it is not being wisely or well done. These words of truth and soberness, when they were uttered, are words of wisdom to-day. I am speaking not of men, but of principles. Men come and go. Principles abide.

The Constitution a Safeguard.

"I yield to no man in my loyalty to the spirit of real reform. There is no evil injurious to the people, within the Federal or State jurisdiction, which it is not my earnest wish to see corrected. But I refuse to be stampeded into a departure from vital fundamental principles of government embodied in the Constitution of our country.

"I am an optimist—a general believer in men and women. I think the world is growing better, not worse. It is my conviction that never in our history has the standard of honor among public men generally, and among the business men of the country generally been higher than it is to-day. We will grapple problems and solve them. I have a supreme and abiding faith in the sober second thought of the people, their wisdom and justice, their honesty of purpose, and their loyalty to the fundamental principles of their Government."

Senator Spooner followed his manuscript closely and said:

"This is the first time in twenty years that I have read my speech, except at a funeral. But since I handed in my resignation I have been so busy reading my own obituary that I have not had time for further preparation."

Edward Soloman, ex-Governor of Wisconsin and the only living war Governor, sent a cablegram from Frankfort regretting his absence. A letter of regret was read from Secretary Oscar S. Straus. Wilbur F. Steele, one of the members of the society, is a juror in the Thaw case. He sent a message to President Davis, which read:

"Can't come. The Judge won't let me."

SMOKE NUISANCE COMPLAINT.

Health Board and Property Owners After Edison Electric Company.

Property owners in the neighborhood of the Edison Company's works at Thirty-eighth to Thirty-ninth Streets and First Avenue, and Thirty-ninth to Fortieth Streets and East River, have organized themselves to fight the company on the smoke nuisance question. Many of them appeared in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Sweetser, ready to swear out complaints against the company. Those present included:

Samuel Levine, 317 East Forty-first Street; Michael McCauley, 334 East Thirty-ninth Street; Margaret Knight, 311 East Forty-first Street; Alexander Rugby, 307 East Thirty-seventh Street; Michael Allen, 309 East Thirty-seventh Street; John J. Killian, 316 East Thirty-seventh Street; Frank Lynch, 350 East Forty-second Street; Annie Bounle, 329 East Thirty-seventh Street; Michael Byrnes, 340 First Avenue; John J. Reilly, 301 East Forty-first Street; M. Honer, 325 East Forty-first Street; Edward Boak, 329 East Forty-first Street; Mary Dalton, 328 East Forty-second Street; George Voltz, 340 East Forty-second Street; James Fulton, 354 East Forty-first Street; D. Orsigna, 321 East Forty-first Street; John J. Egan, 323 East Forty-first Street, and Edward O. Schneidenbach, 331 East Forty-second Street.

Lawyer Robert Donohue represented the property owners, and Charles I. Taylor appeared for the Edison Company. Only one complaint, that of Samuel Levine, who summoned the Edison Company for permitting the smoke nuisance, was gone into for the property holders.

John J. Chisholm, engineer-in-chief of the Edison Company, appeared as defendant.

There was a second summons issued by the Health Department for the same cause against the Edison Company, in answer to which Mr. Chisholm and Foster L. Moore, assistant chief engineer, appeared. This case was taken up first. Samuel Levine testified that every morning bushels of cinders, emitted from the Edison Company's works, were swept from the sidewalks; that the leaders on the roofs and water gutters were choked in every house within 400 feet of the works, and also that it was impossible to hang out washing.

Magistrate Sweetser paroled Mr. Chisholm and Mr. Moore until to-day, and adjourned the property holders' case until April 24, pending the result of the first case.

GUY CAN'T SEE WIFE'S BODY.

Her Relatives Won't Let Him in the House—Inquest To-morrow.

Dr. Samuel D. Nutt, the Coroner in Queens who has charge of the inquiry into the death of Mrs. Lillian Mott Guy, will hold an inquest to-morrow afternoon in Jamaica. District Attorney Ira G. Darrin will appear at the inquest for the people, and ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Willis L. Mathot will represent Dr. Samuel S. Guy, the Far Rockaway dentist who is being held upon the charge of murdering his wife Monday evening. Singularly enough, Dr. Guy will sit as an accused party in the court room in which he presided over many hundreds of inquests when he was Coroner.

Dr. Guy has asked the authorities for permission to attend the funeral of his wife. He is in the county jail at Long Island City and wants to be allowed to attend under guard. Even if the authorities would allow this, he would not be permitted to enter the house of Guy Mott, where the body lies. This determination was reached yesterday by the relatives of Mrs. Guy, and the body will be buried without the husband again seeing it.

Guy Mott, brother of Mrs. Guy, received a telegram yesterday from his mother dated Orland, Cal., saying that she and his sister were starting for home and would be here on Monday. The funeral of Mrs. Guy will not be held until they arrive.

TO END BATHERS' PARADE.

Rockaway Taxpayers Will Ask Bingham to Stop Beach Exhibition.

The Rockaway Beach Taxpayers' Association is determined to put a stop to bathers parading the streets in scant attire. At a meeting held yesterday in Arion Hall, Rockaway Beach, it was decided to have a committee to ask Commissioner Bingham's assistance to break up what is declared to be a general practice of many who spend the Summer by the sea.

What pains the association as much as anything is the fact that many of those who are guilty of the practice do not enter the water in the suits they wear on parade.

YALE INVITES WOODRUFF.

Will Give the Actor a More Cordial Reception Than Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 10.—Yale undergraduates to-day sent a telegram to Henry Woodruff, star in "Brown of Harvard," who was bombarded with eggs in Boston, Monday night, by Harvard students. It read:

"All Yale is sorry. You belong to us. The best man in the world would not get a chance in Boston. Come back to us. You belong at Yale."

Woodruff played a week here in January, and was entertained at several Yale clubs. Several 'Varsity athletes signed the telegram to him.

Ferry Company Pays $46,000 Rent.

About $46,000 back rent has been paid to the city by the Brooklyn Ferry Company, which still owes at least $35,000 for rent. Corporation Counsel Ellison and Controller Metz has been making arrangements with the receiver to pay some money, and yesterday's payment was the result of the negotiations. Suits for the remainder are pending.

SNOW SQUALL COMES WITH BIG SUNSPOT

But the Two Have No Relation to Each Other, Prof. Mitchell Says.

LITTLE SPOTS ALSO SEEN

Snow Caused by a Cold Air Current from the West Striking Warm Air Here.

The fact that another sun spot has been discovered may not surprise the public, which has suffered the discomforts of the last two days. A vague notion that sun spots affect the heat of the sun, and hence make it colder here below, probably will gain added adherents from this fact. Nevertheless, Dr. S. A. Mitchell, an instructor in astronomy in Columbia University, who is responsible for the discovery of this latest blot on the orb of heat and light, says positively that it has nothing to do with conditions that have seriously threatened the cabbage crop of Long Island, though some electrical disturbances may follow.

Prior to the advent of the sudden swirl of yesterday's snow, Dr. Mitchell made out near the sun's meridian a large spot that seemed to be the centre of a solar disturbance, which was manifest also in other spots of varying size. This latest addition to the solar colony is visible to the naked eye, and the others may be discerned through a small telescope.

This is the third large spot observed within two months. On Feb. 13 Prof. John A. Brashear of Pittsburg observed another sun spot of quite as large size. He stated at the time that electrical disturbances would follow, and shortly afterwards an electrical storm was felt in the vicinity of Pittsburg.

"As the period of sun spot frequency is long past," Dr. Mitchell said yesterday, "it is difficult to assign any reason for their appearance at this time."

The temperature of the spot regions of the sun, it was stated, was lower than that of the rest of the sun.

Although the majority of people in town yesterday would not have believed it, the sudden reappearance of snow in Manhattan yesterday afternoon had nothing to do with the storm of the previous day, which had left a record snowfall for April of five and a half inches. In the neighborhood of 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon those who were looking out toward the Jersey shore from a height saw a cloud that at first resembled a mist. While they regarded it curiously it darted into Manhattan, borne along by a stiff wind.

Soon snow flakes were falling on the all ready disordered pavements. At the same time the sky became overcast and in some offices it became necessary to light the incandescent globes. People looked apprehensively up at the sky from the street.

"Gee!" said one man, turning up the collar of his overcoat, "the same storm is hiking back to town."

In an elevated car two women were discussing the flurry.

"What do you suppose it is? You can explain it to me. Your husband says that you know all about the weather," said one.

"Well, my dear," answered the other, "it is undoubtedly the storm of yesterday, which, traveling northward toward California, has struck an area of low barometric pressure, which has hurled it backward to us, where the pressure is higher."

"Oh," said the seeker after information, "is that it?" Then she added: "Those men over there are laughing."

But the flurry which ten minutes after its arrival in Manhattan had blown itself out over Long Island was not a storm at all in the Weather Man's sense. It was purely local in character and was due to the fact that over Duluth there was an area of high pressure.

Low pressure conditions here resulted in the forcing of the colder air of the lake regions down over New York with the added consequence that moisture was precipitated in the form of snow when the cold currents met the warmer air here. Prior to the flurry the temperature had been 40. Upon the arrival of the Duluth cold it became 35. Had similar conditions prevailed over Duluth and Manhattan in the Summertime the melded result would have been a thunder storm.

However, the amateur and professional gardeners who are longing to sow early peas, beets, radishes, spinach, lettuce to follow what they have already sown for their succession of early vegetables, will find small comfort in any consideration of the causes of snow in April that does not hold out some hope for the future. But to such the Weather Bureau folk point to the fact that in previous years we have had flurries of April snow as late as the twenty-seventh of the month.

The effect of Tuesday's storm upon the telegraph wires within the area of disturbance was marked. The Western Union Telegraph Company was obliged to send some 200 messages to Boston by train. On the Postal lines the service was also slow.

SQUADRON C'S NEW HOME.

The Mayor Reviews Brooklyn's Crack Cavalry at Armory Opening.

With Mayor George B. McClellan as the guest of honor of the organization, the fine new armory of Squadron C of the National Guard, at Bedford Avenue and President Street, Brooklyn, was formally opened last night. The event was one of great interest in local military circles, and the Guard was strongly represented.

Controller Herman A. Metz, who is a Captain in the Fourteenth Regiment, and Gen. James McLeer, commander of the Second Brigade, were with the Mayor. Officers of the field and staff and a number of the line officers of the Guard were present in full uniform.

Mayor McClellan was greatly impressed by the new home of Brooklyn's crack cavalry command. The arena, which is 818 feet long and 178 feet in width, is said to be the largest cavalry drill hall in the country. Nearly the entire squadron took part in the exercises last night, and because of the great size of the arena were able to give one of the finest exhibitions of indoor cavalry manoeuvring ever seen in Brooklyn. The wind-up of the squadron drill, a charge in troop front the length of the arena, brought the large assemblage to its feet with a cheer.

Mayor McClellan took the review on foot, accompanied by Gen. McLeer. The squadron, forming into platoons, passed him, first at a walk, then at a trot, and finally as a gallop. Following the review there was squadron drill, with Major Charles I. De Bevoise commanding, the two troops being respectively in command of Capts. Paul Grout and James Crooke McLeer.

This was followed by a lively polo game under the supervision of Capt. Grout. Capt. McAleer commanded in the music ride, and Major De Bevoise in the rough riding, which ended the exercises.

This programme will be repeated to-night, when Major Gen. Charles F. Roe will be the guest of honor and the reviewing officer.

Fruit Brokers Dine.

The New York Fruit Exchange gave its tenth annual dinner at the Hotel Astor last night. A vaudeville and musical entertainment preceded the dinner. William A. Camp was toastmaster, and addresses were made by Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Board of Aldermen; Victor D. Zorn, President of the Exchange; Senator Eugene M. Travis, and Arturro Stefani, Vice President of the Italian Chamber of Commerce.

A NEAR-FIGHT ON 'CHANGE.

J. H. Auerbach and G. H. Putz Started, but Stopped Quickly.

There was a near-fight on the floor of the Stock Exchange yesterday afternoon. That is to say, it would have been a fight if George H. Puts, the floor representative of Thomas, Mackay & Co., had not scorned to take note of it when John H. Auerbach of Post & Flagh hit him in the back of the head. On his part Mr. Auerbach was making the retort courteous to a remark addressed to him by Mr. Puts. As paraphrased by the brokers who gathered in the Waldorf to talk it over last night, the words that started the trouble followed somewhat this familiar formula:

"You are a malicious and meretricious, though inconsequential, falsifier, and your language should be characterized by a shorter and uglier word."

It happened over by the "Locomotive Post," which is the place where American Locomotive stock is traded in. Just why it happened could not be ascertained from the floor members who witnessed it. They knew that some remarks were exchanged between Mr. Auerbach and Mr. Puts, at the conclusion of which the latter gentleman addressed the former somewhat as indicated above. Then he turned away with great dignity.

How seriously Mr. Puts's face would have suffered had he remained is entirely a matter of conjecture. At any rate, Mr. Auerbach, as if to speed the going of his fellow trader, reached out somewhat rapidly with his left, and caught Mr. Puts somewhere between his collar and his hat brim. Apparently Mr. Auerbach accomplished his purpose. Mr. Puts kept right on going. There was no need even for mutual friends to go through the form of separating the pair. The distance between them got wider every second.

The incident made food for conversation on the Exchange floor all the rest of the day, for there hasn't been a lively initiation of a new member for some time, and the brokers welcomed the bit of diversion. Both the men who might have been the combatants are socially prominent, Mr. Auerbach being the son of Joseph S. Auerbach the lawyer and Mr. Puts a son-in-law of William B. Fanchet, one of the best-knowns bons' experts in Wall Street. It was generally believed in well-informed quarters last night that hostilities would not be renewed.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY TEST.

Two Cases to be Argued in the United States Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Argument will be begun to-day in the United States Supreme Court in two cases involving the constitutionality of the Employers' Liability act, holding railroads engaged in inter-State commerce responsible for damages to employes when caused by the neglect of fellow-employes or deficient appliances. In both cases the trial courts held against the validity of the statute.

Mrs. N. C. Brooks of Kansas sued the Southern Pacific Railroad Company in Kentucky to recover $25,000 on account of the death of her son, a fireman, on a Southern Pacific train in Nevada. Judge Evans held the law to be unconstitutional because it does not fall within the scope of authority given to Congress to regulate inter-State commerce and at the same time regulate commerce within the States.

Mrs. Damsell Howard sued the Illinois Central to recover $20,000 for the death of her husband, who was killed while acting as a fireman on an Illinois Central train near Memphis, Tenn. Judge McCall declared the law to be unconstitutional on the same ground as cited in the Brooks case.

The Government was not a party to either suit in the lower court, but has intervened on appeal. The Attorney General has filed an exhaustive brief, which says in part:

"It is the carrier and not its employes that the act seeks to regulate, and the carrier is subject to such regulations because it is engaged in inter-State commerce. It is submitted that Congress can make a common carrier engaged in inter-State commerce liable to any one for its negligence who is affected by it, and if it can do that, necessarily it can make such carried liable to all of its employes."

LABORERS SIP TEA IN FIFTH AVENUE

Men and Women from Factories Guests of Women's Trade Union League.

MRS. BLATCH ENCOURAGING

She Tells the Toilers the Women Will Help Them in Time of Trouble.

The Women's Trade Union League gave a pink tea last night at 220 Fifth Avenue to the leading members of labor unions, including the delegatee of the Central Federated Union, who received a special invitation. The tea, which was served shortly before 10 o'clock, was incidental to a discussion on women's auxiliaries to labor unions.

The labor delegates gallantly assisted the members of the league as voluntary stewards and carried trays around with tea and cake for distribution. The experience, they declared, was a delightful one, and as the labor men sat on the edges of the chairs and handled the teacups in a gingerly way they said that they never enjoyed themselves better. A delegate of the Bartenders' Union remarked, as he sipped the beverage, to the representative of the Bakers' Union, that he thought the custom was a good one and ought to be encouraged.

The meeting was opened by Miss Annie Patterson, who introduced Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, daughter of the late Elizabeth Cady Stanton, as the principal speaker. Mrs. Blatch said that the women's auxiliaries solved a big economic problem. Trades unionism, she said, was a sort of proletarian organization which would remain militant under all forms of government, whether republican, monarchical, capitalistic, or socialistic.

"The great fault with women," said Mrs. Blatch, "is that many of them are liable to contribute a great deal of watered stock to trades unionism, like French peasants whose taxes were paid in wine, and who cheated the landholders by pouring bottles of water into the wine barrel. Most women who expected to work for a living expect to marry, and may not feel very enthusiastic about forming unions. The women of America should follow the example of the women in the textile industries of Great Britain who remain members of the union after marriage."

Mrs. Blatch went on to say that after marriage the influence of women could be made more potent in the cause of the unions. The women in the auxiliaries, which were formed for the purpose of aiding the men in the trade union movement, had done much in keeping up the enthusiasm of the men during strikes. There were hundreds of ways in which the women's auxiliaries had aided in strikes. The women, when they married, should insist that their husbands should allow them to share their responsibilities.

Mrs. Herman Lilstad, President of the Women's Auxiliary of the Lithographers' Union, told how the women had assisted the lithographers in their strike. She had six children, and they all took an active interest in it, she said.

The delegates of the Bakers', Bartenders', Mail Deliverers', and other unions than took the floor. They praised the work of the League and urged the forming of Women's Auxiliaries in all trades where practicable.

The last speaker was Miss Margaret Daly, delegate of the Overall Makers' Union to the Central Federated Union. She said that the men should fight the question of making textile goods in prison and that many free men were wearing prison made shirts. When women were given the power to vote and could go into politics this would be the first question they would tackle.

B. R. T. LOSES TRANSFER SUIT.

Man Who Won $200 in Test Case Will Give It to Charity.

The refusal of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to issue transfer tickets from the Flatbush Avenue line to the Fulton Street line to Patrick J. Reynolds, a real estate dealer of Flathusb, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Christina Griffin, and the latter's two daughters, Lillie and Bella, resulted in four judgments of $50 each against the railroad company in the Third Municipal District Court, in Williamsburg, by Judge Alexander Rosenthal yesterday.

When the decision was given Reynolds, who is a brother of ex-Senator Reynolds, was so elated that he told the court he would turn the money over to charity.

Reynolds and his party were on their way to the Orpheum Theatre from Flatbush on the night of April 1 last year when Reynolds asked for and failed to get transfers to the Fulton Street line, an intersecting branch. He brought suit, and in his decision Judge Rosenthal said that while the Brooklyn Rapid Transit could enact laws for itself, it couldn't enact laws as far as transfers were concerned.

CONSTITUTIONAL STRIKERS.

Court Lets Men Go Who Said They'd Kept Within Constitutional Bounds.

Magistrate Whitman had three striking cloakmakers before him yesterday, and became angry because the complainant did not appear. He said that he had received a number of letters urging him to deal severely with disorderly strikers, but that nobody appeared against the offenders. He added:

"I am not going to punish a single striker unless the person making the complaint has the manhood to come here."

The prisoners—Jacob Sherman, Louis Kush, and Samuel Schectman—each told the Magistrate that he had made a study of the Constitution of the United States, and had been careful not to violate the law by intimidating anybody.

The Magistrate discharged them, saying, "Keep on studying the Constitution and obeying the law."

Harry Rosen, a striking cloakmaker, of 25 Suffolk Street, was charged with assault by Abraham Weinstein, his wife Rose, and their daughter Rachel.

The complainants said that Rosen had entered their home, at 210 Division Street, and asked Weinstein to quit work. The man refused, and Rosen struck him over the head with a stick of wood, threw a flatiron at him, and hit him with a stove lifter. Rosen was held in $300 bail.

Seek Morrell's Release from Asylum.

Ex-Senator Edgar T. Brackett appeared before Supreme Court Justice MacLean yesterday to urge the release of James Wallace Morrell, an alleged incompetent, who is in a sanitarium, and whose home is at 70 West Forty-sixth Street. He was placed there on the application of his wife, Ellen C. Morrell, who says he is suffering from a functional brain disorder. The case was adjourned until April 12.

SAYS FREMONT GAVE FAKE $1,500 ORDER

Witness Took It to Cuba, He Says; Recipient Called Major "Crazy or a Rascal."

COURT-MARTIAL HEARS CASE

Bank Official Tells That He Lent the Defendant Money Because of His Rank in the Army.

Major Francis P. Frémont, U. S. A., son of the General who is famous in history as "Frémont, the Pathfinder," was placed on trial before a court-martial in the Army Building, in Whitehall Street, yesterday morning. The charges against Major Frémont are the outcome of a number of his financial dealings, his accusers asserting that he said he owned property in San Francisco and Cuba, of which, it turned out, he was never possessed.

Major Frémont is charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, to the prejudice of good order and discipline, all of the charges being based upon his alleged misrepresentations in obtaining loans. His counsel are Patrick F. Loftus and Fred Stewart.

Col. Charles Morris of the Artillery Corps is the President of the board that is hearing the Frémont charges, and Capt. William J. Glasgow of the Thirteenth Cavalry is the Judge Advocate. The other members of the court are Col. John M. K. Davis, Col. Walter Howe, Col. Henry B. Osgood, Col. John D. C. Hoskins, Col. Medorem Crawford, Col. Henry M. Andrews, Lieut. Col. William B. Homer, and Lieut. Col. William H. Coffin. With the exception of Col. Osgood all the members of the board are in the Artillery Corps.

If Major Frémont is found guilty he will probably be compelled to leave the aervice, it was said at the Army Building yesterday. The Major, who is 52 years old, has been in the army twenty-eight years. He is at present assigned to the Fifth Infantry.

This is not Major Frémont's first court-martial. He was tried several years ago in the Philippines for striking a soldier, found guilty, and sentenced to be suspended from rank and pay for six months, and confined to the limits of his post for the same period.

According to Capt. Glasgow, the Government prosecutor, Major Frémont borrowed money from the Thirty-fourth Street National Bank of this city and the First National Bank and Plattsburg National Bank of Plattsburg. The loans varied in amount from $100 to $500. In one of the Plattsburg loans the Major, it is said, pledged his army pay check, a proceeding that is in direct violation of the regulations governing the service. There were twelve specifications in the charges made by Capt. Glasgow, and to each of them Major Frémont pleaded "not guilty."

Clinton E. Braine, who was Vice President of the Thirty-fourth Street National Bank in March, 1906, was the first witness called by the Government. Mr. Braine testified that Major Frémont had borrowed $300 from that bank and that he had filed with his application a memorandum concerning property he said he owned in San Francisco.

"I made the loan to Major Frémont," said Mr. Braine, "because he was an officer of the United States Army."

Mr. Braine said that he considered Major Frémont's position in the army as better security than the supposed property in San Francisco. Mr. Braine, when cross-examined, said that Patrick Toner, a friend of Major Frémont, had deposited with the bank $306 to secure the loan, but that for some reason it had not been used for that purpose.

"Did Major Frémont make any representations to you about the property he said he owned in San Francisco?" Capt. Glasgow asked.

"Yes," replied Mr. Braine, "he said that his lots in that city adjoined property owned by Mrs. H. O. (Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs.) He added that as the Government was trying to acquire property in that locality, the lots were increasing in value and would become quite valuable to him."

Major Frémont had said that Mrs. Oelrichs had sold similar property to the Government for $250,000. Curtis J. Beard, Cashier of the Thirty-fourth Street National Bank, corroborated what Mr. Braine said. He said that the Toner deposit to cover the Frémont loan was still in the bank, but that the certificate of deposit had not been indorsed.

Edward J. Donnelly, a Plttsburg (Penn.) court reporter, was the next witness called by Capt. Glasgow. He said that he and Major Frémont had agreed to go into the tobacco business in Cuba in 1905, and that each was to put in $1,500 as his share of the venture. In June of 1905 he met Major Frémont in New York, he said, and was given by the Major an order for $1,500 on a Mr. Finley of Cuba, the money "to be paid out of $5,000 on deposit in the International Bank."

Previously, Mr. Donnelly testified, he had put up the entire $3,000 because he was told, he said, that it was not convenient for Major Frémont to put up his share of the money at that time. Mr. Donnelly said he took the order to Cuba and presented it to Mr. Finley for payment.

"Was it paid?" asked Capt. Glasgow.

"No, Sir, it was not."

"What did Mr. Finley say?"

"He said that Major Frémont was either crazy or a rascal."

Mr. Donnelly testified further that he learned on his arrival in Cuba that there was no such institution there as the International Bank, and that there was no fund in any bank out of which he could get his $1,500. Letters between Donnelly and Major Frémont were put in evidence.

"You made no mention in the letters of the remarks made to you by Finley and your failure to locate the money, did you?" asked Mr. Loftus, Major Frémont's lawyer.

"I did not," replied the witness, with asperity. "Nor did I when I met the Major two weeks later. I was ashamed to. He didn't refer to the subject, either."

A letter from Mr. Donnelly to the Major made no reference to the order for the $1,500. It concluded with the remark that Mr. Finley joined the writer in sending kind regards.

In October, 1905, the letters began to request a settlement in the tobacco venture, because he was being importuned by a woman who had put in her money. It was not long after that, Mr. Donnelly said, that he began to communicate with the War Department relative to the business relations with Major Frémont.

Col. Howe then sent up a written question to the Judge Advocate, desiring to know whether Donnelly had ever received any part of the $1,500 from the accused, to which Mr. Donnelly answered "No," but admitted under further questioning hy Col. Howe that he believed he could have obtained it by personally presenting the order to Finley when he was first notified that the Major had sent money to Cuba.

An adjournment was then taken until this morning at 10 o'clock.

TRINITY VICAR RESIGNS.

The Rev. Dr. J. N. Steele to Spend a Year in Europe.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Rev. Dr. J. N. Steele, vicar of Trinity Church, had resigned and that his resignation had been accepted. Dr. Steele, who is a brother of Charles Steele of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., had been vicar of the old parish for seventeen years. His resignation came as a complete surprise to his friends.

It was said yesterday at the home of the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, the rector of Trinity Church, that ill-health was the cause of Dr. Steele's withdrawal. He is expected to sail for Europe soon and spend a year or two in travel and recreation.

Dr. Steele was at one time considered for election as assistant rector of Trinity, but last year the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, vicar of St. Agnes's Chapel, was chosen. Dr. Steele's father was a Baltimore merchant, though he was Chargé d'Affaires at the American Legation in Caracas when his son was born in 1850. Dr. Steele spent his boyhood in Venezuela. Until 1880, when he decided to enter the ministry, he practiced law in Baltimore.

ARREST FOR OLNEY MURDERS.

Man Indicted for Crimes in Orange County Captured in Los Angeles.

After a search of a year and a half Pinkerton detectives have found and arrested, in Los Angeles, Charles Henry Rogers, who is under indictment in Orange County for the murder of Willis Olney, Frederick Olney, and Alice Ingerick, and for a murderous assault on Mrs. Georgia Ingerick near Middletown, N. Y., on Oct. 6, 1905. Rogers was arrested in Los Angeles, Cal. He had been working as a porter in the Yosemite Hotel at Madera, Cal., under the name of Charles H. Carpenter. He was traced through letters he wrote to persons in Middletown, and his capture was effected by means of a decoy letter.

After the murders Rogers disappeared. The Pinkertons searched in vain for some trace of him until on Jan. 27 last he wrote a letter which gave a clue as to his whereabouts. Detectives were at once sent to Madera to arrest him, but when they got there Rogers had quit his job and departed. The proprietor of the hotel, however, identified a picture, and from the description given declared that Carpenter was Rogers, the man they sought. He had worked at the hotel since Dec. 16, 1906.

The detectives became sure the fugitive was hidden in Los Angeles. Believing that the man would call in time at the General Delivery of the Post Office and wishing to make the identification complete a letter was sent from Middletown, N. Y., addressed to Charles H. Carpenter. Rogers was arrested while receiving the decoy letter.

Rogers was not suspected of the brutal murder at first. He is said to have been friendly with the housekeeper for the Olneys, who lived on a farm four miles outside of Middletown. It is thought that the indicted man heard that the Olney brothers had in their possession $5,000 cash and some valuables. These were taken by the murderer. Suspicion finally centred upon Rogers, it is said, through the jealousy of his wife.

Fred Olney and his brother, Willis, were old and respected farmers. On the morning of Friday, Oct. 6, Fred Olney took Lulu, the eldest daughter of Mrs. Ingerick, to Pilgrim's Corners. He left the girl with a friend to come home on foot in the afternoon. She returned with the friend, Mrs. David Aiken, and found the house locked. Becoming frightened she went to the home of a neighbor, Dan Davis.

Davis broke into the house, and at the foot of the stairs found Lulu's sister, Alice, 9 years old, with her skull crushed. Davis summoned the Middletown police by telephone. Chief Brinckerhoff arrived and examined the premises. In Willis Olney's room he found a leather trunk opened and the money and valuables gone. In the cellar he found a length of gas pipe wrapped in a bloody newspaper.

In a stall in the barn Mrs. Ingerick was found moaning under a pile of hay. She had evidently been hit over the head with the piece of gas pipe.

It was not until the next morning that the bodies of the Olney brothers were found. The barking of a pet dog in a clump of bushes near the house led the officials to the spot. Fred Olney had four bullet holes in his body and Willis two.

Mrs. Ingerick, when she recovered, professed that she could not members what had happened.

Rogers will be extradited as soon as possible, and the case promises to be one of the most notable in the history of Orange County.

LOS ANGELES, April 10.—A man who admits that he is Charles Henry Rogers, and that his home is in Middletown, N. Y., where a man of the same name is wanted on a murder charge, was arrested here yesterday. He declares, however, that he knows nothing about the murder. The man's appearance tallies with descriptions and photographs of the Rogers for whom the New York State authorities have been searching since Oct. 6, 1905.

METZ DEFENDS AHEARN.

Little Diversion of Special Paving Fund to be Shown.

Controler Metz repudiated the suggestion yesterday that his department could in any way be held responsible for the alleged irregularities in Borough President Ahearn's office in connection with the special street repaving fund. It was said on Tuesday that William M. Ivins and the others who had been investigating Mr. Ahearn's office would assert that the money in this fund had been used to pay salaries.

According to the Controller there is little likelihood of any great diversion of funds being shown. Under the law the money collected from plumbers who open the streets is turned over to the City Chamberlain, and the cost of replacing the street surface is charged against the money so held by the Chamberlain. The fee charged for opening the street is $4 a square yard, and the cost of replacing is about $2.75, according to Mr. Metz's assistants. In addition there is an examination charge of $1 for each opening.

Although only one examination charge is made against each opening, no matter what its size, the margin of profit accruing to the city is comparatively small. There is a balance in the Treasury of $166,000. The pay rolls for the work to be charged against the fund are certified to the Controller from Mr. Ahearn's office. The Controller has nothing to do with the matter except to see that they are met out of the fund. The balance on hand, it is stated, is a fair indication that there has been but little, if any, diversion of the fund.

METZ AFTER CITY'S PLUMBERS

He Says They Charge Citizens Exhorbitantly for Water Meters.

The city's plumbers, according to Controller Metz, have been charging taxpayers exorbitantly for installing water meters, and Mr. Metz proposes to stop it. The city plumbers at present are J. J. McCarthy, T. J. Toumey and N. J. Donnelly. Mr. Metz said yesterday:

"I have been getting so many complaints of late from citizens who object to the bills rendered by plumbers who install water meters on the Water Department's orders, that I am satisfied there is something radically wrong in the system. Under the law, if the owner does not pay the bill, the city pays it and the amount becomes a lien on the property. There is no question that some of these bills are exhorbitant. Plumbers in some cases spend a week on a job, charging full time for plumber and helper, when it ought to be done in a day or two.

"I am going to request the Water Commissioner to notify thie department in every instance where he gets an order to instal a meter, and I will then have a practical plumber give an estimate as to what the job is worth, and will not pay the bills rendered by the city's plumber until the owner has his chance to protest, in case they are too high."

TO OPEN SUBWAY BIDS TO-DAY

Half a Dozen Contractors Expected to Compete on Bridge Loop Work.

Bids for the construction of the first section of the Subway loop between the East River bridges will be opened to-day by the Rapid Transit Board. All bids must be in by noon, and it is anticipated that there will be possibly half a dozen contracting firms in the field, as the contract calls for construction alone and has nothing to do with the operating of the line after it is built.

A deposit of $25,000 in the form of a certified check is required with each bid, and this has had the effect of causing the contractors to withhold their bids until the last day. The first section of the line to be built is that running from Pearl to Canal Street, under Centre Street. The main portion of the work is to be done by the cut-and-cover method. Construction of pipe galleries is to be bid for separately. All the work must be finished within twenty-one months.

AUTO CLUB TESTS FOR MOTOR CARS

Endurance Run and Commercial Vehicle Contest Planned for May and June.

JAMESTOWN TOUR ROUTE

Members May Travel Through Shenandoah Valley on Exposition Run —Trade Association Plans.

It has remained for the Automobile Club of America to take the initiative in organizing competitive motor events for the Spring season. The Contest Committee expects to announce within a few days two events which will offer opportunities of a good practical test for both business vehicles and touring cars. The committee yesterday, under the Chairmanship of Robert Lee Morrell, sent to all the leading manufacturers and agents of commercial wagons a brief résumé of the conditions that were tentatively adopted this week for a test run of commercial cars on Manhattan Island. At the same time the committee has made it plain that the club is willing to take all the responsibility of conducting the event in a satisfactory manner and keeping accurate records of all performances, but that it remains with the manufacturers to show by their entries whether they are willing to support such an event.

"The Automobile Club," said Secretary Butler yesterday, "is anxious to hold competitions of all sorts, but in order to make them succeseful there must be a combination of interests. We are not going to organize events, and then demand that owners or manufacturers enter. If lack of interest is shown by those who will be directly benefited by the contests, the club will surely make no attempt to force them. Some changes have been made in the conditions for the commercial vehicle test from last Fall, when, on account of the lateness of the season, it was deemed best to postpone the event until Spring. Instead of requiring the cars to make runs for three days in different parts of the city, the plan now is to make it only a single day test, as just as favorable results are likely to be attained in that way as in a run of three or four days. Judging from the entries received last year, I believe there will be little difficulty in getting a large number of business wagons of different types for the event."

The event for ordinary touring cars will be an endurance run of from four to six days. There will be no attempt to make it a pleasure run, as the daily runs will be from 125 to 150 miles. It will be a strenuous test of the reliability of the American touring car, and the rules will probably be more severe than hitherto required in an event of this character. The commercial vehicle test will be held in May and the endurance run in June.

Waldron Williams, Chairman of the Runs and Tours Committee, said yesterday that the contemplated tour, limited to members of the club from this city, to the Jamestown Exposition at Norfolk, Va., will not be held until early in the Fall, probably about Oct. 1. Owing to the poor condition of the roads between Philadelphia and Cape Charles, that route has practically been abandoned, and the tour will be held over the longer route by way of Washington. If this plan is adopted the tourists may go by boat from Washington down to Potomac to Norfolk and come back by way of the Shenandoah Valley.

The New York Automobile Trade Association, it was learned yesterday, has decided to do something toward stimulating the local activity during the Spring season. A committee is now at work on a plan which will probably take the form of a big automobile sales week, as has been adopted in several cities throughout the country, or a repetition of last year's open-air show at the Empire City track may be held.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

The Automobile Club of Long Island will hold its last ladies' night of the season to-morrow night in the clubrooms, 250 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn. A small exhibition of half a dozen models of the latest American cars will be held at the same time. The Entertainment Committee, under the Chairmanship of Edwin Melvin, has prepared several novel features, as this will be the closing entertainment of the season.

W. L. Sorel, who was in this country last year as a representative of the De Dietrich Company of France at the Vanderbilt Cup race, has just established a new non-stop record in a run from Paris to Nice. The distance is about 712 miles, and M. Sorel, who drove a 60 horse power De Dietrich car, covered the distance in 16 hours and 15 minutes, an average of over 43¾ miles an hour.

One of the largest shipments of automobiles received in New York this season was a consignment of thirty 18-20 horse power Reo cars recently received by R. M. Owen & Co. Owing to the demand which has arisen with the return of pleasant weather and the favorable condition of roads, it has been found necessary to double the customary order for shipment.

An interesting suggestion for the Glidden Cup conditions in the A. A. A. tour was made yesterday by James Joyce, manager of the American Locomotive Automobile Company. He favors the adoptinn of a condition requiring all competing cars to start with the bonnets over the engine securely fastened and sealed. The plan of conducting the tour under conditions not too strenuous has been generally commended, bnt many autoists would like to see the rules stern enough to really distinguish the good cars from the poor ones and from those that are only fair. Mr. Joyce expects to enter a Berliet car.

George Heath, Albert Clement, and several other racing drivers who have competed here for the Vanderbilt Cup race have commenced practice over the Grand Prix conrse in France. Szisz, the winner last year, will drive the Renault car again, and racing quarters for the Renault cars have just been established near Dieppe.

Future Major Leaguers.

Walter Quelsser will not manage the St. Joseph's team this season, owing to the fact that he no longer resides in New York. Edward Finley will manage and captain the players. Games can be booked through Edward Finley, 846 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

The baseball schedule for the De La Salle Institute for 1907 follows: April 12, Groff at New York; April 18, Princeton at Princeton, N. J.; April 20, Bett's at Stamford, Conn.; April 27, Rock Hill College at Ellcott City, Md.; April 30 St. Augustine's at Washington, D. C.; May 4, Villanova at Villanova, Penn.; May 7, New Rochelle High School at New Rochelle, N. Y.; May 10, Morris High School at New York; May 11, Holbrook at Ossining, N. Y.; May 14, Poly Prep. at Brooklyn; May 15, Jersey City at Jersey City; May 18, Manor at Stamford, Conn.; May 23, Cutler at New York; May 25, Pingree at Elizabeth, N. J.; May 28, Stamford Athletic Club at Stamford, Conn.; May 30, Baltimore Athletic Club at Baltimore; June 1, Paterson High School at Paterson, N. J.; June 5, Yonkers High School at Yonkers, N. Y.

The players to represent the Belwood Club of Gravesend, L. I., are: Strong, pitcher; Lake, catcher; Vonate, first base; Gross, second base; Dooley, short stop; Mullen, third base; Burke, left field; Farrell, right field; Spellman, centre field. For games address Fred Dempsey, captain, Avenne T, Gravesend.

Capt. R. A. McGovern of the De La Salles is authority for the statement that a new interscholastic league is under way, which will abandon the rule which prohibits youngsters to play on the teams unless they have attended the different private schools at least for one year.

The Xavier A. A. team will be composed of Bowen and Noonan, pitchers; Kearin, catcher; Hanrahan, first base; Elling, second base; Dotey, shortstop; O'Grady, third base; Fitzpatrick, left field; Ryan, centre field; Thiele, right field. The season will open April 13, when the team will play the Roeblings at Trenton, N. J.

"Eddie" Doyle will manage the Northvale (N. J.) team. The season will open on April 14 with a game at New Rochelle with the Rough Riders.

The Northvale Baseball Club will play the Rough Riders at New Rochelle, N. Y., April 14. They will line up as follows: W. Bennet, pitcher; R. Mahoney, catcher; P. Gilligan, first base; J. Stuart, second base; M. Doyle, third base; J. Lennon, short stop; J. Lages, left field; E. Doyle, centre field; W. Elling, right field. Clubs desiring games should address E. Doyle, 174 East 112th Street, New York.

Elect Hockey Manager at Columbia.

At a mass meeting held yesterday at Columbia H. P. Banks, 1908, was elected manager of next year's hockey team. P. E. Locke, 1909, S., was elected assistant manager at the same meeting.

SHEPPARD WINS MATCH RACE.

Takes Half-Mile Invitation in Jersey City and Makes Record.

Melvin Sheppard, the crack middle-distance runner of the Irish-American Athletic Club, won new laurels in the athletic carnival of the Fourth Regiment, N. G. N. J., at the armory, Jersey City, last night. Sheppard not only won the 880-yard invitation race, but broke the armory record by 4 seconds, covering the distance in 2:03. Competing against him in the race were Paul Pilgrim of the New York Athletic Club, a double winner at the Olympic games at Athens; Charley Bacon, the Irish-American Athletic Club crack, and Harvey Cohn of the same club. William Van Thum of the Xavier Athletic Club retired from the contest at the last moment. Bacon finished second, with Pilgrim third and Cohn last.

The match was stirring throughout. Bacon got the jump and shot to the front at a merry clip. Sheppard passed Bacon on the second lap and the latter made a gallant effort. Sheppard forged steadily ahead. Bacon made another fine spurt at the finish, but Sheppard won by about four yards. Pilgrim just beat out Cohn for third place in the final few yards. Summaries:

000-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by F. A. Honey, Gordon House A. A.; J. A. Morgan, Columbia University, second; L. M. Wood, Comet A. C., third. Time—1:24 4-5.

More Fast Motor Boat Trials.

MONACO, April 10.—Another excellent record was made in the motor boat races to-day when the 33-foot racing boat Ulysse covered 50 kilometers in the trials for her class in 78 minutes. The speed of the boat was equivalent to about 26 geographical miles an hour.

VAN SICKLE IS NO SUICIDE.

Despite Reports of His Suicide, He Appeared in the Flesh Yesterday.

Before the Curb market opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning its members gathered to discuss the sad end of "broker" Van Sicken whom the newspapers said had shot himself at home on Tuesday night because he could not stand up under his "market losses." The papers named the suicide "Van Sicken," but all the Curb men were sure J. K. Van Sickle, a Curb broker for the Stock Exchange house of Hornblower & Weekes, must have been meant. He is the only Curb man with a name approaching that of the suicide.

Promptly at opening time Van Sickle appeared. He wore no bandages, and well-regulated ghosts don't walk in the day time. The Curb hair was collectively uneasy at its roots. Van Sickle's friends were inclined to doubt his statements that he was alive and in the flesh. There were no tell-tale bullet holes in either temple, and when he began to shout his bids and offers in a natural Curb voice he was welcomed back to the ranks.

Samuel B. Van Sicken, the suicide, is unknown on the Curb.

SHOT BY BOY WITH TOY GUN.

Mrs. August Hecksher of Fifth Avenue Slightly Wounded Behind the Ear.

A report that Mrs. August Hecksher of 628 Fifth Avenue had been shot behind the ear by a small boy, in Huntington, L. I., Monday morning, was in circulation yesterday. At the Hecksher home last night Mrs. Hecksher said that it was not a bullet, but a little stone, that a small boy had fired at her from his toy gun.

Mrs. Hecksher was on her way to Wincoma, her country home at East Neck, when the boy fired at her. According to Mr. Hecksher the lad took deliberate aim and then ran. His identity is not known.

The wound caused Mrs. Hecksher considerable pain at first, but the effects soon wore off. Last night Mr. Hecksher said she had completely recovered.

RAILWAYS AND PUBLIC.

In a communication to The Wall Street Journal Mr. BRYAN brings his views regarding the railway problem up to date in greater detail than in any other expression since his unfortunate Madison Square Garden deliverance. His motive in making that declaration, he tells us, was to retain the radicals within the Democratic Party. Mr. ROOSEVELT himself has no greater dislike of the reactionary element in the Republican Party than Mr. BRYAN admits regarding the Democratic reactionaries, and it must be admitted that the distrust is justified in both cases. The reactionaries in each camp afford a contrast which seems to us more to the credit of the old-fashioned Democrats than of the Republican old guard. But there can be no doubt of the justification of Mr. BRYAN'S foresight. He has lost his radicals to a higher bid, and the helpless Republican reactionaries are scarcely tall enough to steady the amalgamated kite-flying radicals.

Mr. BRYAN still sticks to his idea of a State and Federal railway organization analogous to the Constitution of our Nation. He argues as though economic centralization were as objectionable as political centralization. It might be if there were any doubt of the subordinate position of our financial men on horseback, and if there were not still some lingering need of protection against political men on horseback. So long as government is supreme economic centralization is desirable, rather than objectionable. Mr. BRYAN still favors Federal trunk lines and State feeders, and entertains no doubt of their harmonious operation. He assumes that there would be no difficulty about making connections and arranging joint rates. Undoubtedly the rates would be just what were enacted, but it may be imagined that under those conditions there would be small inducement for the construction of feeders by either State or individual capital. There would be few candidates for partnership with the Government upon its own terms, the junior partner having sole right to whatever the Government did not want. If the prospect should not prove alluring the Government lines would lack feeders—although, to be sure, it could carry its mails, and, perhaps, do as other railways do, create traffic by promoting local industries. Thus Government ownership of railways would be likely to prove merely the first step toward a wider socialism.

It is curious how closely Mr. BRYAN follows the plans of the railway magnates, whom he detests. Government, he says, might either build or buy the system, to consist in the first instance of a single line east and west, intersected by another north and south. And this could be done by the Government being merely the majority interest. Are the people really so enamored of holding companies that they would like to see the Government itself one? And where would the minority be found content with the Government's 2 per cent. rate of interest? Or would the Government, in approved fashion, charge all the traffic would bear in order to come out ahead? If the rates were on a 2 per cent. basis how would the taxpayers fare in bad years when deficits accrued? And if the rates were high, how would the people profit by relief from the railway octopus?

There is nothing alarming about Mr. BRYAN'S adjectives. Mr. ROOSEVELT'S messages might be searched in vain for more reassuring expressions and pleasing promises. For example:

> It is needless to say that no confiscation is proposed. There is no disposition under either strict regulation or Government ownership to do injustice to investors in railroad securities, and the courts would prevent injustice even if it were attempted. As a matter of fact, the people have been more ready to do justice to the railroads than the railroad managers have been to do justice to the people.

Is it so? On an adjoining page of the journal in which Mr. BRYAN'S letter appears we find the strictly Wall Street view of a certain notorious transaction which is generally considered the epitome of all that is heinous in railway exploitation. This curious Wall Street person remarks that under the orders of the Illinois Railway Commission the Alton reduced its rates so that its earnings in 1906 were smaller by $1,626,278, as compared with its earnings before reorganization under Mr. HARRIMAN'S auspices. This would have shown a divisible income on the common stock of over 7 per cent., whereas none has ever been earned. It is apparent that the recapitalization has not enabled the Alton to charge extortionate rates, and it is also evident that without extortion the present moderate charge would have enabled an income upon the capitalization which has been so denounced. This curious Wall Street person who propounds such heresies side by side with what Mr. BRYAN esteems a conservative appeal for radical support concludes with a question which is worth answering before accepting Mr. BRYAN'S statement that there can be no injustice so long as the moderation characteristic of the past is practiced in the future:

> Query: Was the Alton looted by the Reorganization Syndicate, which could not have foreseen the reduction in freight rates subsequently required, or, was the Railway Commission responsible for the looting because of ordering a reduction in rates without fully realizing the consequences?

FRUITS OF AGITATION.

The proceedings of the American Investment Trust's annual meeting in London disclose how far from true is the assumption that agitations like that now proceeding here and there will have no adverse effect because of the beneficent intentions and patriotic motives of their promoters. Lord EUSTACE CECIL, as President, reported that the trust had among its investments over $5,000,000 of American railway securities, and that the valuation of their holdings compared unfavorably with the previous year because of the extraordinary depreciation in America. Their investments had become so unsatisfactory that it had become necessary to look around. The London report of the meeting says:

> "The board thought it was time to ask the stockholders for larger powers of investment. The stockholders assented to that course, and the company obtained powers to extend its investments in Mexico, in South America, in Cuba, and in the Philippine Islands. He [the President] congratulated the stockholders upon the advantage they had obtained in that direction, and he hoped they would for a considerable time to come be able to invest their money at 4½ per cent., 5½ per cent., and even 6 per cent. interest."

It is—or, perhaps, we should say, ought to be—sobering to find capital which has been attracted here to its benefit and ours, now seeking other countries, which in turn will thrive upon methods of financing which we are rejecting.

MOBILIZING REAL ESTATE.

Representatives of the real estate organizations of the city will appear before the proper legislative committee at Albany on the 17th of this month to plead for the passage of the bill intended to introduce the registration system of land transfers commonly known as the Torrens system, in this State. Despite the delay that has been encountered, we believe that it is yet practicable to bring the measure to passage, and we know of none of more immediate and substantial advantage to a great interest in the community.

The principle of the bill can hardly be said to be open to discussion. It has been tested by experience on two continents and in a half dozen States of our own Union, with increasing satisfaction in its working for something like a score of years in Australia and a half score in the United States. Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio have adopted it in the West and Massachusetts in the East. We have experience of its operation in nearly all sorts of communities, from the least settled to the most crowded, and under pretty nearly every imaginable condition of previous legal regulation and custom. Probably the difficulties to be overcome could nowhere be more numerous, formidable, and deeply rooted than in the City of New York, and this fact will doubtless be urged in criticism of the proposed measure. But the force of the objection is met by the consideration that the system which the bill proposes to make official, under legal regulation, and through public agencies, is already to all intents and purposes in partial operation by the various title guarantee companies.

The only obvious and important difference between the system of these admirable and efficient organizations and that which the bill would establish, so far as we can see, is that the latter would be much simpler, more available to all parties in interest, less expensive, and, on the whole, more effectual and secure. In the one case the parties to real estate transactions have the guarantee of the private corporation—a very sound and carefully issued one in this city, we believe—and in the other case they have the guarantee of the State. For the latter the charge will be no more than the estimated cost of the guarantee, and the longer the system is in operation the more complete must be the system and the less the risk of insurance. In the case of the corporations, the charge is necessarily and properly larger, the work is more expensive, much of it is repeated, and there is no prospect of substantial amelioration. The fact that a satisfactory transfer now requires in time from a couple of weeks to two months, while in Chicago, where the system has been established some ten years, the entire transaction can be closed in as many days, or even sometimes in a few hours, is a striking evidence of the change it is possible to bring about.

The direct object of the system may be defined to be the mobilizing of real estate, so that it can readily be bought or sold or pledged as security for credit in proportion to its actual market value, the same as other property, subject only to the restrictions inherent in its peculiar uses, and free from those now imposed by the obscurity, confusion, and uncertainty that may hang about the title. Of course, no one expects that a deed to a house and lot can be made as negotiable as a bill of lading for a trainload of wheat, but there is no reason why its negotiability should be impaired by doubt as to title in one case any more than in the other. Any substantial improvement in this direction would be a great benefit to all classes of the people, and especially it would tend strongly to increase the number of citizens owning their own homes, and having that stake in the order and prosperity of the State that such ownership involves. The realty guarantee companies have already accomplished very much in this direction, and they are entitled to great credit. They have measurably reduced the friction previously attending real estate transactions. It remains now for the State to take up the work and to carry it to its beneficent completion.

SLAUGHTER IN RUSSIA.

Mr. STEPHEN BONSAL'S St. Petersburg dispatches to THE TIMES, including that of yesterday, in which he enumerates the "casualties" of the struggle between progressives and reactionaries, and that of last Sunday, in which he reported an interview with Prof. MILIUKOFF, are informative and illuminating documents upon the actual situation of Russia.

Nobody can have read the dispatch we published yesterday without observing that the actual status between the Duma and the Czardom is a state of war. We learn of 1,080 "executed" on the one side, 3,242 "assassinated" on the other—such are Mr. BONSAL'S figures. Figures much larger were given out from the Russian Embassy in Washington some weeks ago. But those figures were "suspect." In a population of nearly a hundred millions for European Russia alone, there must be a certain number of executions every year which have nothing to do with "politics." There were 136 legal executions in the United States in 1905, and something like the same number of lynchings. European Russia is more populous than the United States. It is politically and socially much disturbed, and the population is to that extent more lawless. One must not confuse political "executions" or even political "assassinations" with the ordinary course of justice. Nevertheless, this enumeration indicates unmistakably, and after all abatements, a state of war. It also indicates that for every execution ordered by court-martial or otherwise beyond the ordinary legal processes and by "administrative means" there has been at least one assassination. Mr. BONSAL sets forth that, whereas many of the assassinated have been killed upon good though irregular grounds, many more have been killed simply for wearing the Czar's uniform. This is war.

Evidently this should not be so. The body of the Russian officials may not be very scrupulous. But, as Mr. BONSAL points out, it is not bloodthirsty. By no manner of means is the body of Russian office holders composed of callous persons like the body of the old French noblesse, indifferent to the suffering of the "lower orders." The members of the Grand Ducal Tammany may almost be counted on the fingers of one hand. Many of Dr. ALADIN'S hearers in this country, we may assume, have been shocked by his frequent quotation of "à la guerre comme à la guerre." Why any "war" at all in Russia? It is admitted that M. STOLYPIN has made good his pledge to suspend "administrative punishments," which is to say drumhead courts-martial for civilians. Why should not Russian Liberals—one does not say Socialists on the one hand any more than he says the "League of the Russian People" on the other—meet him half way? Why should there be any question of "war" at all between the two parties? Why should there not be, instead of war, an attempt on both sides to modernize Russia peacefully and gradually? M. STOLYPIN on his side has done his utmost. He has not even stipulated that "the assassins should begin." The practical question seems to be as to the amount of political wisdom in the Russian Duma.

SUPPOSITIONS FOR TEACHERS.

Suppose a great business concern were asked by 12,000 of its employés to increase their pay by 32.6 per cent. to 51.9 per cent. Would it not—should it not—scrutinize the proposal with some care?

Suppose their plea were made mandatory by the employés, who should force a bill embodying the mandate through the State Legislature. Would it not arouse a degree of reasonable hostility in the breasts of the employers?

Suppose the 12,000 women employés admitted that they entered the service contentedly, with full knowledge of what their wages were to be from year to year; suppose they admitted that their employers had offered to consider the question of advancing the wage schedules to a point corresponding with the increased cost of living, and they had refused this offer. Would their demand for a peremptory law seem reasonable?

Suppose these women admitted that a sprinkling of men employés was indispensable to the right conduct of the business; that, owing to the competition of other employers in other fields for male service, capable men were harder to get than capable women for positions of the same grade, and the men could be tempted into the employment only at correspondingly higher wages. Suppose, too, that the women, with their schedules adjusted to present cost of living, would admittedly receive higher wages than obtain anywhere else in the country for their labor. Would not the mandate of the mass of women to have their salaries advanced even above this top notch and "equalized" with the exceptional salaries paid to the relatively few and indispensable men totter on its economic foundations?

Suppose the employers were taxpayers. Suppose the business concern were the public school system of New York City. Would the case be altered?

TRADE WITH MOROCCO.

A suggestive echo of the Moroccan Conference, in which the good offices of the United States were brought to bear to bring about an adjustment of the issues between the French and German Governments, is to be found in the statistics of the foreign trade of Morocco for 1906, which have just been issued by the French Government. One root of the Moroccan controversy was, of course, to be sought in commercial jealousy.

What has really happened, according to these figures of the French Government, compiled from Morocco Custom House and French Consular Agent sources, is that of the total trade of 85,069,899f. in 1906, an increase of 6,427,000f. over 1905, France secured 42,807,663f., a gain of nearly 1¼ per cent., while Germany secured only 7,182,780f., an actual decrease of 149,871f. It is worth noting that this is the second year of shrinkage in German commerce with Morocco and that she now holds a bad third place, the United Kingdom's portion of the total trade being 24,549,948f., an increase of 5 per cent. above the previous year. Spain, another party to the Conference, gained 22 per cent. Italy, also a conferree, lost 8 per cent., and the United States, whose kindly intervention did so much to calm the troubled waters, fell 63 per cent. under its Moroccan trade of 1905. It is a somewhat curious fact that in spite of our prominence at this Conference our total interest in Morocco, as represented by our trade, was last year exactly $195,592.

JAPAN IN FORMOSA.

One of the natural appeals of Japan for the sympathy and approval of the Western world is contained in a recent volume by a member of the Diet relating to the work of Japan in Formosa.

That work has now been going on for a dozen years, having been assumed in 1895, at the close of the war with China. Unquestionably it has been extremely difficult, nearly as difficult, we should say, as the kindred task taken over by the United States three years later in the Philippines. Two principal problems presented themselves. The first was that of brigandage. In the western and partly settled and civilized half of the island, brigandage was the rule rather than the exception. The life of the island was adjusted to it. It had a certain regularity and standing, and especially the sentiment and opinion of the people were more or less in sympathy with it. When Marshal KODAMA took the office of Governor General, his first plan—natural in a soldier of his eminence and success—was to put down brigandage by force. Several vigorous campaigns were waged against the brigand groups, but with almost no real or lasting effect. Bushwhacking, mountain fighting, sudden attack, retreat, ambush, treachery, all these were things in which even the supple and resourceful regulars of the Japanese Army could but ill contend with the wily and hardened islanders. Then the Marshal came to the conclusion that a golden bridge to peace and order might be constructed. Full pardon was offered to those who would surrender, work was promised, and in certain cases a substantial pension from the Treasury. This policy with renewed energy in pursuing the recalcitrant remnant was attended with practical success. Brigandage is now in effect suppressed.

The second problem is that of the savage tribes occupying the eastern half of the island, where the natural resources in the way of minerals and timber are the most plentiful. With this matter the Japanese have been unable to find any permanent or very promising way of dealing. A line of connected forts with moderate garrisons has been stretched from north to south on the border of the savage territory, and while these protect the civilized region, they also afford a base from which a slow advance is being undertaken. As yet, however, it has been very slow and slight. The most encouraging fact is the reported tendency of the savages to friendly intercourse with the Japanese.

In one respect Japanese rule has been markedly successful. It is able to meet its own expenses, and is not a drain on the Imperial Treasury. Beyond that, however, it is questionable whether the task assumed in 1895 has been rewarded adequately or ever will be.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Waging War on the Big Signs.

One of our neighbors, in a commendable effort to prove its possession of a highly developed appreciation of the aesthetic, has undertaken a vigorous campaign against the urban sign in its uglier and more overgrown forms. That the city would be more beautiful, or at least less offensive, to the artist eye if its signs were kept within the legitimate purpose of signs, which is to give desired information and not to compel the unwilling as well as the willing attention, is a self-evident truth, and any hopeful attempt to remedy an evil both irritating and barbaric is deserving of sympathy. Therefore the neighbor has ours, but it does seem to us that it is ignoring several rather important elements of the problem it has set out to solve.

In the first place, it trusts altogether too much to legislative assistance. Prohibitive and restrictive laws are usually easy to get by those who know how to set about it, but their enforcement is quite another matter, and a law against gigantic signs flaming with crude and warring colors would be an almost useless thing if there were not a considerable demand for it from the public. Of course it is not a fatal defect in a law that it is somewhat ahead of the general sentiment of the communities it affects, but it must not be too far ahead, under pain of being that deplorable thing, a "dead letter." As we doubt if any sign is so big and so gaudy as seriously to offend even a large minority of our population, our own advice would be first to educate the public taste in this matter, and especially to present what is probably the fact that many who are not offended by ugly and immodest signs could be pleased by beautiful and modest ones, and that to give such pleasure is "good business" as well as good taste.

The possibility of pleasing in this way once generally realized, failure to do it would become generally offensive, and immediately the public itself would reform the signs in the most effective of ways—by quietly boycotting every claimant for patronage who ignored or violated the new standards. While the belief persists that it is desirable to attract attention, no matter how, to wares for sale or amusements offered, a sign-restricting law will do little good and it may do harm as a seeming interference with natural rights.

It will be noticed, too, that a property owner who is quite willing to accept a big annual rental for the use of his roof as an advertising medium, while that roof covers a building in which he takes no pride, acquires very different ideas the moment he replaces that building with one of real or supposed architectural merit. We do not recall that any more than half way meritorious structure in the city is defaced by its signs, even now, and as the number of such structures is rapidly increasing the end of the evil is in sight.

Evidently Needs Reforming.

Nothing could better illustrate the need of such a reformation of the police service as the Bingham bill will at least make possible, than the remarks of one of the present, but probably not long to be, Inspectors, quoted yesterday by a TIMES reporter.

"Suppose I am reduced," he said, with fine prophetic fervor. "I've been a good Captain, or else I shouldn't be here now. But then I had something to work for. But if I go back to the station house I've got no more hopes of promotion. I may have to work under a man who was under my orders and I had a run-in with. Do you think I am going to work hard to make his job a success? It isn't in human nature."

That is an utterly wrong-headed way of looking at the situation, for it quite ignores the possibility that the Police Department is to be run on right principles in the future. Why shouldn't this Inspector, even if reduced, still have something to work for? He could seek, for instance, to establish—or to re-establish—a reputation for honesty and efficiency, and the glories of an Inspectorship would still be within reach if he succeeded in doing it. And how naïve is the confession that if his superior happened to be a sometime subordinate with whom he had quarreled, he would not "word hard to make his job a success"! That was, in effect a threat to make that "job" a failure by neglect of duty or underhanded plotting.

A contrary course may not be "in human nature" as it is understood by unregenerate policemen, but it can easily enough be conceived, and more or less closely followed by policemen of the sort New York hopes to get in the days to come. And if those days do come, the attainment of revenges, and even the prevention of successes, in the manner hinted, will become an extremely dangerous business, for Inspectors and Captains alike.

Rivers and Transportation.

Our correspondents have broken out anew with scoldings of New York for making so little use of its rivers in supplementing the service of its overcrowded street railways. Well, it does seem a little absurd that we have so long seen and still see in those two big streams, so far as urban transportation is concerned, only inconvenient interruptions of our streets, to be crossed in any convenient—or inconvenient—way, but never to be used by boats going up stream or down.

The fact is, however, that river steamboats are unendurably slow, as compared with the other means we have of getting about the city, and in addition the rivers themselves always have been and apparently always will be hard to reach and hard to get away from for those who are on the main ridge of the long island and wish only to move from one end of it to the other. So, for the New Yorker, as such, the river steamboat is a thing to make excursions on, rather than a means of transportation somewhere, or even anywhere. It is and must remain too far from Broadway for daily business uses, except by the commuters on the ferryboats. There is little sense in scolding about it. Habits are not going to change, for they are the result of natural conditions.

ROOSEVELT AND HARRIMAN.

The Story of the Episode of 1904 Printed Fourteen Months Ago.

From The Boston Herald, Jan. 21, 1906.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1906.—Mr. E. H. Harriman told an interesting story to a former Governor of New York and to a Senator at Albany, and one of these gentlemen told it to me.

In 1904, when the Republican money chest was badly in need of funds for carrying on the National campaign, President Roosevelt invited Mr. Harriman to Washington.

Mr. Harriman did not go.

Again the President invited him.

Again Mr. Harriman did not go.

A third time came an invitation from the President, and this time Mr. Harriman found reason to accept. He went to Washington. He saw the President, and conferred with him about campaign contributions. Soon after that the Republican campaign funds were sufficient.

Of course, in matters of this sort, there is always a quid pro quo. A result of the conference between the President and Mr. Harriman was an understanding that Senator Depew should be given an Embassy to Europe, thus clearing the way for the election of Mr. Frank S. Black, ex-Governor of New York, as his successor.

When, in due time, Mr. Harriman asked that this understanding be carried out, the President declined to do so.

Whether or not the association of Senator Depew's name with the insurance scandals had developed when the refusal was made is not the point of the narrative.

ARTHUR WARREN.

PRESIDENT AND PEOPLE.

A Correspondent Thinks The Times Overheated on the Subject.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Altogether Amusing" is the title of an editorial in to-day's issue of THE TIMES. Altogether amusing, it seems to me, is the attitude of THE TIMES in the matter of President Roosevelt's popularity. Apparently you deem it a deplorable circumstance that the great mass of the American public believe that the present incumbent of the White House is absolutely honest and worthy of unstinted support and encouragement. As I view it, if 75 per cent., say, of the population of the United States are pretty thoroughly satisfied with Mr. Roosevelt and approve, on the whole, of his principles and the way they are being applied, and if another 15 per cent. are passively content to have him where he is, it is not a matter of sleep-destroying concern whether the remaining 10 per cent. dislike the President or not.

What is a republic for, anyhow? As I understand it, it is created for the purpose of securing for the greatest number that which they want. If the greatest number (in this case an overwhelming majority) have got what they want in Roosevelt, it seems to me it is altogether amusing for THE NEW YORK TIMES or any other paper, to get excited and overheated. None of "the crowd," as you refer to the bulk of the voters, cares a rap for the predictions of disaster which you are passing out at the rate of a column or two a day. Most of the President's supporters, I think, hold to the opinion that when hard times come, they will come, and that Roosevelt won't have much to do with it one way or the other. For the present they are satisfied that there is a man at the head of things at Washington who is strictly "on the level," and that, whatever mistakes he may make, he will never "sell them out." He can take as much corporation money as he needs for campaign purposes for all the crowd cares, as long as such contributions do not influence his official acts—and they won't.

"CONSERVATIVE."

New York, April 9, 1907.

THE PEOPLE'S IDOL.

Comment Based on the Results of The Times's Canvass of Editors.

From The Chicago Record-Herald.

Two New York newspapers made special efforts last week to test the sentiment of the country with reference to President Roosevelt. THE NEW YORK TIMES (Dem.) sent letters to 500 Republican editors throughout the country, and by Saturday night had received fifty-eight answers, coming all the way from Maine to Minnesota. THE TIMES was astounded by the "unanimity of the replies and the length to which the editors, as men most closely in touch with the sentiment of the country, go in asserting the overpowering strength, the deep seriousness, and the blazing enthusiasm with which the mass of the Republican Party and a large proportion of Democrats have now come to the support of the President." The Herald (Ind.) secured estimates of the sentiment from its correspondents based in the main on interviews with political leaders, and showed similar results.

From The Providence Journal.

By every test the popularity of the President is not only undiminished, it has even increased, and perhaps is still increasing. The expressions of opinion recently printed in The Journal from its Rhode Island readers, and collected similarly by other newspapers in other States, show conclusively a strong sentiment in favor of his re-election, in spite of his positive declaration that he will not again be a candidate. No third-term movement, surely, ever stood that test before. Furthermore, Republican editors all over the country have been called upon for testimony to the condition of the public mind, and the first installment of their letters, as published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Sunday, adds to the conviction that thousands of both parties are anxious to see Mr. Roosevelt succeed himself.

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Every attempt to defeat or discredit the President's course has reacted upon those responsible for it. At this moment, in considering the question of available candidates, and of both parties, for 1908, an "if" is encountered. Certain people are for So-and-So, provided Roosevelt is not a candidate. This fact is made plain not only by individual utterances, but also by the voices of State Legislatures in which the test of popularity has been made. Roosevelt's name leads all the rest. It is Roosevelt first and the rest nowhere. The latest test of the kind was made by THE NEW YORK TIMES, an independent paper which is by no means a thick and thin Roosevelt supporter, but, on the contrary, freely criticises and occasionally pokes fun at the President. A week ago Monday it mailed letters to 500 Republican editors all over the country, and last Saturday printed the gist of the sixty-eight replies up to that time received. With one exception these declared that the President is stronger with the people than ever, though many remained silent on the third-term question. It is made plain that the rank and file of his party are devoted to him, and that the same is true of thousands of Democrats. It is impossible to miss the significance of this testimony from men who are in the best possible position to see which way the wind is blowing in their bailiwicks.

From The Hartford Times.

In view of the remarkable exposure of the attitude of the great majority of the newspapers of the country that seek to conform to the popular feeling toward the Administration at Washington, which is made in the letters from editors of Republican newspapers, of which THE NEW YORK TIMES is publishing several columns every day, it is exceedingly useful to give the widest publicity to the existence of such a state of the popular mind in certain States of the Union as is frankly disclosed in the following letter:

Janesville, Wis., April 4.

President Roosevelt enjoys his old-time popularity among the voters of Southern Wisconsin. The Brownsville affair, the Storer episode, and Harriman quarrel fail to disturb the masses. "The King can do nothing wrong" expresses popular sentiment in this neck of the woods, and nothing but an earthquake will disturb the serenity. "So mote it be."

H. F. BLISS, Editor Gazette.

"The King can do no wrong"—what a statement to be made by any American citizen concerning the President of the Republic! Yet here we have it, and scores of other Republican editors say practically the same thing—that this is the feeling of their readers about Theodore Roosevelt, the man who is appealing to the prejudice and animosity of all who do not possess wealth against those who do possess it, while himself more fully allied with combinations of wealth and more grossly obligated to them than any man who ever occupied the Presidential office; the man who personally directed the canvass for his own re-election in 1904; the man who, two years later, was imploring Edward H. Harriman to come to the White House and to raise money for the New York campaign; the man who punished the innocent black soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry without a trial; the man who boasts his privilege of denouncing any American citizen as a liar who says anything he does not approve.

The Times's Cable Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to tender my meed of thanks, also congratulations, for the very full and complete pages of European news given to your readers in last Sunday's TIMES. You certainly covered the whole field in a masterful manner, not approached, I think, by any other metropolitan journal, and fully in keeping with the high standard usually maintained by THE NEW YORK TIMES in the treatment of all matter of interest to its readers.

PEMBROKE.

Brooklyn, April 9, 1907.

Possibly an Explanation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In "Lorna Doone" the one defect of a notable housewife is condoned in the statement, "crossness is the vice of clean women." Perhaps temper is the vice of clean men—public men, politicians, and Presidents. And compared with all the others, though to be regretted, what a venial vice!

PROTEST FROM TEACHERS.

Declare the Charges Made Against Them Are Malicious and Baseless.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of March 28 you published a letter of one "M. J. Handley," who claims to be a student of the New York Evening High School for Men. On March 29 you took occasion to comment editorially on Mr. Handley's letter, agreeing with him in his main contention that the teachers of this school are, many of them, lazy time servers, neglectful of the work for which they have been appointed.

We teachers in the New York Evening High School for Men feel that we can easily afford to ignore such vague, sweeping, and incoherent charges as those made by this pretended student. The fact that most of us are evening school teachers of long standing, teachers whose work has been repeatedly supervised and rated as satisfactory by the properly constituted authorities, leads us to feel that a detailed answer would but lend dignity to the attack of a person who, under cover of an assumed name, attempts to injure the good name of an institution in which the character of the instruction afforded is excelled by no other school covering the same field.

We do wish, however, to protest strongly against the action of THE NEW YORK TIMES in lending editorial support to what is on the face of it a malicious and cowardly attack prompted by motives of self-interest. It is our opinion that, in view of the large and important interests affected by such an attack, it would have been but ordinary fairness for THE TIMES first to investigate fully the charges made in the "Handley" letter before it lent itself to the purposes of one who questions the integrity of the Board of Education, the ability of the supervisory officers appointed by that board, the reputation of a large number of earnest and meritorious teachers, and the intelligence of thousands of New York's representative young men, when he declares that the education afforded by the evening high schools of the City of New York is largely a matter of "bluff."

THE TEACHERS OF THE NEW YORK EVENING HIGH SCHOOL FOR MEN.

New York, April 9, 1907.

The evening high school teachers misstate the case. THE TIMES has not lent editorial support to any contention that they were "lazy time servers" and "neglectful." Mr. Handley made this recommendation: "Do not permit day school teachers (who are tired out after their day's work) to teach in the night time." That was his main contention—certainly not malicious or cowardly. The evidence we adduced in support of this statement was embodied in a proposal made last Fall to the Board of Education by a committee representing the High School Teachers' Association, which reads:

"Because of the difficulty of living on the present salaries an increasingly large number of teachers are seeking positions in the evening schools. This can but impair their value to the high schools, as no teacher can work so many hours and be efficient."—Editor TIMES.

The Times and Mr. Carnegie.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg the pleasure of thanking THE TIMES not only for the report, in its last Saturday's issue, but also for the prominent place given to the peace meeting in Mr. Andrew Carnegie's residence. THE TIMES is leading the way in giving the first and best place to the good news of the hour, and in assigning evil tidings, minus needless details, (with which the public at large has nothing to do,) to a secondary or inferior place. For years some of us have been yearning for the newspaper that keeps its first column, first page, sacred to the report of some kind of good news, so that we can always look for it there with the confidence with which we look for the rising of the sun in the east; and we believe the day is coming when such a custom will be the rule with first-class journals.

As to Mr. Carnegie, we believe that of all the splendid services he is rendering in behalf of the common weal, none of them surpasses such a meeting as he held the other night, and the international conference about to assemble in Carnegie Hall. Such munificent enterprises visibly, fraternally, and royally promote "peace on earth and good will among men," and thus hasten the dominance of the kingdom of God on earth, whose cardinal principles are righteousness, peace, joy, and love.

The many thousands who cannot be present at the great and significant congress in the interest of arbitration and peace look confidently to you for full reports.

Mrs. B. REMICK.

Meek New Yorkers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

New Yorkers are certainly deserving of credit for their meekness and sweet submissiveness. "Meek above all men upon the face of the earth" they undoubtedly are. To-day I journeyed from Park Slope, Brooklyn, to Broadway and Duane Street, Manhattan, without encountering a single employe of the Street Cleaning Department. For want of a little work on the gutters Broadway and the adjacent side streets were about as suitable for pedestrians as a water-cress bed would be. Chambers Streets was a lake, and City Hall Park a marsh. I suppose the weather was too inclement for the street cleaners to be allowed out.

By the way, for the last thirty or sixty years Londoners have known the use of the "squeegee" for cleaning just such sidewalks as we "sloshed" over in New York to-day. When will the smart people on this side wake up to the fact that there is such an implement to be had?

Papers and Papers.

From Success.

The ordinary investor, I find, is unable to distinguish between newspapers. Let me classify them.

1. Newspapers that do not sell a line of their editorial space to promoters, and that refuse all financial advertising of the wild-cat variety: THE NEW YORK TIMES, The New York Evening Post, The Philadelphia Public Ledger, and The Springfield Republican are among the American newspapers of this class.

2. Newspapers that keep their editorial columns clean, but let down the flood gates for all wildcat advertising that can be squeezed into the United States mails.

3. Newspapers that not only leave their financial advertising columns wide open, but also load up their editorial columns with "pleasant" news about promoters and their companies.

4. Newspapers that defraud their readers by selling their editorial space to any financial fabulist who has the price to pay for it.

5. Blackmailing sheets that praise those who pay and roast those who don't—the less said about them the better.

6. House organs, or publications brought out by promoters to sing the praises of their own wares.

Clean financial newspapers are as scarce as hen's teeth.

SPRING FASHIONS.

Of course, you have a dentist
And a physician, too,
An oculist and aurist
And other-ists, a few;
Of course, you have a surgeon
To amputate and twist,
But, tell me—have you chosen
Your fav'rite alienist?

You haven't yet? That statement
Your claim to Fashion kills.
What? You still harbor measles—
You're still consuming pills?
You're not of the Four Hundred,
I solemnly insist.
Go, get hallucinations
And call an alienist!

CALVE REAPPEARS IN "NAVARRAISE"

Massenet's Opera Revived With Success at the Manhattan Opera House.

WELL ACTED AND SUNG

First Performance Since 1896 of Interesting One-Act Melodrama — "Pagliacci" Also Sung.

Aulta.....Mme. Calvé
Araquil.....M. Dalmorès
Garrido.....M. Arimondi
Remigio.....M. Sevelihac
Ramon.....M. Altchevsky
Bustamente.....M. Gilibert
Conductor, M. Cleofouts Campanini.

A semi-novslty was presented at the Manhettan Opera Houss last night, when Massenet's "La Navarraise" was sung for the first tims in this thsatre. This opera was first produced in America at the Metropolitan Opera House on December 12, 1895, and several performances of the work wers given in ths course of the season, with Mme. Calvé as Anita. Since theh, however, the opera has dropped out of the répertoire, and the performance last night was the first in eleven years.

It is strangely nnilks Massenet's other operas in character and bears a strong family resemblance to what is known as the "young Italian school," that of Mascagni, Leoncavallo, Giordano, and the others who seek brutal librettos on which to festoon their music. Ths story is as modern and realistic as ths plot of "Pagliacci," which preceded it last night.

It concerns ths love of Anita, the girl from Navarre, for Araquil, Sergeant in a Biscayan regiment. At the beginning of the opera ths royalist troops are returning after vainly trying to take a Basque village from the Carlist enemy, Zuccaraga. Among ths women waiting is Anita, who recognizes Araquil. A passionats love duet follows.

Ths lovers are interrupted by Araquil's father, Remigio, who refuses to let his son marry an unknown girl without a dowry. He will consent to the marriage only on condition thet she bring him 2,000 douros.

Through the death of his superior officers Araquil is raised to ths rank of Lieutenant. He goes away with his father. Anita is desperate. As she lingers about, broken hearted, hse hears Garrido, General of the royelist troops, offer a fortune for the capture of Zuccaraga. Anita swears to Garrido that she will kill the Cerlist leeder for 2,000 douros, and flies away into the night.

Soon after Araquil enters to look for her, but finds her gone. Ramon, a young soldier, tells the Lieutenant that he has seen her on her way to the Carlist camp. Araquil rushes out to prove the truth of the rumor. There is an interlude representing the night, and Anita comes back as the dawn breeks. She has killed Zuccaraga, and demands her money. Soon after Araquil enters. He hes traced Anita to the Carlist camp, and her guilt is plain to him. Wounded, he dies as ths bells toll for Zuocaraga's death. Anita becomes mad.

Such, in brief, is an outline of the plot which Massenet hes used. It, of course, offers little opportunity for susteined lyric phrases in the French style, but the composer has taken advantage of theee chances when they appear. Anita's prayer to the Virgin, the love duet, the intermezzo, which pictures the night while the soldiers lie sleeping, and Bustamente's song. All these are beautiful music.

Much of the scors, as is necessary in melodrama, is taken up with short, quick phrases, but thsre is little of the descriptive orchestration in this opera which makes Puccini's "Tosca" possible. The booming of cannons, the shots of guns, and the ringing of bells all are used effectively at different times.

Altogether it is an interesting opera, worth an occasional revival, especially with such a cast as appeared in it last evening. Mme. Calvé has changed much in the eleven years which have passed since its first presentation here, but shs gave an impersonation of dramatic value. It is a part which is much closer to her now, much more easily within her scope, than the coquettish Carmen, and shs grasps her opportunities.

She is in the picture from the first, when she looks for her lover among the wounded soldiers who return while the cannon booms, and she carries the Navarraise logically to her tragic end. When Araquil dies she tslsctor his head in her lap and pulls back his eyelids to see if he is reelly deed, as she did in the original production here. The music of the part is rather high for her best voice, but she followed the baton more cerefully than usual.

Charles Dalmorès was seen to splendid advantage as Araquil, a part which fits his temperament dramatically, and which he sang extremely well. His voice is returning to its condition of last Fall after a month of colds and resultant hoarseness. Charles Gilibert sang the one song allotted to Bustamente with much effect. It ie one of the best things in the score. Mr. Arimondi was a plausible General, and Jean Altchevsky and Paul Séveilhac appeared in two small parts.

The scenery and costumes were all new, and the stage management generally effective, but the sunrise should first be seen on the mountain tops instead of in the valleys.

Mr. Campanini conducted, and read as much as possible into a rather thin score. The opera was preceded by "Pagliacci," which was given with the same cast as formerly, which includes Mme. Donalda and Messrs. Bassl, Séveilhac, Sammarco, and Venturini, end was given exceedingly well.

At the Lyric last night the acting of Signor Novelli and the principal members of his company rose superior to their vehicle, a three-act study in maudlin sentimentality by Cormon and Grange, "La Geria di Papa Martin," or in English just plain "Papa Martin." It is another variant of the Prodigal's Return. Betrone, Pescatori, Piamonti, and Signorina Rossi especially distinguished themselves in the support, the regal Gianani, for once contenting herself with a minor rôle, a bit of the spic self-eacrifice in itself worthy of note.

For Novelli himself the play again provides an opportunity to present a type bonrgeois of which he appears to be fond. Papa Martin, rejoicing in the progress of his son Armando, who is away at school in a little village near Parie, end hoping ultimately for a union between Armondo and his ward Amelia, visits the lad and is led to believe that he is making great strides. As a matter of fact the father happens in upon Armondo and a number of boon companione while they are having a gay time of it with a number of the light women of the neighborhood. The ringleader of the crowd is presented as a prominent berrister, and one of the cocottee happening along, Armondo introduces her to his father as a woman of fashion and title.

Ultimately the old man's eyes are opened to the deception, through the insistent demands of a money lender who holds Armondo's notes for 50,000 francs, a sum large enough to ruin the old man financially. This disclosure is made in the second act, an interminably long act, by the way, which is made interesting chiefly through Novelli's acting. He tells here in a vein of simple pathos the tale of his own struggles, and of the poverty of himself and his wife while they were struggling to bring up Armondo in the way he should go. Then the truth is brought home to the old man, and in a supper scene which follows he losee control of himself, rises in wrath from the tabls, and rushes from the room. A sea Captain who has been ons of the guests agrees to take the boy awey with him in his bark, and Papa Martin is left to break the news to his wife.

Happily for all concerned, the son makes a fortune in a new land, and returns in time to wed Amelia and restore joy to ths hearts of his aged and long-suffering parents.

BERNHARDT CHARGES LIBEL.

Actress Brings Suit for $100,000 Against the Press Publishing Co.

A complaint was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday by Coudert Brothers, counsel for Sarah Bernhardt-Damala, known to the stage as Sarah Bernhardt, the famous French tragedienne, wherein she seeks to recover the sum of $100,000 from the Press Publishing Company, publishers of The New York World.

The complaint allegee that on Feb. 17, 1907, The World published an article accusing Mme. Bernhardt of breach of contract with a publisher named Heineman, the publisher declaring that ths actress failed to give him proper materials for a life of herself, as, the story said, she had agreed to do.

The complaint insists that ths allegations in the article are wholly false, and that the plaintiff has been held up to the public, her business and literary acquaintances, and her friends as a dishonest and untrustworthy person, and as incapable and unfit to continue in her profession; that by reason of said publication the plaintiff has been injured in her good name and reputation and caused great mental suffering; that the sale of her memoirs has been seriously interfered with, and that she has sustained damages in the snm of $100,000.

FISKE BUYS MacKAYE PLAY.

"Sappho and Phaon" to be Produced at the Lyric in October.

Harrison Grey Fiske has purchased from Percy MacKaye the stage rights of his play, "Sappho and Phaon," for Bertha Kalich, who will appear in it as Sappho next season. The play is a poetic tragedy and preserves in its technique the ancient unities. The subject matter deals with legendary and historical persons of the time 900 B. C., and the plot is based on a passionate love story. The piece is set in a single scene—the exterior of a Greek temple overlooking the Aegean Sea.

Mr. Fiske has completed arrangements to produce "Sappho and Phaon" next October at the Lyric Theatre.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

John Henry Clews.

John Henry Clews, a member of the banking firm of Henry Clews & Co., and a nephew of Henry Clews, died early yesterday morning at his home, 47 West Fifty-eighth Street, of a liver majady. He had bsen in ill health since the first of the year, whon it was believed he was suffering from an attack of grip.

He went to Atlantic City in seerch of health, but finding relief there returned to New York, where he could be near his physicians.

Mr. Clews was one of the best known members of the New York Stock Exchange, of which he became e member in 1890. He was born in Dunkirk, N. Y., on Oct. 28, 1856. He received his early education at Chamberlain College, Randolph, N. Y. After graduation he became an office clerk for the Erie Railroad, but continued his studies. Later he was employed by the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad in Buffalo. In 1886 he came to New York to take charge of the Brooklyn office of Henry Clews & Co., and was afterward made a member of the firm.

Mr. Clews was a brother of James B. Clews. He was a conservative business man and popular in Wall Street. He was a member of the New York Yacht Club, the New York Athletic Club, and was on the Board of Directors of the Northwestern Dispensary. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Jessie Bradley of Dunkirk, and a daughter, Natalie, 17 years old.

John Chrysostom.

Brother John Chrysostom, the first Director of the Manhattan College, the institute carried on by the Brothers of the Christian Schoola at 131st Street and Broadway, died yesterday in his eighty-seventh year of heart disease, superinduced by old age.

Brother Chrysostom, who was one of the pioneer Christian Brothers in this country, was born in Manayunk, Penn., of French parentage in 1820. He joined the order at the age of 20, when the first branch was established in this country. His work began in the Academy of the Holy Infancy, in Canal Street, the first school of the order started in New York. This institution was later moved to Mulberry Street and was eventually extended in scope, and hence became the present Manhattan College.

Brother Chrysostom resigned the Directorship some years ago, as his faculties became impaired by old age. He taught elocution.

Ignaz Auer, the Socialist, Dead.

BERLIN, April 10.—Ignaz Auer, the well-known Socialist member of the Reichstag, is dead.

Ignaz Auer was born in 1846 at Dommelstadt. He began life as a saddler, but before long became well known as an earnest Socialist, and in 1877 was elected to the Reichstag. He did not hold his seat long, but was again elected in 1880, remaining a member of the Reichstag for seven years. In 1890 he was again returned, and held his seat until his death. He was a memher of the Governing Board of the Socialist Labor Party and in that capacity always discouraged any attempt of individual Socialists to assert themselves, believing that they should absolutely subordinate themselves to the governing body.

Jacob Bonnet.

Jacob Bonnet, aged 90, the oldest member of the well-known Huguenot family who fled from France and helped to settle New Rochelle in 1669, died yesterday at his home, on East Chester Road, in that city.

The Bonnet family were formerly part owners of a tract of 5,000 acres, comprising the entire City of New Rochelle, which was purchased by Huguenot refugeee from Lord Pell. The family were for years prominent in public affeirs in Westchester County. Joseph Drake, the maternal grandfather of Jacob Bonnet, was Master of the Masonic lodge in New Rochelle in 1811.

Mr. Bonnet was for many years engaged in business in Harlem. He leaves a widow.

MISS ANGLIN MAY TOUR AUSTRALIA

But Not Immediately, She Says, Maybe In a Year from Summer.

WILLIAMSON WANTS HER

It Was Suggested That She Should Take a World Tour in "Zira," but She Can't Now.

Margaret Anglin, who is now appearing with Henry Miller in "The Great Divide" at the Princess Theatre, contemplates making an Australian tour. The same report which brought news of this said that ths expedition would probably be only one feature of a trip around the world. Miss Anglin, whose recent successes in "Zira" and "Ths Great Divide" have established her as one of the foremost American emotional stars, has heretofore confined her efforts to American territory.

When the question of an Australian tour was brought to her attention Miss Anglin sent word that the trip was not immediately in prospect, and would not be taken before a year from next Summer.

Several noted American stars have mads long and successful tours of Australia within the last few years, and it has been generally known that such an undertaking had been suggested to Miss Anglin.

Walter Jordan of Sanger & Jordan, agents and representatives here of J. C. Williamson, the leading Australian theatrical manager, said that Miss Anglin had not yet signed a contract for ths tour and he supposed the matter had been abandoned for the present, but negotiations had been opened.

"At onc tims ws hoped Miss Anglin would make an Australian tour in 'Zira,'" said Mr. Jordan. "It was thought that the story of that South African drama would particularly appeel to the Australian public, and it seemed obviously the best vehicle for her use. Somo time ago, however, we were told to dispose of the piece, and it was sold to Australia for the use of Titelle Brune. We took this, then, as a significant of Miss Anglin'a determination to remain in this country.

"We have made offers to Miss Anglin for Mr. Williamson. We made a proposition to her some months ago, and it may be that she will finally accept it."

It has been officially announced that Miss Anglin and Henry Miller, despite all reports to the contrary, will continue to appear together next season and will resume their engagement in "The Great Divide" at Daly's Theatre in the Autumn.

REAL BASEBALL WILL START TO-DAY

Major League Teams Prepare for Opening the Championship Season.

GIANTS AT POLO GROUNDS

Will Open With the Philadelphia Team —Americans Play First Contest at Washington.

GAMES SCHEDULED TO-DAY.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Philadelphia at New York.
Brooklyn at Boston.
St. Louis at Chicago.
Pittsburg at Cincinnati.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

New York at Washington.
Boston at Philadelphia.
Chicago at St. Louis.
Cleveland at Detroit.

Weather permitting, the baseball season will open to-day. The snow and rain of the past few days makes the outlook in the East somewhat dubious. A number of games were postponed yesterday on account of soft grounds, but reports from the West would seem to make it reasonably certain that the schedules of both the National and American Leagues will begin there as planned. In every section of the country there is increased interest in the National game, and predictions are freely made that it will be a banner season for baseball. More professional leagues will be seen in competition than ever before, the number of players greater, and the attendance is expected to exceed that of former years.

Through deals and strengthening processes by the clubs comprising the National League the race for the pannant is expected to be closer than heretofore. Upon paper the eight clubs appear to be more evenly matched, which insures an interesting struggle until the final series in October. Pittsburg and New York bave always been the dangerous elements in the National League, irrespective of alterations and improvements elsewhere, and this year promises no exception to the rule. With the New York pitchers in form, the Giants will be as strong a contender as the Chicago team, with Pittsburg close up. Philadelphia has developed unexpected early strength, especially in the series with the Athletics, and under the management of "Billy" Murray should continue to improve. Boston has been strengthened in several respects, and should figure high in the second division. Brooklyn's pitching department has been strengthened and the team generally improved. St. Louis is an unknown quantity and the dark horse. Cincinnati looks like the logical tailender, as many of last year's best men have been disposed of.

The American League promises another close finish. With a fair element of luck, New York will be a prominent contender for premier honors. Nothing startling has developed in the pitching department over last year, but the team on the whole shows increased strength. The Athletics can he depended upon to keep well to the front, and Manager Mack will start the season with his men in good shape. Chicago, the present champions, by their combination playing are equally strong as last year. The suicide of "Chick" Stahl was a hard blow to Boston, which is worse off than last year. Washington, under new management, may prove a surprise, but not up to the pennant-winning form. Cleveland is, on paper, one of the strongest clubs in the league, and should finish near the top of the first division. Detroit, with Hughey Jennings as manager, may be expected to make a better showing this season than last year.

The local season will open at the Polo Grounds if there is any possibility of doing so. Philadelphia is scheduled to play New York. A force of laborers with teams worked all day yesterday and cleaned away the snow from the field. If no more rain falls and the sun shines warm and bright to-day, Secretary Knowles says it will be possible to play the game. The usual opening day ceremonies will be observed. These will include the parade of the rival teams and the musical programme by the Seventh Regiment band. A number of invitations have been sent out and Mayor McClellan will be represented by one of his Cabinet to throw the first ball in the game. Should the game be postponed, invitations and reserved seats will be good for the first game played. Brooklyn will begin the season in Boston. In the West St. Louis is scheduled at Chicago, and Pittsburg will play at Cincinnati.

The schedule for the American League's opening in the East will bring New York and Washington together at the latter city, and Philadelphia will play the initial game at Boston. The Western half of the schedule places Chicago at St. Louis and Cleveland at Detroit.

The batting order for the New York and Philadelphia clubs follows:

NEW YORK.	PHILADELPHIA.

OUTLOOK IN OTHER CITIES.

Frost Predicted for the Opening Game at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—There is every indication that if the opening game of the American League in this city tomorrow between Washington and New York is played the thermometer will he hovering around freezing point. The Washington players returned this morning, and although Manager Cantillon had intended to get his men out for practice this afternoon, the weather was so cold that all work was called off. Although it was announced this evening that Hickman would play first base for Washington, he is hardly able to walk as a result of an injury he received on the Southern trip. If he is unable to play, Anderson will be shipted to first and Jones will be sent into left field.

In the weather conditions are at all favorable there is every indication that a record-breaking crowd will see the opening game.

Manager Griffith and the New York team reached Washington from Baltimore to-night. All the players are reported to be in good condition. Hogg or Orth will pitch the opening game. The probable batting order follows:

Washington—Anderson, left field; Altizer, centre field; Ganley, right field; Hickman, first base; Schlafly, second base; Perrine, short stop; Cross, third base; Blankenship, catcher; Falkenberg, pitcher.

New York—Conroy, left field; Hoffman, centre field; Keeler, right field; Chase, first base; Williams, second base; Elberfeld, short stop; Laporte, third base; McGuire, catcher; Hogg or Orth, pitcher.

Detroit Has Gloomy Outlook.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., April 10.—Gloomy ars the baseball fans whoee eppetites have been whetted since Hugh Jennigs became Manager of th team. It has snowed off and on for three days, and this morning broke with two inches of the white mantle on earth. Some moderation gave hopes, but the weather man gives little hope. Secretary Navin saye the game will be played if the snow isn't too deep, but the outlook is a cold, uncomforable day. The advance sale equalled the park's capacity. The team is on edge and has shown well.

St. Louis Grounds in Good Shape.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 10.—Excitement is at fever heat to-night over the opening of the American League season to-morrow. The Chicago team, with the inscription "World's Champions" conspicuously displayed across their chests, arrived in town late to-night, fit and ready for the opening battle with St. Louis. To-day, for the first time in a week, "Old Sol" reigned supreme, and if the weather man holds out the opening battle will be fought under perfect conditions.

Quakers Uncertain About Opening.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the American League baseball season in this city to-morrow, and all indications except the weather are favorable. The Boston team reached town to-night. Manager Mack is a little worried over the failure of bis men to get any work since last Saturday.

Postponement Likely at Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 10.—Although the National League grounds have been put in ehape for the opening of the season to-morrow, a postponement is probable, as snow and water cover both infields and outfield. Capt. Tenney refused to say to-night that the opening game will not be played, but until morning will he make the announcement. A big crowd is assured if the game is played for the change of management has revolutionized popular sentiment. The advent of the Boston Nationals for their thirty-sixth season is awaited with more than usual interest.

Cincinnati Expects a Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 10.—Although a light snow fell at intervals last night and the weatber is still cold and bleak to-night, the coating of snow bas disappeared and the opening game of the season will not, apparently, have to be postponed to-morrow at National League Park. The grounds are in good ebape again and fit even for the very fastest ball playing.

President Garry Hermann said to-night: "Unless all signs fail this will be the most prosperous year that baseball has ever known."

Good Prospect at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 10.—Rain, snow, or sunshine, the opening game with St. Louis will be played to-morrow afternoon, according to the announcement of President Murphy and Manager Chance of the Chicago National League Club to-day. The grounds are now in fair condition. The only possibility under which the opening will be postponed, they say, is that so much rain falls that the diamond is flooded and the players cannot get on the field. Snow or cold weather will make no difference.

NEW YORKS DEFEATED.

Game Called at End of Fifth Inning with Score 9 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 10.—The New York American League team received a severe jolt this afternoon by Baltimore, which won the exhibition game 9 to 3. Only four and a half innings were played, as the game was called on account of a snowstorm. It was a disagreeable game, and the Yankees followed the instructions of Manager Griffiths not to exert themselves.

The New Yorks used a couple of youngsters in the box in Hughes and Castleton, and both proved easy for Baltimore. The locals got a good start on the visitors by scoring four runs in the opening inning, while they annexed five more when Castleton went in the box in the fourth. Griffith's men could do little with Bartley, whom Manager Dunn secured from the Philadelphia Athletics. But for an error of Hall Bartley would have held New York down to two hits and a single run.

The Yankees are ready to open the season in Washington to-morrow. They left town to-night. Hal Chase is expected to join the team when they arrive at the capital. Elberfeld joined the team here to-day and played a good game, making a circus catch off the left-field bleachers. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
New York	0	0	3

	0	0	3	0	0—	3	4	3
	4	0	0	6	0—10	7	2

DON DIEGO SHOWS IMPROVED FORM

Easy Victory at Benning Makes Him Sure Starter in Carter Handicap.

FOUR FAVORITES LOSE

Poor Card and Disagreeable Weather Spoils the Sport for Small Crowd.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Don Diego, one of August Belmont's candidates for the Carter Handicap, to be run at Aqueduct next Monday, had a public trial for the race at Benning to-day and acquitted himself so creditably that it was decided to start him with Mr. Belmont's other candidate, Okenite, in the $10,000 event. Don Diego had not started for more than a year, and although he had been reported as having done fast work, there was a liberal price against him in the ring.

The field that started against Don Diego was not of much quality, but the Belmont horse won in an impressive manner. He had plenty of speed and did not back up when caught as he did in his two-year-old form. It looks as if Don Diego had returned to the races an improved colt, with some courage, and if he improves over his showing to-day Mr. Belmont will have a good representative in the Carter Handicap.

Another unpleasant day kept the attendance down, although the usual crowd was on hand. There was a cold wind blowing during the afternoon, and toward the close of the day snow fell. To add to the spectators' discomfort, favorites were howled over in disagreeable regularity for the first half of the card. Don Diego was the first one to come to the relief of the public, and Holscher, which started at odds on, completed the list.

The prettiest finish of the day was in the second race. After Lady Powell and Servile had made the running to the last furlong, Billful closed strong and barely nosed out the leaders, scarcely half a length separating the three horses. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For maidens, three years old and upward; five furlongs. Columbia course. Dog Rose, 91 pounds, (L. Smith,) 10 to 1 and 4 to 1, won; How About You, 103, (Miller,) 10 to 1 and 4 to 1, second; Grafton, 91, (Keating,) 100 to 1, third. Time—1:05 3-5. Legerdemain, Salt and Pepper, Bedella, Farcear, Muck Rake, Nettie Carlin, Daisy Stronie, Accumulete, Ida Reck, Springtail, and Black Chalk also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Selling, for two-year-olds; four and a half furlongs, old course. Billful, 105 pounds, (Hennesey,) 13 to 5 and 3 to 5, won; Servile, 97, (Goldstein,) 15 to 1 and 4 to 1, second; Lady Powell, 97, (Henry,) 8 to 1, third. Time—0:50 2-5. Black Hawk, Trey of Spades, Vistula, Orwell, and Clenada also ran.

THIRD RACE.—For three-year-olds; six and a half furlongs. Columbia course. Greeno, 106 pounds, (McDaniel,) 2 to 1 and 3 to 5, won; Golf Ball, 100, (Miller,) 11 to 20 and out, second; Lally, 106, (Mountain,) 5 to 1, third Time —1:25. King of Spades, Nancy, and Umbrella also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—For four-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs. Columbia course. Don Diego, 97 pounds, (Miller,) 7 to 5 and 3 to 5, won; Rose of Dawn, 95, (Mahon,) 13 to 5 and 4 to 5, second; Cederstrume, 100, (McDaniel,) 18 to 5, third. Time—1:30 3-5. Monacodor, Midas, Oobmosa, and Bowling Bridge also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs. Columbia course. Society Bud, 99 pounds, (Simmone,) 12 to 1 and 4 to 1, won; Wabash Queen, 86, (Goldstein, 9 to 5 and 7 to 10, second; Ivanhoe, 103, (J. Johnson,) 18 to 5, third. Time—1:31 3-5. Warning, No Trumper, and Cobleskill also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Handicap for three-year-olds and upward; one mile and 100 yards, old course. Holscher, 114 pounds, (Noone,) 7 to 10 and out, won; Faust, 100, (Goldstein,) 3 to 1 and 3 to 5, second; Sonome Belle, 100, (J. Johnson,) 18 to 5, third. Time—1:53 4-5. Congress and Willdo also ran.

Entries at Benning To-day.

FIRST RACE.—Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; five and a half furlongs. Columbia course. Bobbie Kean, 120 pounds; Oracuium, 116; Lotus Eater, 113, Faust, 100; Diamond Flush, 96; Old Colony, 95; Gentian, 92.

*Apprentice allowance.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

Declarations from the Futurity of 1907, to be run at the Autumn meeting of the Coney Island Jockey Club, have brought down the original entry list of 927 to run eligible list of 211 now two-year-olds. The horses eliminated included 340 entries void, 279 declared at $10, 94 declared at $20, 2 declared at $60, and 1 declared at $70. Based on the forfeits accrued, the liability of horses still engaged and the added money, it is estimated that the stakes this year will be worth something more than $50,000.

The one-time leading jockey, Edward (Snapper) Garrison, has engaged to train the racing stable of R. H. McCarter Potter this season. The Potter stable shelters a promising lot of two-year-olds, the best of nre representing the sires Hamburg and Knight of the Thistle.

The Jamnica race cource of the Metropolitan Jockey Club is enjoying a boom es a place for early Spring training, and the favorable conditions presented there have caused horsemen to move from other tracks to get the advantage of the light going. Among the recent transfers on that account are fifteen horses of August Belmont's etable, moved from Belmont Park.

The Coney Island Jockey Club hae announced a list of seven stakes to be run at the June meeting at Sheepshead Bay, to close May 1. The stakes are the Bay Ridge Handicap and Gres Selling, for three-year-olds and upward, the Rosedale, Daley, and Paney, for two-year-olds, and the Beacon and Independence Steeplechases.

The racing etables of Robert Tucker, comprising twelve head from New Orleane, after a badly delayed trip arrived at the Jamaica track in the worst of the storm of Tuesday, and as the weather was so bad the unloading was deferred until yeederday morning. The horses were landed in good condition, however.

Tokalon, the Texas mare which won the Brooklyn Handicap last year, is again in training in the etable of J. W. Fuller, which has taken up training quartere at ths Jamaica track. Tokalon is so far advanced and in such good condition that ebe is the star of the Jamaica-trained horses.

ROAD DRIVERS' PARADE.

Horse Show Will Be Feature of Annual Event on May 4.

According to the plans adopted by the Road Drivers' Association last night at the weekly meeting of the organization held at the Hotel Cadillac, the annual Speedway parade and horse show on Saturday, May 4, will surpass all previous efforts in this line. To increase the interest in the affair, a general meeting of the members of the association has been called for next Wednesday, when all the committees will report and finally adopt the plans. Chairman George A. Coleman of the Horse Show Committee stated that the entries all ready showed a gratifying increase over last year.

In five of the competitions silver cups will be awarded as prizes. The classes are for trotters shown to speed wagons, pacers shown to speed wagons, trotting teams to speed or road wagons, pacing road horses to runabout, appointments to count forty per cent., trotting road horses to runabouts, appointments to count forty per cent., pacing teams to speed or road wagons, heavy harness horses to runabouts, pairs of heavy harness horses to suitable carriages, and "novelty hitches." Entrees will close on April 15 with A. H. Cosden, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street.

The iron steamer Angler will make trips to the fishing banks every Tuesday, Thursday, and Sunday. Last Sunday several good catches of codfish were reported. The cod are expected to remain off the coast for some time and blackfish and sea bass will take their place.

Should a warm spell come this week trout fishermen will find good fishing in Hobokue River, in New Jersey. The fish there are not very large, but belong to a snappy family and are great fighters.

The State Game and Fish Commission placed many trout in the streams throughout Sussex and Morris Counties last year and these fish have attained a fair eize. Theee streams run through private property and in some cases the farmers are charging for the privilegs of fishing.

There has been no change in the law protecting trout. The legal size is six inches and they must not be taken before 9 o'clock in the evening and daylight. Conelderable money has been expended in stocking various streams throughout New York State.

Although the New Jersey trout eeason has been open since April 1, there have been comparatively few fish taken in the northern part of the State and the anglers are anxiously awaiting the coming of warmer weather. Some have been taking in the brooks of South and Middle Jersey, but they are not running in the cold waters in the northern part.

Standing of Basket Ball Teams.

The two leaders in the 130-pound class basketball tournament for the championship of the metropolitan district under the auspices of the Amatuer Athletic Union, have a clean record, and they play next Tuesday night at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue. The 115-pound class ended with University Settlement winning with a clean record, while a triple tie must be played off in the unlimited weight class. Four games are scheduled in the 130-pound class at the Young Men's Hebrew Association to-night.

In the Protective League heavy weight tournament the Knickerbockers, the present holder of the title, took second place, with one game against them. The standing of the teams follows:

Unless Clubs Pay, Mertes Is Free.

CHICAGO, April 10.—The decision of the National Commission in the case of "Sandow" Mertes, the baseball player, was published today. It is to the effect that unless the St. Louis or the Boston Nationals pay Mertes's salary of $4,000 he becomes a free agent to-morrow.

Mertes was transferred from St. Louis to Boston on the understanding that he was to receive $4,000 per annum. In February he received a contract from the Boston Club calling for a salary of $2,400 a year. He refused to sign the contract and appealed to the National Commission, contending that he should receive $4,000 for the coming season or be declared a free agent. The commission decided in his favor, and he will be free to sign with whom he pleases if the Boston Club does not tender him a contract calling for $4,000 by to-morrow morning, or if the St. Louis Club fails to guarantee such salary.

STUDENT MEETING TO AID FOOTBALL

Urge Undergraduates to Enroll and Show Desire to Play.

MAKE FIRST PLEA TO-NIGHT

Men to Appear Before Athletic Committee to Ask Recommendation That Game Be Resumed.

Five hundred Columbia students met in Earl Hall at the Morningside University yesterday at noon to help along in the movement to secure the restoration of football at Columbia. The meeting was addressed by Seth Low Pierrepont, Chairman of the undergraduate Football Committee, which will meet the University Athletic Committee. Pierrepont made a brief and direct address to the student gathering, declaring that the agitation had passed the hurrah period, and its success depended now upon the serious argument that the students were able to make for the resumption of the sport.

The one objection that seemed paramount at this time, he declared, was the argument advanced by opponents of the game that there was no widespread demand for the game, except in its spectacular aspect, and that what the University Athletic Committee demanded was evidence that the students wanted to play the game. He declared that the reformation of the playing rules had been justified, and that the considerations now were apart from the playing field. He urged all those who desired to play football to signify such intention that their names might be presented to the University Committee. The list of those who wished to play has already swelled to 75 without any formal canvass of the student body, and the committee hopes to have evidence that from 125 to 150 will play to offer to the authorities.

The meeting with the University Committee which will be held to-night, will mean, he declared, a careful discussion of the possibilities of the game at Columbia and the limitations under which it should be played. He thought it probable that the committee would suggest some restrictions to which the students might accede, and that an agreement might be reached whereby the sport could begin again.

The University Athletic Committee, however, will not do more than recommend the restoration of the game along given lines to the Faculty Committee on Student Organizations, and this committee in turn must then recommend it to the University Council before permission to play could be finally secured. The University Athletic Committee includes six members, one alumnus, two Faculty members, and three undergraduates. Francis S. Bangs, the alumnus, is the Chairman. Profs. Lord and Meylan the Faculty members, and George Norris, W. G. Palmer, and Robert Le Roy the student members. Until recently Mr. Bangs has been set against the game, but recently has given evidence of a change of position, and the students hope that Prof. Lord will lend his countenance to the movement.

Should Prof. Lord advocate resumption of the game, his action will go a long way toward influencing favorable action by the university Committee on Student Organizations, as he is Chairman of that committee. What action will then be taken by the university council will probably be largely influenced by the attitude that President Butler may take toward the movement.

Y. M. C. A. SWIMMING RECORD.

Reilly Makes New Figures for West Side Branch at 220 Yards.

A well contested swimming meet was held last night by the members of the Swimming Club of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association in the West Fifty-seventh Street building. Five events were decided, all of which brought out a large number of entries, in addition to an exhibition 220-yard race against the West Side record of three minutes. J. Reilly, one of the fastest swimmers in the Association, hroke his record hy ton seconds, showing that he had plenty of reserve power by a fine burst of speed and the finish, and his ne wrecord of 2:50 was greeted with generous applause.

The 220 yards handicap brought ou the best swimmers in the club, J. J. Hill starting from scratch. He overhauled most of the handicap men, but could only get third place. Summar:y

Indoor Tennis Tournament To-day.

Women lawn tennis players representing Newport, Boston, Philadelphia, and New York will to-day begin the series of matches on the courts of the St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue. As was the case two years ago, when thie indoor tournament was held, the Boetonians, Miss Marion Fenno and Miss Eleonora Seare, are to be the favorites for the honors. The dashing brilliancy and vivacity of these young women gives promise of aome eplendid conteets during the matchee in singlee and doublee for the women's intercity championship, beginning thie afternoon.

The closest competitors which it is believed ths Bostonians will have le the Newport team, Miea Nora Iselin and Mrs. Barger-Wallach, and the pair representing Philadelphia, the Misses Green. Both Miss Iselin and Mrs. Barger-Wallach have been diligently practicing upon the courts of the New York Indoor Tennis Club, Forty-first Street, west of Seventh Avenue.

SHOW PONY THREW RIDER.

All Bey's Mount Injured in Brooklyn Horse Show Ring.

The clubhouse of the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn was comfortably crodwed last night for the second evening of the club's annual horss show. The moderation in the weather brought out a full representation of the big membership.

The best of the ring competitions were classes in which well-known Brooklyn people showed, and chief of thees was the ring for victoria horses, in which Miss Emily H. Bedford won, driving her noted pair, Donner and Blitzen.

A spice of excitement was added to another class, the contest for polo ponies, when John H. Raymond, showing J. H. Thompson, Jr.'s, Arab, All Bey, received two falls, in botb of which he seemed to be severely injured. The rider went into the contest incapacitated by a crippled knee, and his falls weer dus to this. He finally withdrew, and one of the judges rode All Bey in the final part of the competition.

Ths showiest competition of the evening, for the best collection of three horses in harness, one to be suitable for and shown to a gig, brought out a field of only three exhibits out of the seven entries, but it was an all-star lot, and popular opinion enjoyed a real triumph over horsey opinion when Judge William H. Moore won from J. W. Harriman's Avondale Farm entry and George Watson's trio after long deliberation hy the judges.

The Moore entry included the veteran show ring champion Forest King, driven by his owner, and Whitegate Majesty and The Swell, but as the Moore horses but rscently had been taken up after a Winter's rest, the expert opinion was that they would be heaten because of condition. Judge Moore had two lots in this class, but showed only one set and drove off with the blue ribbon amid a chorus of applause from the general crowd.

Mrs. W. S. Elliott's crack saddle horse, Judge Cantrell, ridden by C. L. Railey, and a winner on the opening night of the show, repeated his victory by taking the blue ribbon in the class for horses over 14 hands 2 inches, from a big field.

Two four-in-hand road teams showed in the class for fours, William H. Moore showing a team of grays, the wheelers being two of the $26,000 Orloff four that he bought half a dozen years ago, and winning from J. Cambell Thompson's four, bays, with one chestnut leader.

The pairs of harness horses, shown to victorias, ladies driving, entered the ring with the result a foregone conclusion, and the crowd cheered its own decision when Miss Emily Bedford won with her champion pair, Donner and Blitzen, over the Moore pair, Sunshine and Perfection, driven by Miss Beatrice Frothingham, and M. L. and A. C. Schwartz's pair, Spider and Fly, driven hy Mrs. Belle Beach Bain.

In the first class of the evening, a ring for saddle horses just about the pony limit, Mrs. John Gerken scored a victory, earned with the showy bay gelding Redwood, ridden by H. G. McElwaine, which was winner over a smart lot of horses, including J. W. Harriman's Avondale stable entry Kentucky, Miss M. C. Maxwell's Jacobite, and half a dozen others.

MAY STOP BOXING BOUTS.

Police Won't Discuss Plans—Sheriff Arraigns Pseudo-Athletic Clubs.

There is reason to believe that there will he determined efforts made by the police to prevent the many boxing matches that are being held in defiance of the law in the various psuedo athletic clubs throughout the city within the next fortnight and that the bouts which are being conducted openly will he prevented. Officials at Police Headquarters yesterday would not discuss their proposed action, but reports were freely circulated that immediate and stringent action would be taken. The boxing promoters appeared to believe that measures would he taken to stop the bouts, for a number of postponements were talked of of projected matches, among them the Lewis-Thomas bout scheduled at the Grand Central Palace. The latter was put off for two weeks, apparently awaiting some declaration of the intentions of the authorities.

Sheriff Hayes yesterday announced the text of his letter to Commissioner Bingham dealing with the subject. In it he called attention to present conditions, saying that they were much worse than those obtaining when Gov. Higgins called public attention to them last May.

EXCELLENT CROP REPORT

Indicated Yield Above That a Year Ago — Interest in English Bank's Action To-day.

There was a sharp contraction yesterday in the volume of business transacted on the Stock Exchange, and the trading was even more professional in character than it was on Tuesday. Prices rose in the forenoon part of the session and fell back near the end of the day, closing in most instances below the level of the previous night. There was traceable no direct connection between the market movement and the news developments of the day. The reaction in prices reached its maximum after the publication of the Government crop report, the first of the season, showing the condition of Winter wheat on April 1 to have been above that of last year or the year before. The actual figure of 89.9 indicates a yield of 403,974,000 bushels, comparing with the estimate of 503,474,000 last December. The reduction from the December figure, therefore, is only some 10,500,000 bushels, and the present estimated yield exceeds the indicated yield at this time a year ago by 19,000,000 bushels and that of two years ago by 14,000,000. This is of course a highly satisfactory showing, and if weather conditions from this time on favor the developments of the crop the final yield should compare favorably with that of 1906, which was 492,858,000. This return had to all appearances no influences upon the course of prices, and equally indifferent was the attention devoted to the announcement of declines of from a half cent to 1 cent a pound in various grades of copper quoted upon the local Metal Exchange. These quotations are not accepted as fully indicative of the exact copper metal market, but following some of the declines in the London market, they seem to indicate at least a drift toward lower prices on the part of the metal. The strike of employes at the Boston and Montana Companies' Great Falls plant was speedily terminated, as had been expected, and the disturbance failed to spread to other properties controlled by the Amalgamated Companies. The failure of a small trust company in Philadelphia exercised no influence whatever upon the market.

During the day the banks gained well over $1,500,000 from the Sub-Treasury, having already received from that source up to the close of business on Tuesday $719,000. In spite of these gains and the consequent further ease in money rates, the foreign exchange market was firm, and confidence is still expressed in the prospect of a reduction in the English Bank rate to-day, owing to the favorable tendency of exchange. Discount rates in London were again easy at quotations well below the Bank rate. Through the Sub-Treasury there was forwarded $150,000 to New Orleans, and the movement of exchange at interior cities against New York seems to foreshadow the approach of the usual Spring demand for money on the part of out-of-town points.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 10.—Lower prices were recorded all through the local copper shares list as a result of to-day's trading. After a steady opening, in some cases showing slight advances over Tuesday's closing figures, realizing orders began to make their appearance, and declines were soon shown all along the line. Calumet and Arizona lost 2 points, to 162; Copper Range 1, to 81; Tamarack 2, to 100; Old Dominion 1, to 53½, and North Butts 2, to 90. Commission houses seemed to be pretty well supplied with selling orders, especially during the early part of the day, although there was some buying by these interests in the afternoon. The market continued quiet throughout the day, closing steady at the decline.

TOPICS OF WALL STREET.

According to Treasury officers, New York City bonds are figuring quite heavily in the collateral deposited to secure public funds by national banks. This is true particularly of the deposits recently made. Revenue warrants of the city are also being received. The city has just sold a large block of October warrants on a 4¾ per cent. basis. Considering general monetary conditions, this rate is satisfactory. Six months' money has been held at 6 per cent. until recently, and the present rate for five and six months' money is about 5 per cent. The present Controller does not favor the idea of long term revenue warrants.

***

Men identified with important financial interests who were in the West at the time of the recent panic in the stock market noticed an astonishing mental attitude toward the decline in prices, which illustrates, perhaps, the fact that the public has been out of the market. One man who was in Iowa and Illinois said he found the people with whom he came in contact positively delighted with the violent break. And it was not the usual malcontents alone. Bankers were amused and pleased, apparently believing that retribution was coming to some one who deserved it. This showed, at least, the lack of direct interest in the market. It was a curious manifestation of the joy the man on the fence feels in stock speculation when prices break sharply.

***

Commenting on the statement that holders of short 4s could make more money by selling their bonds in the open market than by turning them over to the Treasury, a banker said yesterday that he had never seen the time when a Government bond was not worth more than par and interest to maturity. There is always some reason, whether it be refunding or tax purposes or something else, which makes it logical that the holder of a Government bond maturing should find out the outside market before handing it in at Washington. It is curious to note that many holders of short 4s present them for redemption minus the July coupon. They intend, apparently, to hold the coupon until July, although the notice of the Treasury Department tells them that they can get the money for it at once, and they are told to bring it in at once.

***

"Two things in the present situation," said the head of a trust company yesterday, "make me feel a little bit anxious. One is the tendency to talk pessimism and emphasize our present and prospective necessities, and the other is the possible failure of crops. If you repeat a story often enough, particularly a hard luck story, you may develop a mental condition that will bring about results similar to the condition which you have pictured. I do not think it is good policy, though, of course, it is equally unwise to flaunt an optimism that is hegotten under conditions of tremendous credit etrain. I have heard it said that a partial crop failure might be a blessing in that it would lessen freight congestion and lighten the tension in credit. My analysis does not reveal to me anything heneficent in such a condition."

***

There are some disadvantages in having a corporation, particularly a railroad corporation, so hig that effective supervision is impossihle. A curious story illustrative of this point is told. A railroad man who hae just arrived from the West says that the freight blockade on many of the Western and Southwestern lines is still a very serious proposition, and many shippers cannot find cars. Goods are delayed for months. On the side tracks at many points along several of the lines there are empty cars belonging to other linee which are held for one reason or another, in some instances hecause other lines are unnecessarily delaying the return of cars helonging to that company. It has developed that some enterprising train crews have approached shippers and arranged with them to make up a train and transport their goods for n price that would give the Inter-State Commerce Commission a shock. They specify that they will transport the goods within their own division. Many shippers have taken advantage of this. Needless to say the heads of the railroads knew nothing about it, but the shippers did not consider a little thing like that. This is not uncommon. It is a new development resulting from congested conditions.

***

Apropros of this freight congestion it may be said that railroad men feel that this condition is doing a great deal to develop antagonism to the railroads. They receive protests which vary little in their substance, to the effect that in railroad matters there is too much stock ticker and too little directing. These protestante believe that the situation could he helped with less financing and more operating. Railroad men say that they are doing the hest they can.

***

A day or so ago there appeared on the tape one hundred shares of Burlington stock at 210. Many persons were under the impression that this stock had been dropped from the list, but that is not so, although the amount of Burlington stock outstanding is very small. The sale prior to this one was 100 shares at 200 on February 15. During 1906 the total transactions in the stock were only 52 shares. The history of these casual sales of this stock would he very interesting. There are many persons who hold such stocks for investment who will never turn them in on a reorganization. Burlington made a lot of money for many persons at the time the joint Fours were issued in exchange for it, through arbitrage operations. Brokers who saw the trade on the tape recalled many interesting stories conneoted with the stock.

***

No discretion has been vested yet in the Collector of Customs at this port to deposit customs receipts with the banks direct. The customs authorities turn their funds into the Sub-Treasury, and this, after all, makes for a more simplified system. Collectors of internal revenue deposit direct with the hanks, hut there is no good reason for imposing on the Collector of Customs ths many duties that would result from a change in the method of depositing these funds. The question has been raised, but no change need be expected.

***

Little variation is noted from day to day in the general character of the trading. A firm tone for a short period, succeeded by irregularity, and at times weakness, has been manifest. The market yesterday was no exception. The net changes, however, did not amount to very much except in a few cases. Delaware & Hudson showed strength, reflecting precisely whnt it is difficult to say. The election of Mr. Loree means, of course, the installation of a practical railroad man, hut the fluctuation in the stock probably meant nothing more than professional operations.

***

Some of the indnetrial issues were advanced easily, particularly National Lead, Consolidated Gas, and Republic Iron preferred. These movements had no special significance. Canadian Pacific exhibited a little pressure, but the volume of trading was such that the price fluctuation did not mean much. Bear operations in Erie were renewed, but the net change in the common was little, although the first preferred suffered.

***

No special attention was paid to the crop report in the brokerage offices. Apparently a comparatively good showing was expected. A little later we will get the real crop news in the shape of rumors and dispatches from the special agents who will he sent out to investigate conditions. These epecial agents are quite a feature of the speculation in grain, and incidentally in stocks, nowadays. Some of the agents are a little amateurish in their reports, but they all add to the mass of so-called information, which complicates the science of stock speculation.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 10.—The supplies of money in the market to-day were large and the demand was poor. Discounts were steady.

Prices on the Stock Exchange opened firm, with British securities again dearer, but there was a reaction in the afternoon on less confidence regnrding a reduction of the bank rate and fears of an early London County Council issue.

The Indian Secretary obtained an option on £250,000 in gold, due here shortly.

Foreigners had strong Continental support, especially Russians and Japanese. Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 101.

Americans reflected the irregularity in New York during the early trading, hut advanced to over parity at ahout noon, although rumors of fresh note issues tended to check business. Later the New York advices caused renewed etrength and the market closed firm.

Grand Trunk early in the day was favorably affected by the traffic returns, but eased later.

Bullion amounting to £148,000 was taken into the Bank of England on halance today.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 10.80; Lisbon, 3.00.

Bar silver quiet; 30d. per ounce.

Money, 2@2¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝@¾ per cent., and for three months' hills 3 13-16@4 per cent.

PARIS, April 10.—Prices on the Bourse generally were firm to-day, hut the market closed dull.

Russian Imperial 4s closed at 73.80 and Russian honds of 1904 at 491.00.

Three per cent rentes, 94 francs 62½ centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 26 centimes for checks.

BERLIN, April 10.—Prices on the Boerse to-day improved. Russians were strong, but Americans were under New York purity.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 51½ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates—Short hills, 4 per cent., three months' hills, 4¾ per cent.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Sluggish Trading, with Prices Firmly Held Among the Curb Brokers.

STANDARD OIL MOVES UP

Coppers Generally Make Fractional Gains — Newhouse Active and Strong in Last Day on Curb.

The curb market had another day of minor activity yesterday, in which, as a general rule, prices were firmly maintained. One of the features of the trading was an unusual access of activity in Standard Oil on a rising scale of prices. The shares have not been as buoyant in many months. After an opening at 536 the price moved up 19 points, to $555 per share, from which there was a slight recession, which left the close, after transactions of 292 shares, at $552.25.

Newhouse Mining, which is the latest of the copper stocks to he lost to the curh through admission to the unlisted department of the Stock Exchange, was buoyant in its last day in the outside market, going from 19⅞ to 20⅛. After sales of 2,000 the close was at 20. Greene-Cananea was one of the few coppers to recede from the opening prices. The close was ½ point down, at 16½, after transactions of 1,500.

COAL STRIKE CUT PROFITS.

But Lehigh Coal Company Paid Two Dividends Last Year.

The annual report of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1906, shows revenue from all sources of $3,331,742, out of which the payment of $1,327,131 for general expenses, rentals, taxes, &c., left surplus earnings of $2,004,610. Deductions of $119,162 for the coal lande sinking fund and $200,000 for depreciation of coal improvements left a balance of net earnings amounting to $1,685,447, out of which two dividends of 4 per cent. each were paid on the $17,378,500 of capital stock, leaving a balance of net earnings of $297,843, which was transferred to profit and loss.

The revenue from coal operations was materially reduced by the anthracite strike last year, and operating expenses correspondingly increased. This in connection with the higher cost of labor reduced the earnings from $852,771 in 1905 to $851,307 in 1906. The cost of mining and preparing coal was, however, $1.72 per ton, a decrease of 3 cents from the cost in 1905.

Although the operation of the company's canals showed the usual loss, the amount was $11,305 less than in the previous year, amounting to $37,885.

The gross receipts from the operation of the Lehigh & Susquehanna Railroad and its branches, which are the property of the company, showed a decrease of $237,970 as compared with 1905, which is attributed to the loss of traffic incident to the strike.

WINTER WHEAT CONDITION.

Average on April 1 Was 89.9 Against 89.1 on Same Date Last Year.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The Crop Reporting Board of the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture in a hulletin issued to-day gives the average condition of Winter wheat on April 1 to have been 89.9, against 89.1 on April 1, 1906, 91.6 at the corresponding date in 1905, and 85.3 the mean of the April averagee of the last ten years. The following table shows for the principal Winter wheat States the averages of condition on April 1, and the mean of the corresponding averages of the last ten years:

State.	April 1, 1907.	10-Yr. Avg.
Knnsas	99	88

The average condition of Winter rye on April 1 was 92.0 against 90.9 on April 1, 1906, 92.1 at the corresponding date in 1905, and 89.2, the mean of the April averages of the last ten years.

WABASH LOAN RENEWAL.

$6,160,000 Notes Sold to Take Up a Similar Maturing Issue.

The Wahash Railroad, it was announced yesterday, has sold to Teller & Co. $6,160,000 of two-year 5 per cent. notes, dated May 10, 1907, to provide funds with which to meet a similar amount of notes which mature on that date. The old notes were secured hy the deposit of all the stock of the Wabash-Pittshurgh Terminal Company and hy $6,600,000 of 4 per cent. first mortgage honds of that company. The new notes are secured by this same collateral and hy $4,800,000 of Wahash Railroad Company first refunding 4 per cent. honds. The value of this security is estimated to he 40 per cent. more than the face value of the notes.

A large part of the issue, the bankers stated, has already been placed with investors. The holders of the outstanding notes will receive the first opportunity to subscrihe to the balance of the new issue. A report that the Wahash had paid as much as 8% per cent. interest on the loan was said to be untrue.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The Federal Bureau issues the following forecast for the cotton States for Thurs

N.Y. CENTRAL EARNED $92,000,000 IN 1906

Net Profits for the Year $1,008,501 Greater Than in 1905.

TROLLEY LINES BOUGHT

Annual Report Also Shows Company Purchased Big Block of Boston & Maine Stock.

Gross earnings of $92,080,760, an increase of $5,994,187 over the previous year, and net earnings of $27,136,074, an increase of $1,008,501, are shown in the report of the New York Central Railroad for the year ended Dec. 31 last, issued yesterday. The increased dividends on Lake Shore, on Michigan Central, and on other stocks held by the New York Central increased "other income" by $1,184,239, bringing the road's receipts from such sources up to $7,707,738. From the total net income of the year, amounting to $34,843,812, there was deducted for fixed chargee, including taxes, $22,367,904, leaving a balance of $12,275,908 available for dividends. This was equivalent to 6.88 per cent. on the road's $178,182,700 of capital stock, compared with 5.73 per cent. shown on the stock last year. The surplue for the year amounted to $4,443,034, out of which $1,308,261 was appropriated for new construction and equipment, and $3,115,329 for special improvements, &c.

In the last year the New York Central acquired additional stock of the Mohawk Valley Coke Company, the holding company for the Central's trolley interests, as well as stock in several other roads, including a block of Boston & Maine stock. Of these purchases and of the progress made in the improvement of the property, President Newman says:

There were purchased during the year 60,000 shares of the capital stock of the Mohawk Valley Company, 2,416 shares of the capital stock of the Little Falls & Dolgeville Railroad Company, 5,748 shares of the common capital stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company, and 128 shares of the capital stock of the Merchants' Dispatch Transportation Company. The construction work in New York City and vicinity in connection with the change of motive power from steam to electricity has progressed steadily. On Sept. 30, 1906, the first train operated by electricity ran successfully from High Bridge to the Grand Central Station. On Dec. 11, 1906, regular service by electric traction was inaugurated. Continued progress has been made at different points on the line in the abolition of grade crossings, revision of grades, new alignments, &c., and extensive improvements in yerds at important terminal points on the system.

The extraordinary expenditures during the year, amounting to $22,563,173, included the following items: Additions to property, charged to cost of road and equipment, $9,100,294; construction and equipment on leased lines and Grand Central terminal improvements, to be charged in part against funds provided by lessor companies, $7,561,803; additions and improvements to roadway and structures, strengthening of bridges, &c., charged to current income, $1,308,260; replacements of equipment, charged to operating expenses, $2,923,340; new equipment and betterments, charged against special improvement fund, $1,669,476.

BILLION WORTH OF BAGGAGE.

The Pennsylvania Handled an Immense Amount Last Year.

More than 11,000,000 pieces of baggage were handled by the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1906, according to the annual report of the baggage agent. Putting the official valuation of $100 on each piece, the amount to which the road limits its liability on first-class tickets, something over $1,100,000,000 worth of passengers' belongings have passed through the hands of the road's "baggage smashers."

The total receipts from the operation of the baggage department for the year were $1,084,470.

The baggage agent notes that of all the claims paid on lost baggage during the year, almost half of the entire sum was paid for nine trunks alone.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

INVITATION TO CONTRACTORS.

LEXINGTON AVENUE ROUTE.

The City of New York (hereinafter called the City,) acting by its Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners (hereinafter called the Board,) contemplates building a Rapid Transit Railroad along the routes described below. By this advertisement the City invites proposals to construct such railroad upon the routes and in accordance with the detailed plans and specifications adopted therefor. Such proposals may be submitted for any one or more of the eleven separate parts of which such railroad consists, as hereinafter stated.

The points within the City between which the said several parts of the said road are to run and the route or routes to be followed, are briefly as follows:

Section 5-O-S: This part of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan, begins at Lexington Avenue and 129th Street and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 103rd Street.

Section 5-O-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-S, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about 50 feet north of 71st Street.

Section 5-O-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O-2, and runs southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point between 42nd and 43rd Streets, the Southerly end of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan.

Section 5-A: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O as described in the routes and general plan and runs thence under private property to a point in Park Avenue between 42nd and 43rd Streets, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the existing subway.*

*This Section will not be contracted for at present if a contract for Section 5-CS is let.

Section 5-B: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O above described and runs thence northerly under the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, where it continues under Third Avenue and Morris Avenue and then curves under private property to a point in 149th Street between Morris Avenue and Cortlandt Avenue, at which a junction can conveniently be made with the present subway.

Section 5-C-1: This part of Section 5-C as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the northerly end of Section 5-O above described, and runs thence northerly under Lexington Avenue and the Harlem River to the Borough of the Bronx, and then continues under Park Avenue to 156th Street.

Section 5-C-2: This part of Section 5-C consists of a spur beginning at a point on the main line of the route of Section 5-C at Park Avenue and 149th Street, and runs under private property, 153rd Street, Exterior Street and Sedgwick Avenue to the intersection of Sedgwick Avenue and 164th Street.

Section 5-C-3: This part of Section 5-C consists of a loop beginning in the Borough of the Bronx at a point in Park Avenue between 151st and 152nd Streets, and runs thence northwesterly and westerly under private property and connects with the spur Section 5-C-2 above described near the point where the centre line of said spur would intersect 151st Street if produced.

Section 5-D-3: This part of Section 5-D as described in the routes and general plan, begins at the southerly end of Section 5-O above described in Lexington Avenue between 42nd and 43rd Streets and runs thence southerly under Lexington Avenue to a point about half way between 36th and 37th Streets, at which point the tracks will diverge into two branches. One of these branches will curve southwesterly under private property to 36th Street, and then run westerly under 36th Street, curving southerly into Fifth Avenue, and then under Fifth Avenue to a point where it will be rejoined by the second branch diverging as above stated. The second branch will run from the said point of divergence southerly and westerly under Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to Fifth Avenue, where it will rejoin the branch first above described at a point between 34th and 35th Streets. From the last mentioned point, the route of this Section will run southerly under Fifth Avenue along Madison Square and into Broadway; thence southerly under Broadway to a point about half way between 17th and 18th Streets.

Section 5-D-2: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-3 and runs southerly under Broadway (passing under Union Square) to a point 150 feet north of Reade Street.

Section 5-D-1: Begins at the southerly end of Section 5-D-2, and runs thence southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Church Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street to a suitable terminus under Battery Park.

The general plan of construction calls for a railroad placed in subways or tunnels. The road is intended to be operated by electricity or some other power not requiring combustion within the tunnels and the motors are intended to be capable of moving trains at a speed of not less than forty miles per hour for long distances, exclusive of stops.

For all of Sections 5-O-1, 5-O-2, 5-O-3 and 5-A there will be four tracks. For Section 5-B there will be two tracks. For Section 5-C-1 and Section 5-C-2, there will be two tracks. In the loop above described as Section 5-C-3, there will be one track. For Section 5-D-3 there will be four tracks as far south as the points between 36th and 37th Streets, where the line diverges as above described; there will be two tracks from the point of divergence through 36th Street and Fifth Avenue to the point where the line reunites and two tracks from the point of divergence through Lexington Avenue and 35th Street to the point in Fifth Avenue where the lines reunite, and for the remainder of the distance southerly under Fifth Avenue and Broadway there will be four tracks. For Section 5-D-2, there will be four tracks. For Section 5-D-1, there will be four tracks to the Chambers Street station southerly under Broadway, Vesey Street, Trinity Place and Greenwich Street there will be two tracks. Additional tracks for terminal purposes are to be constructed under Battery Place and Battery Park. Suitable stations, as shown on the plans, together with crossovers, turnouts, and sidings as may be necessary, are to be provided.

The tracks are to be of standard gauge. The tunnels are to have a height of not less than 13 feet in the clear; and a maximum width of 15 feet for each track, except at stations, curves, &c., where the width may be increased. The roof of the tunnels is generally to be as near the surface of streets as street conditions and grades will permit, but will be depressed whenever necessary to avoid grade crossings as well as where approaching the Harlem River. The roof and sides of the tunnels will be of iron or steel and masonry.

Entrances to stations will in general be placed within private property, rights in which will be acquired for the purpose.

Construction is to be generally carried on by means of tunnelling or excavation under cover, except as may be otherwise specially provided in the contract or in places where the Board shall give express permission to construct by open excavation. In the City Hall Park, Battery Park, or other places under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks, all trees injured or destroyed in the course of construction are to be replaced by the contractor under the direction and to the satisfaction of said Department.

The Board has included in the detailed plans for construction, provisions for pipe galleries through and along the principal longitudinal streets of all portions of the road except Sections 5-A and 5-C-3. Bids for the construction

LEGAL SALES.

SPECIAL MASTER'S SALE.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division.—UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK and JOHN A. STEWART, as Trustees, complainants, against CHICAGO TERMINAL TRANSFER RAILROAD COMPANY and others, defendants.—In Equity, No. 28,130.

Also all the railway lines, premises, and real and personal property formerly belonging to the Bridgeport and South Chicago Railroad Company, and latterly to the Chicago and Northern Pacific Railroad Company, which railways and terminal facilities, and which was by said Bridgeport and South Chicago Railroad Company conveyed to the Chicago and Northern Pacific Railroad Company by deed, dated the 11th day of March, 1890, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Cook County, in Book 3,185, beginning at Page 80, except such parts thereof as have been heretofore conveyed by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company.

Also all of Blocks 86, 87, 66, 85, 77 and 76, in Old School Section Addition to the City of Chicago.

Also Lots 1, 2, 15, and 16, in Block 2, in the Canal Addition to the City of Chicago, being a subdivision of the west fraction of the northeast quarter of Section 21, Township 39 north, Range 14, east of the Third Principal Meridian.

Also all those lands and premises lying in the northeast quarter of said Section 21, south of Twelfth Street, west of the Chicago River, east of the centre line of Dodge Street and north of the south line of Fourteenth Street projected, except Lots 9 and 10, and except that part of Lot 8, lying southeasterly of a line parallel to and 17 feet southerly from the northwesterly line of said Lot 8, and except that part of Lot 11, lying northwesterly of a line parallel with and 34 feet northerly from the southeasterly line of said Lot 11 in Block 4, in said Canal Addition to the City of Chicago, and also except that part of Lots 5, 6, 7 and 8 in Block 13, in said Canal Addition to the City of Chicago, lying easterly of a line drawn from a point on the south line of said Lot 8, 214 feet west of the southeast corner of said Lot 8 to a point on the north line of Lot 5, 184 feet west of the northeast corner of said Lot 5.

Also that part of Block 14 in said Canal Addition extending from the last above described premises southwesterly to Stewart Avenue, bounded on the north and west by the property of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, and on the southeast by the property of the Chicago and North Western Railway Company.

Also the south 800 acres of Section 19, and the east half of the northeast quarter of Section 30, Township 39 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois, known as "the Sturges tract," and any rights, by contract or otherwise, which the railroad company now has in or to the same.

Also a tract of land purchased by the said Chicago and Northern Pacific Railroad Company from Nelson Morris, containing 203.96 acres, being that part of the southwest quarter of Section 12, lying east of the right of way of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company, and the southeast quarter of said Section 12, except the north 40 acres thereof, all in Township 37 north, Range 13, east of the Third Principal Meridian.

Also all the right, title and interest of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company in and to $5,000,000.00, or substantially $5,000,000.00, of the capital stock of the Chicago and Calumet Terminal Railway Company, and $6,000,000.00 of the first mortgage bonds of said Chicago and Calumet Terminal Railway Company, deposited with the complainant, the United States Trust Company of New York, for the benefit of the holders of the bonds issued under said mortgage of June 11, 1897.

Also 5,000 shares of $100.00 each, of the Hammond and Lake Michigan Railway Company, and 5,000 shares of $100.00 each, of the Calumet River Railway Company.

Also all other lots, pieces, or parcels of land acquired by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, situated in said Cook County, in the State of Illinois, or said County of Lake, in the State of Indiana, not specifically described herein; excepting therefrom, and from all of the foregoing, all those certain lots, pieces and parcels of land, or any of them, described in and conveyed by a certain deed of conveyance dated as of the 26th day of October, 1898, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Cook County, Illinois, on the 14th day of March, 1903, in Book 6968 of Records, on Page 173, wherein the Chicago Title and Trust Company was and is the grantor and the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company was and is the grantee; and excepting also all those certain lots, pieces and parcels of land described in and conveyed by those two certain deeds from the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company to the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, one dated June 1, 1898, and recorded in the Recorder's office of Cook County, Illinois, April 25, 1901, in Book 7686 of Records, Page 263, as document No. 3092077, and the other dated June 1, 1898, and recorded in said Recorder's office April 25, 1901, in Book 7324 of Records, at Page 298, as document No. 3092617; excepting also all property heretofore conveyed by said Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company to the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, or the Chicago Junction Railway Company.

Said railroads, franchises and property will be sold as an entirety and upon the following terms and conditions:

Four hundred thousand dollars ($400,000.00) shall be paid in cash to the said Special Master by an approved bidder at the time of the sale, and the remainder of the purchase price thereof upon the confirmation by the court of such sale, either in cash or in a certified check upon or a certificate of deposit of a bank or trust company satisfactory to the Special Master or in the first mortgage bonds of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Company issued under the mortgage dated June 11, 1897, to the United States Trust Company of New York and John A. Stewart as trustees, and the coupons appertaining thereto, including interest upon the unpaid coupons from the respective dates of maturity thereof; the said bonds and coupons if such sale be for less than the amount due on said bonds to be taken as equivalent to so much in cash of the said purchase money as would be distributable and payable thereon. No bid for such railroads, franchises and property shall be accepted for a sum less than $15,140,000.00, nor will any bid be considered unless accompanied by the deposit of said sum of $400,000.00 in cash or in a certified check upon a bank or trust company satisfactory to the Special Master. Such sale shall be subject to the several contracts, agreements, leases, mortgages and charges described in said decree entered in the above-entitled cause February 20, 1907, and the purchaser or purchasers of the property sold shall take the property and accept a deed therefor subject to all such contracts, agreements, leases, mortgages and charges and to all agreements and contracts made under authority of said courts by the receiver now in possession of said premises.

For a more particular description of the property, and premises to be sold as aforesaid and the terms and conditions of sale, reference is hereby made to the said decree now on file in said causes respectively.

Dated March 18, 1907.

Larchmont Park

IN THE CENTER OF LARCHMONT,

with its handsome homes, wide and beautiful streets, unsurpassed harbor and facilities for all forms of water sport, is the most desirable place for an all-year-round home near New York City, and to-day the demand for property along the northerly shore of Long Island Sound is greater than ever before.

No expense has been spared in making Larchmont Park a model residential park in every particular, not alone to the eye, but in those things which are even more important—pure water and as good a system of sewers as any city in America can boast of.

Building Sites for Sale,

75 ft. by 125 ft., $300 cash; 100 ft. by 125 ft., $400 cash.

BALANCE ON EASY TERMS.

In buying in Larchmont Park you are getting property which will increase steadily in value for many years, for it is becoming every day nearer to the heart of New York City.

GUESS WHAT THIS MEANS:

L-E-O-N-I-A!

It Means Much If You are Looking for a Beautiful Home Site.

It Means Still More If You Seek a Wonderful Investment.

LEONIA is the name of the most picturesque suburb round about New York—a haven of rest; healthfulness and refinement, where rent money is paid from one pocket into the other; where rapidly increasing land values net one a handsome dividend on one's savings; where the shrieking of city whistles gives way to the song of birds; where one may live—as one should live—quietly, peacefully, joyously, economically and profitably; where houses and lots are sold on the easy monthly payment plan, and, in brief,

JUST WHERE YOU AND YOUR FAMILY SHOULD LIVE.
JUST WHERE YOUR INVESTMENT WILL GROW FASTEST.
JUST 15 MINUTES FROM 130TH STREET FERRY.

Come to LEONIA, where life is worth the living; where beautiful homes, churches, schools, clubs, and all sorts of healthful amusement places abound; where fishing, boating, and bathing are at their best—a place we invite you to visit at OUR expense.

THE COZIEST OF HOMES

It does not follow that a cozy home must be a small cramped affair. The fact that it may be plenty large, amid attractive surroundings and yet cozy, is proven by a visit to any one of the many houses ready for

Immediate Occupation at

MORSEMERE.

They have all been designed for maximum comfort and elegance, with reasonableness in price.

One of the most perfectly appointed, charmingly located, artistically arranged and withal comparatively inexpensive homes is but partly described as follows:

Nine rooms and bath, steam heated, double hardwood floors on first floor. Hardwood trim throughout—Oak, first floor; Red Hazel on second and third floors. Cemented cellars. Decorations, fixtures, mantels, etc., complete and selected to please the most critical.

All improvements in the street—Water, gas, sewer, cement sidewalks, curb and gutters; shade trees. One block to trolley, whence seven minutes to 130th Street Ferry. Price, $9,500, on terms to suit purchaser.

DELIGHTFUL COMMUNITY, GOOD SCHOOLS AND MODERATE TAXES are but few of the attractive features of this most easily accessible suburb. Office on the property.

Phone 507 Bryant. COLUMBIA INVESTMENT & REAL ESTATE CO.,
TIMES BLDG., BROADWAY & 42D STREET.

MOVING DAY

will see several artistic homes completed in Palisade section, $5,000 and up. Let us show them. Desirable improved plots, two in particular, $2,000 and $4,000, for immediate sale. Quickly accessible at any hour.

GRAFT INQUIRY IS SHIFTED HERE

Pennsylvania Board Comes to Hear of Work on Its State Capitol.

GETS ONLY TWO WITNESSES

Contractor Wilson Tells of Dickering with Sanderson About the Flooring Contract.

The Legislative Investigating Commission, which has been laying bare the remarkable system of graft in the construction of Pennsylvania's new $13,000,000 State Capitol, invaded New York yesterday. The State Senators and Representatives who compose the commission came here to obtain the testimony of several contractors who had a hand in the Capitol job, but who refused to go to Harrisburg in response to the commission's invitation.

Instead of hurrying to appear before the Commissioners, all but two of the contractors ignored the subpoenae which the commission's portly Sergeant at Arms served upon them. The Commissioners had no power to enforce the subpoenas and could do nothing yesterday afternoon, but sit in the board room of the Audit Company of New York, in the Mutual Life Building, and wait for witnesses to come in.

One of those who appeared was J. Godfrey Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., manufacturers of parquetry flooring, who furnished a large part of the parquetry in the new Capitol. This firm held a sub-contract from John H. Sanderson, one of the clique which is charged with running things to their liking on the Capitol job. Mr. Wilson told of a supposed conspiracy by which he was obliged to give up his contract long before it was completed. He also told the Commissioners that Sanderson made enormous profits on certain parts of the job, and told of an effort on Sanderson's part to get a subcontractor to furnish imitation Venetian blinds for the building.

Mr. Wilson was quite willing to talk. He assumed the position of a badly used man, and apparently told all he knew of the alleged transactions by which Sanderson was enabled to increase his profits on the job. The headquarters of the Wilson Company are in New York, although the manufacturing plant is in Norfolk.

Mr. Wilson said he obtained the contract to equip the Capitol with parquet flooring through Edward Snyder, a newspaper man of Norfolk, who received a commission of 10 per cent. for introducing Wilson to Sanderson. Wilson's first bid for the contract was 65 cents a square foot, including cement. He said there was a conference between Joseph M. Huston, the Capitol architect; Sanderson, and Wilson's nephew, in which Sanderson and Huston insisted that the Wilson Company agree to do the job for 45 cents a foot without cement. This proposition was finally accepted. Sanderson received $1.27½ a foot from the State for this same work. Mr. Wilson said the cement which held the parquet flooring in place cost about 7 cents a foot, and that Sanderson received 14 1-3 cents from the State.

Then came the story of the alleged conspiracy which resulted in the Wilson Company giving up the job. Mr. Wilson said that Payne & Co. of Philadelphia, which had the contract for constructing the building proper, wanted the parquet work too, and handicapped Wilson in many ways.

"When part of the work was completed Mr. Sanderson complained that it was lumpy," said Mr. Wilson. "I explained that the cement foundation was lumpy, this having been occasioned by Payne & Co. having turned on so much heat. It was discovered that Payne was doing this right along. We complained and he denied it. We then placed thermometers about the building and proved that the temperature was sometimes as high as 106 degrees. I explained all this to Mr. Sanderson and Architect Huston. They told me that I would have no more trouble with Payne as they had fixed him."

Mr. Wilson intimated that it was entirely spite work on the part of Payne. He said there were other complaints about the work, owing to the apparent desire to cut down the profits of the Wilson Company. Finally in despair he threw up the contract and demanded his pay, $25,000. Again there was a protest from Sanderson, and a compromise was made by which, Wilson said, he got about $19,000. Mr. Wilson said Sanderson received $45,871.77 from Pennsylvania for parquet flooring, and Payne, who finished out Wilson's contract, received $114,834.60.

In telling of the Sanderson proposal that the Wilson Company put in a bid for imitation Venetian blinds for the Capitol, the witness said that it was made through a letter which he would produce later, and that the letter followed a bid by his company of 65 cents a foot for genuine Venetian blinds as called for in the specifications, and for which the State expected to pay.

The other witness was M. J. Kilmartin, a representative of Charles R. Yandel & Co., decorators. He said his company furnished the Lieutenant Governor's room in leather receiving $2,500 from Payne. This was the extent of the morning session.

It was 2 o'clock in the afternoon when the Commissioners filed into the boardroom to resume the sitting. And then the wait for more witnesses began. The Sergeant at Arms told them he had subpoenaed members of the following New York firms: Palmer & Emburg, 9 Gouverneur Slip; Buhler & Lauer, 505 West Forty-fifth Street; F. Mohr & Co., 112 West Forty-second Street; Piccirilli Brothers, 717 East 142d Street; W. & J. Sloane, 84 Broadway; Edwards & Co., and the Robert C. Fisher Company, 139th Street and Locust Avenue. Attempts were made to subpoena Charles F. Kinsman of the Pennsylvania Bronz Company and some member of Joseph Edwards & Co., 414 Water Street.

Henry Ives Cobb, the architect who drafted the original plans for the Capitol, has been asked to appear before the commission to-day. It is unlikely that John H. Sanderson, who since October has been living at Sherry's, in this city, will be asked to appear before the commission while it is in this city. He will go to Harrisburg later.

The members of the commission are Senator John C. Fisher, Chairman; Senator A. E. Sisson, Representatives Robert R. Dearden, R. Willis Fair, Scott Ammerman, and Moses R. Shields.

FIRE CAPT. RYAN BURIED.

Firemen and War Veterans Attend the Funeral Services.

Many men prominent in the city's affairs attended the funeral yesterday of Fire Captain John Ryan of Engine Company No. 80, who was killed on Monday morning by the falling of a wall at the fire of the New York City Railway Company's power house in Harlem. The body of the dead fireman, in a solid oak coffin, covered with an American flag, was taken from his home, at 153 East 124th Street, to All Saints' Church, at Madison Avenue and 129th Street, where a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Crowley.

As Capt. Ryan was a veteran of the civil war and a member of H. B. Claflin Post, Grand Army services were also held. All of the members of the post turned out in the funeral procession, together with an escort of sixty city firemen made up of details from various engine companies in which Ryan had served. Four of the pall bearers were Grand Army men and the remaining four Fire Department Captains.

The fire truck of Engine Company No. 14, on 125th Street, between Park and Lexington Avenues, was drawn into the street, and the firemen of that company lined up as the funeral cortège passed on its way to the church.

The burial was in Calvary Cemetery, the members of the Claflin Post accompanying the body to the grave.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The vigorous coast storm of Tuesday still lingers near the western end of Nova Scotia, and snow is still falling in Northern New England, Northern New York, and along the lower lakes. The storm has evidently spent its force on the New England Coast, although it will cause fresh northwest winds for the next thirty-six hours.

The weather Thursday and Friday in Eastern districts will be fair, with a slight increase in temperature Thursday and a more substantial gain on Friday. The winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be fresh northwest; South Atlantic Coast, light northwest to west; East Gulf Coast, light northwest to west; East Gulf Coast, fresh west.

Steamers departing Thursday for European ports will have fresh northwest winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York and Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy Thursday with snow flurries in north portion, not quite so cold; Friday, fair and warmer, brisk northwest winds.

New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday with slowly rising temperature, fresh northwest winds.

New England—Fair in south, snow in north portion Thursday; Friday, fair and not so cold, fresh to brisk northwest winds.

Western New York—Snow flurries in the morning, followed by fair and not so cold in the afternoon; Friday, fair, warmer, diminishing northwest winds.

Western Pennsylvania—Clearing and not so cold Thursday; Friday, fair and warmer, brisk northwest winds on the lake.

	1906.	1907.		1906.	1907.
3 A. M.	49	38	4 P. M.	58	35
6 A. M.	44	37	6 P. M.	56	37
9 A. M.	46	37	9 P. M.	51	36
12 M.	57	39	12 P. M.	47	..

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 38; for the corresponding date last year it was 51; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 45.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 36; at 8 P. M. it was 36; maximum temperature, 41 degrees at 11:10 A. M.; minimum, 34 degrees at 3:50 P. M.; humidity, 96 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 95 per cent. at 8 P. M.

TOMBS CROWDED; TRIALS ARE DELAYED

634 Prisoners There, 200 More Than Usual at This Time of Year.

MAY BE EXTRA COURT TERM

Jerome May Ask Judges to Sit All Summer—Scarlet Fever in the Prison.

The discovery by Dr. McGuire, the Tombs physician, yesterday that Clarence Barry, a prisoner awaiting trial on a charge of having defrauded the Degnon Contracting Company, had scarlet fever led to the making of some statements as to overcrowding in the Tombs. When the matter was called to his attention Warden Flynn went before Judge Rosalsky and asked if the case against Barry might not be disposed of so that the outside authorities could care for him. When this was denied and the man had been ordered transferred to the Willard Parker Reception Hospital Judge Rosalsky asked as to the number of prisoners in the Tombs. He was told that there were now 634, or some 200 more than was usual at this time of the year.

Later the Warden told a reporter that the prison was in a generally overcrowded condition. Of the 634 prisoners 29 were there on homicide charges. In the corridor, where there were 40 cells for juvenile offenders, and single cells at that, each cell had two occupants. There were some 150 youths in all in the prison. The Warden added that he would not attempt to explain the overcrowding. The prisoners were delivered at the Tombs and there was nothing for him to do but receive them.

In the District Attorney's office the causes of the condition existing in the Tombs were discussed frankly. It was pointed out that the contention of some critics that the District Attorney had dropped all other work save the Thaw trial was not an explanation, since the only possible delaying effect that the Thaw trial would have would be felt only in the homicide cases. The same number of assistants were still at work on the same grades of cases other than those of homicide.

"The trouble is," said Assistant District Attorney Charles C. Nott, "that the number of pleas of guilty upon which we relied to clear the calendars of unnecessary cases has decreased this year. Last year there were some 1,900 pleas, as against 1,100 cases actually tried. In the first three months of this year there have been between 200 and 300 less pleas than in the corresponding period of 1906.

In Part I. of the Supreme Court, where all of the prisoners are first brought to plead, there were but 107 cases disposed of last month, where there were about 300 in the corresponding month of last year. There were fifty pleas of guilty, or an average of 2½ a day, where there was a daily average of seven to twelve in the same month last year.

Another man in the District Attorney's office, who did not wish to be quoted, said frankly that in his opinion the whole delay was due to the new Judges, who did not wish to accept the pleas of the prisoners to lesser degrees of crime than they were charged within the indictments.

"We have to concede something to these men who are willing to plead guilty," said he, "so often where they are charged with a larceny we permit them to plead to an attempted larceny. Formerly it was customary for a man from the office to go among the prisoners in the court and in the pens and ascertain those among them who were willing to plead guilty. The new Judges have ordered this practice stopped. I have heard the District Attorney declare that unless the calendars are in better shape by Summer he will apply for a special term of court to sit all Summer."

HIS TRIBUTE TO THE KAISER

The Man Destined to Perform a Miracle for Peace—Notable Guests at the Ceremonies.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 11.—In the presence of a distinguished company of guests, coming from all parts of the United States and foreign countries, and dignified by the presence of two personal representatives of the German Emperor, the dedication of the new building of the Carnegie Institute was begun to-day.

The opening exercises were notable for two important characteristics. The first was the German flavor to everything. There were present eminent Frenchmen, distinguished Englishmen, noted Norwegians, and well-known men from other countries, but the Germans overshadowed them all. The guests in the music hall were seated on the platform in a semicircle. At one end of the semicircle was Gen. von Lowenfeld, the Kaiser's Adjutant, and at the other Mr. von Ihne, the Berlin Court architect. The other guests came in between these two. The bulk of the applause was for the Germans.

The opening of the exercises consisted in an organ chorale by the new organist of the Catholic Library, Charles Heinroth, and what he played was the German national sacred hymn, "Ein Festeburg ist unser Gott." In his speech Mr. Carnegie, the central figure of the day, singled out the Kaiser from all other European monarchs and praised him for never having soiled his long reign with blood. The most elaborate part of Mr. Carnegie's speech consisted of an earnest and dramatic appeal to the Kaiser to take the lead in enforcing international peace. During this part of the speech Gen. von Loewenfeld industriously and rather ostentatiously took it down as Mr. Carnegie uttered it.

As the General not only had the most prominent seat in the assemblage, but also was the most conspicuous figure in it by reason of his uniform and appearance, it was impossible for him to make a move without everybody looking at him, and entirely impossible that he should not have expected the attention which was riveted upon this act of his. Besides, it is reported that he knew beforehand what the speech was to be which he thus reported. To-night everybody is talking about this German aspect of the day, and particularly about this scene between Mr. Carnegie and Gen. von Lowenfeld, and wondering what it means.

Carnegie Talks of Money.

The other feature was a speech by Mr. Carnegie, which was not down on the programme and which was uttered just before he took up the prepared speech sent out by the press associations to the newspapers of the country. It was extemporaneous and, so far as appearances went, unpremeditated. It was apparently drawn from him by the emotions under which he labored at the moment of his great success. In this speech Mr. Carnegie threw aside all mock modesty and talked with almost brutal frankness about his feelings as an owner of money and a giver of money. He seemed to be laboring under great emotion. He waved his arm and fairly shouted, and was more of an orator than he had ever been before in his life.

He took his audience into his confidence and listening to him one could get a line on how a multi-millionaire, or at least such a multi-millionaire as Mr. Carnegie, regards his money and how he feels when he parts with it. There were a good many rich men in the audience, yet it must have come as something of a shock even to them to hear from Mr. Carnegie's own lips that he can spend $6,000,000 and not have any sense brought home to him that he had spent a cent; that he is utterly unable to realize it or get a picture of the fact into his own mind. Certainly it made the less wealthy gasp as this vivid picture of the real meaning of a multi-millionaire's fortune was brought home to them. It was difficult for them to make themselves understand how the giving of such a sum repreeented nothing to its owner's mind but the handing over of a few meaningless bits of peper.

Mr. Carnegie had been introduced by Cheirman W. M. Frew of the Board of Trustees as a men who had long been absent from Pittsburg, but who still needed no introduction. This expression seemed to furnish Mr. Carnegie his inspiration. He put his manuscript down, his eyes flashed, he stepped far to the front beyond the speaker's table, and raising his arms, cried out:

"I have been in a dream ever since I arrived here, and I am still in a dream. As I look upon this building, I can hardly realize what has been done in my absence by the men who have made it. I have tried to make myself realize that I have anything to do with it, and have failed to do so. I said to Mrs. Carnegie last night, 'It is like the mansion raised in the night by the genii, who obeyed Aladdin.' She replied, 'Yes, and you did not even have to rub the lamp.'

Bonds That Were Meaningless.

"It is true that I gave some pieces of paper, but they do not represent anything in my mind, because I did not part with anything that I could understand. It is true that these bits of paper rep-

Man Arrested at Pittsburg While Trying to Enter Hotel Schenley.

PITTSBURG, April 11.—Carrying a penknife, which was open and concealed partly in his cuff, Frederick Siagel, aged 33 years, was arrested in front of the Hotel Schenley this morning. Siagel was trying to gain access to the main lobby of the hotel when seized by Policeman John Kennedy. He begged the officar to let him entsr the hotel, saying that he wished to speak with Andrew Carnegie in reference to the sale of a patent for milking cows.

He was hurried to the Oakland Police Station. When searched he had $261 on his person. He gave his address as Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Carnegie was not in the hotsl at the time of the arrest. Siagel was locked up charged with being a suspicious person.

The arrest has caused a very close watch to be kept on every person to guard against possible assassination or injury to any of the notable guests who are participating in the Founders' Day exercises at the Carnegie Institute. Uniformed policemen and detectives by the score are hovering about all the prominent men, and the possibility of any unauthorized person reaching them is remote. Mr. Carnegie was not informed of the arrest of the man, and is unaware of the unusual precaution to guard him against harm.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 11.—Frederick Siagel is not known here.

F. MARION CRAWFORD HERE.

The Author's First Visit to America in Two Years—Wellman Sails.

F. Merion Crawford, the author, returned to America yesterday on the steamship Prinzessin Irene. This is his first visit in two years, and he will remain on this side about two months. Mr. Crawford has just completed, and will soon publish, a book dealing with the life of Beatrice Cenci, heroine of the celebrated Italian tragedy of the sixteenth century.

Others on the Prinsessin Irene were Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. M. Folger, Emir A. Sabbeghe of Syria, Dr. R. W. Gilman, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Symons, Hamilton V. Meeks, and Mrs. Orlando S. Johnson.

Welter Wellman, the explorer who expects to find the north pole, sailed for Paris yesterday morning on the French liner La Touraine. He goes over to complete preparations for the start from the French capital to Spitzbergen.

Among those who were down to see Mr. Wellmen dspert was C. F. Bishop, President of the Asro Club of America. Mr. Bisbop will sail on April 18 on the steamer Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, taking with him a special banner of the Aero Club which will be presented to Mr. Wellman and will be taksn with him on his air voyage north. Mr. Bisbop said that probably he would accompany the expedition to Spitsbergen.

RETURNS TO GO TO PRISON.

Hartman's Wife Dies Without Knowing of His Conviction.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—After wandering for months in the Far West with his stricken wife, Thomas H. Hartman returned to Philadelphia to-dey, she having died, end entered the Eastern Penitentiary to serve a two years' term of imprisonment for fraudulent registration. Because of this sentence, he fled this jurisdiction when refused a new trial on Dec. 15, 1905. His wife was dying of consumption, end he took her with him and steyed beside her until her death, which occurred recently.

Hartman was thin and pale when he appeared to-day at the bar of Quarter Sessions Court No. 1 to give himself up. He was alone. Judge Wiltbank, who tried and sentenced him, was on the bench, but did not recognize him.

"Not until the dey she died did my wife know of the charge against me," said Hartmen. "It was because of her illness thet I left Philadelphia. After her death I came straight home. I am glad to be back, even though it is to enter prison for two years."

ASKED TO BE HANGED.

Convicted Murderer Said He Was Tired of Being Pursued.

LOS ANGELES, April 11.—A men, about 45 years old, travel stained and weary, who said he was George W. Bundrick, appeared in Downey, near here, to-day, and surrendered to the authorities. He said that he killed John Shroeder in Reins, Dooley County, Ga., in 1902. He declared that he had been arrested in Georgia, tried, convioted, and sentenced to be hanged, hut had escaped from jail at Americus by overpowering his guards.

He said he was weary of being pursued and wanted to be taken back and hanged for his crime.

HAD TWENTY-ONE CHILDREN.

Dunham Was a Man After the President's Own Heart.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, April 11.—Victor Monroe Dunham, who died suddenly last night aged 83 years, was a man after President Roosevelt's own heart. He had twenty-one children, thirty-two grandchildren, all of whom are living but three, and fourteen great-grandchildren.

Mr. Dunham, who was born in Englishtown, came to this city when a baby and lived here ever since. He had been a member of the First Presbyterian Church in this city for fifty-six years, and in all that time had only missed two Sundays. He was a witness of the great tornado of 1836. He never had a day's illness in his life, and did the family marketing every morning.

"INCUBATOR BOY" TANGLE.

Illinois Appellate Court Opposes Action of Kansas Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 11.—Custody of the famous World's Fair "incubator boy" was awarded to-day by the Appellate Court of Illinois to Mrs. Stella Barclay of Rochester, N. Y., according to a dispatch from Ottawa, Ill. This decision is directly oppbsed to the action of the Supreme Court of Kansas last Saturday, yieiding the infant to its mother, Mrs. Charlotte Bleakeley of Lawrence, Kan.

The legal tangle which ensues from these antagonistic decisions of the courts will involve the question which trihunal has jurisdiction. The issue may have to be decided by the United States Courts.

FRICK PLANS TO SUCCEED PENROSE

The Pennsylvania Railroad Considers the Senior Senator Too Leaky.

DURHAM, TOO, DESERTS HIM

Argument Will Be That Two Senators Should Not Come from the Same Part of the State.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 11.—The passing from favor of Senator Penrose has no pathetic features. He has been struck down by the powers that protected him so long, namely, the Penneylvania Railroad. There is no longer any secret about the future of politics in this State and who is to run the Republican machine. Henry Clay Frick is the dominant power.

As January, 1909, approaches, Mr. Penrose will be told that the east has a Senator, and that the west will not agree to both men coming from that section. Senator Knox resides at Valley Forge with his family. So the plan is to make Mr. Frick a United States Senator and keep Mr. Penrose at home.

The railroad intsrests are watching developments in the States, and are seeking to prevent any praise for the President by political bodies. In the meantime the political leaders are swearing allegiance to Roosevelt, for he has nearly two years of power at least. Penrose is accused of making many slips and it has been determined that he is no longer to be trueted. Frick would never leak.

The recent outburst of the State Legislature for Roosevelt made the railroad men smile. It also pleased Roosevelt. The speech of Mayor Reyburn of Philadelphia, in which he directly attacked the President, is another part of the plan to break down the Roosevelt influence in this State. The Mayor is the close associate of many railroad men of great influence, and especially about Broad Street Station. His friendships are strong and he speaks his mind.

Israel W. Durbam has tied his fortunes with Reyburn, and only this week declared that he was for the Mayor, sink or swim. Durham has never cut his lines with Broad Street Station; he has no love for Penrose.

President McCrea comes from Pittsburg and has long been the associate and friend of both Frick and Knox.

His sentiments are those of Mayor Reyburn, strange as it may seem. So far Gov. Stuart, who is noted as a very discreet man, has not nodded his head. He has always been for fair play. In the fight last Fall Penrose was more of a weight about Stuart's neck than a comfort.

Pittsburg and its captains of industry, who contributed freely to the Stuart campaign, asked as a reward only the appointment of a member of his Cabinet, which was granted.

With a Reyburn machine in Philadelphia and a Stuart machine in the State, with Allegheny County lending a strong hand, there would be no room for Penrose. There are many minor elements to be consulted, Senator McNichol in Philadelphia for one and Flinn and his friends in Allegheny.

Supreme Court Justice Elkin and his followers would no doubt join in the procession, and Elkin might leave the bench in 1911 and succeed Knox, who is not expected to serve more than one term.

The fight for delegates to the Republican National Convention of 1908 is already on. As Pennsylvania's candidate for President, on which side will Senator Knox stend?

HELD UP NEAR THE TOMBS.

Victims Assaulted and Robbed in Broadway—No Police Near.

Within a few blocks of where thousands of people, held in check by scores of policemen, thronged about the Criminal Court Building to await the Thaw verdict, two men were held up early last night, assaulted, and robbed of cash and valuables. The victims themselves, walking into the Hudson Street Hospital to have their cuts and bruises dressed, told of the highway robbery.

Louis Stein, a cloakmaker of 244 West 117th Street, was the first victim. He walked into the Hudson Street Hospital about 8 o'clock, bloody, dirty, and bedraggled, suffering from cuts about the head, and bruises on his body. To Dr. Baxter, who dressed his wounds, he said he was walking up Broadway, near Grand Street, when four men rushed out of a doorway and set upon him. They knocked him down, beat him half senseless, and robbed him of $92 in cash, and his gold watch, he says, and then ran swiftly away. He said there did not appear to be a policeman within miles.

Stein said he lay on the sidewalk until two good Samaritans picked him up and helped him to the hospital. He went home in a cab after his injuries were treated.

John Jackson, who said he was a traveling salesman, living in Troy, N. Y., was the other victim. He staggered into the hospital, bleeding from cuts on his head and neck. He was so weak he could hardly stand. He said he had been attacked by four men about 8 o'clock in West Broadway, near Franklin Street, and relieved of $28 in cash, a gold watch, and some small jewelry.

Dr. Baxter treated him, and after a time he was able to go. The surgeon lent him a nickel to get uptown to his friends.

FREDERICK PABST INJURED.

Rendered Unconscious with Woman Companion in Auto Crash.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 11.—Frederick Pabst, son of the late Capt. Frederick Pabst, head of the great brewery of that name, and Mrs. Leonard Barnickel, wife of a well-known athletic instructor, were seriously injured early to-night by a collision between Mr. Pabst's automobile and a street car. The accident took place at about 7 o'clock, and the two were taken to Trinity Hospital suffering from concuesion of the brain. At 11 o'clock neither had regained consciousness.

Mr. Pabst had left his home to meet the manager of one of his great stock farms at a downtown hotel, and Mrs. Barnickel had left her home, as nearly as can be learned, to meet her husband and go to the dog show.

It is supposed that Mr. Pabst saw Mrs. Barnickel in the street and offered to take her to her destination. As the automobile turned from one street around a corner a trolley car, coming up behind, smashed into it, and Mr. Pabst and Mrs. Barnickel were dragged 150 feet before the car was stopped. The police ambulance hurried them to Trinity Hospital, where their identity was learned.

GOOD IDEA, SAYS HARRIMAN.

His Only Comment on the Likelihood of Ending One-Man Power in U. P.

E. H. Harriman characterized as a "good idea" yesterday the suggestion that the Union Pacific Executive Committee is likely to be enlarged, or at least altered to include a larger number of active men of independent position. Beyond this Mr. Harriman would not comment on the statement in THE TIMES yesterday that such a reorganization of the Union Pacific Executive Committee might be undertaken with the object of increasing public confidence in the management of the property by having the duties of management which have devolved almost solely upon Mr. Harriman divided among several individuals.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Southern Pacific Railroad, the first since the annual meeting of the stockholders, the old officers, including President Harriman, were re-elected for the coming year.

RAILROAD BILL PASSES.

The New Jersey House, However, Will Not Accept Senate's Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—The Senate substitute for the House Railroad Commission bill was passed in the Senate to-day after a long debate. This measure makes the functions of the Commissioners purely administrative.

The House Democrats had a caucus and agreed to reject the emasculated bill. There was not a dissenting voice to that proposal, all agreeing that it would be good politics to refuss to accept the Senate substitute and then charge the Republicans with failure to agree to a fair Railroad Commission bill.

The Senate to-night passed the Senate substitute for the Assembly Railroad Demurrage bill; providing that when owners and consignees of freight refuse to accept the same and pay charges the railroads, after three days, may impose a charge of not more than $1 a day, Sunday excepted, for detention of each car or for the use of the track occupied.

FOR 2-CENT RATE BILL.

Measure Passed by Michigan Senate Has House's Approval.

LANSING, Mich., April 11.—The Two-Cent Railroad Rate bill passed recently by the Senate, was passed by the House to-day, with only one dissenting vote. The bill allows the Upper Peninsula roads and those roads of the Lower Peninsula, which earn less than $1,200 per mile a year from passenger traffic, to charge 3 cents a mile, but all other roads are required to charge only 2 cents.

Gov. Warner's influence has been behind the bill.

JOE ULLMAN INSANE.

Well-Known Bookmaker Coming Here Under a Doctor's Care.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Joe Ullman, the well-known horseman and bookmaker, will be taken East to-morrow in a private car by Dr. Lustig and put in an institution for the care of the insane. His case is considered almost hopeless, as he has not improved in the two weeks that he has been here.

Ullman came to the coast as the "angel" of the San Carlos Opera Company, of which Marcus Mayer was the press agent. Everything went well until the company reached Kansas, when several chorus girls were turned out of a Burlington train into the snow, owing to misunderstanding over their tickets. This excited Ullman, who had been acting strangely for several days.

At El Paso a crowd hissed Alice Neilson because the opera given was cut short to permit the players to catch a train. Ullman was wrought up, and feared that the mob would do him and the singers bodily harm.

On the train from El Paso to Los Angeles Ullman was egitated and never slept. He feared that the train would be held up, and he would start up in his berth, shouting "They are going to rob me!" When the opera company reached Los Angeles Ullmen was in a very nervous condition, but he insisted on coming north with the company.

When he reached here he was put in a room at the hotel and a trained nurse took charge of him. He grew more violent and was transferred to a sanitarium in Oakland, where he has remained since. Ullman has many friends hers.

SOLD THE CHURCH FOR $25.

Mrs. C. H. Mackay, Donor of a New One, Now Sued by a Vestryman.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., April 11.—Trouble has arisen over the disposition of the old edifice on the property of Trinity Church here. Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, the donor of the new edifice, built in memory of her mother; McKim, Mead & White, the architects and agents, and William Sherard, a liveryman of this village, who a few days ago purchased the old church building, have been served with papers in an injunction suit restraining them from removing the church building.

The complaint says the architect, under Mrs. Mackay's orders, sold the edifice for $25.

When Henry W. Eastman, a Vestryman, heard of the sale he brought injunction proceedings. The case will be argued before Justice Carr next Thursday at Mineola. The church was erected in 1869, and contains a large organ, pews, carpets, and other furniture, all of which, it is alleged, were included in the sale.

The action is brought on the ground that none of the property of the parish can be disposed of without the consent of the Trustees and the rector.

Vestryman Eastman, who brings the action as a Trustee, is one of the oldest communicants of the church. He was opposed to the resignation of the late rector, the Rev. Isaac Peck, and not in sympathy with all the movements of the Mackay regime in the parish.

$393,039 Verdict Against Brokers.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 10.—A verdict of $393,039.38 was given to the executors of the will of the late Major John Byrnes against Isaac B. Newcomb & Co., brokers, of Manhattan, before Supreme Court Jupstice Carr to-day, in a suit brought for nearly a million dollars' worth of securities.

COUNTRY ALL RIGHT, SAYS H. H. ROGERS

Providence Is on Its Side and Our Prosperity Will Go Right On.

AGITATION MUST END

People Will See That It Hinders Business and Then They'll Shut Down on It.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 11.—H. H. Rogers has expressed a most optimistic opinion of the financial and commercial outlook in an interview printed to-day in The Manufacturers' Record. After reviewing in general terms the economic conditions on which he bases his views, he says that with the help of Providence everything will work out all right.

The Manufacturers' Record quotes Mr. Rogers as follows:

"I believe in providential happenings in all the affairs of men, and I believe that Providence is on the side of this country and that everything will work out all right. I don't believe the people are going to overlook the things that make for their well-being. The whole country has had a taste of the blessings of prosperity, and in a providential sort of way I believe the people are going to eliminate the factors that would stand in the way of continued prosperity.

"Continued agitation, the people will see, unsettles conditions. You cannot move loads with a team that won't haul—with horses or mules that will not pull together. The people must see that settled conditions are necessary for progress and development, and I believe that the sentiment of the country will have so crystallized within a few months that there will be a practically united demand for the strongest conservatism in the conduct of the Government. We must have settled conditions, and I believe we will have them.

Importance of Wall Street.

"While the recent panic is described as a flurry among the Wall Street gamblers, its effects and significance are not to be so contemptuously dismissed. When investors from the outside can come up to Wall Street and buy stocks or bonds that pay good dividends or yield a profit by an advance in price, Wall Street is considered by them than as a very good place, but the money that is paid out in dividends or the profits secured from advances in the price of securities must come from somewhere.

"When the tide turns and securities are sacrificed in a falling market it does not dispose of the matter to call Wall Street a den of thieves. Wall Street is really the clearing house of the country. Here the great railroad and industrial enterprises of America are financed, and depression in Wall Street necessarily to a greater or less extent affects the business interests of the whole country.

"But the important point is this: Confidence that leads to investment in securities is essential to the continuation of development. And settled conditions are necessary to maintain confidence. Every new enterprise requires money to carry it through. Wall Street, it is but an elemental fact to state, affords the greatest market in the country for the securities of these enterprises. When there is no sale for securities at normal values enterprises are halted. We have already seen how various improvements contemplated by the railroads have been temporarily suspended.

More Wealth Here than Ever.

"I would like to make this point: There is more wealth in the country to-day than ever before known. Conditions, requirements, and methods of carrying on all kinds of business, including farming, have so changed in recent years that general stagnation is almost impossible to-day. The people throughout the country will seek to invest their surplus funds in bonds and other securities, and they will demand that conditions exist whereby these investments will not be subject to disturbing influences, and that important development enterprises are not hampered by unnecessary and continued agitation."

Mr. Rogers uses the history of his own great industry to illustrate the Providential workings on which he pins his faith in the ultimate solution of our present problems.

"Take, for instance, the history of the petroleum development of the world," he says, "It is full of providential happenings. New fields have been discovered as fast as needed, and from 2,000 barrels in 1859 the production has become so great I can't carry the figures in my head. Petroleum, providing illumination that now changes darkness to daylight in homes all over the world, has been the greatest civilizer outside of the Christian religion that humanity has known, and its discovery and development in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, in Texas, in California, in Russia, and everywhere it has been found, seem to have been made at just the time when needed and when the people were prepared for its use."

WOMAN SPEEDER HELD.

Said to Have Declared She Wished She'd Run Over Policeman.

A woman who said she was Mrs. Norma Ellieson, and who gave her address as the Dunlap Hotel, in West Forty-fourth Street, near Sixth Avenue, was arrested while speeding up Fifth Avenue, near Fifty-ninth Street, last night in an automobile. She was at the wheel driving the machine, and in the car were two men.

Bicycle Policeman O'Sullivan made four charges against Mrs. Ellisson when he took her to the East Fifty-first Street Station. First—running her machine at a speed of twenty miles an hour. Second—carrying a false license number. Third—not having a State seal. Fourth—not having the machine licensed.

Mrs. Ellisson said that she came here only six weeks ago, and was unfamiliar with the laws governing automobiles in the city. She called up 3,656 Riverside on the telephone—the Fife Arms in West Eighty-seventh Street—in order to have her uncle come and bail her out. Robert S. Kamuski of 120 East Thirty-first Street, one of her companions in the automobile, furnished the bail, putting up the $2,000 bonds required and giving household goods as security.

Mrs. Ellisson said she was the divorced wife of Charles R. Ellisson, a Western horse owner. She said that she had been dining at Martin's, and expressed a wish that she had run over the policeman.

ALDRICH LEFT $185,000.

Author's Estate Goes to His Widow, Mrs. Mary E. Aldrich.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 11.—The will of the late Thomas Bailey Aldrich wee allowed to-day by Judge Flint of Norfolk Probate Court, sitting in the place of Judge McKim. The estate goes to the widow, Mrs. Mary E. Aldrich, who is named as executrix. The date of the will is April 5, 1904. The next of kin given in the petition for the allowance of the will are Mrs. Aldrich, a son, Talbot Aldrich, and a grandchild, Lillian Aldrich.

The testetor left real estate valued at $35,000 and personal property valued at $150,000.

MAIL PACKAGE BLOWS UP.

Clerk in St. Louis Post Office Loses a Thumb and Finger.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—A mail package, apparently containing dynamite, exploded while it was being stamped in the St. Louis Post Office to-day. The explosive blew away a finger and thumb of John G. Bayer, the clerk, who wes stemping the package.

All trace of the contents and all of the address except "Independence, Mo.," were destroyed.

CONGRESSMAN FAVROT FREE.

After Having Been in Jail for Five Months Jury Fails to Indict Him.

BATON ROUGE, April 11.—Democratic Congressmen George K. Favrot was set free to-night after having been in jail for about five months under arrest on a charge of murder and awaiting action of a Grand Jury. To-day the second Grand Jury refused to indict the Congressman. Mr. Favrot lest November shot and killed Dr. R. H. Aldrich of Baton Rouge.

ANTWERP BOAT ASHORE.

Passengers Taken Off—Vessel Belongs to Same Line as the Berlin.

LONDON, April 11.—The Great Eastern Railway Company's steamer Brussels went ashore in a dense fog off Harwich at 11 o'clock last night while outward bound for Antwerp.

The sixty passengers of the Brussels were taken off this afternoon and her cargo is being removed in order to lighten the vessel preparatory to an attempt to refloat her. One attempt to-day failed.

The vessel is not considered to be in danger, as she is resting on a soft bottom.

This is the third of this company's steamers to be in trouble recently, including the Berlin, which was wrecked off the Hook of Holland on Feb. 21, with the loss of over a hundred lives.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER ROBBED.

Burglar Gets $5,000 of Jewels from Her Private Car at Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 11.—Mrs. Leslie Carter's private car Halsmers was robbed of $5,000 worth of diamonds and other gems yesterday afternoon while the actress was portraying Mme. Du Barry to a great matinée crowd at the Grand. When Mrs. Leslie Carter returned from the performence she discovered her loss. She has offered a reward of $500 for recovery of the jewels.

The Halsmere was parked just outside the terminal station shed. None of the regular occupants was on the car when the robbery occurred except the negro cook, and the latter says he knows nothing about it. The robber smashed Mrs. Carter's boudoir to pieces in search for valuables.

TRAIN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Supposed Lunatic Had Piled Ties on Long Island Tracks.

An unidentified men about 40 years old attempted to wreck a train on the Long Island Railroad on the Oyster Bay branch last evening by putting ties on the track. He was seen acting strangely at the Roslyn station, but no one paid much attention to him. Walking up the track about a mile he picked up a dozen ties, one by one, put them on the track, and began to dance around them.

Thomas Reilly, the engineer on Train No. 132, which is due at Roslyn at 12:50 o'clock, saw something on the track and put on the brakes. The train stopped just as the pilot touched the obstructions. While the engineer and Conductor John Briggs were pulling the ties from the track a passenger saw a man hiding behind some bushes. They pursued him, but he had not run far when he got down on his knees and began praying.

When taken to Long Island City he said he was Philip Ketchum of 221 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. Magistrate Connorton committed him for examination as to his sanity.

FIFTEEN KILLED IN WRECK.

Injured Passengers Burned to Death on the Canadian Pacific.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 11.—Fifteen persons were killed and twenty injured in the wreck of a Canadian Pacific passenger train last night near Chapleau, 300 miles east of here. The train was thrown from the track by a broken rail and plunged down an embankment into a small lake. Some of the injured passengers were pinned in the wreckage and slowly burned to death, while others met death in a more merciful form in the waters of the lake.

When the train struck the broken rail five tourist cars near the middle of the train broke loose and rolled down the embankment. One of the cars was entirely submerged. The other four stopped closer to the shore and were only partly covered by water. The latter caught fire and the passengers imprisoned in a mass of wreckage were burned to death.

WHISTLE CURE FOR SNORING.

Figures in a White Plains Divorce as Cruel and Inhuman Treatment.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 11.—In the divorce suit of Mrs. Henry D. Archer against her husband, which is noticed for trial in the Supreme Court in Westchester County, the defendant alleges cruel and inhuman treatment on the part of his wife on the following grounds:

"The plaintiff has continually annoyed the defendant by taking a tin whistle to bed with her and blowing it when the defendant wanted to go to sleep, giving as an excuse that the defendant had been snoring, and that this was her remedy to wake him up and break him of the habit."

The Archers are well known in White Plains. The husband is employed at Howard Willet's breeding stables at Gedney Farms. In the paper originally filed Mrs. Archer charges her husband with turning her mother's picture to the wall in their home.

BITTER FIGHT IN THAW JURY

Locked Up for Second Night Without Reaching an Agreement.

SAID TO STAND 10 TO 2

Majority Believed to be Making Determined Effort for a Verdict of Guilty.

THAW WEARY OF DELAY

Had Packed Up His Belongings in His Cell and Fully Expected Acquittal.

GREAT CROWDS ON WATCH

Criminal Court Building Besieged All Day by Thousands Curious About Thaw's Fate.

At 11:40 o'clock last night the jury in whose hands rests the fate of Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, was ordered locked up in the jury room for a second night, and Justice Fitzgerald went home to bed.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning it was plain to the watchers about the Criminal Court Building that the jurymen were still debating the case. The three windows of their room were brilliantly illuminated. At the same hour on Wednesday night the lights had been extinguished and the tired jurors were trying to snatch a few hours' sleep.

It was nearly 3 o'clock before the lights were turned low this morning.

When they were locked up at 11:40 o'clock, the jury had been deliberating on a verdict for more than thirty hours—a much longer period than has been necessary in most of the famous criminal trials of recent years.

In the first Molineux trial eight hours, in the second trial 25 minutes, was sufficient for a verdict. When Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy was tried for the Dolly Reynolds murder, the first jury took 3 hours 13 minutes, the second 6 hours 35 minutes, and the third 22 hours and 5 minutes before they either found a verdict or disagreed. In the Nan Patterson cases the juries were hopelessly divided after 24 hours and 11 hours and 35 minutes. Here are the records of a few other cases:

Bosschiter, Jennie, 1901, 4 hours, second degree.
Buchanan, Dr., 1893, 28 hours, first degree.
Hannigan, David, 1898, 6 hours 20 minutes, acquittal.
Harris, Carlisle W., 1892, 1 hour 15 minutes, first degree.
Patrick, Albert T., 1902, 2 hours, first degree.
Guldensuppe, William, 1907, 3 hours, first degree.
Webster, Burton C., 1902, 19 hours, disagreement.
Webster, Burton C., 1902, 4 hours, manslaughter.

Ten to Two for Guilty, Rumor Says.

As the hours flew by without any sign from the jury all sorts of rumors spread through the Criminal Court Building about conditions in the jury room. Upon one point they all agreed, that was that a bitter fight was on between the jurymen over Thaw's guilt and that the outcome would be largely dependent upon the endurance of the contending factions.

The rumor most generally heard and most commonly credited, whether it had any foundation or not, was that either one or two jurors were holding out against a verdict of guilty.

Everywhere in various forms this rumor of the ten men or more standing for a verdict of guilty and one or two for not guilty was heard. Whatever the basis of contention, however, everybody agreed that the two sides were fighting to a finish.

Justice Fitzgerald spent the evening in his chambers awaiting word from the jury room. That word did not come. The jurors, after dinner at the Broadway Central Hotel, filed into their little room and began again the night of physical torture and the night of mental unrest.

There was no apparent desire on the part of the majority to ask for a disagreement and a discharge of the jury. It seemed to be the purpose to reach a verdict in the case that had held them for over three months.

Two men for acquittal and ten for conviction was the word that passed through the corridors of the Court House, though what it was founded on no one could say.

Bravely Stick to Their Task.

Several times during the long, anxious wait it looked as if the jury would send some communication to Justice Fitzgerald, for Capt. Lynch, in charge of the twelve men, moved in and out of the door leading to the corridor on which the jury room opens. It was thought that the night before, with its irksome hours in rickety chairs, would bring them together in an appeal to the court for their dismissal and the decree of a mistrial, but no such appeal was made. The jurors stuck to their task. The fight behind that closely watched jury room door waxed toward midnight, and Justice Fitzgerald finally ordered the door closed fast and tight for the rest of the night and not opened until 10:30 o'clock this morning.

No verdict! That was the succinct statement of Thaw's guard. The prisoner had waited patiently in the pen for a decision. He turned and picked up a parcel that he had brought with him. It was the carefully wrapped and tied bundle of letters he had received and filed, one by one, in brown board covers since the time he stepped from Madison Square Roof Garden to the Tenderloin Station. On his face, as he followed his prison keeper to the Tombs, there was the look of a man in deepest despair.

Long, Wearying Vigil.

A vigil that was as tremendously tragic as was the trial of Thaw began at 9 o'clock, when the wife of the prisoner, still clad like a schoolgirl and buoyant of spirits, walked lightly into the courtroom. Behind her slowly walked the mother of the prisoner. Her face was covered with a black veil. Next came the daughter that had married the Earl of Yarmouth, and behind her Mrs. Carnegie, her other daughter. Her sons, Josiah and Edward, came behind them. They took their accustomed seats.

The Thaw family had a stiff struggle to get through the crowds that still clung to the stairways and the corridors of the Criminal Courts Building. The police had to use their billies to drive the morbid curions back and make a pathway for them.

A verdict was expected at 9 o'clock. None came. The jury faced its second night of wrangling over Thaw's fate with a grim determination to settle it. The unfortunate Pittsburger, who had directed his own defense and who had expected an immediate acquittal, sat in the pen with his hopes high. He chatted with his keeper until his mother, his wife, and his sisters and brothers came to him, after finding that the jury was not ready to report. They tried to keep up his spirits. They tried to comfort him. He met them half way.

He smiled at times and fumbled with the bundle of letters he had brought with him. The letters were carefully wrapped; they were bound tightly with strong strings. He was prepared to leave the building a free man, carrying the toys of his prison days, the things that he had cherished most in his steel-barred cell, the carefully selected words of encouragement that had come to him from the four corners of the earth.

Thaw Prepared to Leave.

The "Sir Galahad" depicted by Delmas, the rescuer of forlorn and distressed maidens, awaited just that single two-word sentence: "Not guilty." He was sure of its coming last night. The night before he had waited for it, and all of yesterday he had waited for it. In the morning of yesterday he took his bath in the prison tub and had rejoiced in the fresh air that poured in upon him from an open window. He had said to his keeper: "To-day I shall be free." When he had taken his exercise he went to his cell and packed his clothes.

"Might as well be getting ready," said the slayer of Stanford White to Deputy Warden Jones. Then he gathered his precious papers, fumbling among them with caressing fingers. He had little else to pack.

Thaw called for pen and paper and wrote this for the newspapers:

I am told that it is impossible to tell what any jury will do, so I am attending to my ordinary affairs, but preparing for the best as it is simpler to unpack my things if necessary than it would be to return here for them if the verdict is favorable.

I had a very good cold bath. The bathroom always is filled with fresh air in the early mornings, the same temp. as outdoors. Next I had weak coffee and rolls as usual. These details must have interest plus as they are often mistold. HARRY K. THAW.

It is said that the "Sir Galahad" feature of the speech of Mr. Delmas was personally insisted upon by Thaw. In evidence there was one letter in which he had described himself as St. George slaying the dragon. The letter was put in by Mr. Jerome to show the incoherency of the man's mind.

At 11 o'clock last night the "angel child" of Mr. Jerome's speech said good-night to the "Sir Galahad" of Mr. Delmas's speech. She went downstairs. She sought a comfortable chair in the little room adjoining the chambers of Justice Fitzgerald. She waited there, while the other women-folk of Thaw got ready to go home in another part of the building.

At 11:40 o'clock Justice Fitzgerald sent the jury to its room for its second night. A chauffeur outside of the gloomy building pressed a bulb at his right hand. The honking of the horn was in the air, guiding Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to her equipage as Harry Thaw trudged back over the Bridge of Sighs with his neatly wrapped and tied bundle of letters.

Statement by Thaw.

Attorney Peabody was asked if Thaw would make any statement, and he referred the matter to the prisoner, who said he would write just a line. It follows:

"It is a great satisfaction that all my family continue well. I regret that so many officials and others have so much extra work."

As Deputy Sheriffs Bell, Delehanty, and McFadden took Thaw away he said:

"Another night. Well, I suppose I've got to make the best of it."

John D. Gleason said last night after the jury had been locked up: "It seems to me that it is now almost impossible that there will be a conviction. Judging by events of to-day, the jury is split on the question of insanity. It seems that some wish to acquit him on the ground of insanity while the others are standing out against him. Evidently they have hope of reaching an agreement or else they would have concluded before this that there was no chance of reaching a verdict. It is most unusual for a jury to be out so long (30 hours) without reporting to the Court that they cannot come to a decision. If it were a mere question between murder in the second degree and manslaughter in the first degree, there is so little difference that I do not believe there would be a prolonged debate over it."

THE WAIT FOR A VERDICT.

Jury Spent Most of the Morning Hearing Evidence Read Over.

When the jurors, after brief naps in uncomfortable chairs and on the small table in the jury room, straightened out their forms yesterday morning, they were a very tired lot.

Deming B. Smith, the foreman, always tidy to an immaculate degree in his linen and outer garments, appeared frowsled. Bernard Gerstman, spick-and-span and young, with his hair always well combed and brushed, looked like a Scotch terrier that had been through a battle in a dusty bigbway. Juror Henry C. Harney, well on in years, but seemingly a lover of the good things of life, awoke to find no bath ready for him, nor even a mirror before which he could fix himself.

Juror Wilbur F. Steele, who wears his thin mustache well pointed at an angle in the direction of the course of Emperor William's whiskers, and who, during the trial, appeared as the well-balanced, healthy man of the world, had great, heavy rings under his eyes. Juror Pink was sore of body and the fatigue of the long night of argument, with occasional snoozes in the little, ill-ventilated jury room.

Towels and basins of water were brought to the twelve, and they bravely attacked the job of freshening up and getting ready for public appearance.

At 10 o'clock great swarms of people began to gather about the Criminal Court Building, especially under the covered windows of the jury room on the second story of the north side of the building. In the fire engine company's house, across White Street, a dozen men in uniform hung out of the windows. They awaited the coming of Thaw's wife in her electric bansom.

The crowd of hundreds grew rapidly to a crowd of thousands. From Mulberry Bend there surged a big squad of gaudily dressed Italian women, who had been reading of the case in Il Progresso, a journal which has not neglected the trial as news matter, and which has carried downtown a glimpse of the life of the Great White Way.

The Italian quarter and the Tenderloin mingled for once. Even from Mott Street, almost a stone's throw away, journeyed a pair of inquisitive Chinamen. All wanted to see the young woman who had been depicted on the day before by Mr. Jerome as the "angel child."

Then came the tooting of an unusually large automobile horn, and a huge machine pushed its way through the crowd to the little cleared space in front of the White Street entrance of the Criminal Court Building, where the Thaw women were to enter. Roundsman Murray drove his squads of men against the curious mob to keep a space clear.

Mrs. William Thaw, Lady Yarmouth, and Mrs. Carnegie hurried out of the machine and sought refuge between the two lines of police leading to the stairs within the building. Thaw's wife came later. She was in a new blue broadcloth frock. There was a flush of pink in her cheeks, but her eyes showed weariness. She had lingered downtown late the night before.

Curious Crowd Barred.

The main doors of the courtroom were not thrown open for the morning gathering of newspaper men, lawyers, and jury. At 11 o'clock the newspaper reporters were admitted through the side door which leads to the corridor skirting the chambers of Justice Fitzgerald. Outsiders were not admitted, and the mob in the outer corridors clamored in vain.

The court room, rid of the crowd that had obtained admittance in one way or another during the trial and during the addresses to the jury, seemed desolate. There was a sense of emptiness in the air. The great box-like room, with its half light of reflected sunshine, seemed a more forbiding place than ever. Mrs. William Thaw, with her daughters and her sons, Josiah and Edward, sat in their accustomed place. Evelyn sat beside the mother of the prisoner in an aisle seat. The contrast was striking. The mother's almost massive features changed in expression rapidly and nervously. Her lips twitched and at times she would pass her handkerchief over them. Beside her was the slender girl in blue, whose aquiline countenance showed no trace of emotion except when she let it bespeak a smile to a newspaper friend near her.

Once the "angel child" leaned across the lap of her mother-in-law and said something to Lady Yarmouth, who replied with brevity and with a cold look in her eyes.

There was great hope of a verdict by 11 o'clock and certainly by noon. Mr. Jerome was in his chair as soon as it was announced that the Justice had arrived and was bedecking himself with his black silk robe. Mr. Garvan sat near him, showing the greater nervousness of a younger and less tried man. Mr. Delmas, whom the flippant young ones of the newspaper delegation at the trial call "Foxy Grandpa," tucked his overcoat collar over the bald spot on the back of his head and made himself comfortable. Mr. Hartridge, alert and with the nervousness of an overtrained athlete or race horse, fidgetted in his chair. Daniel O'Reilly beamed about him with the smile that never leaves his face.

Thaw Very Nervous.

Then Justice Fitzgerald took his seat and the jury was brought in. Thaw followed, bowing to his womenfolk and slipping into his chair at the head of the table of his lawyers. He was terribly marked with the anxiety of the long night he had spent in his cell at the other end of the Bridge of Sighs. When his wife was telling the story of the Twenty-fourth Street studio he had shown a frightened, sallow, drawn face for a moment and had then hidden it between his hands. The face he showed yesterday morning was the face of a man who had skirted the valley of the shadow of death. The pallor of it was terrible. His eyes were fairly popping out of his head. The flesh of his cheeks sagged and the deep expanse of his upper lip seemed more than ever beyond his control. It twitched continually. The same restless waving back of the hair at his temples was resorted to.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw smiled to a reporter friend and furrowed her brows prettily. She was ready for the verdict. When Foreman Smith made it known that there was no verdict and that the jury only desired enlightenment she frowned and sighed at the delay of the climax—the last of the climaxes in the tragedy of what Mr. Jerome had called "a common, sordid, vulgar murder of the Tenderloin."

Jury Has Evidence Read.

Foreman Smith put into the hands of the court a document that for brevity and conciseness might have won first prize in a law school competition. It read, simply, that the jury desired to have copies of the hypothetical questions asked the alienists by Mr. Delmas and Mr. Jerome. It asked for the copies of the Thaw will, the codicil, the Longfellow letters and the letter to Anthony Comstock. It also asked that the evidence in the direct examination of witnesses for the prosecution should be read to the jury in the courtroom. The jury also desired to have read that part of the charge of Justice Fitzgerald to the jury in which reference was made to the use of expert testimony in reaching a verdict.

It seemed as if one or more members of the jury were standing out against conviction on the ground of the evidence of the defense as to Thaw's mental condition at the time of the killing. Juror Steele whispered something to the foreman, leaning far over the heads of Jurors Pfaff and Fecke. Juror Brearley also seemed interested. He began to take notes on the back of envelopes and scraps of paper taken from his inside pocket.

As the whole case of the People was read by Court Stenographer Bartholomew Moynahan those in the court room became convinced that the majority of the jury was standing against Thaw's acquittal. Thaw himself felt that there was evil to his chances in the air. He followed the testimony closely, using a typewritten copy and reading line by line and word by word after Mr. Moynahan.

The mother of the prisoner was disturbed by this fresh and unexpected recital of the events which occurred on the night of June 25 on Madison Square Roof Garden. Twice she leaned over to the confidential secretary of Clifford W. Hartridge, who was sitting in front of her, and whispered instructions to him, which he carried to counsel of record. Once when Mr. Moore hesitated about carrying her message she whispered sharply, "Go to him."

Josiah Thaw was also uneasy. He is a stolid type, the only one of the family without exterior signs of nervousnese and uneasiness. When Hary Thaw allowed his overcoat to slip from his shoulders and there was a draught felt in that part of the room Josiah went to the prisoner and told him to draw his coat again over his shoulders.

The testimony of the witness Cohen, who saw the tragedy on the roof garden, was read clearly by Mr. Moynahan. The testimony of Blease, Paxeon, and the fireman, Brudl, all giving details of how Thaw killed White that night and of his actions immediately following the killing, was heard a second time by the prisoner.

Then came a half hour of added distress to Thaw. The testimony of James Clinch Smith was read. This witness, a brother-in-law of the slain man, was the last person talked to at length by Thaw before he shot Stanford White.

In this reading there was rehearsed the idle flippant talk of the man of the Tenderloin meeting an acquaintance at a first night production. Thaw's desire to know whether Mr. Smith was "very much married" and whether he did not want to meet a buxom blonde to whom he could be introduced by Thaw sounded harshly on the ears of the Thaw family, for Mr. Jerome had himself rehearsed it the day before in his scathing address to the jury.

Then the testimony of the illiterate wardman of the Tenderloin police station who had sworn that Thaw had complained of hearing the voices of young girls crying for help when he was in a cell in that station was read. But the jury had also asked for the cross-examination of this wardman, and in it was the tangle and jumble of words that the Tenderloin wardman had floundered amid, and the fact that he had told a different story immediately after the killing to Mr. Jerome's stenographer.

Odds Offered Against Acquittal.

All the morning was used in this fashion, and every word that came from the lips of Moynahan sounded against the hopes that Thaw and his family held for his acquittal. Bets were offered among those who filed out of the courtroom at recess time that Thaw would be convicted of murder in the second degree, or of at least manslaughter in the first degree. The odds against acquittal were 10 to 7.

After dinner the jury again filed into the courtroom. Mr. Penny, the clerk, changed his form of calling for the prisoner. Instead of saying, "Harry K. Thaw to the bar!" in his stereotyped tones, he called out, "Bring the defendant into court, please!"

Foreman Smith wanted some new form of aid from the court. He asked that the Justice go at length in his charge on the matter of the value and use of expert testimony. Justice Fitzgerald made the Foreman write out his request and then he had Mr. Moynahan read again that part of his charge which told the jury that expert testimony based on hypothetical questions should not be taken as evidence, but only as opinions, which might guide in the effort to reach a verdict.

Justice Fitzgerald declined to go further into the matter, and when Mr. Smith endeavored to ask him another question on the same subject the court admonished the Foreman not to persist in his effort.

"Then," said Foreman Smith, "I would like to know from the court if we will be allowed to have a part of the summing up of Mr. Delmas for our consideration."

"The summing up?" asked Justice Fitzgerald, a bit incredulously. "Why, the jury is only entitled to the evidence and the facts in the case, and can consider nothing else."

"All right," said Mr. Smith, plumping down into his seat.

This request was a surprise to every one. It seemed to have a cheering effect on Thaw, for it undoubtedly recalled the oratorical pictures of Thaw as Sir Galahad and as St. George, and evoked memories of Evelyn as the poor, little girl, the toy of fate cursed with great beauty.

The jury retired and lunched in the jury room, discussing the case and its issues between mouthfuls. District Attorney Jerome and his staff and Mr. Hartridge and his assistants hurried to the little French café on Franklin Street. Thaw lingered in the courtroom to speak to his wife. He placed his right hand tenderly upon her shoulder and chatted with her, but his eyes were rolling. Once he put his hand under her chin and tilted the pretty face upward so that he might glance into her eyes. Then the prison guard said something, and Thaw wheeled and tramped his way over the path he has well beaten these three months—toward his cell at the other end of the Bridge of Sighs.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, with Daniel O'Reilly, went to luncheon at Pontin's.

Rush to See Thaw's Wife.

Again was shown the morbid curiosity of the populace. Thousands of men and women surged through Franklin Street between the Criminal Court Building and the little French Café. When the wife of the prisoner stepped from the great, red brick and stone building to the sidewalk the mob rushed toward her. Hundreds from the other streets around the building fled toward the café.

Thaw's wife swept down the street surrounded by the curious hundreds. Her husband was in the prisoner's pen on the first mezzanine floor of the Criminal Court Building talking to his mother and sisters. Under this room the twelve jurors wrangled over the fate of the man who had slain Stanford White.

The Strain of Waiting.

The afternoon was a terrible one for Thaw. He talked in his rapid style about his case and about many things. His wife joined him after luncheon. He had eaten his fragment of food in the prisoner's pen. She had lunched comfortably at Pontin's.

The afternoon wait on the jury was painful in the extreme to all who had at heart the settlement of the case. Thaw's lawyers paced the corridors of the building restlessly. Only Daniel O'Reilly smiled. He said he was sure that a verdict would be reached, and that it would be in favor of his client. Clifford W. Hartridge was not of the buoyant spirit of his colleague. He had expected a verdict long before noon. The short, well-groomed Californian, Delmas, prowled about. Mr. Delmas had on a new pair of brown spats over a glistening, new pair of patent leather shoes. Occasionally he glanced at his nether extremities. Then he would adjust his glasses and spread his chest.

Even the police became nervous under the strain. There were occasional false starts toward the little side door to the courtroom. Twice the reporters entered the courtrom and sat patiently waiting for the jury—and no jury came.

Even Mr. Jerome, who seems to have relaxed since his address to the jury, was fooled. He and Mr. Garvan and one or two of his alienists dashed into the room and took seats within the railing before the bench. They waited with the others, and then retired to the corridors without to smoke and chat.

From 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon until near 7 this thing went on. Some one began to count the hours and minutes the jury had taken. The jury retired to deliberate on the verdict at 5:20 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The marble-faced clock of the courtroom ticked off added hours with awful deliberation after some time marker had announced that twenty-four hours had been used up.

This marble-faced clock is a big affair, and its long hand does not move with the insidiousness of the long hand of a watch. It seems to take hurdles between the Roman numbers on the face. Every second makes that long hand jump with big effort and apaprent strain. Mr. Jerome watched it leap slowly around the numbered marble face. The court attendants watched it hop along. The reporters glared at it as if they would like to try to end the strain of three months of such a sordid case by hurling an inkwell at its centre.

"Recess until 9," suddenly sounded the voice of Capt. Lynch as he came from the chambers of Justice Fitzgerald.

Jury Goes to Dinner.

The jury's dinner had been prepared at the Broadway Central Hotel, and, with a man for every pair of jurors, Capt. Lynch filed the twelve men out of the building and toward the hotel.

The crowd around the building had grown so large by this time that the regular escort of court officers with Capt. Lynch in command was increased by volunteers. The services of the extra force were needed.

As the party of jurors, walking arm in arm, issued from the building the crowd surged in upon it. Soon a thousand persons were struggling to get a view of the jury, which had become of greater interest to the curious than even the Thaw family itself. But the police and the escort pushed them back out of hearing, so that nobody had an opportunity to suggest to the jurors how they should vote.

The trip to the hotel was uneventful. The crowd gradually diminished as the party got further away from the courthouse, which was regarded as the news centre, away from which it was not advisable to drift. Soon only a party of boys was following the jurors. These seemed to find as much enjoyment in their actions as many of them had experienced weeks before when the circus came to town.

Engaged in serious thought, the jurors paid little attention to the crowd. The verdict was uppermost in their minds. Those who chanced to be walking together talked earnestly. Several preferred to walk alone. Among these were Steele and Dennee, the two jurors who in the afternoon had asked the court for information through Foreman Smith.

After eating supper in a private dining room, the jury made the return journey. There were very few persons along the route and these gave the officers no trouble. Stopping to observe the party, they remarked casually, "The Thaw jury," and then walked on.

In front of the Court House the jurors encountered the crowd again, but it gave no trouble. The party of jurors went through it like a flying wedge and entered the building.

The court officers, who had cleared the courtroom during the dinner recess, once more opened the doors, and a tremendous rush took place. A number of men besides the reporters wanted to get in, but the officials refused to admit any of the outsiders.

FAMILY STAYS BY THAW.

Remain in Court During the Dinner Hour—Defense's Plans.

As a waiter was bringing dinner to the Thaw family last night in the Criminal Court Building he slipped and fell down the stairs. All the dishes were broken to atoms.

So anxious were the Thaws that they could not be prevailed upon to leave the court to go uptown. They had been informed that the jury had gone to the Broadway Central Hotel and that the Justice had excused them until 9 o'clock, but the women in their solicitude would not take the least chance of the critical moment arriving while they were away.

Moreover, they hoped that they would be able to have their meal with Thaw. As usual, his dinner was sent up to him from Delmonico's, and he suggested that he might be permitted to eat it in company with his family. But the Deputy Sheriffs had been forgotten. There was no provision for them, and they declined to go hungry in order to accommodate any prisoner in the world. So they took him back to the Tombs and had his dinner sent after him.

Thaw's optimism surprised all who came near him yesterday. Before he left the Tombs he packed up his belongings, explaining to the keepers:

"I hope to be out of here by night. Anyhow it's much easier to unpack than to pack."

During the weary waits in the prisoner's pen, and the still more nerve-racking summonses to court, when the first word which fell from the foreman's lips might seal his fate, he kept up his spirits, and, though very nervous, never ceased to hope for release. As the jurors passed him in a long file as they left the courtroom he lifted his eyes and gazed earnestly at them.

Except for the brief luncheon recess the Thaw women never left the building all day. Mrs. William Thaw, Lady Yarmouth, and Mrs. Carnegie, and Josiah and Edward Thaw went up to the Hotel Lorraine for luncheon. But Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, for even that brief hour, when it was almost certain that nothing of any importance would happen, stayed close by. Escorted by Mr. Peabody and Mr. O'Reilly, she went up to Pontin's restaurant, and had to face a most unruly mob on the way back.

The whole day, except for the time when the jury was in court, the Thaw women spent with the defendant. As there were other prisoners occupying the regular pen, Thaw was allowed to go to the Sheriff's guard room. He was visited from time to time by his counsel, who gave him what comfort they could from what was learned of the jury's deliberations.

What struck the lawyers most was the evident determination of the jurors to arrive at a definite decision somehow at whatever cost to themselves. From the questions which were evidently occupying their minds when they sought the instruction of the court the lawyers for the defense took the utmost comfort.

"I see nothing but an acquittal in sight," declared Mr. Hartridge.

He was basing his view upon the evident importance which the jurors were giving to the testimony of Dr. Britton D. Evans and Dr. Charles G. Wagner. They are the only alienists who have actually examined Thaw, and their view was clear that he was insane upon the day of the tragedy.

"They must find that Thaw was insane on June 25, and yet competent to consult with counsel now," contended Mr. Hartridge, "if they take the evidence of these experts."

He was particularly cheered by their request to have that part of the Justice's charge read to them in which he declared that the jury had the right to consider the grounds upon which an expert rested his opinion, and that for the opinion itself they were not to have too great a respect. Facts must be considered before opinions from however high a source, and so it seemed that the alienist testimony of the People, based as it was upon hardly any observed facts, must have a second place in the minds of the jurors in considering their verdict.

Some of the other lawyers for the defense were not quite as sure as Mr. Hartridge that a complete victory awaited them. George Pfaff, Juror No. 2, made a particular request for that part of the evidence which brought out the fact that one of the policemen thought Thaw looked under the influence of "dope." From this it was argued by the less optimistic of Thaw's counsel that in the end a compromise would be reached and an acquittal would be declared upon the specific ground of insanity. To Thaw this would be almost as distasteful as a verdict of murder in the first degree. It would hardly be possible for Justice Fitzgerald not to take cognizance of the reason for the finding.

In any case, the counsel for Thaw are prepared to challenge any verdict but that of an acquittal. In that event they will make a motion immediately for a new trial. Justice Fitzgerald will almost as a matter of course refuse the application. They will then prepare papers to submit to some Justice of the Supreme Court asking for a writ for a stay of proceedings. If that is refused they will have to go direct to the Court of Appeals, and an indefinite delay will be the result.

RECORD CROWDS ON WATCH.

Interest in Thaw's Fate Draws Thousands to Court House.

The scenes in and about the Criminal Court Building yesterday were such as had never been witnessed there before. On the Lafayette Street side of the building at least 5,000 men and women had gathered as early as 11 o'clock in the morning, while on Centre Street at least 3,000 were lined up. Police Inspector George McClusky, with forty policemen in uniform from the neighboring precincts, managed to keep the crowd at a distance, permitting only newspaper men and those who had business at other trials to get into the building. Inside there were twenty men in uniform who guarded the stairways and the doors leading to the courtroom where the trial had been held. The police arrangements were perfect, and although the outsiders became boisterous at times, the situation was well handled.

The policemen did not have easy work, for every time a rumor started that the jury had agreed, the crowd rushed pell mell to the White Street entrance or the Franklin Street entrance to get a glimpse of Thaw, who was said to have an automobile in waiting on White Street to hurry him out of town, as he firmly believed that it was only a matter of a few hours when he would be released.

Now and then some one in the crowd would shout that Thaw was coming out of the building, and, running in the wake of the man who started the rumor, the crowd would rush into White Street. The next minute some one else would shout that Thaw was coming out on the Franklin Street side of the building, and the crowd would run in that direction. This sort of thing kept up all day, the crowd anxiously picking up every bit of information that came from within and putting its own construction upon it, but all the time rushing, pushing, and fighting toward the Court House.

Inside of the building, where Police Inspector McClusky made his headquarters, there was a crowd of about 300 men and women, mostly newspaper correspondents from out of town. Down on the ground floor more than fifty newspaper and magazine photographers had anchored with camera, prepared to take snapshots of Thaw in case the jury acquitted him. Some of the photographers had been on the job all night, and slept while sitting on the marble floors of the main corridor of the Court House.

The first real news of the outsiders came along at 7 o'clock in the morning, when the announcement was made that the members of the jury would go to breakfast. About 300 men and women followed the jury through Lafayette Street to Bond and over to Broadway, keeping some distance off, and only staring at the men who had Thaw's fate in their hands. When the jurymen reached the Broadway Central Hotel the crowd lingered for half an hour before dispersing.

Crowds Hear Many Rumors.

A new crowd had gathered at the Criminal Court Building when the jury got back from breakfast at 9 o'clock. The new crowd remained all day and grew in numbers. There were many reports as to how the jury stood.

The crowd outside got very much excited when it heard that the jurymen were in the courtroom listening to the reading of testimony. This was thought to mean that a verdict would be reached soon, so men who had business to attend to neglected it while waiting to learn of Thaw's fate. All they heard were the same old reports of the jury standing ten to two for conviction in some degree.

In some manner the crowd on the street got a story to the effect that the juror who first stood out for acquittal was Harry C. Brearley, a piano dealer, of Brook Avenue and 132d Street. At noon the street crowd was telling folk that Wilbur F. Steele, known as Juror No. 9, was also cut flat-footed for acquittal. An hour later, while the jurymen were eating lunch in the Courthouse, the street crowd got a third rumor to the effect that the two jurors who were in favor of acquitting Thaw had won over a third. Then came a story to the effect that the remaining nine jurors were trying to win over the three who favored Thaw by declaring that the three would be proved wrong in their views if the testimony concerning Thaw's alleged insanity could all be read, instead of the portion first asked for.

After the street crowds got the tip that all of the insanity testimony had been read over to the jury it convinced them that Thaw would be free in a little while, so there was another football rush for choice places opposite the White Street door to the courthouse.

About this time a covered automobile hove in sight and stopped on the White Street side of the building. A man in the crowd volunteered to find out what this meant and after talking with the chauffeur returned to tell the crowd on Lafayette Street that the automobile was there to take Thaw away. The inquisitive man said he was sure that Thaw was to take a trip out of town as soon as he was released and that the automobile had been provided by a friend of the Thaw family.

As the crowd pressed closer to the automobile and choked up traffic in White Street Inspector McClusky gave orders to have the machine taken away. This was done and once more the crowds surged to Franklin Street, hoping to learn something there.

Thaw's Wife Meets Dixey.

They were rewarded by getting a glimpse of Thaw's wife, who came out to go to lunch with Daniel O'Reilly.

Going back into the court house, Mr. O'Reilly was stopped by Henry E. Dixey, the actor, who was waiting at the court house door. Mr. Dixey was introduced to Evelyn Thaw. Mr. Dixey went back into the building and took a seat in the court room at the reporters' table, where he remained during the remainder of the afternoon.

While on his way back to court Mr. Jerome was stopped by a friend, who inquired what course would be pursued in case the jury disagreed. He said that Thaw would be tried over again, but not for some months. Mr. Jerome added that the Tombs was filled with prisoners charged with grave crimes, and that these prisoners would be tried in the order of their arrests. No favoritism would be shown, he said, and consequently Thaw would not get the preference of being put on trial right away.

When it came time for the jurymen to go to dinner at 7 o'clock the crowd outside the Court House building had fallen away in numbers, but there were still more than 2,000 persons lined up on Centre Street. As the jurymen filed out of the building the uniformed policemen who were holding the dead line forced the crowd back to give the jurymen a chance to get away without annoysnce. But the crowd hurried around the block to head the jury off, and at the corner of Walker Street completely choked all traffic.

Just then Inspector McClusky and his personal aides, Detective Sergeants Riedy and Stripp, put in an appearance and drove the crowd down the block.

About this time a policeman in uniform jokingly remarked that Thaw was to be released on bail at 9 o'clock, and when the news spread the crowd pressed back toward the Court House, where it remained most of the night.

FLAPDOODLE ORATORY.

Mean Remarks by a London Paper on Delmas's and Jerome's Speeches.

LONDON, April 11.—Commenting on the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, The Evening Standard to-day ridicules the oratory of Messrs. Delmas and Jerome as being "flapdoddle." It says it considers Mr. Delmas to be the worse sinner in this respect, and adds that it "seemed as if a minor poet had been let loose upon the court."

The paper inquires if it is possible that a jury of practical experienced men could be influenced by "such empty rhetoric," and says:

"Oratory of such a kind is inconceivable in an English court. It would disgust the Judge and jury alike and provoke a bitter remonstrance even from the prisoner at the bar."

George L. Carnegie Hurt by a Fall.

George L. Carnegie, brother-in-law of Harry K. Thaw, was slightly injured yesterday morning in his room in the Hotel Gotham. Mr. Carnegie fell, striking and cutting his head. He was attended by Dr. Yardell, the house physician, and word of the accident was telephoned to the Lorraine, where the Thaw family are staying.

STANDARD OIL'S ANSWER.

Asserts, with Its Subsidiaries, That Complaints Are Impertinent.

In accordance with its policy of taking the public into its confidence, the Standard Oil Company, through its press representative, J. I. C. Clarke, gave out for publication yesterday its answers and exceptions to the complaint filed against it by the Government in the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, charging discrimination, monopolies, rebating, restraint of trade, and other offenses against the Interstate Commerce law. The answers and exceptions comprise four pamphlets, three devoted to the answers and one to the exceptions.

The answer of the Standard Oil Company, some of its Directors, and some forty subsidiary concerns, is a general denial of the charges in the complaint. The individual defendants are John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, Henry M. Flagler, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne, and Charles M. Pratt. There are two sets of subsidiary corporations filing answers of their own, in addition to the forty and more who answer with the principal company.

These two groups comprise the public lighting corporations included in the Government's complaint. Their answer is that they are not in the oil business but are natural gas companies. One of the groups admits that the majority of its stock is owned either by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey or by the National Transit Company. The other group denies that either the Standard Oil Company or any of the defendant corporations or limited partnerships named in the Government's bill have owned at any time, or now own any interest in their stocks or property. Nevertheless, these independent concerns availed themselves of Mr. Clarke's services yesterday in getting out their answer to the newspapers, just like the Standard Oil and its acknowledged subsidiaries.

The exceptions taken to the Government's complaint are all on the ground that the allegations are impertinent. Here is a sample as given out:

These defendants severally except to the portion of the subdivision of said petition numbered IX. from and including the words "That in order to further hamper and prevent" on Page 100 of the petition to and including the words "Standard Oil Trust and Standard Oil Company," on page 101, thereof, for that the same is impertinent.

Mr. Clarke, when asked if he could further elucidate these answers, said that the documents spoke for themselves.

OVERRIDES GOVERNOR'S VETO.

Texas Legislature Passes Santa Fe Consolidation Bill Over His Head.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 11.—The Legislature to-day refused to sustain Gov. Campbell's veto of the Santa Fé Consolidation bill. The bill was passed over the Governor's head by a vote of 88 yeas to 37 nays.

It authorizes the merging of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fé, the Texas & Gulf, the Gulf, Beaumont & Kansas City, and the Gulf, Beaumont & Great Northern. It also requires that an extension of the consolidated lines shall be built north from Longview, Texas, to a point on the Red River, a distance of 125 miles, within two years.

TO STOP MUNICIPAL WASTE.

New Jersey Commission Suggests New Rules of Government.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—In a report to the Legislature urging economy in municipal expenditures, the commission appointed to investigate the whole subject of municipal government says that between 1870 and 1900 the population increased 160 per cent., the valuation of taxed wealth increased 110 per cent., while expenditures for municipal government increased 225 per cent. and the net debt 1,000 per cent.

The recommendations are: Uniform fiscal years, 7 per cent. debt limit for cities of the first, second, and third classes and 10 per cent. in all other municipalities instead of the present 15 per cent. limit; a State Auditor of Municipal Accounts, to have power to call for all records.

The report is signed by Howard K. Stokes and Frederick Gnichtel of Trenton and Joseph L. Munn of Newark.

D. O. MILLS QUITS TWO ROADS.

W. Bayard Cutting Succeeds Him on Southern Pacific Board.

D. O. Mills, one of the venerable figures in the financial community, retired yesterday from the Directorates of two roads with which he had long been connected, the Southern Pacific and the Erie. His withdrawal, it was explained, was due solely to Mr. Mills's desire to lessen his activities. He is now more than 81 years old, and of late he has been suffering from the grip, which has kept him from his office for several weeks.

At yesterday's meeting of the Southern Pacific board W. Bayard Cutting was elected a Director, of that road in the place of Mr. Mills, but the latter's successor on the Erie Directorate has not yet been named.

Mr. Mills is still a Director in many corporations, including railroads and financial institutions.

THE ST. PAUL PLANS TO STOP NEW WORK

Pacific Coast Extension Not Likely to be Pushed to Completion Now.

RUMOR OF POSSIBLE SALE

Management Said to be Willing to Turn Project Over to Some Other Company.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, according to despatches from Chicago which quoted President Earling of that road, has under consideration the stoppage of work on the Pacific Coast extension, which was begun last year, and to provide funds for which $100,000,000 of new stock was offered to stockholders last December, it has been known in railroad circles for some time that the management of the St. Paul has come to the conclusion that a postponement would make it possible to do the work on much more favorable terms later.

President Earling was quoted in yesterday's despatches as referring to hostile legislation by the Western States as one of the reasons for the desire of the St. Paul management to stop the work, but the prospect of having it done more cheaply later on has been thought to be the chief reason.

It has been suggested in some quarters, however, that the St. Paul would like to abandon the work altogether. One of the directors, when questioned two days ago on this point, refused either to deny or affirm the statement that the St. Paul was willing to sell out the undertaking to some other system. It was pointed out that both the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific would find advantage in taking over the line which the St. Paul has undertaken to build through the State of Washington and that either of those systems might be able to use to advantage other parts of the line. The extension as a whole would hardly be built by either of those systems should one of them take it over. Its acquisition, however, would eliminate some competition on one hand and on the other would supply rights of way in some districts through which either the Union Pacific or the Northern Pacific might build advantageously.

The St. Paul, like most of the other large systems, decided some time ago to put off all work that could be postponed and under this policy no improvements are now being undertaken.

The new line of the St. Paul to the Pacific Coast closely parallels the Northern Pacific Line for a long distance. James J. Hill, speaking for both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, has said frequently that he welcomed the construction of a new line to the Pacific.

NO RATE DISCRIMINATION.

Railroads Cannot Favor One Concern at Expense of Others.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—In an opinion by the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day the principle is laid down that a railroad company cannot arbitrarily determine that a particular establishment shall compete in a certain market with other localities and that other similar establishments on its lines shall not so compete, particularly where the discrimination is not justified by operating conditions.

The decision was applied to the case of the Texas Cement Pinster Company against the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company and the St. Louis, San Francisco & Texas Railway Company, involving a complaint of unlawful discrimination in rates on cement plaster in carload lots.

The defendants were ordered to adjust their tariffs accordingly and to pay the complainant reparation in the amount of excess charges, with interest.

COAL TAX BILL PASSED.

Pennsylvania House for It by 138 Votes to 25.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 11.—After a two hours' debate the House to-day by a vote of 138 to 25 passed the Howard bill imposing a tax of 3 cents a ton on anthracite on a basis of 70,000,000 tons annual production. This measure, if passed by the Senate will yield an income to the State of $2,100,000.

Garner of Schuylkill led a vigorous fight against the measure until fellowmine region delegates in a hasty conference at the rear of the chamber persuaded him that the operators would raise the price to consumers, thereby increasing the wage basing price, with the result that the miners would profit to the extent of a 1 per cent. increase in pay.

LEADERS TO SHIFT TWO DISTRICTS

Albany Republicans Figure That Way to Satisfy Court of Appeals.

THAT LEAVES BRACKETT OUT

He and Others Sent to Private Life by Senate Reapportionment Threaten Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Republican leaders in the Senate have now settled upon a definite policy in connection with the reapportionment of Senate districts rendered necessary by the action of the Court of Appeals in declaring the 1906 reapportionment unconstitutional. It was announced to-day that only the districts complained of in the court decision would be changed, and that the others would be permitted to remain as left by the recent reapportionment.

The proposed changes, therefore, will involve only the Thirteenth Senatorial District, in Manhattan, and the Second Senatorial District which takes in Richmond. The principal question is whether Richmond shall be consolidated with Suffolk and Nassau or whether it shall be attached to Rockland County. If the latter plan is decided upon, it will be necessary to make changes in the counties of Orange, Putnam, Dutchess, and Columbia as well. The up-State district lines will remain undisturbed. The Senate leaders base their contention that this policy would stand the test in the courts on the following extract from the opinion of Judge Chase:

"The disregard of constitutional provisions in forming the Second and Thirteenth Districts is clear, and they so affect the entire apportionment as to make it necessary to declare the act wholly unconstitutional and void.

"It is not necessary or wise to discuss the provisions of the act relating to other Senate districts, except to say that differences arising from necessity and slight differences in the citizen population of Senate districts and the relative weight of slight differences in population in comparison with considerations of compactness or the reverse, upon which men of judgment and discretion may fairly differ, are matters belonging to the Legislature and not to the judicial branch of the Government, and with which this court has no disposition or jurisdiction to interfere."

Brackett and the other ex-Senators retired to private life by the recent reapportionment threaten to make trouble if they continue out in the cold.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee held yesterday at the Republican State Committee headquarters, 12 East Thirtieth Street, a committee of five was appointed by Chairman Herbert Parsons to take up the reapportionment matter. The committee consists of Willim C. Wilson, Colin H. Woodward, John Shea, Frank Bowers and Thomas C. Whittle.

The committee does not anticipate having much difficulty in the city. It is expected that in changing the present Thirteenth Senatorial District it will be necessary to change parts of the Eleventh and Twelfth, but no other changes of importance are to be made. Uptown John McCaull's district will probably be changed to eliminate the block which was included to allow ex-Senator Marks to stay a resident of the district, and the same thing will be done in what was once Barney Martin's district.

In addition to taking up the reapportionment question, the committee drafted a new primary law which contemplates putting all primary elections in charge of the Bureau of Elections instead of under the control of political organizations. The new form of primary ballot, which had previously been discussed at length, was approved, and in the bill was a provision for the payment of fees for filing, out of which the city will be reimbursed for the expense of holding the elections.

AGAINST TELEPHONE MERGER.

Attorney General Serves Complaint and Gets Temporary Injunction.

ALBANY, April 11.--Attorney General Jackson caused to be served upon the defendants to-day the summons and complaint in an action brought in the name of the People of the State of New York against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the New Jersey Title Guarantee and Trust Company, the Security Trust Company of Rochester, George Eastman, Hiram W. Sibley, James S. Watson, Walter S. Duffy, Thomas W. Finucane, and Edward Bausch. This action is to prevent the consummation of an alleged agreement for the acquisition by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company of the United States Independent Telephone Company and its subsidiary companies in Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Rome, Herkimer, Jamestown, and intermediate towns and cities.

The Attorney General also got a temporary injunction restraining the proposed merger.

HUGHES TO REVIEW THE 7TH.

With This Exception, He Will Decline Invitations for Some Time.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Gov. Hughes will review the Seventh Regiment in New York on Saturday evening.

He announces that for the next two or three months he will decline any additional engagements. He will devote his entire attention, as far as possible, to the executive duties of his office.

National Guard Bill Passed Again.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Without a dissenting voice, the Wainwright bill, providing for a Commissioner to investigate the National Guard and revise the military code, again passed the Senate to-day. This is one of the Governor's reform measures. A couple of days ago it passed the Senate by a unanimous vote, but it was found that the bill, which had been amended in the Senate Finance Committee, had not been printed in its amended form for three days before passage as required by the rules of the Legislature, and the vote for that reason was declared void.

Time Limit on Bay Window Suits.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Robinson of New York introduced a bill in the Assembly to-day to limit the time within which actions may be brought for the removal of or for damages for the maintenance of bay windows or ornamental projections on buildings in New York City. It provides that no action for damages for the erection and maintenance of such projections shall be commenced after the period of one year from the enactment of the measure.

Railroad Employes' Bill Passed.

ALBANY, April 11.—The Senate to-day unanimously passed the Page bill, limiting employment of railroad employes to sixteen consecutive hours.

Marriage License Bill Reported.

ALBANY, April 11.—The Senate Judiciary Committee to-day reported favorably Senator Cobb's bill to establish the marriage license system in this State.

W. R. Stewart Heads Charity Board.

ALBANY, April 11.—The State Board of Charities has elected as President William Rhinelander Stewart of New York in place of Enoch V. Stoddard of Rochester. Mr. Stewart was formerly President of the Board.

Albany Gamblers Have 24 Hours in Which to Profit by It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—Raids with a brass band have been heard of in New York, but it was left to an Albany Judge to give the gamblers twenty-four hours' notice from the bench of the issuance of warrants and search of their premises for gambling paraphernalia to be used as evidence. This was done when Judge Brady began John Doe proceedings to-day on affidavits furnished by a number of clergymen to show that gambling was going on here unchecked by the city authorities.
